Agnew Thinks Career Ruined

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Vice - President Spiro Agnew has said privately he believes his political career has been destroyed. But he has come out swinging publicly at his accusers, determined to prove his innocence.

Aides said Agnew told a private weekend meeting of California Republican officials that even if he is exonerated of allegations of corruption, his political future has been destroyed.

Agnew spoke to the Republican officials Saturday after dramatically declaring war on his accusers in a nationally televised speech to a Republican women's convention in Los Angeles.

In that fiery address, Agnew said he would not resign if indicted, that he was being framed by persons in Maryland because he would not stop investigations against them and that someone high in the justice department was out to get him to make up for bungling the Watergate investigation.

Afterward, Agnew is said to have told the California party leaders there would remain "lingering doubts" in the minds of many people even if his name is cleared.

Agnew's pessimism was not shared by the convention delegates, and it was said that the California Republican leaders also believe his future is not ruined. He received a tumultuous outpouring of support after Saturday's address, in which he again declared his innocence.

A federal grand jury in Baltimore is looking into alleged kickbacks by officials by contractors in Maryland, where Agnew was formerly a county executive and governor.

Meanwhile, Newsweek magazine reports that a team of Nixon's lawyers tried to work out a deal between the justice department and Agnew's lawyers.

The magazine said the Nixon team, headed by Fred Buzhardt, made the effort last week to get a deal starting from the department's "bottom-line requirement" that Agnew resign and plead guilty to a charge for which he could get at least nine months in jail.

The White House, which last week said the presence of Nixon's lawyers at the meetings was merely "informational," did not comment on the story.

In his remarks to the Republican leaders, Agnew denied that he and his lawyers had ever initiated plea bargaining. Although he did not deny that such meetings took place, he said a bargain such as the one reported never was under serious consideration.

Agnew and his wife spent Friday evening at Palm Springs home of his close friend Frank Sinatra, and there were suggestions that the singer had urged Agnew to speak out.

Israelis Continue Refugee Camp Use

VIENNA (CP) — Jewish refugees from the Soviet Union are continuing to arrive at the Schoenau transit camp despite the Austrian government's promise to Arab terrorists to close it.

Informed sources said at least two groups of Soviet Jews arrived in Austria Sunday and were taken to the camp 70 miles south of Vienna under heavy police escort.

A spokesman for the Israeli embassy said that in his knowledge the camp will continue for the time being to process 40 to 120 Jews a day. It has "no plans to stop processing Soviet Jews."

Demonstrators marched in London and New York to protest Austria's capitulation to the terrorists. Premier Golda Meir of Israel said in Strasbourg that Austria had "betrayed her own greatness" and she hoped the decision "is provisional or perhaps she is a temporary standing."

The Austrian government has not said when it will fulfill its pledge to close the camp, a promise extracted during the weekend by two Arab guerrillas who kidnapped four hostages and held them for 13 hours.

Arab sources said the guerrillas' action was the first step in a plan to stop the flow of Soviet Jews to Israel.

Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky, himself a Jew, promised his government would suspend the mass emigration via Austria and discontinue special measures to facilitate the refugees' transit from the border to the Vienna airport. But he said Austria will continue issuing transit visas to individual Soviet Jews.

Government officials said Kreisky was considering how to preserve his neutral country's reputation as a place of asylum while still implementing the pledge that Jewish migrants would no longer be allowed to pass through Austria on a "group" basis.

Informed sources said Austria might not raise objections to Israeli officials discreetly processing migrants' travel documents.

An Israeli diplomat expressed doubt that the Austrian government had the legal authority to close the Schoenau camp, a castle leased by the Jewish Agency from an Austrian countess. The agency is an arm of the world Zionist movement and works with the Israeli government to promote immigration to Israel.

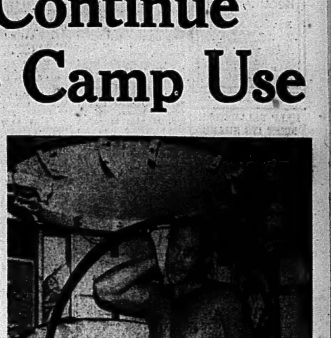
Austrian officials said their government had the right to close the camp because it was a private institution and therefore not covered by the Geneva conventions on refugees.

Moshe Rivlin, director-general of the Jewish Agency, said in Jerusalem that if the Schoenau camp is closed, the best way to transport Jews from the Soviet Union would be to fly them from Moscow or Kiev.

"But it's not up to us; it's up to the Russians," Rivlin said. The Soviet authorities stipulate the routing of Jews via Poland and Czechoslovakia to Austria.

But the two countries also Moscow eased its restrictions on Jewish emigration, about 2,600 Soviet Jews a month have been passing through Schoenau.

The two guerrillas invaded a Moscow-to-Vienna train Friday just inside the Austrian border, seized three families including Soviet Jews and an Austrian border guard and demanded that the camp be closed. They drove their hostages to the Vienna airport and, after leaving Kreisky's pledge, released the hostages and boarded an Austrian government plane that eventually was allowed to land in Libya.



In Tel Aviv, Israeli newspapers and radio said today that Mrs. Meir, in Strasbourg to address the 17-nation Council of Europe, may stop in Vienna following the meeting to talk with Kreisky and visit Schoenau Castle.

The independent daily Haaretz and Davar, a paper close to Mrs. Meir's labor party, quoted sources in Jerusalem as their banner headline and page stories, saying she will try to persuade him to revoke his decision.

There was no immediate official confirmation, but travel plans for leading Israeli figures are usually kept secret until the last moment for security reasons.

The Knesset, Israel's parliament, was summoned to a special session today to hear a report by acting prime minister Yigal Allon and debate Austria's decision.

Chile Junta Is Recognized

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite some public pressure against the move, Canada has extended diplomatic recognition to the new military government of Chile.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp made the announcement Saturday, saying the formal recognition was desirable, in order to aid the Canadian embassy in Santiago to "assist Canadian citizens and many other persons affected" by the Sept. 11 coup.

A number of persons have sought the help of the embassy in obtaining safe conduct out of Chile following recent reports that the new government is arresting and executing supporters of the ousted government of President Salvador Allende.

Mr. Sharp had been under pressure from a number of groups to withhold recognition of the new government pending the restoration of democracy.

He has repeatedly stressed that recognition is extended to the new regime because it is in effective control of the country.

"This act of recognition . . . does not imply any particular attitude toward the government being recognized," he said in the Saturday announcement.

NDP Chief Complains Of Haste

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Ottawa's recognition of the new military regime in Chile was granted "in indecent haste," David Lewis, New Democratic Party leader, said Saturday.

In an interview after a speech at a nominating convention here, Mr. Lewis said:

"I believe that the Canadian government should not have been in a hurry to recognize the military junta in Chile.

"I appreciate that recognition doesn't mean approval of the government, but the military junta upset a president with whose politics they didn't entirely agree—who was elected democratically and was carrying on democratically."

CP Air Strike Settled

Guerrillans Warn Austria To Keep Promise

BEIRUT (Reuter) — The Palestine commando organization which carried out last week's Vienna train hijack operation has warned the Austrian government not to back down from its decision to close a Soviet Jew emigration transit camp.

The statement said the decision to close down the camp had corrected a mistake and meant Austria's return to neutrality. It said the operation had shown that the commandos were not terrorists or killers but were merely exercising their right in rejecting occupation.

"We hope the Austrian government will stand firm in the face of the Zionist attempts to interfere in Austria's internal affairs.

"At the same time, we warn that any backing down of any kind on the moral commitment expressed in the decision to stop emigration will not serve the interests of Austria or the safety of its citizens, let alone world respect for the Austrian government and confidence in it."

Return to School

SANTIAGO (Reuter) — Schoolchildren were ordered back to classes throughout Chile today after an enforced holiday of almost three weeks following the military coup. The junta which seized power in the Sept. 11 coup ordered the return to school but said night schools would have to adjust their timetables to avoid violations of the 10 p.m. curfew.

Canadian Held by FBI Over Draft

TORONTO (CP) — Relatives of Gavin Naeve, a 25-year-old naturalized Canadian, say he is being held in a New York City jail for dodging the United States draft though he became a landed immigrant in Canada before becoming eligible for the draft.

He was arrested by the FBI nine days ago when he stopped here for a visit in New York on a flight to Toronto from Bermuda, where he had been working as a chef. Bail was set at $50,000, later reduced to $10,000.

The U. S. contends he should have registered for the draft when he reached the age of 18 because he was still a U.S. citizen. The draft ended about a year ago.

Watergate Hearing Cancelled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee has cancelled its scheduled Tuesday hearing over former White House appointments secretary Dwight Chapin and another witness were reported to have refused to testify.

A committee source said Chapin and Robert Benz, a Florida Young Republican leader, informed the committee that if called they would invoke their fifth Amendment right and refuse to answer all questions.

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — Israeli premier Golda Meir said today the Austrian decision to close the transit camp for Soviet Jews was "a great victory" for the Arabs, and appealed to the Austrian government to reconsider it.

"Clearly deeply moved by the events following the Arab terrorist attack on a train carrying Soviet Jews, Mrs. Meir spoke to the European parliament about the dangers of Austria's "surrender to terrorism."

Sources close to the Israeli premier said she may go from Strasbourg in Vienna to discuss the matter with Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky.

"These terrorists have raised the question whether any country should be involved in letting Jews use its territory in transit." Mrs. Meir told the consultative assembly of the Council of Europe.

"It is said that a country, in order to safeguard Soviet citizens, should not give them transit facilities, then why only Austria? The same could be good for any country."

Mrs. Meir said the Austrian government's decision "will be regarded as a great victory throughout the terrorist organizations and the radio stations of the Arab world, and rightly so, because this is the first time a government has come to an agreement of this sort."

She said the Austrian decision went beyond previous decisions by governments to free terrorists holding hostages. By adding its promise to end the transit arrangements "the very principle of the freedom of movement of people has been put on a dangerous slope."

Mrs. Meir told the parliamentarians of 17 European countries that Arab terrorist organizations long ago decided to interrupt the flow of Jewish refugees from the Soviet Union, and blow up the Vienna transit camp if possible. This created a security problem for the Austrian authorities, she said, but it was unfair to solve this problem by discriminating against the victims of terrorism.

She appealed to the European parliamentarians to help bring about a reversal of the Austrian decision.

Levesque Sees 'Miraculous Opportunity' to Gain Independence

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Battle lines have begun taking shape for the Oct. 29 Quebec provincial elections, as two of the four parties involved traded jibes during weekend campaigning.

At Jacquiere, Que., 115 miles north of Quebec City, Parti Quebecois leader Rene Levesque told a PQ nominating meeting Sunday that the election provides the opportunity for Quebec to obtain a quiet independence.

"We have this miraculous opportunity to be a strong nation with ties with neighboring provinces," he said, and "we are going to do it without turning everything upside down."

"If we work hard enough we will have a real chance this time of seeing the election of the first government by the people of Quebec for the people of Quebec."

Mr. Levesque called on Premier Robert Bourassa to keep his pledge of 1970 "to eliminate secret campaign funds."

Justice Minister Jerome Choquette told a Liberal party meeting at Windsor, Que., 75 miles southeast of Montreal, that the Parti Quebecois shows a lack of seriousness.

At the very least, Mr. Choquette said, "they should tell the people that they must sacrifice for independence."

Mr. Choquette concentrated on the positive accomplishments of the Liberal government and praised it for having "maintained order in Quebec."

During the October, 1970, terrorist crisis "the government knew enough to act firmly to avoid an even greater crisis," he said. "But it showed enough flexibility that no citizen was deprived of his rights."

At Iberville, Que., 25 miles southeast of Montreal, Finance Minister Raymond Garneau told a nomination meeting that Creditiste leader Yvon Dupuis hides behind a smoke screen.

"Since Mr. Dupuis preaches a profound reform of the school system, perhaps he can tell us what his plans are and what are their financial and administrative implications," he said.

"Mr. Dupuis and Gave answer because he is ignorance of the facts will show him up."

Coleman Street House Damaged

A fire of undetermined origin caused extensive smoke and water damage to a house on 234 Coleman Saturday afternoon.

Firemen answered a call at the home of Wesley Griffith shortly after 3 p.m. on Saturday. No one was in the house at the time except for a pet rat named Willard owned by Mr. Griffith's daughter, Bonnie.

The alarm was first turned in by Mr. Griffith's next door neighbor, Frank Stephens who lives at 232 Coleman Street. Mr. Stephens said he had just returned from a drive and was in his backyard when he noticed smoke pouring from the Griffith home.

Mr. Griffith said he had walked to the corner store for a pack of cigarettes. "Everything was all right when I left. Then on the way back I heard the fire sirens and thought it was someone else's home on fire. I didn't think it was mine," said Mr. Griffith.

Fire Chief Leo Culhane said the fire appeared to have started in the furnace room on the ground floor of the two-storey frame house. There is no basement.

"Our men did a good job on the fire. If they had arrived about 10 minutes later, the whole place would have gone up," said Chief Culhane.

As it was firefighters had the fire under control in less than an hour. There was fire damage to areas on the ground floor and smoke and water damage to the second floor.

The building is located next to Christ Church. There was no wedding going on that particular Saturday afternoon.

Chief Culhane said the exact costs of damages to the house, which is insured, is unknown at the present time. He said fire officials would be conducting an investigation at the house today to determine the cause of the fire.

Saturday - 2:55 p.m. - 234 Coleman St.; fire in rear of furnace room caused extensive smoke and water damage to remainder of house.

Sunday — 12:20 a.m. - West Moira Street near Sidney Inn; man trapped in car after accident released by cutting car's centre post.

Crash Ends First Solo

Despite a badly bruised and sprained leg suffered in a forced landing on her first cross-country solo flight, Mrs. Nell McLaughlin, of Bancroft is anxious to get back flying.

Mrs. McLaughlin left the Bancroft Airport at 3 p.m. on September 18 and had successfully completed two laps when a course alteration led to loss of directional gyro.

With darkness falling, Mrs. McLaughlin landed in a field near Norwood. But a slight downgrade undetected from the air, caused both the fact that the emergency landing strip was a recently cut cornfield and a pile of rocks concealed in bushes where the plane came to rest, all contributed to a badly damaged plane.

The police department here is busy year in 1973 with an increasing problem of drugs but a 17 per cent drop in criminal investigations.

A total of 1,208 criminal offences were investigated, marking a decrease of 264, or 17.2 per cent, from the previous year.

The report, a statistical police activities, shows 7,841 occurrences investigated. This is a 17 per cent increase over 1971.

In a general summary Chief Douglas Sandham states: Juvenile complaints down by 19 per cent; some 2,519 charges brought before the courts, an increase of 84 from the previous year. The department investigated 1,258 criminal offences.

"Of all the crime offences reported, an average of 38.3 per cent were cleared," states the report.

According to the chief's report, the drug problem was one of great concern last year with investigations bringing 23 persons before the courts on charges under the Narcotics Act and the Food and Drug Act.

10,000 Visit Pearson Park Memorial

TWEED — Almost 10,000 persons have visited the Leader B. Pearson Memorial Park, northwest of here on Highway 7, since it was dedicated in 1967.

This year attendance in August was 50 per cent higher than last year.

The Peace Park has become a prime tourist attraction of the Land O'Lakes and Hastings area. It is the only peace park in Canada named after Mr. Pearson which, since his death, has become a memorial to him and is the first place set aside for him in all of Canada.

A committee of local citizens in charge of the park have recently thanked all who made the project possible — particularly the Kiwanis clubs of Tweed and Madoc and the Canadian Legion branches for their support of the park in its formative years.

Truck, Car Collide

Police said James Edwin Dampil, 26, of Weston, was southbound when his car collided with a half-ton truck driven by Donald Frank Marcellus, 30, RR 2, Marlbank, who was attempting to make a right turn. Damage to the Dampil car was $600 with $250 to the truck.

Passenger Hurt

WELLER — A Prince Edward county girl was taken to Trenton hospital early Monday following a one - car collision on Coleman Creek Road in Hillier Township.

Injured was Sherry Barham, 17, RR 2 Hillier, passenger in a car driven by John Bowerman, 19, Wellington, who was taken to hospital with lacerations and a possible fracture.

The crash at a hydro pole, said police.

During the year, the department conducted 30 raids on Trenton premises resulting in 36 seizures.

The department's criminal investigation branch concluded 303 cases involving 448 charges. Of these cases, 122 investigated persons were either directly involved or associated with illegal drugs.

The report details theft in Trenton which in that year topped $181,000.

Some 46 stolen cars accounted for $65,840. All were recovered. The remaining $115,000 were assorted stolen property. Slightly more than $80,000 in property was recovered.

The 31-page report covers all of the department's activities during the year and elaborates on special public courses offered for pedestrian and hunter safety.

Chief Sanders acknowledged the departure of Judge J. C. Anderson who resigned from the town police commission after leaving the county court bench to Ontario's chief conciliator with its civil servants.

The report did not, include any budgetary information.

Warns Land Sale Ban Could Be Reciprocated

Donald Rodgers, president of the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council feels there is merit in the proposals of an Ontario Legislature committee that land sales to non-Canadians should be halted.

But, at the same time, the former Hastings County Warden — and now a Stirling real estate man — feels that legislators shouldn't jump to conclusions.

"There could be reciprocation from other countries — there are a lot of Canadian who own property in the United States," said Mr. Rodgers.

He said there could be implications in such a move which would have a bearing on many things.

Main feature of the legislature committee's recommendations is that non-Canadian or landed immigrants should be permitted to buy or lease land in Ontario.

For corporations, the committee agreed that land sales should be restricted to firms whose ownership is 75 per cent Canadian. Non-incorporated companies would be allowed only the right to lease land.

Also, individuals not citizens of Canada will be permitted to lease land for one year without right of renewal.

If the proposals see legislative approval it could mean that Americans no longer would be able to purchase lots for cottage construction.

Mr. Rodgers expected, however, that the committee recommendations will be presented to municipal associations and private business for comment before legislature approval.

The former Stirling reeve did not feel that the recommendations, if given legislative approval, would effect the Hastings area greatly.

He said that in the Highlands of Hastings there is visibly nine out of ten cottage owners were Canadians.

But east of the county, and in some parts of Northern Ontario, there is a heavy predominence of American cottage-owners and land sales to non-Canadians could hurt municipalities where there is dependence on the American tourist dollar.

But, looking at the proposals from another point of view, Mr. Rodgers said if recreational lands and waterfront lots are being used up, Canadians should have the first right of purchase.

"In that I concur," he said.

"If this is the case and there are no safeguards, there would soon be no recreational land left for Canadians," he said.

Trent Traffic Increase, Canal Soon 'Like 401'

Soon the Trent River is going to look like Highway 401 and we'll be going to be able to handle it," said Ron Howard, lock superintendent.

Mr. Howard's comment was prompted by this year's statistics showing more than 1,800 boats used the locks.

Mr. Howard said that accurate counts maintained by his crews show a traffic increase of at least 10 per cent annually. He figures by 1980 present staff won't be able to handle it.

This past summer was no different as it showed an increase over the previous year the 1972 count of 1,600 craft.

Some 60 per cent of the strain on the canal system and make money for Trenton Mr. Howard suggests a marina capable of handling 200 boats.

Girl Injured On Highway

TRENTON — A 12-year-old Trenton girl remains in hospital here after being injured attempting to cross highway 2 Sunday afternoon.

A spokesman for provincial police at Belleville said the girl was trying to cross the road in the vicinity of Jack's Eton, east of the Canadian Forces Base when she was struck by a car driven by 21-year-old Sharon Anne McLaughlin, of Colborne.

School Site Offered for Fire Hall

TRENTON — Hastings county board of education has offered a lot on the broken front of Bayside Secondary School property to Sidney township for a fire hall.

The school board will part with the 150-by-300-foot property for $500, with the understanding the township will pay all legal, survey and other fees.

The proposed fire hall lot is part of undeveloped land on the school farm, south of Highway 2. The land was acquired for school use in the 1830s, and became the property of Hastings county board of education with amalgamation of individual boards in 1969.

Township council has not yet made a decision to accept the school board's offer. Some councillors may feel the board is asking too much for the land, which was given to them in the first place, said Township Clerk Hugh Lyons.

Sidney now has two fire halls, one at Batawa, the other temporarily shared with a transport company north of Highway 401. A new fire hall is now under construction adjacent to the Sidney Township municipal offices.

Misses Dog, Rolls Car

MARMORA (Special)— Swerving to avoid a dog on the road caused Irene Bush, 19, of Marmora, to lose control of her car and roll it in the ditch, Saturday, said police.

The accident occurred at 4:25 p.m. on the Old Marmora Road, east of Highway 7. Miss Bush was not injured but her car sustained $500 damage.

Plant Still Seeking 'Suitable' Quarry

PICTON — Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. is continuing operations, using alternate sand sources after government expropriation of a lease for quarry operations at the Sandbanks.

Vice-president of local says that three factors permitted continued activity. An additional lift was developed in the quarry north of Picton to below Lake Ontario level. Secondly, overburden material from the cement plant is used. Also, sandstone is hauled from the Kingston area by-truck.

Mr. Price observes these measures are temporary and a suitable quarry site still must be found. The new stop-gap methods are more expensive and in bad weather many problems arise.

Wishing Tree Legend Is Recalled in Report

PICTON — The legend of Prince Edward County's wishing tree is contained in a SPICE (Students Participating in Community Education) report released as a study kit for elementary schools.

The tree, a giant maple, reputedly was more than 700 years old and boasted five knarled limbs over which 13 Indian tribes offered sacrifices. Before white settlers came into the county the wishing tree was a meeting place for Southern Ontario's warlike Indian tribes.

Iroquois, Mohawks and Sioux held pow-wows around the tree which had a girth of 18 feet. To impart truer speed to their targets the warriors would ritually place their arrowheads against the big maple.

The tree was preserved after white settlement but in 1877 it was struck by lightning. In the 1890s, when the first highway went through, its course was split to miss the maple. Dead limbs at the base of the tree were cut and an umbrella erected.

It was a local custom for residents to drive in a circle around the tree while making a wish.

When a new road was built some years later the wishing tree was cut and left at the side of the highway. It lay there for many years before removal.

The SPICE report was compiled by Prince Edward Collegiate Institute students. James Johnston, Doreen Branscombe and Sue Hagerman.

Spread Them Around

When the provincial health ministers meeting in Charlottetown say there is an oversupply of doctors in most cities and a shortage of them in rural areas we can believe them up to a point.

Traditionally the rural areas have been left out in the cold so far as both doctors and dentists are concerned. That is pretty much the situation today although in some instances incentive programs have succeeded in attracting practitioners to country areas.

But can it be said the cities are oversupplied — especially with a growing population? If doctors are in such plentiful supply and so available why the long waits in their offices, clinics and hospital out-patients' departments? What about the difficulty contacting doctors in an emergency or on weekends?

It is unlikely then that a city would ever be over-supplied. But the smaller communities and country areas could well be better off.

If there is in fact a surplus in some communities, it may be due to a growing influx of immigrant doctors, for the health ministers say the situation "will eventually mean that licensing of immigrant physicians will have to be controlled in some way."

It appears there is a case for better distribution of medical men and facilities, to best serve the needs of all of the population.

Autumn Sport

Hunt clubs are out doing their thing these fall days. But our busy times may be catching up with some, like one in Quebec whose members say they are being forced farther into the back country by urban sprawl.

Another which has held its first outing of the season is the Wellington-Waterloo Hunt Club. No foxes or anything, but just a brisk hunt for some 40 riders and 18 hounds — and here too the city was not far away. The 25-mile trail covered a rural area adjacent to the Cambridge northern industrial basin, near what formerly was Galt.

This is a select kind of sport in Canada — eloquent more of Old Country lifestyle — and most of us come no closer to it than the occasional print on a library or restaurant wall. The Old Mill restaurant in Toronto has such a collection. Some are comical vein, like the clergyman tumbling from his mount at a ditch and a fellow hunter says to a companion, 'His fault's all right, he won't be needed until Sunday."

Tennis once was rather an exclusive sport in Canada too. Hunt clubs though are unlikely to proliferate at the same pace, but they are alive and well and functioning in Canada all the same. And to think that Oscar Wilde, the old cynic, called it "the pursuit of the uneatable by the unspeakable!"

Food Economics

When it comes to saving on food while still providing maximum nutrition, hear this: Anne Acco of Montreal feeds her family of eight on a budget of $30 a week.

The budget, according to Pat Inglis of The Montreal Gazette, includes lunches packed for the children and her husband (a native of Trinidad who is an Air Canada engineer) and entertaining guests twice a month.

Canadian-born, Mrs. Acco says she used to be able to do it for $35 or $45 a week and admits "it's rough at $50 . . . I'm ready to scream."

The basic idea, she says, is careful control of the food and of the general economics of the family. Non-food items are scrupulously watched, including the toothpaste which she learned to dole out to the last drop after calculating the amount carelessly thrown out amounted to $6 a year.

With food costs the way they are and with worldwide shortages likely may worsen in the years ahead, this kind of careful attention to culinary detail and to making the best of what is available is a lesson to all.

Jungle Palms Shade the Bureaucracy

A Little Matter of $75,000 For Those Tropical Plants

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — On file in the documents section of the Commons is a "return," showing what each federal department spent between 1970 and '72 for tropical plants to adorn its Ottawa office headquarters.

It meant that somebody had to go down to the files room and leaf through a half-inch thick stack of papers to calculate the cost totals.

But on close examination, there was much much more to it than that.

Cost of care and cultivation: $60 a year.

"Incredible," exclaims Alf Hales in a letter to D. A. Morten, Director General of Stats - Can, asking for an explanation.

Item: The Public Archives and National Library disclosed it had purchased 32 plants last year for $600, and after spending $1,300 on them for care and maintenance, replaced them with 32 others.

And another $325 has been spent this year on the watering and feeding of the 32 replacements.

"Astonishing," observed Alfred Hales in asking Director A. C. Taylor how come after $1,300 worth of care, the original 32 plants presumably had faded, withered or died necessitating their replacement by 32 others.

Item: The Finance Department, which is supposed to be safeguarding the Treasury, reveals it carried out its assignments by underspending on tropical plants.

Last year it bought only 441 of them, paying a mere $16,979, plus $2,487 for their care and maintenance, when actually the department was on the parliamentary record with its announced intention of spending $75 000 on office verdure.

"Commendable," noted Alfred Hales in praise of the self-restraint of the green-thumb brigade in Finance.

But how suspicious of such bureaucratic self-denial, he is asking in a letter to Deputy Finance Minister Sol Reisman, how come when it said it was going for $75,000 on tropical decoration, the department scraped by on a comparatively negligible $16,979.

The letters are currently in the mail and Mr. Hales awaits the replies with anticipation of some interesting revelations.

And how does he happen to know that Finance had $75,000 in its office piggy bank for tropical plants?

Because it is all on the printed record of Parliament's Miscellaneous Committee, Estimates.

R. Bonnar, Director of the Financial Personnel and Administration Division of Finance, testifying before the Committee, had let it slip that the Department had $100,000 in the kitty to pretty itself up.

Here is the record:

Mr. Hales: Can you spell it out in detail?

Mr. Bonnar: The expenditure contemplates the purchase of curtains — and tropical plants for screening and visual privacy — and blackboards and equipment of that kind . . ."

Mr. Hales: I am intrigued by these plants for visual privacy. Are they to be artificial or real?

Mr. Bonnar: They are real.

Mr. Hales: And your upkeep for real plants will be considerable in that you will have somebody who will have to look after them, install and replace those which die and they will be a very costly screening provision.

Mr. Bonnar: The specifications call for the maximum of plants found unsuitable or which die and for replacement in the first year . . . I cannot tell you what the cost will be . . .

Mr. Hales: . . . "In this age when people are going without food on their table, the department of Finance that should set the pattern of economy is going out and spending on . . . how much for tropical plants?

Mr. Bonnar: It is probably in the neighborhood of $78,0

Military Rule Widespread in World Today

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Most of the Western Hemisphere in which we live, the United States and ourselves being the major exceptions, is now under military rule or has civilian governments susceptible to collapse or takeover from national armed forces.

If you believe the doctrinaire detractors of the American system in which President Nixon insists he must halve his $30 billion Pentagon budget, the U.S. itself is not too far away from powerful influences by the military.

No one will forget what might have been the most famous remark of retiring President Dwight Eisenhower one of America's most distinguished generals, who warned in late 1960 against the growing power of the U.S. military-industrial complex.

The destruction of Chilean democracy by an allegedly benign military leaves only one truly "benign" military establishment in our hemisphere, namely our own. And their basic competence in what is benign was shown quite clearly and rightly so, with the quick and efficient role of the troops in Quebec during the 1970 FLQ crisis.

The Brazilian military rule single-handedly and brutally through a mini-version of the infamous military-industrial complex. In fact the Brazilian generals, strong believers in capitalistic expansion as opposed to the more widely-used statist version, have almost borrowed the pattern from the United States which the late President Eisenhower saw as the major future threat to American democracy.

Admittedly where economic policy is concerned, the Brazilian military regime in power now for almost 10 continuous years, has given their country about the highest annual per capita growth rate in the world.

This has been done at the expense of press freedom. Civil liberties and a competitive and open political party system. All these have disappeared in Brazil under the "laissez faire" (where economics are concerned) generals and admirals.

It's a chilling thought that Chile's generals, might last this long and if as competent in power as the Brazilian military compatriots, even longer.

But it must also be said the military usually intervenes in Latin America, not always with a revolution of the right, but also of the left as in Peru, before civilian governments have sunk into chaos. This was true of Brazil in the early 1960s under the Marxist President Joao Goulart and of Chile under the late Marxist President Salvador Allende.

The possibility of the military ever doing so in the United States is still reserved in the public domain for scare movies like Fail-Safe, best-sellers and hysterics because the prospect is in the back of too many minds.

Such a possibility for Canada probably hasn't been put down on paper, not even the wildest kind of scenario from the newly created policy strategy and plans directorates of our department of national defence.

Several years ago a book was published on this very eventuality called Killing Ground and it was laughed and criticized almost off the bookstore shelfs.

But not quite. Along came the 1970 FLQ crisis and everyone scrambled to read a once farfar-book whose theme suddenly, and fortunate for all of us momentarily, became the real thing.

Anyone who still thinks in his heart-of-hearts armed forces are there to be benign should heed the comment of Gen. Augusto Pipochet, Chile's new military boss who never expected to be on. "The army unlike the police, goes out to kill."

Sex Education Issue

Ottawa Journal

The significant aspect of the current discussion over sex education in the Separate schools was not that there are some differences of opinions on this sensitive subject but that there is in fact overwhelming support for what the school system is doing.

There have always been some to argue that the schools should stay completely out of this area; that sex education is something to be imparted only within the home. Persons who hold that idealistic view would not be satisfied with what the schools call a "family life program" were it written by the angels in collaboration with the saints.

But such thinking is entirely unrepresentative of the wishes of the majority of parents who look for the professional skills which the schools, Separate or Public, can provide for support in this matter.

It is easy to say that the prime responsibility for sex education belongs in the home. Of course it does. But all too often the home fails, and fails badly in discharging that responsibility. The choice is not between sex education in the home or in the school, but between sex education in the home and in the school.

Sometimes sex education courses have been insensitively, badly, presented. The outrage of parents in parts of the United States over this subject has engendered bitter controversies, may sometimes have been justified. But this has largely been a quarrel with the manner of sex education thrusting the subject on children before they are ready for it, but there is merely mechanistic approach and no interest or wishes.

The "Family Life Program" which the Separate schools of this area have adopted and their curriculum has been intelligently prepared. Parents have been involved from the beginning and they continue to have an opportunity to work with teachers in its implementation.

Such team-work is more representative of parental views and entirely more useful than the few shrill notes arising out of a rather artificial controversy.

Costly Imported Wine Could Help Home Brands

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

"It is an ill wind turns none to good." If you need proof of Thomas Tusser's 16th-century axiom consider Canada's wine industry.

The ill wind is the super-inflation, the kind the Mother used to make, that's been taking place in the prices of French wines. Because of soaring world demand, especially from Japan, prices of some brands have gone up more than ten-fold in the past five years.

Canada's home-makers have kept their prices fairly steady and are expecting to capture that share of the market that can no longer keep up with prices of imported wines.

In the latest 10-year period for which statistics are complete, Canadians increased their consumption of imported wines by 300 per cent — 7.9 million gallons in 1972 compared with 2.2 million in 1963.

Growth in sales of Canadian wines was only 111 per cent — 14.9 million gallons in the same period. The growth rate was higher in the early part of the period than in recent years.

Although our wineries have not been able to duplicate anything like the percentage gains of their foreign competitors, their prospects for growth still looks attractive to Canada's newcomers who have acquired a big beer sales creep ahead at not much more than the rate of population growth.

Canadian Breweries Ltd. has acquired interests (through holding companies) in southern Ontario's grape belt, and in Mouse Jan Canary, Brewmaster minister and Victoria.

John Labatt Ltd., through similar moves, controls giant Chateau Gai Wines Ltd. and Chateau Cartier Wines (formerly Purbrite Wines), both of Toronto, Chasabello Wines of Penticton and Normandie Wines of Montreal.

Other big-game acquisitions:

La Maison Secrestal of Montreal by Distillers Corp.-Seagrams Ltd.; Cakona Wines of Kelowna and Wine Cellars of St. Hyacinthe by Standard Brands Ltd.; and Barnes Wines Ltd. of St. Catharines by British-based Reckitt and Colman (Canada) Ltd.

The few remaining independent wineries, such as Toronto-Turner Wine Co. and Lenkiff Winery Ltd. of London, are believed to have had take-over bids from other corporations seeking to break into the Canadian wine industry.

To broaden their market, Canada's wineries have been — and are — introducing various novelty or "pop" wines. These new products, sweetened, flavored or otherwise transformed would attract a consumer but seem to have stimulated sales.

At the same time, some winemakers have been concentrating on development of new premium-grade wines designed to please the palates of consumers who previously drank only imported wines.

That part of the industry that is located in Ontario's Niagara fruit-growing belt is said to be especially receptive to grapes growing has been fledgling as up-hill battle to preserve its agricultural land from urban sprawl and industrial encroachment.

This year it has had to cope with another problem — extremely dry and hot weather that could keep final production totals down to the level of last year's 32,000 tons, repeat since 1967.

Tweed and Highway Job

The following has been submitted to Intelligencer from a meeting in Actinolite regarding proposed alterations to Highway 37 which could affect the village of Tweed.

"Hi, Jerry! . . ."

What are the government plans for this highway? Will Tweed be by-passed? Will No. 37 remain the main link on the Toronto - Ottawa route?

These and other questions were asked by a group of about 30 residents at a meeting in Actinolite. The meeting was arranged by the Ministry of Transportation, to give communications to explain the proposed re-construction of the highway north of Tweed.

The project is in the planning stage and no definite changes can still be made. The date for the start of the construction has been tentatively set but Ministry officials, headed by Jerry Percy (Regional Manager, Systems Design), refused to reveal this information.

Spokesmen for the group revealed that repeated requests to obtain reliable information regarding this project, starting in July of 1972 with a petition to Clarke T. Rollins MPP Hastings East, were unsuccessful. Information obtained in letters from various officials (including the Minister himself) had been evasive and often contradictory.

The group expressed fears that the proposed route would destroy the scenic character of this highway and attract more traffic, thereby increasing the traffic congestion in Tweed. According to Mr. Percy the position of the Ministry is that a by-pass of Tweed is not warranted at this time, considered and will not be needed in the foreseeable future. This statement raised the following questions: If the main street of Tweed is considered adequate for the present and future volume of traffic, then why is this particular stretch of highway inadequate and require re-building? Why was a vote held on the by-pass in Tweed if, at the same time, it had never been considered by the Ministry?

The group suggested the following alternatives: A new highway on the west side of the river which would miss Tweed and Actinolite, providing a direct route for the heavy volume of long-distance traffic. Improving the 7 km. road up to completion of 416 from Actinolite to 401.

It was felt that, any one of the alternatives suggested would be more satisfactory and divert enough traffic to make the proposed by-pass by 37 unnecessary. However, the Ministry representatives were unwilling to consider any of these proposals.

A brief was presented to Mr. Percy demanding a written reply to the numerous questions of concern to the residents of this area.

Escapers Shared House With Fifty Germans

The quiet farm country of Bloomfield of today is a long way in time and distance from the war - ravaged country of Holland during World War II.

But Mrs. Dora Prinzen of Bloomfield can tell you how she sheltered seven downed airmen in her farmhouse in Aalten, Holland along with 50 German soldiers and officers, in 1945.

Mrs. Prinzen and her husband, although not members of any organized underground movement in Holland, agreed to help pilots who had been shot down over Holland. The Prinzens' risked their lives by doing so. Aalten is southeast of Utrecht near the German border.

She hadn't planned on having the seven concealed in her house at the same time. "At first I would get one and then another would come and before long there were seven altogether," said Mrs. Prinzen.

Besides the 50 Germans and the seven airmen, four of whom were American, one Canadian, one British and one Australian, there were the Prinzen's children ranging in age from 2 to 19.

Also in the house from time to time were members of the Dutch underground movement. Needless to say she had a large house, which was actually a combination house and barn. The German soldiers would sleep in the hay in the barn at the rear.

The pilots were concealed in a secret room with a trapdoor with the floor covered with hay. At night, the Germans would be sleeping five feet below them.

"We had some pretty close calls," said Mrs. Prinzen. "Sometimes a German would walk in accidentally, when the pilots were in a room. But as long as the pilots were dressed in civilian clothes and didn't speak there was no trouble," she said.

From September 1944 and for eight months until the end of the war in Europe, the Prinzen family concealed many downed airmen.

"But it was mostly the last six to seven weeks that were the busy ones. That's when the 50 Germans took over the house where the seven airmen were concealed. There was a high ranking German officer staying at the house as well," said Mrs. Prinzen.

"And money wasn't important in those days," said her son. William who was only about 16 when this was going on. "And as for food, the Germans had their own canteen, in a truck, so there wasn't much problem there. But if we had five pigs they would keep four for themselves."

Mr. Prinzen and his wife Betty have eight children from two to 19. Ironically the same range of ages that William and his brothers and sisters were when the family was concealing the airmen.

Mrs. Prinzen, who is now widowed, said that since the war she has met some of the pilots she had helped.

She and her family moved to Canada 23 years ago and she has been back to her native Holland five times since. When asked if she would do it over again, she said she doesn't think she would. "But the pilots were thankful," she said.

The Prinzens were guests at the ninth annual meeting of the Royal Air Forces Escaping Society (Canadian Branch). About 100 members of the society and their wives and families wound up three days of activities at the Four Seasons Hotel yesterday.

The reunion was arranged through the Convention Bureau of the City of Belleville and there is a possibility that Belleville may become the permanent site of the society's annual meetings.

Campaign Under Way

The target — $140,000.

The campaign — United Way.

The official opening day — Monday, October 1.

The reason. To provide 12 agencies from the Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross to the Victorian Order of Nurses — the funds necessary to cover their operating costs for 1974.

At present, the fund drive has produced $15,000 and, as Peter Sisson, this year's campaign chairman, put it, "There's still a long way to go."

Mrs. Sisson says, "We hope to make the largest figure. So far, we've encountered no problems. The positive thinking and encouragement from many people from every conceivable quarter has been very encouraging."

To aid people in making their donations less disruptive to their routines during the October campaign month, the chairman has received agreement from the banks in Belleville so that funds may be donated across tellers' counters.

However, Mrs. Sisson's greatest worry is that information concerning the work of the United Way participating agencies be brought to the attention of the public. To that end, a booth will be set up at the Quinte Mall during the third week of October. Each of the 12 agencies will at one time or another be represented there.

"The Quinte Mall has been very co-operative about the booth," the chairman noted. "I hope that people will see the information and ask questions about the work the agencies are doing. People should know how their money is invested. And the agencies are anxious to have people know what they do."

To spread the word more effectively, the agencies have become much more involved with canvassing than they have in previous years. Each agency has been assigned certain Belleville streets. Each business will receive a visit and a pledge card for its corporate gift.

Complaints have been heard in the community that the money collected from citizens is spent on frills. This is far from the truth, says Mrs. Sisson.

After the expenses and the revenue of each agency is calculated, a budget is prepared and submitted to the United Community Services. Funds collected during the United Way campaign are used to meet the projected expenses.

"This money doesn't go to pay for the mortgage on the Y, or the ambulance for the St. John Ambulance Association. It doesn't provide for the headquarters for the Navy League or the Association for Retarded Children," noted Mrs. Sisson.

It is spent on normal operating costs encountered in the day - to - day operations of each agency. Supplies, typing aids, and salaries for the necessary qualified people, as in the case of Canadian Red Cross, come out of funds collected.

Almost A Castle

Fort Stoney, located on 10 acres overlooking a small river near Langley, B.C. is a home that's definitely different. Semi-retired electrician Cece Stoney and his wife, Betty, designed and built their castle, complete with drawbridge over a mini moat, a massive wooden front door and of course a 40-foot tower.

Their Home Really is a Castle

LANGLEY, B.C. (CP) — In the heat of the Fraser Valley, a semi-retired electrician has built his castle—complete with drawbridge over a mini-moat, a massive wooden front door and, of course, a tower, all 40 feet of medieval defiance.

"Welcome to Fort Stoney," says Cece Stoney, handyman and builder extraordinary.

Only some primary cement work was contracted out. "Everything else, we did by ourselves," said Mr. Stoney.

They designed and constructed the two-storey moat, the drawbridge and the triangular living room, which features one wall of solid stone and another that's one long window.

The home doesn't have a painted wall or ceiling and features stone and woodwork in unexpected places.

The toilet roll trundles off a holder made from a horseshoe. A cheese press is used as a soap container.

In the living room, huge beams thrust across the ceiling. Massive chains reach to the ceiling from the mantle, set into the stone walls.

Mr. Stoney made much of the home's furniture, including a dining table and four hand-carved chairs.

Scattered throughout the house is a collection of Canadian artifacts and items the Stoneys have collected over the years.

There are old clocks, pot-bellied stoves, lamps and even an ancient magic lantern, complete with slides.

Mr. Stoney said he cannot begin to estimate the cost of his home. "We just sort of built it as we went along."

Because of its unusual design and location, the home has brought the Stoneys a lot of attention, some of it unwanted.

Casual acquaintances—people the Stoneys barely remember ever meeting — stroll up with relatives and demand a conducted tour.

Mr. Stoney and his wife admit to being artistically inclined, a trait shared by their daughters, Cecile, 15, and Maxie, 25, who works as an art designer in Victoria.

Mrs. Stoney, when not helping makes his own violins, the first more than 40 years ago.

Mrs. Stoney, when not helping her husband put the finishing touches to the home, bakes, tends her garden and designs and makes her own clothes.

The family raises its own beef and is almost self-sufficient, said Mr. Stoney.

Fort Stoney is close to completion, but Mr. Stoney said he still has p'enty to keep him busy; including an old wooden organ he hopes to fix one day so it can be played again.

Business Women Criticize Court 'Indian' Decision

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and two cabinet ministers defended the Supreme Court Monday after it was attacked by a national women's organization for making what the group called a prejudiced decision against Indian women.

The criticism came in the annual brief to the government by the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Federation President Elizabeth Aulin expressed shock and dismay at the recent 5-4 court decision upholding a section of the Indian Act over the Canadian Bill of Rights.

Mrs. Aulin said the judgment makes it obvious that the court has "not had any of the prejudice" it has shown in the past. She urged the government to fill all Supreme Court vacancies with women until they make up half its members.

Justice Minister Otto Lang said the criticism was unfair, particularly since the court could not defend itself.

The ruling does not indicate a bias against women, he argued, but confines on a technical legal question. The court ruled that the Indian Act is a statute of Parliament and any changes should be made by Parliament.

Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien said there is division among Indian women over the merits of the act and the government does not want to impose "a white solution."

Prime Minister Trudeau said the government, if it followed the federation's approach, would be "telling the Indians how to run their affairs."

Mr. Trudeau said the government has long favored entrenching the Bill of Rights in the constitution but has not been able to get provincial agreement on a formula for constitutional change.

The federation, in a wide ranging 20-page brief, called for a series of government measures to improve the status of women generally, including more Senate representation, a national policy on day-care centres, a federal-provincial conference on labor legislation as it applies to women, Canada Pension Plan changes to extend coverage to wives or husbands who do not work, removal of abortion from the Criminal Code and equal rights for women in sports participation.

In Hamilton, meanwhile, former prime minister John Diefenbaker said Monday that women now are second-class citizens because of the Indian Act ruling.

He told the Hamilton men's and women's Canadian clubs the Supreme Court decision warranted a rehearing.

"The decision means that whether you are Miss Mrs. or Ms you are a second-class citizen."

Mr. Diefenbaker, his voice quivering with emotion, said he had worked 25 years to get a Bill of Rights for Canada.

"Now . . . on a basis of a 5-4 decision . . . I can't accept that they can sweep it aside. "The courts have been wrong before."

New Advisory Council On Status of Women Will Act as Catalyst

TORONTO (CP) — It will be a struggle to achieve equal opportunity for women, Laura Sabia, chairman of Ontario's newly-appointed advisory council on the status of women, said Wednesday.

"After many years of male chauvinism, it's going to be hard to change the climate," she told a news conference after her appointment was announced by Social Development Secretary Robert Welch.

"We're not going to do it overnight."

Mrs. Sabia, who has been a separate school trustee and alderman in St. Catharines, Ont., where she is moderator of an open-line radio show, said there will be no attempt to set quotas in attaining equal opportunities for women, but she hopes there will be action.

"The value of the council will be that it will be action-oriented. All the research has been done. What we need now is movement and action."

Mr. Welch said in a news release the 17-member council's main function will be to advise the government on the status of women and act as a catalyst in achieving equal opportunity for them.

Mrs. Sabia said she expects to call the first council meeting within two weeks and plans to hold them at least once a month. She also wants the meetings open to the public.

Council members will receive $25 a day plus expenses. Mrs. Sabia will receive $35 a day for the two years she is chairman.

Half of the members will serve one-year terms and the other half for two years. They were chosen by Mr. Welch's office.

Mrs. Sabia was the prime mover in an effort to get the royal commission on the status of women appointed. She is on the federal government's advisory council on the status of women but said she expects to resign.

Mrs. Sabia shared the news conference with Ethel McLellan, newly-appointed executive co-ordinator of women's programs in the Ontario government, who will be an ex-officio member of the advisory council.

Mrs. McLellan said she believes she can help the council be effective partly because she shares the authority of the Civil Service Commission that sets policy for government employees.

Mrs. Sabia said women have a long way to go in private industry.

"We will have to convince a good number of women of their own worth."

Other members of the council are: Margaret Archibald of Chatham, a lawyer; Rosemary Balagh of Toronto, a public relations manager; Lucienne Bergeron of Sudbury, a former teacher; Naomi Black of Toronto, a professor; Marie Corbett of Toronto, a lawyer; Nellie Farris of Moose Factory, an Indian counsellor; Lin Good of Kingston, a librarian; Miriam Herman of Toronto, a nurse; Sondra Heximer of Niagara Falls, a policewoman; Barbara Landau of Toronto, a psychologist; Rita Lemire of Williamstown, a teacher; Philip Manuel of Toronto, assistant professor; Wilson Saskeloy of Dryden, a papermaker.

The three civil servants serving on the council are Mrs. McLellan, Sandra Birkenmayer of the ministry of health and Betty Meredith, of the Ontario Housing Commission.

Ann Landers Too Tall To Tango? Never, Says Ann

Dear Ann Landers: I am 5 feet-10 in my stocking feet which is pretty tall for a girl. During my adolescence I felt like a giraffe but Mom kept at me to stand straight and be proud of my height. Even though I was taller than most of the boys in my classes, it never bothered me much.

I'm not going to ask the obvious question—what to do about a short boyfriend (my sweetie is 6 feet-6 inches and he has a great build.) The problem is that whenever I go where there is music, every short guy in the place rushes over and wants to dance with me. I feel ridiculous with those sawed-off runts who seem to enjoy resting their chins on my bosom. (I feel like a nursing mother).

How can I get out of it without offending the half-pints?—Mt. Shasta

Dear Shasta: Where's your sense of humor? If those shorties didn't have wives or a real doll they wouldn't ask you to dance. If they feel comfortable about it, consider it a warm compliment and enjoy the fun.

Dear Ann Landers: You've let waiters run off, as well as sales clerks, secretaries, bosses, everybody. Now it' my turn.

In many small cafes it isn't possible to have an automatic dishwasher, so the job is done by real, honest-to-goodness, live people. Any dishwasher will tell you that it seems like back for a few minutes the dishes multiply like rabbits.

Most dishwashers get the same salary as waitresses but no tips. I thought it only practical to suggest that people go to the kitchen and tip the dishwasher, but I do have a few suggestions that would make our lives a lot easier.

Use ashtrays. Don't mash your cigarette or cigars into the silverer food. It makes a terrible mess.

Don't put chewing gum on your plate. It's murder to get off if another plate is stacked on top of it.

Don't put crumpled paper napkins in a plate that has syrup or honey on it. It sticks like glue.

If you ask a waitress to wash a thermos jug or a baby's bottle, dishwashers get a kick out of it. Please don't ask them to wash a dime or whatever.—Nebraska

Dear Neb: Thanks for the suggestions. You've educated a lot of people today, including me.

Successful Living

Don't Be A Doormat Stand Firm, Says Doris

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Because I am in my sixties I have had to slow down a bit but I often wish I could do something for our younger generation.

I still keep house for my husband and myself. But in my earlier days I used to work as a rehabilitation nurse and I found that people told me personal problems. The years I gave to nursing have given me much experience in dealing with people, young and old, and in between.

I am still interested and I look for a more challenging way of living, perhaps counselling young people in my own home. Would you would bring me up to date in this business of counselling?

Retired — But!

Dear Retired: Yes, I am needing suggestions for reading. Also, the correspondence course in "Interviewing and Counselling", or in "Understanding Human Behavior", offered by the Department of Continuing Education at McMaster University, Hamilton, Ontario, would help. Write there for details.

If you find that you are too late for this year's course, the reading will prepare you for taking it later on. Believe it or not, there is much to learn before a person in her sixties can catch up with today's youth. How about a little community effort on a volunteer basis, for a start.

-Dear Doris: About 18 years ago I found a graduation card with the poem "IF" For Girls on it.

As I could only locate one card I copied it out (by hand!) ten times (a each of my graduating C.G.I.T. girls could have it. Obviously, I had more energy then I have now.

Poem Enclosed,

Dear Enclosed: You were a sport — and I don't doubt that you were a well-loved C.G.I.T. leader.

Did you know that there are several "If's For Girl" Your is one of the most charming, although the official one is from the writings of J.P. McEvoy. All of them have ideals and principles in them which girls appreciate.

For you to write them out was a far more personal way of delivering the message that you cared about your girls, than that possibly have happened if they had been typed out or printed.

Quinte Cuisine

Ila Meyers, Home Economics teacher at Centennial Secondary School, has her roots in Belleville (she's a descendant of John E. W. Meyers, one of the city's founders) but loves to travel. Her studies in nutrition have led her to New York, Chicago, and the Orient. Miss Meyers encourages her students to try foreign recipes and says that Oriental meals prove most popular. The girls like to eat this Japanese dish, Suki-yaki with chopsticks.

Suki-yaki

Suki-yaki (serves 4 to 6)
1 lb. beef sirloin tip or tenderloin
2 tbsp. cooking oil
½ cup soy sauce
2-3 cup water
3 tbsp. sugar
½ tsp. monosodium glutamate (optional)
1 cup of green onions cut in 1-inch pieces
1 can (small) bamboo shoots, drained
2 medium sized onions, thinly sliced
1 lb. bean sprouts
1 can (small) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms

Cut meat into paper-thin slices across the grain, then into strips 1 inch wide. Brown strips in oil in large skillet (or wok) for two or three minutes. Combine soy sauce, water, sugar and monosodium glutamate, and pour this mixture over the meat. Push the meat to one side.

Keeping the ingredients separate, add the bamboo shoots, green onions and onion slices. Cook for five to ten minutes. Push to one side.

Add the bean sprouts, water chestnuts and mushrooms. Cook for two minutes. Do not mix the vegetables and meat together.

Serve with hot rice.

Frankford Team Long on Try But Short on Scoreboard

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

TRENTON — Until Saturday night at Trenton Community Gardens, Belleville Bobcats' rookie defenceman Harold Roberts had a problem. All through his days in the Trenton Minor Hockey Association, he had the habit of putting his team's first goal and opening the game's scoring in the bargain, only to wind up a loser.

In Friday night's reversal at the hands of Etobicoke Selects at Belleville's Memorial Arena, the pattern was all too familiar for Roberts. He scored the first goal of the night as Bobcats finished up on the short end of a 10-5 score in the pre-season contest.

But the next night, things were different. Roberts changed the script. His goal was a little more than eight minutes played wiped out a 1-0 Frankford lead and got the Bobcats started on the way to an 11-4 exhibition win.

Frankford, a new entry in Ontario Hockey Association Junior C ranks, showed signs that they'll give coach Steve Bedard some very happy nights during the regular season.

The C team came up with an excellent effort in the early going and was rewarded with the first score of the game. Ken Jackel was the triggerman on a well executed three-way play with Wayne Clapp and Mike Hayes, at 7:26.

Roberts' goal came less than a minute later and it was followed by tallies from Kevin Joudwa (2) and Paul King, as Bobcats began to assert their authority.

Moe Hunter's Belleville skaters continued to pour it on in the second period, outscoring Frankford 3-2. Mark Coates and Norm Jones built "Bobcats' lead to 6-1 before the Belleville production was interrupted by Frankford's Radby Ellis.

Cats weren't long regaining their scoring touch. They counted three in a row with Jim Richardson, Jones again, and Rob Freeman finding the mark. Ellis potted his second for Frankford near the end of the period.

The barrage of goals tapered off in the third, due mainly to some sound work by Frankford goaltender Jim Conley who had replaced starter Calvin Lane halfway through the contest. Cats held a 2-1 edge in goals but were stymied by Conley on at least five other glowing opportunities.

Team captain Robbie Foster and Jones, to complete his hattrick, accounted for the Belleville goals in the third. Larry McQuaid replied for the losers.

Jones, Mike Watt and Roberts each picked up a pair of assists for Cats with single helpers going to Joudwa, Foster, Coates, Richardson, John Sargeant, Freeman and Joey Edwards.

Tops in the playmaking department for the losers were Hayes and McQuaid with two assists each. Wayne Clapp and Doug Morton had one apiece.

Coach Hunter continues to use these preseason games to assess his players as the Junior B opener draws closer. He'll get another look at his charges back here Thursday night when Cats come to town for a match with Charlie Drake's Finlaw bound Birt's Handy Stand entrants.

In the penalty department Saturday, the winners picked up six minors and Frankford, four. The losers' Gary Payne drew five minutes for butt ending.

Let Me at That Puck

Braves, Tony's Take Finals

TRENTON — Belleville Parsons enjoyed a wide margin in play, especially in the second half, but came up empty in their Trenton Challenge Cup Final with Cobourg Tony's her Sunday.

Playing at Centennial Park, Parsons displayed the ability to carry the play to the opposition but failed to finish off several promising thrusts and were blanked 2-0.

Tony's on the other hand made the most of the few chances gained. Cobourg counted its goals in the second half and both were well taken. Parsons' goalie Al McNeil had little chance on either scoring play.

John Van Boien counted the first goal of the game with 13 minutes played in the second half. Steve Miller, goalie turned centre forward slammed home the insurance counter in the 43rd minute.

The game two teams hook up in the Belleville Charity Cup Final October 14. That match is tentatively scheduled for Zwicky's Island but could be switched to the pitch at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Braves managed to pull it out in spite of the fact Ted Adams and Ed. Hardick missed on tries from the penalty spot. John Hlavaty of Adams and Hartwick off the hook when he scored the only goal of the second half to snap a 1-1 deadlock.

On the short end of some lopsided scores during the Bay of Quinte Soccer season, Cooney's came up with an all out effort in this one and certainly gave Braves a battle before it was all over.

Goalie Glen White was a standout for the losers.

Referee Harold Hildebrand of Belleville had been scheduled to work both games but one was all he could handle. A pulled groin suffered "playing tennis of all things" kept him out of the second match. Association president Peter Crouse refereed the Cobourg-Belleville contest.

An Unknown Quantity

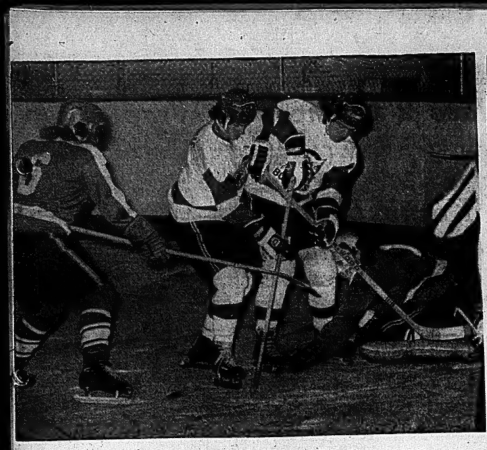
If there has to be a team that could come under the caption of "unknown commodity", it's quite natural that the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A league's newest entry, the Welland Merchants would be the lone that qualifies.

This is not to say that they, along with any other team should be "taken lightly, rather it means that at this stage, no one knows much about them in this, their first season of operation.

However, the rest of the Senior "A" league welcomed its newest member with open arms when it was finally admitted entry in July. Welland appears to have a top notch executive under manager Mirvel Lamoreal and recently acquired coach, Vance Millar.

Although the Merchants have some players on hand from last year's intermediate entry, it's expected that most of their player help will come from existing Senior "A" teams, particularly their closest neighbors, Brantford and Galt. The league as a whole recognizes the need for mutual aid to get the Merchants off on the right foot.

Kingston Players Clean Up



Sixty-four cribbage, enthusiasts, including a 92-year-old gentleman from Kingston, competed in the Quinte Open Mixed Cribbage Tournament at Royal Canadian Legion 99 on Saturday, with a team from the Limestone City taking top honors.

The players were entered in four man teams and judged on the number of games they won out of 14 plus the total number of points they accumulated in their losing games. Kingstons' Fred and Kay Hopkins, L. C. Ferguson and Ev Boriom came first in the event, winning 10 games and scoring 448 points over the four games they lost. The members of the team split the $100 prize money and received trophies, complements of Carsberg Breweries.

Second place also went to a Kingston unit headed by 92-year-old Lonny Buell. Buell, a 45 year member of the Legion, and his teammates, Mr. and Mrs. Bavay and D. Emmons, also won 10 of the 14 games they played but finished second because of their 229 points over the four matches they lost.

Fred Hopkins and L. C. Ferguson also won the honors as high doubles. The two combined to win five of their seven contests while taking 230 points in their two losing games.

Trophies were on hand for the winners and a special award was presented for the highest hand in the tournament. A total point hand of 24 took the award.

Let Me at That Puck

The Reward

Cobourg Tony's captain Alex Essert displays Trenton Challenge Cup his team won in final with Belleville Parsons at Trenton Sunday. Cobourg made the most of few chances to blank the Belleville squad 2-0. The same two teams will hook up in the Belleville Charity Cup Final October 14.

Senior Exhibition Is Not All Hockey

CAMBRIDGE (Special) — The Belleville Senior Kingsway Eagles Dropped a 3-0 decision to the Cambridge Hornets on Saturday night in a Senior exhibition contest in Galt.

Despite the loss the Eagles came up with an outstanding demonstration of conditioning and back-checking. The game, which was crammed with penalties, "was one of the best displays of hitting the seniors have made in years" said the Eagles publicity man Dave Lucas.

Neither team scored in the first period with Karl Bagnell playing goal for Eagles. The middle frame saw Bruce Reier potting one on Bagnell to round out the period's scoring at 14:0. Third period action gave two tallies to the Hornets, one each to Bill Hway and Terry Keeling.

Belleville's Les Colligan got into some extra activity in front of the Cambridge net and before his bout had finished both benches had emptied to decide who was better at fisticuffs.

Eagles' management has three more players. Roland Barry, a player with the Picton Intermediates last year, Paul Grills a returning Eagles player and Jim Blaisdale of Cobourg formerly a Junior A performer.

Season tickets for the Screaming Eagles home games are still on sale at a 10 per cent discount but this offer is only available until Friday. The Eagles have already sold 200 season tickets. These tickets are good for the Belleville and Orech games the Seniors have lined up for this season.

Dave Tops Peter In Golf Playoff

The Bay of Quinte Golf Club held its closing day tournament Sunday with 81 club members playing off in three flights.

When the regular 18 hole event ended, two golfers had finished first in the top flight. The top contenders were brothers. Both Peter and Dave Jones shot a 75 on the par 72 course to finish in the tie.

The brothers competed in a two hole sudden death playoff where Dave, a 1 year veteran of the game, finished on top. Pete were one over in the par 8 play off while Dave finished even and was awarded the McCallum Shield.

Oddly enough, Pete has taken top honors in the opening day tournament of the club.

While Dave placed first in A flight low gross, Jeff Hughes finished on top in low net with a 68. "B" flight low gross went to Norm Hoxford at 80 and low net was won by Jim Taylor shooting a 67. C flight champs were Jim McKeen at 84 and Bob Gibson with the lowest net of the day, a 67.

Eskimos, Cats Pull Out Wins

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Statistics are for losers.

Just ask Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference, who frittered away several opportunities Sunday before going away empty-handed.

Saskatchewan dominated Edmonton Eskimos throughout but four fumbles in a 17-13 defeat while Calgary missed an opportunity to kick a field goal in the final seconds and lost 31-29 to Hamilton Tiger-Cats in a Canadian Football League interlocking game.

In another interlocking game, British Columbia Lions rallied behind five field goals by Ivan MacMillan Saturday and managed a 22-22 tie with Toronto Argonauts.

The results left Edmonton and Saskatchewan tied in first place, four points ahead of Calgary in the WFC. B.C. now has seven points, three behind the Stampeders and one in front of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who meet the Tiger-Cats Wednesday in the second half of Hamilton's western swing.

Saskatchewan lost four fumbles—two on punts—before 21,429 fans but appeared in control until a pass defender slipped on the first play after Jack Abendschan's fourth field goal gave the Roughriders a 13-10 advantage. The slip left Tyrone Walls free for a 44-yard reception that dug the Eskimos out from deep in their territory.

Abendschan kicked for all the Saskatchewan points as the Roughriders failed to convert touchdown despite a net offence of 420 yards, almost twice as much as Edmonton's 211 yards.

He missed two field goal attempts but one went for a single.

Lemmerman also threw for Edmonton's other touchdown—a 28-yarder by Garry Lefebvre. Dave Cutler contributed a field goal and two converts.

At Calgary, placement kicker Larry Robinson failed to get onto the field for a long field goal attempt that might have pulled out a victory on the last play before 21,250 fans.

A 65-yard touchdown dash by quarterback Chuck Ealey on a broken play and an unusual interval involving Calgary punt-returners Jim Silye and John Scott helped the Tiger-Cats stay in the battle for an Eastern Football Conference playoff spot.

Silye attempted a lateral to Scott deep in Stampeder territory but the ball went free and Jerome Garrett recovered. Two plays later, Dave Fleming scored on a nine-yard pass from Ealey.

Ealey also scored on a one-yard plunge.

Halfback Andy Hopkins added the other touchdown for Tiger-Cats, who led 31-12 early in the fourth quarter and barely managed to stagger home in front. Jan Sunier added three converts, a single and a field goal.

Touchdowns by Rudy Linterman, quarterback Peter Liske and wide receiver Tom Forzani sparked the Stampeders, who received two converts, a single and a 41-yard field goal from Robinson. Punter Alex Lockington of the Tiger-Cats conceded two safeties.

Young Quarterback Ray Lang, easter dropped a pass in the end zone in the dying minutes that would have given Toronto a victory before 22,400 fans.

MacMillan, a former Argo, kicked B.C. field goals from 16, 45, 37, 17 and 44 yards and didn't miss any.

Pete Watson spearheaded the Argos with two touchdowns. Zenon Andrusyshyn added two converts, two singles and two field goals. Andrusyshyn, however, missed a 27-yard field goal early in the game.

Watson ran 29 yards for one touchdown and took a screen pass from Rae 80 yards for the other.

ONTARIO TEAMS WIN

Ontario defeated Newfoundland 3-0 and then knocked off Nova Scotia 3-1 in the final game. Ontario also won the bantam and midget titles with wins over Quebec in both categories.

Canucks, Islanders Still Going Strong

By THE CANADIAN PRESS.

Vancouver Canucks and New York Islanders might be a little happier today than National Hockey League exhibition games meant something Oct. 10, when the regular season schedule begins.

Both the Canucks and Islanders scored seven and eighth respectively in the East Division last year at the conclusion of the 78-game season.

In exhibition play this year, however, the Canucks remain undefeated—six wins including two over Montreal Canadiens. They whipped Minnesota North Stars 7-3 Sunday before 14,500 fans in Vancouver.

The Islanders, who only won 12 league games last season, extended their exhibition record to four wins and two ties by blanking Atlanta Flames 2-0 in Ottawa Saturday night.

In other Sunday games, Atlanta Flames defeated Nova Scotia Voyageurs of the American Hockey League 5-3 in Halifax; Boston Bruins took a home-ice 5-3 win over New York Rangers; Buffalo Sabres lost 5-3 at home to Philadelphia Flyers; California Golden Seals and Pittsburgh Penguins tied 4-4 in London, Ont.; and Toronto Maple Leafs topped Detroit Red Wings 4-2 in Port Huron, Mich.

Saturday, the Flyers edged the Sabres 4-3 in Philadelphia; Chicago Black Hawks lost 3-2 at home to the Bruins; the Leafs whipped the Wings 3-0 in Toronto; Los Angeles Kings edged Minnesota 2-1 in Victoria; and Pittsburgh beat St. Louis Blues 5-3 in Brantford, Ont.

In Vancouver Sunday, the Canucks scored three goals in each of the first and third periods and outshot the North Stars 36-27. Rookies Dave Dunn and Paulin Bordeleau each scored a goal for the winners.

Rob Cooke and Bill Harris each got a goal for the Islanders who handed the Flames their first loss of the exhibition schedule.

The Penguins scored three unanswered goals in the third period to earn the tie with the Golden Seals, now with a win and tie and a defeat. Joey Johnston paced the Seals with two goals before 1,251 fans.

California coach Fred Glover is convinced that a change in attitude—so-called team spirit—will play a strong role in the Seals' drive for a playoff berth this year.

"It's a complete change in attitude," he said. "Part of the reason is the players were offered better contracts this year."

The Leafs, winless in four games before meeting Detroit, got two goals from Dave Keon in their win Saturday night and a goal each from teammates Rick Kehoe, Darryl Sittler and Ron Ellis.

Hammarstrom for the victory Sunday.

"We stunk the joint out," said rookie coach Ted Garvin after Detroit's 5-0 setback. "We've got some real defensive problems."

Hall Steals Spotlight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull and the Howe family were the attraction for 19,077 Winnipeg fans who attended a World Hockey Association exhibition game Sunday night.

But Murray Hall stepped into the spotlight with a three-point performance and Houston Aeros went away with a 4-1 victory over Winnipeg Jets.

Hull, playing coach of the Jets, and the Howe trio—father Gordie and sons Marty and Mark who play for the Aeros—went scoreless before the large east crowd ever to see the Jets play in Winnipeg.

In other games Sunday, Toronto Toros defeated Cleveland Crusaders 4-3 in Sudbury, Ont., Edmonton Oilers took a home-ice 5-3 win over Vancouver Blazers, and New York Golden Blades edged Los Angeles Sharks 5-4 in East Orange, N.J.

WHALERS WIN

Gilmartin in St. Petersburg, Fla., New England Whalers beat Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-3, while the Blades nipped the Sharks 5-4 at Syracuse, N.Y.

No Room to Breathe In CFL's East Race

By Stuart Lake

While league-leading Toronto Argonauts were held to a 22-22 tie by British Columbia Lions, the Alouettes replaced Ottawa in second place by dumping the Rough Riders 28-15.

The Ti-cats remained in last position by beating Calgary Stampeders 31-29 but they are only four points out of first place with a game in hand.

Going into the last month of the regular schedule the Argos lead with 12 points, Montreal is second with 11, Ottawa third with 10 and Hamilton fourth with eight.

The Alouette defence kept the Riders penned up on their own side of the field most of Sunday afternoon but saved their best effort for the final quarter.

It was the last 15 minutes the Als forced the Riders to cough up the ball twice when Ottawa gambled and failed on third down. The Als also intercepted Rick Cassata pass and the defence accounted for the third Montreal touchdown.

Dick Harris, who had the last quarter interception, picked up a fumble after Montreal blocked an attempted field goal and ran 37 yards for the touchdown.

Don Sweet kicked two field goals and three converts while Wally Buono booted a 45-yard single to complete Montreal scoring.

Flanker Hugh Oldham, one of the Ottawa stars of the game, scored on a 37-yard pass from Jerry Keeling in the first quarter and halfback Ad Green who completed 14 of 26 throws for 228 yards, including two touchdown pitches to Rodgers, said his line "did a helluva job."

"They were blitzing a lot and leaving Johnny Rodgers open in a one-on-one situation," said Mira.

"Well, we got a couple of quick touchdowns with him and that kind of loosened up Ottawa's defence a little," he said.

The first touchdown pitch to Rodgers travelled 58 yards, the second 17. Rodgers caught three passes in all for an afternoon total of 83 yards.

Keeling, who started at quarterback for Ottawa and later gave way to Cassata, heaved the touchdown pitch to Oldham.

The two Ottawa quarterbacks completed 20 of 40 throws for 317 yards. Oldham caught six of them for 127 yards.

New Bishop Installed

HAMILTON—(CP) — Bishop John Charles Bothwell was installed as the new Anglican bishop of Niagara Sunday, witnessed by clergymen of several denominations, politicians and an overflow crowd at Christ's Church Cathedral.

The 47-year-old bishop took up the pastoral charge laid down by retiring Bishop Walter Bagnall, as 4,000 looked on, half of them via closed-circuit television in adjoining halls.

A lengthy procession of diocesan members and clergymen of the Anglican, United Church, Presbyterian, Roman Catholic and Jewish faiths escorted the new bishop to the cathedral doors, upon which he pounded three times with his pastoral staff.

There was no reply and Bishop Bothwell turned to the procession and said "I guess they didn't hear me." before pounding again on the huge wooden door, according to ancient ceremony.

Lang Explains Grain Policy

BALCARRES, Sask. (CP) — Federal Justice Minister Otto Lang was applauded Sunday as he told an audience of about 100 persons that the interests of Eastern livestock producers must be protected in federal grain policy.

It was the first time since he started his speaking tour Friday night that his introductory speech, preceding a question period, was applauded.

Saturday night in Willkie, Sask., however, Mr. Lang won a standing ovation at the end of a two-hour session in which he explained and defended the new feed grain policy.

Mr. Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board and the only Liberal MP from Saskatchewan, began a speaking tour Friday night in Brandon to counter what he sees as myths about his policy spread by political opponents, particularly the NDP governments of Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

His reception in this small town 100 miles west of Saskatoon was noticeably warmer than when he spoke to about 350 persons in Brandon.

Chutist Drowns in Silt

KESWICK, Ont. (CP) — A Toronto parachutist died Saturday when he dropped into a 15-foot-deep pond and became stuck in the silt at the bottom.

Alexander John Leiper, 32, who had 10 years of jumping experience, "misjudged the distance," police said.

Mr. Leiper and five others, members of the Central Ontario Sports Parachuting Club of Baldwin, Ont., were making final jumps from 3,000 feet.

All the parachutes opened automatically, but footed of landing in a private airfield Mr. Leiper fell into a pond w three to four feet of silt.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Stu Gilliam, accused of swinging an axe at a waiter in a Hollywood restaurant after a dispute about reservations, was released on $1,000 bond early Sunday morning, authorities said.

The 40-year-old star of the new television series Roll Out was booked for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon after the incident Saturday evening.

Sheriff's deputies said Gilliam began arguing with bandwaiter Fausto Raynard, 35, at Alan Hale's Lobster Barrel Restaurant.

When the waiter refused to apologize, Gilliam allegedly threatened him with an axe. Hale, a television actor who played the captain on the Gilligan's Island series, managed to wrestle the weapon away from Gilliam, deputies said.

MOUGINS, France (AP) — Pablo Picasso's priceless collection of paintings by modern masters has been formally acquired by the state.

Jean Chatelain, director of French museums, and Picasso's heirs signed the documents transferring over the collection to the state of the painter's home in this Riviera village late last week, it was learned Sunday.

Picasso stipulated that the collection be kept intact and exhibited as a whole in the Louvre in Paris.

Experts also catalogued a vast collection of Picasso's own works strewn around the villa. Picasso's widow, Jacqueline, is reported planning to open Picasso's chateau at Vauvenargues, where she has lived since his death April 3, as a museum.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDEO

TUESDAY, Oct. 2

Aries (March 21-April 19) Someone with whom you're closely associated will surprise you today with an impulsive gesture of good will and thoughtfulness.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) It will be easier than usual for you to get material aid you may require from others.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You will see today a ride of a close companion you never knew existed. This will put your relationship on a more interesting basis.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Look for new or unusual methods to cut laborious steps out of chores you've been doing the hard way.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 23) You will find things of a speculative nature very appealing today. Your hunches are quite accurate, but act in moderation.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone out of the blue may give you something for the home. It will be an unusual item. You will find a use for it.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't dismiss lightly any bright ideas you get today. Look for ways you can implement them. They could be better than you think at first.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Keep your eyes and ears wide open for ways to fatten your bankbook. An unusual opportunity is in the offing.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your schedule should be kept loose today. A friend may be in touch, with plans more interesting than yours.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Continue to sit tight on important matters, but take quick advantage of any unusual breaks that come your way.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Presently get in touch with any person you feel could be instrumental in advancing your interests now. Delays will dilute your chances.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't turn down something special another wants to do for you. It has greater advantage than appear on the surface.

Cotton

Although it is low in price, cotton carpeting is inadequate for heavily travelled areas, has low soil resistance and is difficult to clean.

Excess Vitamin A Can Cause Trouble

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it permissible for me to drink pure carrot juice which I prepare in my juicer and, if so, please let me know if six or eight ounces of the juice is too much for me to drink every day.

I like carrot juice very much but do not want to consume too much. I also take celery juice, orange juice, etc., but it is the carrot juice I have been told is dangerous when taken in large quantities. Is this correct?—Mrs. N.G.

That's too much carrot juice, too much carrots in any form.

Whole carrots contain about 11,000 units of vitamin A for each three ounces. Since you speak of pure carrot juice, I assume that is what that 11,000 per were added, the vitamin A (carotene) content would be about 33,000 units.

The pure juice you are drinking daily would contain about 33,000 units of carotene. If you have been consuming this much juice for any extended period, you should by now be noticing a yellowing that is harmless. This is not any great problem of itself, but it can indicate an excessive intake of vitamin A which the system cannot dispose of.

Excessive vitamin A can cause skin, hair, bone and liver disorders. I suggest you cut down either your daily intake or decide on a few carrotless days each week.

As in most foods, we all would be better off following the time-honored ancient Greek admonishment—"Nothing too much."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have two cataracts developing, but everyone says to forget about them.

Must I wear glasses if I have them operated on? My vision is 20-55 and 20-50 and I wear glasses only for reading or close work.—Mrs. M.M.

The advice to "forget about them" isn't too bad, because there is nothing one can do to change things. Cataracts as a rule develop quite slowly. When or if your vision becomes too dim, the cataracts can be removed—nearly half a million people a year have it done.

You will need glasses after the operation, because the lenses of the eyes have to be removed, and you need glasses to make up for them. However, contact lenses have reached a fine stage of development and are in much use after cataract operations.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you please explain dangers of having an IUD as compared to other forms of birth control? On the news a few nights ago I heard a very brief report saying that IUDs had been found to be very dangerous, but no explanation. I've had very little trouble with my IUD for a year and a half.—G.W.

I certainly don't know any basis for calling them "very dangerous." There have been cases, although certainly not numerous, in which an IUD punctured the uterus or caused bleeding. It is my impression that new designs of IUDs, changed both in shape and in the materials used, have pretty much overcome this risk.

Aside from that, some women automatically expel an IUD, and others develop irritation. These women must, of course, rely on some other contraceptive method.

The IUD is not the most certain type of contraceptive, but it is not at the bottom of the list, either—its reliability is listed in the upper 80s per cent.

Opening lead — four of diamonds.

The year was 1966, the place was Amsterdam and I was playing for the world pair championship with Dorothy Hayden. She got to seven notrump and her left-hand opponent (Victor Goldberg of Scotland) opened a lead. He turned to her and asked, in broad Scots: "Did ye open woon cloob, lassie?"

Mrs. Hayden replied she had opened a heart, not a club, and Goldbert thereupon led a diamond.

Mrs. Hayden was with the queen, making a mental note that East almost surely had the queen of hearts. It seemed impossible that Goldbert could have that card, since he would surely have recommenced which suit South had bid had he held a card as important as the queen of hearts.

At trick two she played the eight of spades and let it run. East took the king and returned a diamond, the jack losing to the king. Back came a diamond to the ace and Mrs. Hayden led a spade to the queen and returned the jack of hearts, confident that East had the queen.

...When East covered with the queen, Mrs. Hayden ducked! She won the low heart continuation with the king. West producing the ten as declarer played the eight from dummy on the trick. Analyzing the situation perfectly, Mrs. Hayden led a spade to the ace, returned a heart, finessed the seven, and thus home came with nine tricks.

...In effect, Mrs. Hayden played the hand as though she had seen through the backs of the cards. She took the exceptionally deep spade finesse at trick two and also knew that hearts exactly right to meet her commitment to three notrump. Call it woman's intuition, or what you will, but whatever the reason she performed a first class job.

...Tomorrow—Divine guidance.

Bourassa For Labor Controls

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa said Saturday that if re-elected Oct. 29, the Liberal government will draw up legislation to avoid labor problems like the public servants strike in May 1972.

He was speaking to 600 members of the women's committee of the provincial Liberal party at a weekend meeting.

Asked if the Liberals envisaged any measures to limit the power of unions in Quebec, Mr. Bourassa said although unions are an excellent means to improve the life of Quebecers, union leaders cannot be above the law.

"The time is past in Quebec when he who cries loudest is most apt to govern," Mr. Bourassa said.

United Way Hit

TORONTO (CP) — The annual United Way campaign begins today despite warnings from a citizens' group questioning the way social services—the beneficiaries of the campaign—are operated.

Known previously as the United Appeal, the United Way has set this year's goal at $14,826,000—an increase of 12 per cent over funds raised last year.

Meanwhile, Citizens Concerned about Social Policy, with a budget of $500, 5,000 pamphlets and 12 workers, attempts to dissuade people from contributing to the campaign.

The organization contends the United Way is too rigid, dominated by corporation executives and too oriented toward established agencies to do anything about solving the problems of the poor.

Pot Tested

TORONTO (CP) — Marijuana smokers, even those who smoke more than 18 "joints" a week, are unable to judge the potency of the drug they are smoking, recent Toronto experiments have shown.

Other results indicate that marijuana users, unlike users of other drugs, do not need increasingly larger doses to keep achieving a "nice high."

Dr. Howard Cappell of the Addiction Research Foundation conducted an initial experiment with 12 subjects ranging in age from 21 to 28 who were paid $20 each for five sessions.

In a the second experiment, conducted jointly with his wife, Dr. Patricia Pline of the University of Toronto, 60 subjects were used.

English Catholic Teachers May Strike at New Year

TORONTO (CP) — More than 150,000 Ontario students might be without teachers after Christmas if settlements are not reached in salary negotiations affecting 6,000 members of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association (OECTA), a spokesman said on the weekend.

Doug Knott, the association's chief negotiator, told a meeting of presidents and directors to be prepared for mass resignations if basic settlements do not match the eight-per-cent increase in the cost of living this year.

Mr. Knott said government ceilings on education spending are forcing school boards to hold down salary increases and cut back on the total number of teachers by eliminating positions and not replacing retired teachers.

Mountbatten Declares Dieppe Change Vetoed

TORONTO (CP) — Earl Mountbatten of Burma told veterans of the Dieppe Raid Saturday that top planners had scotched an alternate plan for the mission and insisted that Canadian troops storm the German bastion by direct frontal attack without the benefit of either naval or air bombardment.

The planners who overruled the alternate assault ale were headed by Field Marshal Montgomery he said.

On Aug. 19, 1942, 4,962 Canadians attempted to storm ashore on the beaches at Dieppe and were cut to shreds by enemy machine-gun fire.

Over 900 were killed and more than 1,000 others were wounded.

He told them that his original plans called for both a flank attack with tanks and heavy bombardment.

He said he was overruled.

"A battalion of infantry and a battalion of the new Churchill tanks would land at Quiberville, six miles west of Dieppe and then go flat out for the airfield and the heights above Dieppe itself. Whoever held those heights would command Dieppe itself," he said.

He said the plan was dropped because there were several bridges that might stop the tanks if they were blown.

"The Home forces planners, headed by Monty Mcneill, objected to the Quiberville plan. Further, they claimed if the landing took place earlier, overall surprise would be lost.

"They insisted that the tanks should land simultaneously with the harbor assault," he said.

The planners apparently feared that any bombardment would litter the streets with debris and impede the movement of tanks.

He noted that in Montgomery's memoirs the field marshal said he wouldn't have agreed to any plan changes that would take troops in without bombardment.

"This is one passage in Montgomery's book where his memory has played him false. Far from not agreeing with the change, he was in the chair at the meeting where the decision was taken and he is not on the record as having demurred."

Britain Seeking End of Cod War

LONDON (AP) — Britain ordered its naval shield of three frigates and three tugs out of Iceland's disputed 50-mile fishing zone today.

The move was disclosed after Prime Minister Heath told the Icelandic government in a note that the British warships and tugs would be out of the disputed area by Wednesday.

"The withdrawal will be made on the assumption that the Icelandic authorities will not take any measures against British trawlers fishing, or which have fished, in the disputed area," Heath told Icelandic Prime Minister Olafur Johannesson.

"The navy and the tugs will return if this assumption proves to be wrong."

Heath at the same time invited Johannesson to London for talks on achieving a five-and-a-half-year arrangement in the zone.

Iceland extended its limits to 50 from 12 miles 13 months ago.

Michigan Men Develop Sausage from Trash Fish

ERIE, Mich. (AP) — Two investors say they have a great new food product, but the name leaves something to be desired. It's "trash fish" sausage.

David King and Samuel Barlotta say they have invented a food processing machine that can turn carp, suckers and other undesirable fish into a sausage for use in dozens of dishes.

After it is processed it is as nice-looking as veal," said King, 47, a machine shop owner and part-time inventor.

Multinational Firms Made Labor Target

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — Opposition leader Harold Wilson today outlined plans for a sweeping state takeover by a future Labor government of wide sectors of British business and industry and won his party's massive backing for the program.

Wilson singled out for special attack at the party's annual convention the big multinational corporations, both British and foreign, operating in this country. He said a future Labor government will concentrate all its power on multinational corporations "in the same way as British-owned firms."

The objective, he said, "lies in making economic power answerable to political power, and to ensure that political power is exercised only under the authority of the elected Parliament at Westminster."

A Labor government which wins power in the next national elections, Wilson said, will take over enough authority "to deal with our domestic industrial federation and supranational corporate power, as it must be capable of dealing with irresponsible money power."

Wilson was wildly acclaimed by his party followers. The delegates overwhelmingly rejected left-wing proposals that the nationalization program be carried with a minimum, and in some cases, no compensation to owners of seized firms.

The nationalization program outlined by Wilson would apply to all land not farmed by owners, the mineral wealth under all land and the waters around the nation, all ports, shipbuilding and associated industries, aircraft production, individual firms in the pharmaceutical, machine tool, construction and road haulage industries and all firms that had been previously nationalized but since returned to private ownership by the existing Conservative government of Prime Minister Heath.

Agnew Inquiry Influenced By Statute of Limitations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal prosecutors investigating Vice-President Spiro Agnew are being pushed by the knowledge that a good portion of their case may be unuseable in as little as three weeks.

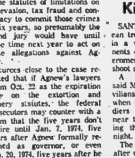
Agnew is under investigation by a special grand jury in Baltimore for possible violation of extortion, bribery, tax and conspiracy laws during his tenure as Maryland governor.

Under federal statutes of limitations, prosecution for bribery, extortion and conspiracy to commit either offense must be initiated within five years of the commission of the crime.

Agnew's lawyers may argue that the statutes, as they relate to the extortion and bribery allegations against the vice-president, expire Oct. 22, it was learned Monday.

It was on Oct. 22, 1968, almost five years ago, that Agnew attended his last major session of the Maryland board of public works. At that meeting, seven major engineering contracts were awarded totaling more than $3.6 million.

All records relating to the awarding of those contracts have been subpoenaed by the Baltimore grand jury.



The statutes of limitations on tax evasion, tax fraud and conspiracy to commit those crimes is six years, so presumably the grand jury would have some time next year to act on those allegations against Agnew.

Sources close to the case reported that if Agnew is convicted on Oct. 22 as the expiration date on the extortion and bribery statutes, the federal prosecutors may counter with a claim that the five years don't expire until Jan. 7, 1974, five years after Agnew formally resigned as governor, or even Jan. 20, 1974, five years after he formally became vice-president.

Nonetheless, the prosecutors are moving quickly to present evidence to the grand jury, expected back in session later this week.

Ehrlichman Believes Nixon Approved Plumbers' Visit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former presidential advisor John Ehrlichman told a grand jury he thinks President Nixon approved sending two members of the White House plumbers squad to California to investigate the leak of the Pentagon papers.

But Ehrlichman did not intend that Nixon approved any illegal operations.

Ehrlichman's remarks were contained in the transcript of the eight hearings that led to Sept. 4 indictments returned by a Los Angeles County grand jury against Ehrlichman and three others.

The transcript shows Ehrlichman was asked if an investigation was made from the White House into the leak of the Pentagon papers to the news media.

"Yes," Ehrlichman answered.

"Who made that decision?" a prosecutor asked.

"I think ultimately the president did," Ehrlichman said.

In the grand jury transcript, Ehrlichman is quoted, regarding the decision to send men to California, as saying: "I believe the recommendation was discussed specifically with the president before it was approved.

"I know he discussed it with Mr. Hoover," he said in a reference to the late FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover.

Chilean Troops Kill Civilians

SANTIAGO (Reuter) — Chilean troops killed nine civilians in a weekend hunt for opponents of the new military government. They have orders to shoot resisters on the spot.

A government spokesman said Monday night six of the civilians were picked up and shot when they tried to flee as soldiers searched a shantytown near the capital for arms during the strict curfew Sunday night.

The other three were killed after opening fire on a military patrol here, the spokesman said.

One of the six shot at the shantytown was a member of the personal bodyguard of President Salvador Allende who died during the Sept. 11 coup.

Austria to Reject Golda Meir's Plea

VIENNA (CP) — Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky says he will reject Israeli Premier Golda Meir's plea today that he repudiate his pledge to Arab terrorists to close the Schonau transit camp.

Mrs. Meir decided to fly to Vienna today to meet with Kreisky after delivering a speech Monday in Strasbourg, France, to the Council of Europe's advisory Parliament.

Kreisky told reporters Monday he had no intention of going back on his promise to close the camp for emigrating Soviet Jews. That pledge was given Saturday to obtain the freedom of three emigres and an Austrian border guard kidnapped by two Arab terrorists.

Kreisky said he would explain to Mrs. Meir the "practical steps" his government plans to take so that emigrations of Soviet Jews can continue via Austria. These have not been made public, but the chancellor declared:

"The decision of the Austrian government is of such a nature that it allows us to fulfill all our obligations as a humanitarian state in the future. Cancellation of the government's decision is unthinkable even under the hardest pressures."

The chancellor said today he would tell Mrs. Meir at a meeting here this afternoon: "It is up to you to get transit functioning."

"There is no question of withdrawing our decision, but Austria remains a country where any refugee with a valid visa will be able to enter," Kreisky said.

The Israelis contend that a closely guarded transit camp like the setup they have created at the Schoenau Castle is necessary to protect the emigrants from Arab terrorists.

But in an interview with Israeli television Monday night, Kreisky said Schoenau was a security threat to Austria. The government had known for some time that a raid was being planned on the camp.

Kreisky said he wished to avoid the possibility of the Arab-Israeli conflict being fought out on Austrian soil, giving as an example the brief arrest Saturday of five armed men guarding Jewish migrants on the Moscow-Vienna express.

But he stressed that his decision would not prevent Jews crossing Austria, suggesting that arrangements be made with airlines so that their stay there might be as brief as possible.

Mrs. Meir put aside her prepared speech to the European parliament Monday to say that Kreisky had given "the greatest encouragement to terror throughout the world" when he promised to close the camp in exchange for the four hostages.

The Austrian government has not said when it will carry out Kreisky's promise, and Schonau is reported still processing its usual 40 to 120 Soviet Jews a day.

Plane Sale Not Factor With Chile

OTTAWA (CP) — The external affairs department Monday night flatly denied that the pending sale of six aircraft to the national airline of Chile was a major factor in Canada recognizing the military junta there.

A published report said the deal was for $5 million and involved de Havilland Aircraft of Canada. The report quoted Pierre Charpentier, new head of the department Latin American division, as saying trade considerations were the foremost factor in recognition of the junta that overthrew the elected government of Salvadore Allende Sept. 11.

An external affairs spokesman Monday night said Mr. Charpentier denies making that statement in that context. And Robert McIntyre, de Havilland market development director, denied in Toronto that the company had put pressure on the government to facilitate the sales.

"It's far too serious an issue for one company to be involved in that way," he said. "We're not pressuring these people" to form Canadian foreign policy, he said.

One Dies as Truck Lands on Car

A propane tank truck hangs precariously above the road while crane crews clear up wreckage from a collision that killed a woman and sent two others to hospital this morning. The dead woman, identity not yet revealed, was in a car which was hauled from beneath the truck before this picture was taken. The accident, at Highway 14 and the fourth concession of Thurlow Township, occurred shortly after 9 a.m. during heavy rainfall. Firemen assisted by with hoses in the event of fire from the truck. Woman Killed On Highway 14

A woman was killed this morning as her car collided with a propane truck at the intersection of Highway 14 and the fourth concession of Thurlow Township.

Two other persons were taken to Belleville General Hospital. Names were being withheld until next of kin were notified.

The driver of the truck, whose name was not released, escaped with only an injured arm.

Traffic along the highway was diverted along concession roads for several hours while the vehicles were removed.

The truck, with a metal tank mounted on its chassis, was upside down atop the car in the south-east ditch.

Firefighters from Thurlow Township Fire Department were standing by in case flames broke out.

Tour Turnout Brings Repeat

Encouraged by the turnout at last Sunday's motor safari, the Education and Information Advisory Committee of the Moira River Conservation Authority will offer another tour of the Moira on Thanksgiving weekend — to a different part of the watershed.

Last Sunday 28 cars left the West Riverbank Park in Belleville for a look at projects in the south and west sections of the watershed. Additional cars joined the safari between here and Marmora.

Next Sunday a similar safari is planned for the northeast sector of the watershed taking in the new Deerock Reservoir northeast of Flinton, the historic old dam at Stokes and several of the authority's reforestation projects in the Actinolite and Hungerford township areas.

Cars will leave the West Riverbank Park at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Air Cadets Take Flip

Fifty-seven boys between the ages of 13 and 18, members of the Duke of Edinburgh Air Cadet Squadron, enjoyed an air-plane ride over the Quinte area Sunday.

They were guest of the Belleville Flying Club taking part in a familiarization flight to interest prospective pilots.

Although not allowed to solo until 15, 10 boys are eligible each year for cadet-sponsored flying scholarships.

Pilots for the tour, which went on until after dark, were Lt. Preston Park and Lt. Don Wright, from the squadron, and Art Fort, Bowie Dowsley, Bob Cole and Jim Marker of the flying club.

Actors Wanted

WANTED — Seven women and four men for the Mid-summer Mink caper to be performed later this year.

However, it's unlikely their faces or "mug shots" (to use the proper terminology), can be seen on posters tacked on post office bulletin boards. They haven't been found yet.

These 11 people are needed to fill in the cast for the Belleville Theatre Guild's second production of the year November 28 - December 1, and December 4 - 8.

Auditions for the play are to be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, October 3, at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle St.

Several members of the Mink Kitten" will be involved in certain illegal activities during the course of the play. Mind you, the money the elderly ladies will receive from the stolen furs will go to a worthy cause — donations to charitable institutions.

Not only is director Peter Kitchen looking for actors to perform in his production, but he is, at present, searching for sources of those furry

Houses Top Permit List

Continuing with a current trend in Sidney Township, better than 50 per cent of building permits issued in November were single family dwellings.

Of the 49 permits issued by the recently appointed township building inspector, John Wiggers, 29 were for year-round residential dwellings. Alterations or demolition of existing structures and construction of new dwelling types are permitted in 31 cases south of the third concession road.

Estimated value of construction allowed under the 49 permits is $888,225, bringing to $5,196,353 the total value of building activity permitted in Sidney Township during the first nine months of 1972. In September, 22 plumbing permits were issued by Mr. Wiggers who presented his report to township council at their regular monthly meeting Monday.

September's permits, for which $1,064 went into township coffers as fees, ranks third in this year's monthly totals. In May, 56 permits were issued with an estimated value of $1,066,925.

Hearing for Trenton Woman On Non-capital Charge

TRENTON — The preliminary hearing into a charge of non-capital murder in the death of Canadian forces corporal James Robinson began here Monday.

Provincial judge R. J. Jackson, presiding over the session, warned at the outset there was to be no publicity regarding evidence presented. The hearing continued today.

Witnesses to testify included two analysis specialists from the Toronto Forensic Sciences Laboratory, a Trenton police officer and Murray Girotti. Mr. Girotti at the end of the July 15 incident was a second-year medical student on duty at Trenton hospital when Cpl. Robinson, 35, stationed at the Canadian Forces Base here was admitted.

Most testimonies were lengthy and it is expected the hearing will be completed Tuesday.

Council May Not Face Costs of Gardens Roof

TRENTON — Council was told last night it may not have to pay renovating costs for the Community Gardens roof.

Following a recent meeting with consultants in Toronto it was learned from Councillor Ron Price the building may be up to standard.

Requirements for the arena seemed to be 180 pounds per square foot and the standard linked to the maximum weight of snow settling on the roof.

Until now, reports have stated the roof could not meet this requirement, though no specifics were mentioned.

The consultant has told council because of the location of the building in an unsheltered area this standard could be dropped to 30 pounds a square foot.

Further reports have been requested to determine exactly how much snow the roof will support.

TRENTON — Town council last night endorsed payment of $13,000 to the Trent Regional Conservation Authority.

This figure represents the town's responsibility in the authority's $30,000 green belt program involving purchase of land parcels bounding the Trent river.

The money originally was intended to come from the municipal capital budget where it would have needed Ontario Municipal Board approval. Last night council agreed to pay the bill using funds from its current budget.

It was explained that through a mixup in timing starting procedures the approval was not forthcoming.

The motion received unanimous council endorsement. The matter was debated following a favorable recommendation from the town's administration board.

Highway 37 Reroute Hits Local Criticism

TWEED — Plans of the Ministry of Transportation and Communications to reroute Highway 37 between Tweed and Actinolite are meeting with opposition from interest area residents who want to see the highway remain as it is.

As an alternative, the opposition group has suggested proposals which they say would divert enough traffic to make the reroute reconstruction unnecessary.

The proposals call for construction of a new highway on the west side of the Moira River by-passing Tweed and linking Highway 7 west of Actinolite, further improvement of Highway 7 or speeding up completion of Highway 416 from Ottawa south to Highway 401.

The group feels that any one of these alternatives would be satisfactory but ministry representatives are unwilling to consider any of the proposals.

Fears of the group are that highway reconstruction between Actinolite and Tweed would attract still more heavy transports and increase traffic congestion in the village.

At a September meeting held at Actinolite A. J. Percy the ministry's regional manager of systems planning said the position of the ministry on the highway through Tweed does not warrant a bypass in the town's administration.

But, if Tweed's main street is considered inadequate to carry Highway 37 traffic through the village the group questions why the Tweed-Actinolite stretch of highway is in need of rebuilding.

Trenton Firm Gets Contract

TRENTON — A contracting firm here has been awarded the $106,000 contract for Prince Edward Heights in Picton.

Mirec-Wiggers had been the second low bidder for the contract but stepped in when the low bidder withdrew.

The highest of six bids topped $210,000.

Caen Court is a residential, row house complex for the mentally retarded. It is used in conjunction with the school at Prince Edward Heights, organized by the province two years ago.

Work has begun and is expected to be complete by early 1974.

Strike Delays GO

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Carton, Ontario minister of transportation and communication, said Monday a strike by blacksmiths and steelworkers has delayed the opening of a new GO Rail Commuter service from Toronto to Georgetown.

He said the 30-mile line, originally scheduled to open in September or October, will not open until next year, with a partial service beginning "sometime in January or February."

Mr. Carton said a 3½-month strike by United Steelworkers union members of the National Steel Car Corp. has delayed production of wheel and coach assemblies for 30 coaches for the commuter line.

He also blamed Canada's recent national rail strike for holding up production of auxiliary power control units being built by the provincially-owned Ontario Northland Railway.

Trenton Council to Update Street-Lighting in Town

TRENTON — Council moved last night to catch up on several years' lighting projects.

But it is expected new guidelines and changes in subdividers' agreements will be forthcoming.

Presently there are a number of projects on the books which range from complete lighting installations to the replacement of poles.

A quotation of 1900 for replacement of two wooden poles is an example of the cost involved.

"Replace one and we'll have to replace them all," pointed out veteran councillor Bob Patrick.

Hinting at possible future changes, Councillor Ed Todd, acting chairman of last night's council meeting said, "we've got to draw the line somewhere."

Council moved to approve capital funds to bring town lighting up to date following a meeting earlier this week with the Public Utilities Commission. It also advised there was to be some discussion at the next meeting concerning the appropriate portions of a subdivider's agreement as it applies to lighting.

Following Councillor Todd's draw-the-line statement, municipal department heads were instructed to arrange all pertinent information and it is expected certain guidelines and minimum standards of lighting will be discussed and possibly amended at the coming committee-of-the-whole session next Monday.

Research Acupuncture

TORONTO (CP) — Acupuncture, the Chinese medical treatment involving the use of needles inserted into a patient's body, rids patients of acute pain but does not seem to work well against chronic pain, says a Toronto doctor.

Dr. Charles Godfrey, head of rehabilitation medicine at Wellesley Hospital, said Monday in a lecture that for the "kind of pain that goes on and on acupuncture loses its effect."

Research is under way at three Toronto hospitals to learn more about the possible use of the technique, he said.

Wants Safeguards

Ellis Changes Vote On Death Penalty

OTTAWA — Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, says he will change his vote and support capital punishment when the issue comes before the Commons later this month.

Mr. Ellis says he remains "unalterably opposed" to the death penalty.

But his decision to vote against any move to continue suspension or abolition of capital punishment at this time is prompted by concern for public safety, he says.

Rezoning Requested, Referred

TRENTON — A rezoning application which could drastically alter the face of Trenton's downtown was referred to council to the Trenton Planning Board last night.

On behalf of Weld Realty, local builder Gerald Weaver requested council approve the rezoning of a large parcel of land fronting on Dundas Street, bounded by Queen and Division Streets.

Mr. Weaver recommended residential to commercial, pointing out there was a great shortage of commercial land in the downtown section.

Mr. Weaver also said he planned to construct an apartment building on the corner of Queen and Dundas Street.

After receiving the request, council moved the application be forwarded to the planning body. It would then be passed to the Quinte Planning Board.

Driver Taken To Hospital

BEDNERSVILLE — A Trenton man was taken to hospital Sunday with injuries received when the jeep he was driving collided with a car on Bednersville Road.

Injured was Inge Borge Asi, 22, RR 5 Trenton. He was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital with head cuts.

Driver of the second vehicle, Allen Lusk, 25, of Downsview escaped injury. Damage to each vehicle was estimated at $1,000.

He charges the government has failed to keep a promise of "providing safeguards for all citizens".

"There are not guarantees that murderers will not be granted early paroles and passes . . ." writes Mr. Ellis.

"I am still unalterably opposed to capital punishment," insists the MP. "I can see no justification in hanging. But, until all of us are content that millions persons are completely removed from the possibility of harming others, I have no choice."

Mr. Ellis says there are "many others" who are making the same difficult decision".

The capital punishment issue was scheduled to come before the Commons Oct. 25.

In his newsletter the MP also deflates an earlier Ottawa report that he was being considered as Conservative transport critic in the house.

"Flattering as this is, I personally know nothing of it yet," says Mr. Ellis.

Earlier in the year, Mr. Ellis repeatedly raised questions in the House on railroad safety.

Teachers' Withdrawal Will Spread

TORONTO (CP) — Withdrawal of extra-curricular services by high school teachers will spread across Metropolitan Toronto by the end of the month from the three boroughs where it now is in effect, president of the Official of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF).

The official said the provincial executive of the organization will announce the extension at a meeting today.

High school teachers in North York, Etobicoke and Scarborough have decided to supervise extra-curricular activities of students to protest spending restrictions imposed by the provincial government.

Other areas which could become involved are the City of Toronto and the boroughs of East York and York. If the extension takes effect, more than 136,000 students would be without teacher assistance for such after-school activities as sports and clubs.

REAL ESTATE:

What Goes With A House?

Ed. McCluney & T. McCluney Realty Ltd.

Real Estate is usually defined as the land and everything attached to it, such as buildings, trees, shrubs, etc. The buyer normally gets all of the real estate, but none of the owner's personal property. The problem arises when personal property has become a part of the real estate. This is called a fixture and does pass with the real estate.

There are three usual tests which must be satisfied. Has the personal property been permanently annexed to the real estate? It is intended to become a part of the real estate? And finally, what is the local custom? Usual fixtures might include: Drapery tracks, water heater, stove, cable, screens, storm windows, lighting fixtures, etc.

It is important that the matter spell out specifically in his sales arrangement exactly what he intends to give to the buyer as part of real estate. This will save misunderstanding at the closing, and sometimes save a sale.

How to save energy and cut your fuel costs.

Regardless of the heating system or type of fuel involved, good insulation is the key to improved home comfort with lower fuel consumption. In any building, heat escapes through ceilings and walls. Insulation reduces that loss considerably.

If you're planning to build a new home—or modernize an existing one—make proper insulation a must. The Ontario Electrical League requirements provide your best guide, and your Hydro will be pleased to give you any information you need on the subject.

3½ inches of insulation on an average frame wall can cut heat loss by up to two-thirds.

Storm windows and doors and insulation on basement walls will reduce heat loss still further.

An uninsulated ceiling loses over 8 times as much heat as one topped with 6 inches of mineral wool.

New Canadians

The Finnish population of Ontario, or should we say Canadians of Finnish stock, are to be found mainly in centres like Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury and Thunder Bay. And there is the Myrra family who live near Tweed and whose several talents combine in the immigrant tradition of hard work and creativity: August the Pentecostal minister, craftsman and professional cook (the Myrras formerly operated two hotels in Toronto), Kerrta his wife the musician — now developing a latent talent for painting, and son George, who lives with his parents and operates a burgeoning catering business.

Staff writer Isabel Huggan told their story recently, the family's many activities including gardening, raising stock, handicrafts and rug-making.

Kerrta Myrra's paintings include scenes of her own immediate environment as well as her native land, done from memory or from photographs in books. And there are, after all, so many similarities in the topography of Northwest Ontario in particular and Finland and which account in part for so many Finns settling in this country.

Seven of Mrs. Myrra's paintings were exhibited in the Scandinavian art display at the CNE in Toronto this year, although let us remember that Finland is not one of the ancient Norse lands of Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Iceland that make up Scandinavia.

The Finnish language, curiously, bears some resemblance to Hungarian. The original Finns lived thousands of years ago, probably in the Ural area, and were part of a larger Finno-Ugrian (including Hungarian) group of peoples. The Finns migrated in a northerly direction, first to the Baltic and then, at about the beginning of the Christian era, to what is today Finland.

We don't know how many other Finnish families, if any, live in our midst, but we have had the pleasure to make the acquaintance of a few. They are an integral part of the Canadian scene and, as we have discovered, our own region is the richer for a family such as the Myrras of Tweed.

Tradesmen Shortage

Now that increased interest rates are putting a damper on people seeking a home of their own, will it mean a speed-up on completion of existing homes under construction?

Belleville builder Maurice Rollins is quoted as saying an extreme shortage of tradesmen last year resulted in the company's inability to complete homes quickly.

Certainly the current cost of mortgages will result in a sharp contraction in the year or two ago when Mr. Rollins said "tremendous demand for new houses, together with the decreasing number of skilled tradesmen, had made it difficult for his firm to complete work homeowners requested.

Presumably nation-wide demand was at the back of the shortage of skilled men. Yet this is puzzling in the light of continued immigrant flow which would be expected to provide more people in this category. It is a situation the Manpower and Immigration department should be looking into.

New Ownership

The community and downtown area in particular are fortunate in that Loblaws Front Street operation will continue, the only difference being it will be under new management.

Loblaws will be concentrating its operations at the company's main store on Pinnacle Street, recently refurbished, while ownership of the Front Street store has passed to Mike Amodeo who also operates a store on North Front Street.

The Front Street location has many advantages and loss of the grocery outlet here could have had repercussions for downtown business generally.

Now things will continue as they were and this is cause for satisfaction.

Kissinger on the Move Again

U.S. Deal with Europe May Leave Canada Out in the Cold

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomas News Service

A collective shiver should go down our national spine now that we know something about the Shery-Kissinger talks recently at the United Nations and the news that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is to negotiate a United States-Europe agreement without reference to Canada.

The thought we will end up, by about the year 2,000, as either a North American Sweden or Mexico with a classical economy largely divorced from international trends, keeps coming up from time to time. We should worry a little more about such a prospect after the recent Kissinger revelations.

There is of course, no reason why Secretary of State Kissinger should automatically include Canada in such talks. And such gratuitous remarks accredited to him of the kind we have heard from his predecessors, that since Canada is a member of NATO we would be involved in talks about NATO's future, must also be truly concerned.

Dr. Kissinger is a big league operator. His involvements include the continuing U.S. rapprochement with Peking, bringing an end to fighting in Vietnam (where he ended the war), opening a new dialogue with Japan still smarting from her absence in Washington's 1973 negotiations with China and now on the brink of demolishing large portions of the international economy.

So all this makes us very small potatoes if we look at what the new secretary of state has in his office in-basket these days.

There is nothing new in all this. Add in many ways we deserve being passed over. For two long altogether too preferred bland and co-operative diplomacy with Washington to such an extent our current hard line on energy, pollution and sovereignty problems may be coming too late for Washington to really care.

At least Sweden and Mexico, with very different kinds of national societies, are identifiable as such. Sweden has her innovative industries, cars, telecommunications, medical equipment and glassware. Mexico has her well-defined juridical basis for a tough economic nationalism. We have neither and largely reject both.

We are too deeply saturated with an internationalism once hailed as our greatest contribution to world diplomacy, an internationalism clearly present in those who own our industry as well as who make our foreign policy.

That internationalism which inhibits our diplomats and gives otherwise articulate Canadian businessmen feet of clay is the massive control of Canadian attractive and manufacturing industries by someone else's small-national companies. In some instances like oil or auto plants, foreign ownership reaches 70 per cent and total control respectively.

Many influential spokesman on the future direction of the Canadian economy are employed at senior executive levels by international corporations. Their growing number of left and right wing critics in universities and foreign Canadian-owned industries are now calling them the Uncle Toms of the anti-nationals.

In Ottawa the negative influences of the old-boy network which was such a powerful working part of our trade relations with the U.S. under King, St. Laurent and Pearson, have done their worst.

In neither influential place the nation's capitals nor the nation's boardrooms—have truly innovative and workable long-range policies emerged since 1945 to give Canada national priorities, any one of which would have hurt some powerful but condescending governments or big foreign controlling so many Canadian industries.

Walter Gordon was virtually drummed out of the Liberal Party hierarchy because he tried to place some of these utopian concepts into legislation.

We still run the risk of being an Uncle Tom nation.

Fat Cats of the Government Bureaucracy

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There is now a triumvirate of Conservatarians assaulting what MP Bill Knight, the New Democrat Parliamentarian who started it all, calls "the golden kingdom of the public service empire-builders."

What sent Mr. Knight to the journals was his discovery, some time ago, through a series of questions on the Commons Order Paper, that every third employee in Industry Trade and Commerce makes more than an annual $18,000.

To be specific, and Mr. Knight termed it an "outrageous ripoff of the taxpayers," 606 of 2,272 on the departmental payroll top that figure.

Then he took off after other federal departments with questions on the House Order Paper, drafted to disclose the ever-higher percentage of high priced help in the payroll.

Joining him in the chase was Conservative MP Mac Harquail, Edmonton, and between them they extracted the figures from a score of departments.

"What inspired them had been an earlier question put by New Democrat David Orlikow of Winnipeg North which revealed that in three years up to 1971 while the total establishment at National Defence shrank 5.4 per cent, the number of senior, high - bracket people, military and civilian, swelled 200 per cent.

"Never," cracked David Orlikow at the time, "have so few been commanded by so many."

Now, John Reynolds, Conservative MP from the Yukon-Mackenzie area, citing the figures for each department, has asked why the sudden multiplication in the executive suites.

He took $20,000 as the take-off figure — the take-off, that is, from the more ordinary levels of public service pay into the higher altitudes.

Like the increase in three years at Information Canada of six $20,000-a-year-and-higher-men to 26.

A jump between 1970 and early '73, of the plus-$20,000 types in National Health and Welfare from 282 to 508.

And other escalations in the $20,000-and-over execs in only three years such as:

Consumer and Corporate Affairs from 38 to 82.

In dredging up comparisons in other departments, Mr. Reynolds uses a 10-year span from 1963 to '73.

Those increases in the $20,000-a-year and higher ranks include:

Labor Department from zero to 40.

Solicitor General's Department from zero to 187.

Veterans Affairs from two to 263.

National Revenue from zero to 313.

Finance from one to 80.

External Affairs from 13 to 204.

Then there are two departments where comparisons in the $20,000 and higher period are lacking.

But they do come through with the number of their plus-$30,000 executives:

The Tory MP, Reynolds and Knight are going to keep digging to unearth the $30,000-a-up totals, and if possible comparisons for every one of the 10 departments — 90 federal departments, boards, bureaux, commissions and assorted agencies.

In explanation of the "why" demanded by John Reynolds of this "outrageous," as Bill Knight termed it, escalation in the top brackets of the public service payroll, Privy Council President Allan MacEachen's reason is "the vastly increased complexity of the responsibilities of government ... federal spending growing in 10 years from $7.3 billion to $18.4 billion."

The Privy Council Office contends that the "rate of pay increase in the public service generally is comparable to the national average."

To which Mr. Reynolds snorts, unbelievingly: "Crap."

He adds the claim of the MacEachen office is "so much bull — he knows it — you know it — I know it — and it's really getting to the average guy out there hustling to pay his taxes."

Now back to Bill Knight and his initial discovery that every third member of the Industry Trade and Commerce staff is an executive.

The chain of departmental command, as he rold-called it: Deputy at $40,000 ... five assistants at $34,000 ... 29 directors general from $25,000 to $34,000 ... 61 directors from $23,000 to $31,000 ... and 450 others from $18,000 to $28,000.

And to think that Trade Minister C.D. Howe used to run the department — and some say, nearly everything else in government — out of his hat with the help of only one secretary.

That was only 36 years ago, four years before those computers which show 220,000 plus public service executives earning from zero to 1,650 in just five departments alone.

Heath Withdraws His Threat of Integration

By KEVIN DOYLE

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath has withdrawn all of an obscure threat to take over absolute control over turbulent Northern Ireland probably indicates the extent of political dangers that might be involved in any attempt at integration of Ulster with Britain.

Most opinion polls show this kind of arrangement would be highly distasteful to Britons, many of whom would like to see the government eventually wash its hands of the Ulster troubles. It would also be unlikely to win the support of more than a handful of people in Northern Ireland.

Integration, which reliable government sources say is a most unlikely development in any case, is an immensely complicated constitutional question. It would differ markedly from the current rule of Ulster from Westminster which has been in effect since early 1971.

It would mean that the British parliament would be directly responsible for the administration of Ulster with no Stormont. Parliament to act as a go-between. Ulster would elect members to Westminster but would lack its own legislature to deal with local affairs.

What, then, was Heath's motives in mentioning integration in the first place—then, at a time he did an about-turn and completely withdrew the idea.

British sources say that basically it was one of the few measures left to the prime minister in his desire to speed progress in Ulster and by raising the issue before a general election is held within the next couple of years.

The government has established a new Ulster assembly with limited powers and has asked this body to choose a functioning executive committee. Heath has pinned his hopes for eventual peace on the effective working of this arrangement.

But such are the divisions—religious and otherwise—in the region that little or no progress has been made towards choosing an executive despite several assembly meetings.

The majority Roman Catholics are holding out for the formation of a powerful All-Ireland Council as under the two halves of the divided island before they consent to take part.

The Protestants are divided. A faction wants a far stronger assembly in the north, a small group actually favors integration, and moderates probably the majority—are willing to form an executive if Catholic representation is severely limited.

Faced with this, sources say, Heath might have threatened to withdraw British troops from Ulster entirely and turn the whole matter over to, say, a United Nations peacekeeping force. But this would probably be seen by most British voters as an unnecessarily dramatic adulation of defeat.

Instead, they explain, the prime minister chose to threaten all factions in Ulster—except the few who favor integration—with a solution which would deprive virtually everyone of any real voice or influence.

Integration would deprive the Catholics of all hope of eventual reunion with the Irish Republic and would leave the majority Protestants of their traditional British parliament.

Just to show his determination to resolve the Northern Ireland issue, Heath's sources say, Heath is prepared to withdraw William Whitelaw from his important role as minister for Ulster if an executive is not formed within a couple of months.

Bourassa Raps Opponents And Three Labor Chieftains

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier Robert Bourassa kicked off his Quebec election campaign Monday night with swipes at his opponents both in and out of the legislature.

Shut Your Eyes

YORK, England (CP) — Teachers taking school parties to a ballet version of Prokofiev's Peter and the Wolf were angry to find they first had to see two erotic ballets in which couples simulated the sex act. Ballet administrator Freda Saeul said: "We have performed this piece in front of children before and never had any complaints."

In addition to attacking opposition parties, the premier aimed an attack at Quebec's three top labor leaders, Marcel Pepin, Louis Laberge and Yvon Charbonneau.

Mr. Bourassa was speaking in his home riding of Montreal-Mercier, where he officially opened his campaign for the Oct. 29 election.

Among the accomplishments of his government he listed was its handling of the province-wide public service strike in which the labor leaders advised none of their union members to defy back-to-work injunctions.

He said it was intolerable that thousands of old and infirm persons were the victims of the strike which affected hospitals, and said the labor leaders will find Quebecers do not support their defiance of the law.

Rene Levesque, Parti Quebecois leader, told a student audience in Jonquiere, 118 miles north of Quebec City, that Quebec independence would enable young Quebecers to enter fields such as aviation and foreign trade that he said are currently closed to them "unless they disguise themselves or go begging."

In Montreal, however, Premier Bourassa said independence would be costly and the small wage earner would be hardest hit.

He repeated his insistence that the Parti Quebecois reveal a budget for an independent Quebec.

Mr. Dupuis, he said, "tells the chamber of commerce that I'm a socialist and tells workers groups that I'm an agent of high finance."

Mr. Bourassa said Creditiste solutions to Quebec problems are simplistic.

Stepping in the 108-seat Quebec national assembly at dissolution was Liberal 68, Union Nationale 15, Creditiste 11, Parti Quebecois 7, independent 2 and vacant 4.

Redistribution will increase the assembly by two to 110 seats.

First Regional Government Elections Are Held Monday

By ROBERT BENTLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

More than a million Ontarians across today with a new style of politics on their hands: regional government.

Voters helped to set the seal on the system Monday when they went to the polls in the four provincial government-appointed regions of Hamilton-Wentworth, Halton, Peel and Durham, extending in an arc east and west of Toronto along Lake Ontario.

Twenty-one mayors and local councils were elected together with representatives to the second-tier regional councils which will oversee each of the regions. All mayors will serve on regional councils.

In addition, a mayor and council were also elected in the new town of Wasaga Beach, formerly a village, at the eastern end of Georgian Bay.

The elections took the place of those which would have been held with the rest of the province in December. The regional councils come into force Jan. 1.

Over-all there were few upsets, voters seeming to prefer familiar figures amid the chopping and changing as long-time communities were carved up or bundled in with neighboring populations.

In Hamilton, Mayor Vic Copps, 54, walloped his opponents. He ran up 40,000 votes more than his nearest rival, Robert Bradshaw, a striking city building inspector who was followed in the polls by vital estate broker John C. Easton.

Mayor Copps described the vote as an endorsement of his summer-long stand against striking outside civic workers, who recently settled their differences with the city after nine weeks off the job, and against 600 inside workers still on strike.

Mr. Copps, mayor since 1962, also saw the vote as approval of his opposition to the two-tier system in Hamilton-Wentworth, in which Hamilton is one of six municipalities. He wanted a one-tier system for Hamilton, and during the last session of the legislature was ejected from the public gallery for standing up and shouting his opinions.

In with Hamilton in the regional setup are the towns of Ancaster, Dundas and Stoney Creek and the townships of Glanbrook and Flamborough. The latter voted in a referendum for the name Flamborough over another suggested title, Wentworth.

The Hamilton-Wentworth region encompasses 498,000 people and the regional council will meet under the chairmanship of Anne Jones, former Hamilton controller and deputy mayor.

Like the other regional chairman, Mrs. Jones has been appointed for a three-year term by the provincial government. After that period, the regional councils will elect their chairmen for two-year terms, and all councillors also will be elected every two years.

Next door to Hamilton-Wentworth, in the 180,000-population region of Halton, Mayor George Harrington was returned to office in Burlington after successfully battling to keep the city from inclusion with Hamilton in any regional government reorganization.

East from Halton in Peel region, abutting on Metropolitan Toronto, one of the few major upsets occurred when Mississauga incumbent mayor Charles (Chic) Murray was ousted by familiy doctor Martin Dobkin. Peel County coroner, Mr. Murray was a 15-year veteran of municipal politics.

Also running for the top office were a retired motor designer and author, and a taxi driver.

All nine Mississauga councillors will serve at the regional level, together with five of 14 aldermen elected in the city of Brampton and their incumbent Mayor, James Archdekin, and four councillors from Caledon where Ivor McMullin was elected mayor.

Caledon was chosen as the name for the new town in the north of the 265,000-population region in a referendum that listed also Albion and Cardwell.

East of Toronto, voters selected Durham as the name of their new region, instead of Oshawa, Pickering or McLaughlin.

James Potticary was re-elected mayor of an enlarged city of Oshawa and will be joined by 10 city councilors on the regional council.

A snag in calculating ballots was experienced in Oshawa when a name was left off a list of candidates fed into a computer, which had to be reprogramed, resulting in a two-hour delay.

Other Durham mayors, together with the names of representatives from each of the municipalities in brackets, were:

Ontario's Urban Transportation Program:

Something very frightening can happen to cities when they grow up.

They can get out of hand and almost overpower the very people that give them life.

The worst offenders are often transportation systems.

Cars and trucks can become menaces, highways and roads—fuming bottlenecks. Subways can jam and buses simply refuse to handle an ever-increasing load.

Local communities have been doing their best to keep ahead of the problems. But new help is available, for now and for the future.

That's why the Government of Ontario is encouraging an urban transportation system that will serve Ontario people the way they should be served—efficiently, comfortably, inexpensively, and with the least possible disruption of natural surroundings.

The Ministry of Transportation and Communications has instituted GO A NEW WAY, an urban transportation program to develop modern transit systems in our towns and cities and to support them financially.

Comfortable vehicles and convenient facilities make public transit attractive. So the government is paying 75% of the cost of municipal buses, streetcars, trolley buses and related facilities.

Go Urban.

A new, exciting intermediate-capacity transit system is being developed for large urban municipalities. The system will be fully automated, quiet and emission-free. It is much less costly than subways or expressways, may use existing rights-of-way, and its elevated guideways cause little interference with regular pedestrian or vehicle traffic.

Cities will be subsidized to the extent of 75% in applying the GO URBAN system to their needs.

Staggered hours.

Another way to reduce peak-load congestion is to stagger working hours and alter daily and weekly traffic patterns. If passenger demands can be spread over longer periods, people can be moved more quickly. Feasibility studies will be subsidized up to 75%.

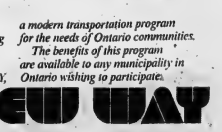
The government is implementing a staggered working hour program for its own employees and hopes others will benefit from its findings.



Computer controlled traffic.

In Metro Toronto, a computer controlled traffic system has proved that a substantial increase in road capacity can be achieved with computers. The saving in road construction costs is many times the cost of the necessary computer equipment.

So 50% of the equipment necessary for implementing or expanding computer systems in urban areas and for installing traffic control devices is being underwritten by the government.

Communities can increase road capacity with greater use of one-way streets, restricted delivery hours and modern parking policies. Municipal studies on these subjects are supported financially.

Co-ordination is vital.

Normal transit routes often carry our people across municipal boundaries. Co-operation and co-ordination in inter-community transit planning, therefore, are becoming more and more essential.

Your government has intensified the efforts and resources devoted to the co-ordination of transportation planning.

GO Dial a Bus.

Dial A Bus is a form of public transportation that has been pioneered in Ontario. It does not operate on fixed routes with predetermined stops. Instead, it operates from a fixed point, such as a mainline transit station, into a limited area, usually residential. Passengers are not required to board and leave the Dial A Bus at bus stops; the bus comes right to their homes when requested to do so.

Traffic and road policies must allow efficient use of available facilities.

Dial A Bus is now operating in Pickering, Stratford, Kingston, Ottawa and Bramalea and will be operating soon in north Metro Toronto.

GO A NEW WAY puts people first, all the way. And people have to be involved to make it work.

Resources, research and finances are available to help urban municipalities in Ontario build transportation systems that will surpass anything else in existence today. And prove that cities really are for people.

Urban transportation will be one of the most significant challenges facing us all for years to come.
That's why the Government of Ontario developed GO A NEW WAY, a modern transportation program for the needs of Ontario communities. The benefits of this program are available to any municipality in Ontario wishing to participate.

Elizabeth Rolston, occupational therapist at Belleville General Hospital, is now being assisted by Women's Hospital Auxiliary volunteers in a new inhospital service designed to help physically and emotionally disabled persons get well.

Filling the Gap: Therapy Volunteers At the Hospital

Last year Belleville General Hospital occupational therapist Liz Rolston felt guilty whenever she spent time tending Mrs. Y., an extended care patient, to knit while she could have been spending time teaching Mrs. Y. a stroke victim how to dress herself.

"Then I thought of the Women's Auxiliary — just like everybody else does around here when we need something."

The end result of Mrs. Rolston's idea to use volunteers to close the gap between a large work load and two occupational therapists who work with the help of an aide is the auxiliary's new in-hospital service under the direction of Mrs. George Wilson.

The service has been in limited operation since May.

"At the moment we're making the job fit the woman," Mrs. Rolston says.

One woman, for example, a home economist, conducts lunch clinics where patients learn nutrition and housekeeping skills. Other volunteers, some skillful handicrafters, teach sewing or knitting.

Occupational therapy itself is best described as rehabilitation by doing, Mrs. Rolston explains.

The physical and mental recovery of the patient is the occupational therapist's goal along with teaching the permanently handicapped to manage daily activities as independently as possible.

As the Canadian Association of Occupational Therapists explains it, the therapist may work with a woman confined to a wheel chair who must learn to cope with homemaking. Or the therapist might assist a child with a congenital disability to develop co-ordination. Or she might help a man or woman who has become disabled in an industrial accident learn a new job skill.

Mrs. Rolston explains that besides working with persons who have physical disabilities, the occupational therapy department plays a role in assisting persons with emotional disabilities.

The therapist may relieve emotional stress with her program, stimulate new interests and develop a sense of well - being and confidence through activities.

The therapist uses manual and creative skills, social and recreational activities and remedial games to treat patients.

The goal, Mrs. Rolston says, is resocialising patients, not to teach them to make ashtrays or paper flowers.

"I'd love to find a man who likes people and wood to come to help me with shop therapy," Mrs. Rolston says.

And, she says, she's interested in getting a beauty group started and is looking for a volunteer familiar with skin care, make-up and hair care.

All kinds of skills are valuable in occupation therapy, Mrs. Rolston says. There's even a volunteer teaching yoga!

The volunteer can also alleviate "cabin fever" in a long-term bedridden patients like those with broken legs.

So far, there's been "tremendous" feedback from both volunteers and patients.

"They've come in wanting to work and they have and I'm delighted, I think they are, too," Mrs. Rolston says.

As for the patients, "they're glad somebody is coming in to see them — someone is showing an interest on a person to person level."

Then, through consultation with Mrs. Wilson, who screens the volunteers at the outset, and Mrs. Rolston, they're put to a job that suits them.

The volunteers must be, above all, "warmly interested in other people". This counts more than being skilled in handcrafts, Mrs. Rolston points out.

"A personality that reaches out to other people is needed."

The volunteers can spend as little or as much time working as they like, though the usual time spent is a full day per week.

Currently Mrs. Rolston is looking for enough volunteers to bring her helpers to an even dozen.

Mrs. Wilson — who asks interested persons to contact her at 962-0782 — thinks that the rehabilitive activity volunteer can help in other departments of the hospital.

As Liz Rolston says, "I can see all sorts of ways volunteers can help us here."

MR. AND MRS. CHRISTOPHER HUFF

Huff — Hamilton

Canon de Bois Wright officiated at the September wedding of Toni Marie Hamilton and Christopher Mark Huff at Christ Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hamilton of RR 2, Belleville, and the groom is the son of Phyllis Huff and the late Rexford Huff.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white swiss dot with a square neck, long fitted sleeves and a ruffle over the shoulders. Her shoulder-length veil was attached to a headpiece of white fabric daisies and roses. She carried a spray bouquet of coral roses, daisies and baby's breath.

The maid of honor, Lisa Bailey, wore a gown of multi-colored floral sheer over coral taffeta, in a style similar to the bride's but with short puff sleeves and no ruffle. She carried a blue mum.

Sandra Hamilton, the bride's sister, and Donna Webber served as bridesmaid in gowns of light blue similar in style to the maid of honor's. They carried coral mums.

After a reception at the Gilead Community Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Huff left on a wedding trip to Niagara Fall. They will reside in Kitchener.

Wadstein — Carson

St. Bede's Anglican Church in Scarborough was the setting recently for the wedding of Connie Lou Carson and Constable Douglas Wadstein, at which Rev. Robert Grisdale officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M.K. Carson, formerly of Belleville, now of Toronto, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A.L. Wadstein of Lethbridge, Alberta.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Bruce Freeborn of Ottawa, the bride's sister, and Mrs. Linda Tarontow of Sault Ste. Marie, bridesmaid, were dressed identically in gowns of crepe with blue bodices and multi-colored skirts and sleeves. They wore yellow picture hats and carried bouquets of blue bachelor's buttons and yellow daisies and baby's breath.

The groom was dressed in his RCMP uniform, as were his best man, Corporal Ted Young and the ushers, Constable Garry Baker and Bruce Freeborn of Ottawa.

After a reception held in the church hall, the couple left on a wedding trip to Nassau.

Court Reporter Retires

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — A Simcoe woman who has spent 'no time in a courtroom than many lawyers has mixed emotions about retiring from her job.

As court reporter and secretary to Norfolk County court judges for 21 years, Thelma Randall witnessed more than 10,000 court cases. She retired Aug. 31 and was replaced by Leonard Easdown, former reporter for the provincial court criminal division.

"I have enjoyed my work and have made a number of friends," said Mrs. Randall. "I am sorry, though, that I won't have the privilege of working with the new judge."

She was referring to Judge John Pringle, former Crown attorney for Hastings County, who was sworn in as Norfolk County Judge a short time before she retired.

Among the cases handled by Mrs. Randall were county court trials, small claims and landlord-tenant actions, partition actions, contested estates, mechanic's liens and child custody disputes. She was also the chief librarian, looking after 4,500 law books.

At a highways department employee in Toronto, she played defence for a women's hockey team in the 1930s and pitched and caught for a softball nine, continuing to play softball when she came to Simcoe in the 1940s.

At Simcoe, she taught secretarial courses at a business college for eight years before becoming secretary to Judge G. A. P. Brickenden of the county court in 1952. Court reporting was added to her duties two years later.

She recalled one incident involving gross contempt of court.

"Back in 1961 or 1962 we were getting ready for court when we had to call in the Simcoe police. The courtroom was being invaded by pigeons. They came in and cleared them out and court got started on time."

Although murder cases are tried in Supreme Court and had nothing to do with Mrs. Randall's division, she said it was depressing when a hanging took place inside the walls of justice.

"It was in 1958, I think, when a man was hanged for killing two people."

Mrs. Randall plans an active retirement.

"I'm going to travel during the first year and spend the winter in California where I can play a little golf."

Gun Laws Need Tightening Ann Says

Dear Ann Landers: I want to commend you for your recent column stressing the need for federal gun control legislation. A new handgun is being sold every 13 seconds in the United States. Americans are being murdered by handguns at the rate of one an hour. Police killings by handguns are nearly doubling every five years.

Since I began public life as a member of Congress in 1961, I have advocated strong federal gun controls requiring that all firearms be registered and all firearms owners licensed, with only those who can demonstrate a specific, legitimate need receiving a license to own a handgun. Surely, if we can impose such controls on motor vehicles and drivers we can do the same with firearms.

New York City already has one nation's most stringent local gun laws. These local regulations work to some degree. New York's murder rate is ninth among the country's largest cities, 36 per cent lower, for example, than Dallas, which has minimal firearms control.

However, the positive effect of these local statutes is severely limited by the absence of uniform federal controls. Nearly all the guns used to commit crimes in New York in recent history were guns illegally brought in from other jurisdictions which have little or no firearms controls.

You can be sure that mayors, police officers and citizens across the country deeply appreciate the prestigious voice you have added to the fight for stringent federal gun control.—Sincerely, John V. Lindsay Mayor of New York

Dear Mayor Lindsay: As a citizen of The Second City, I thank the Mayor of the First City for his good letter. The facts and figures cited by you underscore dramatically the need for Americans to wake up and smell the coffee.

Dear Ann Landers: I feel as if I have been slapped in the face. Will you please tell me if I have a right to feel insulted, or am I a side to this story that I am not seeing clearly.

A very close friend of mine who has been married about as long as I have (20 years) is being cheated on left and right. Her husband, a handsome swinger-type, is making a fool of her. I thought she deserved better treatment so I told her, giving full details of the young woman he was sneaking around with—places they had been seen, specific dates and so on.

Her response was a very chilly, "Thank you for your good intentions, but I wish you would mind your own business."

If that were my husband I would have been grateful that someone had taken the trouble to tell me. Am I crazy, or is she—Seeing Red

Dear Red: Some wives would like to be told, others already know and appreciate the silence of their friends. Figuring out of which category a cheated-on wife belongs is pretty sticky stuff. She gave you good advice. I hope you take it.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother believes that what people are shows on their faces. She says a sneaky person usually has small eyes, a stingy person has thin lips, a pointed nose, etc. She could talk for hours on the subject—and has. Do you believe in this theory.—Miss Child

Dear Child: No. But I'm firmly convinced that the type of life people lead shows on their faces—especially women. Boozing and carousing takes its toll. By the time a woman is 40 she has the kind of face he deserves.

Accessories in the Limelight

TORONTO (CP) — Accessories take the limelight this fall and not just as unnoticed additions. Several are actually fashion returns.

The clutch handbag for example, hasn't been around for several years, came in tentatively last season and promises to be popular this fall. It can be quite elongated, large and roomy.

The turban is another favorite that has returned to popularity. It's especially smart and perfect for travel in angora, blending with fall's sweater concept. The scarf, particularly the long bulky knit one, is also part of the sweater look.

Higher heels are back again, even in walking oxfords. The platform is still here but the clogs seem to have been a passing fad.

Hair is shorter again and sleekly brushed up, reminiscent of the 1920s. Shape in the cut is all important. The short styles are ideal for hats, especially the close-fitting, self-banded knit caps that seem to be almost a fall trademark.

Jewelry is mostly bold, the contrast need for the classic simplicity in clothes. And there's a return of necklaces, almost for several seasons. Beads and bracelets will be popular.

With skirts settling around or just above the knees, hosiery comes back into its own. And the colors will complement the earthy tones of fall clothes.

The matte look in jewelry by Michael Meraux complements sweater look for fall. Necklaces are flat ropes in cabuchon twist, cubes and knots. The bracelet is a pirated paisley and the bangles are in pigskin and snake leather. Gilt pin tops off hat. New sweater look is by Victor Costa for Suzy Petette.

Variety — the Spice of Life

By DORIS CLARK

Why do so many top schooled people appear dimwitted when they are faced with questions outside their tracking?

A common illusion is that a degree holder will be proficient in nearly everything. He should fix a light switch or a leaky tap, arrange duties tastefully, and fill in tax forms correctly.

What you really get is a bevelered saphead who gets confused when you ask the time, and who is unable to analyse a political speech, let alone a profit and loss statement. But his programming makes him articulate about across cloud structures, or sonic pulverisation of granite, or the half-life of cartoons. When he keeps to histapes he's good. Catch him with his tapes snarled and he's a moron.

You are programmed with a bundle of genes as part of your inherited quotient. You were further conditioned by immediate surroundings, wider environs, and of course a big dollop of chance.

Your genes you have no control over. But your programming can be improved if you are aware. If he keeps to his tapes he's a person fixed with assorted behavior tapes, that's part of your self-awareness.

Hundred Bills Await House

TORONTO (CP) — The 117 members of the Ontario legislature face a heavy workload when the session resumes today after a three-month layoff.

House leader Eric Winkler says the Progressive Conservative government of Premier William Davis has 100 bills ready to introduce during this portion of the session, which is expected to last until Christmas.

Many of them will be of the housekeeping variety. But some important legislation is promised, including a new law to stop deceptive merchandising and a bill requiring that large campaign donations be made public.

A new housing ministry will be created and Darcy McKeough, the new energy minister who is back in the cabinet after quitting last year over a conflict of interest, can be expected to submit new energy policies.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon and the 21 other Liberal MPPs can be excused if they're a bit preoccupied Oct. 28.

That's the date when Liberals from across the provinces gather to accept or reject Mr. Nixon's leadership. Two members of his caucus, Eddie Sargent (Grey-Bruce) and Donald Deacon (Toronto York Centre), are among his challengers.

The legislature can expect a report shortly from the committee investigating developer Gerhard Moog's $44.4-million deal to build a new head office building for Ontario Hydro. There have been charges that Mr. Moog, a friend of the premier, was favored over other developers.

Speaker Alan Reuter and the other MPPs will have to deal with Mr. Moog and his lawyer, George Finlayson, who were cited for contempt of the committee when Mr. Moog refused to testify before the committee at one point.

Also Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis is expected to continue his emphasis on the housing crisis and the cost of living—topics that came up almost daily during the earlier part of the session.

Job Insurance Premiums May Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — An increase in employee-employer contributions to the unemployment insurance account is likely in 1973 because of rising living costs and deficits incurred by the government program.

But a government spokesman said Monday there is no definite indication yet whether the amounts will be raised or how much any increase will be.

Higher costs of living and the desire by government to meet unemployment insurance deficits will likely lead to increased levies on workers and their employers, he said.

This year, employees under the plan pay $1 per $100 weekly insurable earnings up to a maximum of $1.80 a week, while employers contribute another $1.40 weekly per $100 insurable earnings up to a maximum of $2.24.

This was an increase from 1972, when employers fully under the plan paid 90 cents per $100 and employers added another $1.26.

Lewis Says Tories Capable With Infinite Adaptability

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, isn't about to bolt to the Progressive Conservatives, although his awe of Premier William Davis's government may make it seem that way.

Mr. Lewis, in an interview Monday on the eve of the opening of the legislature, was unrelenting in his praise of the Davis regime.

He said the Tories, despite a recently tarnished public image, are not scoundrels, or corrupt, but smart and capable, with an infinite adaptability to changing political times.

Mr. Lewis, who last week launched a stepped-up personal drive to prepare his party for the next provincial election, expected in 1975, was harshly critical of the Liberals saying they are volatile, unpredictable and not fit to govern.

"It really makes you wonder about what they (Liberals) would do to Ontario, when one minute of what they're doing to each other." The reference was to Vernon Singer's defamation law suit against fellow Liberal Eddie Sargent.

Mr. Lewis, who considered resigning a year ago because of his party's crushing defeat in the 1971 election still believes the NDP will be the alternative choice for voters in the next election.

He said the odds against the NDP gaining power are enormous, "but don't forget we got almost one million votes in 1971 and this is a pretty powerful base for a party like us."

But his first concern will be the Tories because they "have the staying power."

That's the important thing about provincial politics, that the Tories are infinitely adaptable. Bill Davis has a lot of strong backbench material. They are an unusually bright cabinet in many ways.

Mr. Lewis played down the issue of political patronage and scandal that have rocked the Davis government in recent months.

"I'm not comfortable with those issues, and there's no use my kidding myself. I don't see the government as corrupt in the gross sense of the word.

"They have done a number of really nifty, unthinking things. There's been a lot of gratuitous nonsense which probably comes from being in power for too many years.

"I don't think that the public see Bill Davis and his cabinet as a bunch of Machiavellian scoundrels giving deals under the table. I think they see them as much less responsible and much less attractive, and much more given to human error than they were before."

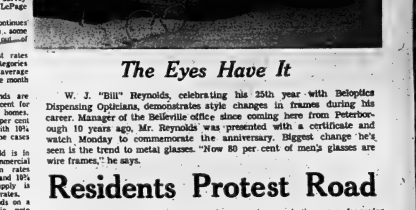
BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1973

Trees to Be Planted Downtown

The city market square and locations at the corner of Front and Bridge and on Upper Front Street will blossom out with permanent greenery under a cooperative program of the Belleville Downtown Merchants and the city parks board.



Monday sections of sidewalk were being cut out on the market square sidewalks in preparation for the planting of eight little Leaf Linden trees, planned for next week.

Two trees will be planted on West Bridge Street in front of the Bank of Montreal and another two trees in front of Hitchon Radio and Television on Front Street. The type of trees to be planted in the two latter locations has yet to be decided.

A parks board spokesman said it would be difficult to estimate the height to which the Lindens to be planted on the market might grow.

Normally these trees grow to 35 or 40 feet but under the "planter box" conditions in the sidewalk it was expected the trees would grow slower and end up at a lower height.

The lower branches will be pruned to at least six feet above the sidewalk so as to not interfere with pedestrians.

Car Gutted After Collision

Four youths on their way to Bayside Secondary School this morning escaped serious injury when their car was struck from behind, causing the gas tank to explode and erupt in flames. Charles Hart, 17, of Batawa, driver of the car, was uninjured. His three companions, Michael Hart, Wayne Speck and Martin Maroney were treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital and released. Sidney Township firefighters were called to the blaze on Highway 2 opposite Bayside School at 8:10 a.m. and spent 20 minutes battling the flames.

Mortgage Money Scarce

The September building scene in the Quinte area presents a bleak picture, says a mortgage market survey prepared by A. E. LePage Ltd. Realtors.

Supply of funds continues to be meager with some lenders completely out of money.

In addition, interest rates in all building categories have increased by an average of ¼ per cent over the month before.

Although some funds are available at 10 per cent for parcels and resale homes, rates of 10¼ to 10½ per cent are more general with 10¾ being the rate in some cases for older properties.

Most restricted field is in industrial and commercial building where loan rates range between 10¼ and 10½ per cent. Short supply is blamed for the high rates.

The report also ends on a somewhat pessimistic note with its look into the future. It remains to be seen whether the present high interest rate will dampen the demand for funds and consequently cause a leveling off in rates."

The Eyes Have It

W. J. "Bill" Reynolds, celebrating his 25th year with Beloptics Dispensing Opticians, demonstrates style changes in frames during his career. Manager of the Belleville office since coming here from Peterborough 10 years ago, Mr. Reynolds was presented with a certificate and watch Monday to commemorate the anniversary. Biggest change he's seen is the trend to metal glasses. "Now 80 per cent of men's glasses are wire frames," he says.

North Front Limit To Stay at 40

Belleville city council has concurred in a traffic and light committee recommendation that no action be taken to change the present 40 mile an hour speed limit on North Front Street.

But the decision was not made before pleas were made by at least three city alderman for a reduction in the speed limit.

Spearheading the appeal was Alderman Joe Cox, who two weeks ago introduced a notice of motion calling for reduction of the speed limit as an interim measure until traffic lights at Tracey Street and Valleyview Crescent were installed.

He maintained that contrary to earlier reports that it would take six weeks or more to obtain hydaw approval from the province, this could be accomplished in one to two weeks.

The alderman commented on a report from Police Chief Douglas Crosbie given last week to the traffic and light committee listing the number of accidents and causes of accidents on the busy North Front street artery.

In his report, the chief recommended that the present 40-mile limit not be changed until the street can be re-valuated following the installation of traffic lights.

He added, however, that if the traffic committee wished to change the speed limit, his recommendation would be 30 miles an hour.

He said that the street was constructed for a speed greater than 30 miles an hour and during certain times of the day this was a safe limit.

In answer to questions from Alderman Cox, the chief said that the high volume of traffic and the large number of turning movements were the main cause of accidents. MORE

He said he was not opposed to a reduction in the speed limit but had hoped this installation of the traffic lights.

Ald. Cox, however, noted that the street had been designed before there was any thought of the Quinte Mall. Since the street was reconstructed many new businesses and fast food services had located in the area.

Alderman Dr. John Stock noted that the report submitted by the chief of police had been based on National Traffic Council standards which suggested that a certain number of accidents and fatalities could be expected for given traffic volumes.

He wondered if the city was prepared to accept such standards.

He maintained that speed was a factor in a great many accident cases.

Alderman Stu Meeks took the same view.

Traffic committee chairman Alderman Jack Ireland noted that the survey and report has been done by competent people and urged support of the committee recommendation that there be no change in the speed limit.

Committee member Alderman Paul Russell said he also would have to support the recommendation.

He maintained that speed was the main cause of North Front Street accidents and said the accident rate on the street was actually going down despite the fact the traffic volume was increasing.

Following the vote concurring in the traffic committee recommendation, Ald. Cox withdrew his notice of motion.

Council also concurred in a traffic committee recommendation indicating it had no objection to increasing the speed limit on Canadian Pacific tracks through the city at crossings which are fully protected, and provided that railway fences in the city are maintained in good condition at all times.

Hong Kong Halves Beating Machines

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

A mysterious visitor from the east has apparently descended on Belleville.

The 50 cent pieces — worth about 10 cents Canadian — have been discovered inside a North American stronghold, the pop machine.

So far, 11 of the coins have turned up but more may be recovered before the visitor departs.

Same size as a quarter, the half-dollars are being used around the city to buy cans of cola, orange and other soft drinks dispensed by the machines.

"I got three of them out of my machines Saturday morning," he said Monday, "but I didn't think anything about it. Then I found six more this morning.

Asked who might be using his machines, which are located outside, he replied:

"I don't know. A lot of people stop after we close."

The coins are identical to quarters except for the value notation and Chinese script on the front. From the back, they are difficult to distinguish since they also bear a profile of Queen Elizabeth.

Mr. Broadbridge's loss is actually more than initially perceived. Each time one of the coins is deposited, the machine returns five cents in change.

A spokesman at Alexander Vending, which operates about 100 pop machines around Belleville, said the came across two of the lookalikes Monday while she was sorting earnings.

"I didn't find them until I started rolling the coins," said Pat Wcodtke, receptionist and money counter for Alexander, "They're probably from gas stations. I don't think they came from plants."

Collections from 50 more machines were to be delivered to her desk today, so it is possible more of the currency will turn up among the Canadian coins.

City police have begun an investigation into the puzzle but Chief Douglas Crosbie was not optimistic the visitor's identity would be revealed.

"We'll be looking to see who might have them," he said. "but you can't check every person in town."

Saturday Fire Damage Heavy

Oily rags and turpentine cans are the suspected cause of a fire that extensively damaged the 234 Dufferin St. home of Wesley Griffith. Saturday, Fire Chief Les Culhane said today.

Damage is expected to total between $8,000 and $7,000, the chief estimated.

Flames are believed to have erupted by spontaneous combustion.

The fire was brought under control in less than an hour but not before smoke and water spread to both floors of the frame dwelling.

Speakers Scheduled

The schedule of speakers for the remaining lectures in the Hastings-Prince Edward county separate school board public education has been announced.

This Thursday, Oct. 4, the speaker will be Noel Cooper, co-ordinator of religious education for the York county separate school board. His topic will be the philosophy of the church. Oct. 11 he will speak on church as a sacrament and on Oct. 18 on the pilgrim church.

Father Donald Brudgage, associate professor at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education will be the speaker Oct. 23, discussing the external factors affecting the family.

Dr. Martin Jeffrey will lecture on the economy of moral development on Nov. 1.

Don Wilson, family life consultant and lecturer at Meridian College in Toronto on Developing positive interpersonal relations on Nov. 8. The lecturer for Nov. 15 has yet to be determined Eucharist will be celebrated Nov. 22 to end the annual series.

The adult education course is given every Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. at Nicholson Catholic College.

Residents Protest Road

Muffler Alley is not an affectionate term residents of north - western Sidney Township have bestowed on a five mile stretch of unpaved road running north from Frankford along the west bank of the Trent River to the village of Glen Ross.

Glen Ross Rd., as it is commonly known, "has been in a deplorable state this year, and with its many hills and culverts, it could almost be called unsafe," said R. D. Browne, spokesman for a 48-member delegation that appeared before Sidney Township council last night.

Along with a petition containing 256 names, the delegation presented council with two repair bills from two residents for auto table mufflers allegedly damaged by the disrepair of the road. Mr. Browne also noted he had previously observed three mufflers strewn along one section of the road.

The delegation petitioned councillors to consider taking action to repair and maintain the road. Mr. Browne requested council "to instruct the road superintendent to do something constructive with the road."

Grading does little to maintain the road, several delegation members commented. One man said, "They put down gravel on it, grade it, and after two or three days, the cars have pushed the gravel aside. They might as well not have done it."

In response to the delegation's request for the road's repair, Reeve Gordon Wilman said, "We're trying to get as much done as we can, and spread it out among other township roads) as much as we can."

However, the reeve said he was unable to give an indication as to what work would be possible on the road this year. "This has been a poor year as far as maintenance is concerned," he noted.

Although budget allocations have already been made for this year's work on the townships 133 miles of roads, Reeve Wilman said steps are being taken to acquire further monies. He told the delegation a needs study is at present under way. Greene Galloway Associates of Belleville are in the final stages of preparation of the road usage study.

With the steadily increasing subsidy given the township by the Ministry of Transportation and Communication, money for paving of roads is difficult to come by. "Only 5 miles of road has been paved this year," said the reeve. "It costs $5,000 a mile to put a top on."

Our allotment is going down yearly," he continued. "I hope you'll realize that we're not getting enough money from the ministry to look after the roads."

At present council is awaiting a report from the consulting firms on the road needs study. It is hoped the study will show the provincial government the need for higher subsidies to Sidney township.

Planners Reassess Role

Public responsiveness to the work of planners became a matter of discussion during the annual convention of the Town Planners Institute of Canada, recently attended by Quinte Planning Board director Bert Kenny.

Confusion arose as to the manner in which the public should be involved with the planning of its own community, said Mr. Kenny.

"They put down gravel on it, grade it, and after two or three days, the cars have pushed the gravel aside. They might as well not have done it."

In response to the delegation's request for the road's repair, Reeve Gordon Wilman said, "We're trying to get as much done as we can, and spread it out among other township roads) as much as we can."

City Bus Route Maps Proposed

Should bus route maps be posted at intersections and at bus stops throughout the city?

This was the question raised at Monday's traffic and light committee with the suggestion that city transit commission officials give the matter consideration.

Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie brought the matter up, noting that if anyone asked where the bus routes went he wouldn't be able to tell them.

The police chief said that in Niagara Falls the bus route identification problem had been solved by signs illustrating the bus routes corners. Each bus route is illustrated in different colors.

Lobb Becomes Northern Chief

John C. Lobb, president of Northern Electric Company Limited for the past two and a half years, has also been elected chief executive officer and chairman of the executive committee of the company by the board of directors. He assumed his expanded responsibilities October 1.

The same meeting of the board elected R. C. Scrivener chairman of the board of Northern Electric, also effective October 1. Mr. Scrivener is chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Bell Canada, parent company of Northern Electric.

Both executive assignments retired September 30 after 44 years with the company. Mr. Marquez continues as a director of, and consultant to, Northern Electric.

Judo Classes To Begin

Ken Nunn of Stirling will provide Judo instruction in Tweed . Hungerford Senior School starting October 3. Proper uniforms will not be necessary during the first few weeks, from 7 to 9 p.m. For future classes the cotton garb will cost from $12 to $20.

Committee Agrees On Reduced Limit

The city traffic and light committee Monday agreed with Belleville solicitor William Argue that the speed limit in residential areas should be reduced from the present 30 to 25 miles an hour.

But it feels the 25-miles-an-hour limit should be province-wide rather than local and has recommended that city council petition the Ontario Legislature for the necessary amendment to the Highway Traffic Act.

Mr. Argue called for the reduced speed limit at last week's city council meeting, claiming that the present 30-mile limit was dangerous particularly in residential areas where there are no sidewalks. The matter was referred to the traffic committee.

Monday at the committee's regular meeting, members agreed with the proposal, and a recommendation from Alderman E. A. Orr and Paul Russell for provincial action will be forwarded to council.

Party Held Before Move

Bessie Holbert was honored by friends Friday, September 21 as a lifetime resident of Moira. Miss Holbert moved to Belleville soon after the program of music and readings at the Moira Community Hall.

No More Nail Biting

The 'walting game is over for Hank Aaron. He fell one record of 714 held by Babe Ruth. Aaron has all next season to chalk up a new mark of his own. The Atlanta Braves slugger did accomplish one of his aims this season, finishing with a batting average over the .300 mark. (CP Photo)

Davis for Powell?

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles, having grown accustomed to the designated hitter, may find a spot in the lineup for the American League's top designated hitter should they reach the World Series.

Davis, who finished tied for second in the league with a .300 average and topped the Orioles with 89 runs batted in, could wind up playing at first base.

Regular first baseman Boog Powell was sidelined periodically during the final weeks of the regular season with a bad shoulder, and Davis played several games at that spot after not performing on defence all season.

"We're still not sure about Boog's shoulder," manager Earl Weaver said today, prior to the first of three intra-squad games designed to prep the Orioles for Saturday's playoff opener at home against Oakland Athletics.

"Our lineup would be much weaker without Davis," said Jim Palmer, a 22-game winner who will start the opener of the best-of-five series. "But, with him in there, the club wouldn't be as good defensively."

Weaver doesn't expect much change in his strategy without the designated hitters, who can still be used in the playoffs, except that pitchers "might scatter to move runners along."

But Dave McNally, slated to start game No. 1 against, said bunting may be the most difficult thing for pitchers to recap from after not batting all year.

"We'll be at a definite disadvantage, more so bunting than hitting," he said. "Bunting is five times more difficult than it appears, and we haven't done any since last September. Half the players who play every day can't bunt."

McNally, a 17-game winner, conceded he would welcome the change in facing a batting order which includes a pitcher, instead of nine free swingers.

Palmer and Mike Cuellar, an 18-game winner scheduled for game No. 3, took batting practice most of the year on days when they were to start, McNally has done the same prior to his last three starts.

"But even batting against live pitching won't make up for the four or five months we've lost," said McNally, who has hit two homers in World Series play, one with the bases loaded.

Palmer, who batted .224 in 1972 and made his which contributed to seven of his 21 victories, said: "Batting practice ... is not like hitting against Sam Sekver or Jack Billingham."

Staub Leads Mets to Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Mets are champions of the National League East and they did it in Chicago, as if to flaunt their success in the face of the failure-ridden Cubs.

The Mets clinched it Monday in a 6-4 victory over the Cubs, who once were eight games ahead of the field, but then did their customary fold.

Third baseman Wayne Garrett said in the champagne-drenched dressing room that he never was discouraged when the Cubs were so far ahead.

"Not really," he said. "Chicago has always done it (fold). Three out of five years I've been here the Cubs have gotten way out in front at the start then all of a sudden they hit the wall.

"But I'll admit back in June when they had the best record in the majors I thought they had a lot better chance than we did."

The Mets clinched their title in a morning game, the first of a scheduled doubleheader. Fifteen minutes after it was over, the meaningless second contest was called off and the champagne was uncorked.

Rusty Staub, former Montreal star who had four hits in leading the way into the pennant playoff against Cincinnati Reds, said: "A couple of months ago we were out of it, then we put it all together."

Berra said that only once during the season did he think the Mets might not make it.

"That's when we were about 12 games out," Berra said, "and had all those injuries."

"I guess the baseball race is like a distance runner," Garrett said. "If you give it all you've got at the beginning, you've got nothing left at the end.

"You've got to save a little so you have that last kick."

The Mets wound up 1½ games ahead of St. Louis Cardinals who could have been involved in a playoff for the East-ern Division title if the Cubs had won the finale of the series. Pittsburgh Pirates, who finished third, also had a chance to tie for first but lost 4-3 to San Diego Padres in the only other National League game Monday.

The Pirates, however, could be excused for not winning the afternoon game as they knew they were eliminated before they took the field against the Padres. Pittsburgh's only hope was a win over San Diego while Chicago defeated New York twice.

The Mets, who won their first divisional title since 1969, also received strong hitting from Jerry Grote and brilliant relief pitching from Tug McGraw.

Grote singled home two runs in the third inning, giving the Mets a 3-0 lead. McGraw allowed one hit after taking over from Tom Seaver, 19-10, in the seventh inning to earn his 20th save of the season.

It was a young crowd that came equipped with tape decks for entertainment while they waited for the Mets. The team's flight was delayed two hours on the ground in Chicago.

During the delay, McGraw entertained the team party with a series of awards. Willie Mays won the champagne contest after taking only three swigs of the bubbly stuff and passing out.

When the Mets' plane landed, Berra was the first one out and he was greeted by chants of "We're No. 1, we're No. 1, we're No. 1" from the crowd.

Lou Brock of St. Louis Cardinals stroke 70 bases to lead the stional League in that category for the third year in a row and the seventh time in the last eight years.

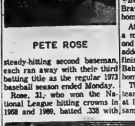
Carew, 28, has hit the .300 mark the last nine seasons.



In the American League, Carew had no trouble gaining his third batting title with a .350 average and 203 hits. The second baseman piled up a 44-point bulge over first baseman George Scott of Milwaukee Brewers and designated hitter Tommy Davis of Baltimore Orioles, who each hit .306.

Carew, 28, has hit .300 club the last five straight years.

Atlanta's Dave Johnson hit 43, a major league record for second baseman. Darrel Evans added 41 and Hank Aaron, who finished the season one short of Babe Ruth's record 713 career homers, hit 40.

The Braves were the first team to have three players hit at least 40 homers each in the same season.

Anderson Preferred Expos or Pirates

CINCINNATI (AP) — Manager Sparky Anderson expected it but he would have preferred Pittsburgh Pirates or Montreal Expos in the National League baseball playoffs than New York Mets.

"I said the Mets all along during the last couple weeks," the Cincinnati Reds' boss.

Anderson said hiters would be at a disadvantage facing the 4 p.m. EDT start at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium, particularly against New York pitchers Tom Seaver, Jerry Koosman and John Matlack.

Anderson said he expected to face Seaver twice in the best-of-five series to determine the league pennant winner.

Anderson said he plans to use lefthander Don Gullett, 19-8, in the opening game Saturday.

"That afternoon sun is a definite advantage for pitchers who throw low and hard like me," said Gullett earlier. Anderson gave the club several days off after the final game with orders to report for practice Thursday.

Anderson said the remaining games will be batted by Jack Billingham, 19-8, Ross Grimsley and Fred Norman "but not necessarily in that order."

Meanwhile, a cloud bung over the Reds' clubhouse when outfielder Bobby Tolan was removed from the roster. Tolan, who suffered a season long slump hitting .206, was unavailable for comment.

He was suspended the last three games of the season in his second run-in in a month with management.

"Now we start all over again," said Billingham after hearing the Eastern Division was won by New York.

"We might have finished 17 games better than them in the standings, but we'll have the same records when we walk onto the field Saturday."

Outfielder Pete Rose said he "thought the Mets would win it since about a week ago."

"It should be a tough series," said first baseman Tony Perez. "When their pitching is good, they are very tough."

Billingham said he had no preference among the teams Cincinnati could have faced in the playoffs.

The Year of the Field Goal Kicker

TORONTO (CP) — You won't find Ivan MacMillan's name among the scoring leaders in either Canadian Football League conference, but it's gritty little native of Alexandria, Ont., made an auspicious debut Saturday in a British Columbia Lions uniform.

MacMillan, a veteran at 22, connected on five of five field goal attempts as the Lions gained a come-from-behind 25-22 tie with Toronto Argonauts.

It's the year of the field goal kicker in the CFL as boosters in both the Eastern and Western conferences close in on kicking and scoring marks.

But what makes MacMillan's initial 1973 start so unusual is the authority with which the ex-Argo and Ottawa Rough Rider kicker came to the Lions' rescue.

His longest previous CFL kick was a 43-yarder in 1972. Two of his efforts against the Argos, who chopped him earlier in the year, were from 44 and 45 yards.

MacMillan was signed by the Lions last week to supplant long-time kicker Bob Gaetta, who voluntarily retired himself from that chore after the West Coast team continued to lose close games because of his inability to kick through the uprights.

What field goal records haven't already been set or tied this year are likely to fall before the season is over.

In the East, Ottawa's Gerry Organ, Ian Sunter of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Don Sweet of Montreal Alouettes and Zenon Andrusyshyn of the Argos, are closing in on the four team record of 66 set in 1971.

The four have combined for 60 and with 37 games remaining should gain the record of 66.

MacMillan and Gerela, along with veterans Dave Cutler, Edmonton Eskimos, Dave Ridgeway, Calgary Stampeders; Jack Abendschan, Saskatchewan Roughriders and Don Jonas of Winnipeg Blue Bombers have scored 76 to date.

They have 27 games to get the 16 they need to break the conference record of 92.

Flying Finn Dead at 76

HELSINKI (AP) — Paavo Nurmi, 76, the Flying Finn of the athletic tracks between the two world wars, died early in the day after a long illness.

Nurmi had several heart attacks in recent years and had been partly paralyzed.

A star in all distances between 1,500 metres and the marathon, he set 28 world records and won nine gold medals in the Olympics in 1920, 1924 and 1928.

He probably would have won more, but on the eve of the 1932 Games in Los Angeles he was declared a professional and banned from Olympic competition.

Nurmi went into semi-seclusion for several years and always thereafter was bitter toward sports writers, accusing them of giving wrong data to Lon to the Olympic committee.

GETS NEW JOB

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Golf Association announced Monday that Ross Thomson, OGA tournament coordinator for seven years, has been appointed executive director. Thomson, in his new position, will assume the duties previously handled by secretary-manager Margaret Wilson who will resign Nov. 17.

Leo's Going Golfing

HOUSTON (AP) — Leo Durocher became manager of Houston Astros last year on a shot in the dark—and ran with it.

Durocher, 67, who has managed three World Series baseball teams, took charge of a team many foresaw as a pennant contender for 1973.

He said in the spring he'd like to take a team all the way one more time. Instead, the Astros tumbled from a second-place finish in 1972 to a disappointing fourth this season in the National League West.

So, Durocher announced his resignation Monday and general manager Spec Richardson named third-base coach Preston Gomez as his replacement.

The official wording said Durocher resigned but it was more likely a retirement for the volcanic Durocher, whose career as a player and manager spans about 50 years.

"There were no factors involved in my resignation," Durocher said, "I feel great. But for someone who's been in baseball as long as I have there comes a time to rest.

"My plans for the future include going back to Palm Springs and testing it up."

Richardson told a news conference he had tried to talk Durocher out of resigning but his efforts were unsuccessful.

Durocher's 13-month tenure with the Astros was far less volatile than much of his controversial career.

But there was controversy. Club Feeney, president of the National League, fined Durocher $250 during spring training when Durocher allegedly broke up a meeting of Astro players with player representative Marvin Miller.

In July, Durocher fined pitcher Don Wilson $250 after a shouting match on the team bus. Durocher also benched centre fielder Cesar Cedeno during the season when he said Cedeno didn't follow his signals from the bench.

Gomez came to the Astros last October after being released as manager of San Diego Padres early in the 1972 season. Gomez took over for Durocher several times during the season when Durocher was ill.

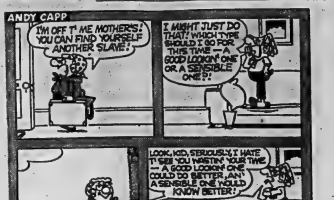
Minor Leagues For 15 Wings

DETROIT (CP) — Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League announced the signing of 15 players, including veteran goalie Denis DeJordy, to minor league clubs Monday.

DeJordy, a veteran of 11 seasons in the NHL, was assigned on a loan basis to Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League.

Agreement Ratified

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) has ratified an agreement with the two professional hockey leagues regarding amateur players moving into the professional ranks before the age of 20.



Gordon Juckes, executive director of the CAHA, said Monday that the amateur hockey association board agreed at a weekend meeting in Toronto to a set of principles worked out between that body, the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association.

Details of the agreement were not released, but Juckes said it relates to the way young players are drafted and signed and what the two leagues will pay.

A provision has been built into the agreement which allows a exception a young player to move into the professional leagues despite the fact that the player still eligible to play junior hockey.

Juckes said certain exceptional 18 and 19-year-old players will be allowed to turn professional if the team drafting them paid a certain sum to the amateur clubs the players were with previously.

To draft an exceptional player, for instance, the NHL might have to pay $4,000 or a $10,000 fee to the team the player was with the year before, another $4,000 to the team he was with before that and another fee per event or $500 to each of the four teams he played with before that.

Yankees To Shea Stadium

NEW YORK (AP) — They traded tearing down the house that "Ruth built" Monday, and nostalgia was so thick you could spit it with a Louisville Slugger!

Nobody cried.

"Why should we?" said Claire Ruth, the widow of baseball's greatest home-run hitter. "It's just like changing coats. When your fur coat wears out, you get a new one."

Eleanor Gehrig, whose late husband was a Yankee immortal, playing a record 2,130 consecutive games in the famous pin stripes, said: "I am happy to see progress."

Mrs. Ruth was presented a scaled white and black rubber home plate and Mrs. Gehrig was handed first base as ceremonies marking the demolition phase of the $27 million city-financed renovation plan.

Both bases had been rescued Sunday from souvenir-hunters who poured out of the stands at the end of the season's last game.

During the next two years, Yankee Stadium will be gutted and completely renovation. The Yankees will play at Shea Stadium, home of the National League New York Mets, in 1974 and 1975 and come back to the refurbished ball park in 1976.

McGregor Paces Royals

MONTREAL (CP) — Gary McGregor scored twice to lead Cornwall Royals to a 6-4 win over Laval Nationals in Quebec Major Junior Hockey League action Monday night.

John Nazar, Allan Pearson, Robert Geoffrion and Bob Chase scored the other Cornwall goals. Nazar also registered with two goals from Marcel Dumais and single goals from Claude Dupuis and Andre Perreault.

The win left Cornwall in first place in the league's West Division with two wins in as many contests while Laval fell to fourth place with a win and a loss in their first two regular league games.

Reverses Do the Job As Lions Win First

A pair of rule-dale reverse plays, plus the superb running of substitute fullback Mel Farr led Detroit to a 31-0 thrashing of Atlanta in the National Football League game before 45,309 fans.

The win was the first for the Lions—members of the National Conference, Central Division—against a loss and a tie, Atlanta, in the Western Division of the National Conference, has lost two straight after a 6-7 win over New Orleans Saints.

The Lions did it again in the fourth quarter when Ron Jessie scored on a nine-yard reverse for the final TD. That put the game out of reach with 12 minutes remaining.

Farr, who played in place of Steve Owens who pulled a leg muscle in pre-game warmups, rushed for 90 yards in 16 carries including a 35-yard touchdown run with one second left in the first half.

The Falcons lost three of five fumbles and Detroit intercepted two. Dick Shiner passers.

Atlanta, which fumbled 42 times last year, has 10 in three games this season and you can add one "muff" to those turnovers.

Punt returner Ray Brown didn't cleanly handle a kick bouncing his way in the final period said Lions' rookie Dick Jauron scooped up the ball and ran 10 yards into the end zone.

Since Brown didn't have control it was not considered a fumble and could be advanced.

Detroit did get the ball, however, and Jessie's touchdown came two plays later.

Tackle Bob Bell recovered a shiner fumble midway through the second quarter at the Falcon 30 and three plays later Taylor got a key block from Jessie and scored on a 10-yard run.

BOLSTER DEFENCE

The fee was a British record for a goalkeeper.

The Reds said Monday the controversial baseball star would be replaced on the roster of players eligible for the series by pitcher Roger Nelson.

Baseball Attendance 30 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — Attendance at major league baseball games passed the 30-million mark in 1973 for the first time in history, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Monday.

A total of 30,043, 788 fans paid their way into major league ball parks during the season. That bettered the previous high of 29,192,417 set in 1971.

According to unofficial statistics, the American League drew a record total of 13,638,661, breaking the old league record of 12,134,745 set in 1969.

The National League, meanwhile, outdrew the junior circuit for the 12th consecutive year, attracting a total of 16,607,127 paying customers, including 1,746,863 who rolled into Montreal Expos games at Jarry Park.

MIKE WATT

DAVE FLESCH

Bobcats Sign 2 Holdovers

The Belleville Bobcats announced two more signings last night, with two players from last year's league finalists in the fold for th. upcoming season. Mike Watt and Dave Flesch have signed for the 1973-74 campaign.

Watt, who is 18 years old, patrolled the right wing for the Cats last year, banging in 15 goals and adding 13 assists, while spending 63 minutes in the penalty box. He should add depth to the forward lines.

Flesch, also 18, is a defenseman, and according to coach Moe Hunter, has been "... defenseman on the ice this year." Flesch had two goals and 13 assists last year for 15 points, with 12 penalty minutes in 34 games.

The signings bring to 17 the total on the dotted line for the season, which opens for the Cats on Sunday night, as they play host to Pickering at the Memorial Arena.

Owner of the track record for 1973, Bonnie Hawthorne who set a mark of 2:06.1, received a trophy for the second former owner, Ray Rose of Stirling. The mare is now owned by Cam Wannamaker of Consecon.

Moira, BCI Split Bayside Wins Twice

The Moira Juniors kept their unbeaten record intact, as a pair of goals by Britton were enough to gain a 2-1 victory over the Junior Wanderers.

Britton opened the scoring at the 15 minute mark for Moira, with Brianer Kaiser swairo leveling the score just before the half.

Both teams had many chances in the second period, with Britton's the deciding factor.

In the senior game, which was a tough physical battle between the two rivals, there was no scoring in the first half, although BCI has the better chances.

Brian Kaiser opened the scoring for the senior Wanderers in the 3-1 BCI victory early in the second half as he headed in a cross from Gary Adams.

Moira fought back, however, and at about the 70 minute mark, Britton got a well - placed shot through the confused BCI defence.

BCI put the game on ice in the last minute, with a goal by Nesterovski, his second of the game and sixth of the season, as he rammed in a pass from Gary Donald.

Bayside had little trouble in downing BCI in the senior game by a score of 6-1, while the Juniors romped to a 10-0 win over the Centennial B team.

Celebrities' Privacy Precious

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lucille Ball, was, in a short robe sitting under the hair dryer in her bedroom when two fans barged in.

Carol Burnett had a time evicting an Ohio family from her kitchen. They demanded a tour of the house and didn't want to leave until they got it.

Peter Graves was the cause of a traffic jam in New York when a taxi driver leaped from his cab and ran over for an autograph.

Such can be the price of fame. Instant recognition is currency that can be cashed at the box office—but it can be at the cost of a star's privacy.

Stars, like anyone else, seek moments of peace and quiet. But a stroll down the street can turn into a mob scene of autograph hunters. In restaurants their soup may grow cold as they sign autographs. A day at an amusement park with the family can turn into a shambles.

As happened to Lucille Ball, sometimes their homes are even invaded, thanks to the fan magazines and movie star maps that regularly publish their addresses.

"I would personally like to chase those map makers," said Carol Burnett. "We once had a man and his wife and two kids walk right through our front door and into our kitchen and ask my daughter for a tour of the house.

"When we asked them to leave they got huffy and mad and said they'd driven all the way from Ohio and they weren't about to leave."

Some stars have been known to turn on the lawn sprinklers to shoo away people traipsing across the yard with cameras.

Most fans will listen to reason if a celebrity patiently explains that he considers his home an inviolate sanctuary. But not always. There are times, Pat Boone said, when "fans suspended all rules of etiquette and courtesy and common human decency."

Robert Redford, complaining that he has been hounded unmercifully by one group of fans, filed a lawsuit against them this summer.

Jerry Lewis once had to pay $30,000 to settle a lawsuit with a fan who tried to climb over the fence that surrounds his home to take pictures of the comedian and his family.

"He got to about the fourth rung," Lewis recalled. "It was a bear. I caught him right on the . . . button."

Even signing an autograph can be a problem at times. Lucille Ball learned that after an appearance in the Midwest her signature started turning up on phony checks. "Ever since then, all I sign is 'Love, Lucy,'" she said.

Former Entertainer Is Now Tour Guide

HONOLULU (AP) — Tommy Sands, singer of million-seller records in the 1950s and 1960s, still can be seen in nightclubs. But not as a vocalist.

"I quit singing in 1969 and haven't sung a note since. . . . And that includes in the shower," said Sands, who now conducts dinner and nightclub tours to various Waikiki hotels.

Sands, 36, quit show business in 1967 after his movie, The Violent Ones. His last million seller was I'll Be Seeing You, recorded in 1966.

"Entertaining was becoming very boring . . . ," he said in an interview. "When it gets to that point, it's time to say aloha, so I said aloha."

Sands said he decided to live in Hawaii and, during his first year here, did nothing but relax. Following a short engagement at a local hotel a year later, he decided to call it quits. Then came the tour business.

"What I do is make all the arrangements for taking groups to dinner, then in a couple of shows in top nightclubs in Waikiki and . . . it."

"It's a people-to-people, one-to-one kind of job, and I love it."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDO

Wednesday, Oct. 4

Aries (March 21-April 19) Be careful whose side you espouse today. Backing someone against the opinion of the majority could boomerang.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You will be a difficult person to work for today. Tone your orders down so you don't offend those who are trying to serve you.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Financial or material matters will cause you some unnecessary frustrations if you let yourself get too emotional about money.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) A decision you will make today will cause you great anxiety. You will feel you were pressured into an answer.

Leo (July 23-Oct. 23) Don't look for an easy day at work. If you prepare yourself for unforeseen complications, you'll be ready for them.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A social situation you've been looking forward to will not turn out all you hoped it would be. Some surprises will spoil things.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Outside pressures will not be left at your doorstep when you come home this evening. This will make it rough on other family members.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you will dwell more on the negative aspects of a problem than the positive ones, making solutions difficult.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't be frivolous with your expenditures today. Moderation is a must. Money may be tight the next day or two.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You must handle others with tact and diplomacy or you will find yourself in an undesirable confrontation.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today others are likely to use you to do their bidding if you permit it. Let each carry his share of the load.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You will find yourself in the company of persons who are moody and surly today. Make a quick exit so you don't become involved.

Epidemic

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

To Your Good Health

Rest Required If Contacts Worn

By G. C. THOSTENSON, MD

Dear Doctor: I know this is not your field but I can't find anyone who knows else.

I would like to know if it is safe to wear contact lenses for long periods of 10 to 18 hours at a time?

My eye specialist says to wear them for eight hours, remove them for one hour, and so on.

But almost all of my friends wear them morning until night straight through. I would like to do the same but I wonder if it is safe.

Tolerance of contact lenses can vary considerably between individuals. Your friends who wear them for long periods were either not advised or do so as a matter of convenience.

I do not wear contact lenses myself but if I did and a specialist advised me as he advised you I think I'd follow his advice.

In any event, your eyes should be your best indicator. Prolonged wearing can cause irritations and this would be a signal to let them off. Irritation might not occur at first, but only after prolonged use of the lenses.

Dear Dr. Thostenson: My husband who is 53 has started to have pain in his hands every day to relieve the pain in his leg—his knee and ankle are all swelled up. I'm afraid he is taking too many. Please let us know if he is doing wrong.—Mrs. W.M.

Many arthritis sufferers take that much aspirin and even more some days, and benefit from it. However—and this may be an important however—I would want to know what is causes the pain and swelling of his leg before agreeing that aspirin is the right thing for him.

You give me no information as to what his trouble is, aside from its being painful. It may be some condition that not only can be treated effectively by other means but ought to be. So have your doctor see him and decide what will bring him the most comfort.

Dear Dr. Thostenson: What do the letters SLE stand for?—Mrs. G.O.H.

The letters mean systemic lupus erythematosus (all-lupus-else-you).

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Dble	4♠	4♦
5♦	5♠	Dble	Pass
Pass	Pass	Pass	Dble

Opening lead—Ace of hearts.

...And finally, —had East wound up with 10 tricks — which he might had bid under the circumstances in order to protect a possible huge swing against him — South would have required almost divine guidance to produce the heart lead necessary to stop that grand slam from being made.

—TomeTwer: Planning the play.

Today's problem is to exaggerate the importance of the opening lead in bridge. Certainly, against Grand Slam Charley, chuck more tricks on the opening lead of a top or low on the next 12 tricks, and this tendency to go wrong on the opening lead is no doubt applicable to other players also.

The plain unvarnished fact is that a defender is often in the dark as to how or where to initiate his attack, seeing only 13 cards, while his partner, on the contrary appears, he has the advantage of seeing 26 cards and therefore has much more to go on.

West was on lead against seven clubs doubled and started with the ace of hearts. As a result, South made the grand slam for a score of 1,330 points instead of going down one — 200 points — which would have been all East-West could get on a diamond.

But just also that, if West had become declarer at seven diamonds, East would have had to uncover a club lead to prevent a grand slam in diamonds from being scored against him.

Marmora

Marmora — Friends and neighbors in the community where they lived for the past 65 years gathered to honor Mr. and Mrs. John Doyle, and their family on Sunday, September 16 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Davidson.

Present for the occasion were their four daughters, Miss Ida Doyle, Mrs. Ross (Margaret) Torpey, Mrs. Howard (Dorcas) Simmons, all of Peterborough, and their two sons, William and Jerome of Marmora. Most of their 18 grandchildren were also present.

Reading the address was their friend Don Miller of Tamworth who lived with the Doyle's while teaching at nearby White's school. The presentation of gifts and money was made by Rose Davidson, Marie Empey and Eileen Wilman.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle responded by thanking everyone and expressing their pleasure at hearing the farm and home they have occupied so long and issued an invitation to everyone to visit them at their new home, 118 North Hastings St., Marmora.

Bookies Beaten

LONDON (CP) — Four students claim to have beaten the legal betting shops by placing wagers on dog races a few seconds after they had been run at remote racetracks. The shops bet on races until they announce the result themselves over their own speaker system and the students were transmitting the winners by means of walkie-talkies in time to make their wager.

Erik Bruhn Now Ballet Producer

By JAMES ELSON

TORONTO (CP) — The National Ballet of Canada, which has been undergoing a strengthening of its leadership, leaves this week for a tour of Western Ontario and Western Canada before returning for its usual Christmas season performances of The Nutcracker in Toronto and Ottawa.

With famed English dancer and choreographer Erik Bruhn as its resident producer, Canada's largest classical dance company will tour with two major works, Giselle and Swan Lake, and a program of three shorter works, Les Sylphides, Le Loup, nd Solitaire.

The National Ballet's fall season opens Sept. 26 in Cleary Auditorium, Windsor. The company moves to Hamilton Oct. 1 as part of the opening program for that city's new arts centre, Hamilton Place. It plays Oct. 4-6 in London, Ont., before travelling to Western Canada.

In the Ontario appearances, the company will perform the full-length Giselle, in repertoire with the three-work program including Mr. Bruhn's new production of Les Sylphides.

The western tour includes Edmonton Oct. 15-16, Calgar.; Oct. 17-19, Winnipeg Oct. 22-24, Regina Oct. 26-Nov. 1, and Saskatoon Nov. 5-7. For this part of the tour, the company will have two full-evening works in its repertoire, Giselle and Swan Lake.

After its Christmas season performances of Tchaikovsky's Fairytale, the National Ballet will again tour the United States in the New Year under the aegis of impresario Sol Hurok.

In addition to engaging Mr. Bruhn as resident producer, the National Ballet recently drew David Haber from the National Arts Centre in Ottawa to share the duties of artistic director with the ballet's founder, Celia Franca.

Mr. Haber said in an interview one of his goals is to work with the company's dancers to arrange more guest performances for them, ensuring them fuller employment.

Fewer Give Religious Affiliation

OTTAWA (CP) — Figures released Thursday by Statistics Canada indicate a slight decline since 1961 in the percentage of Canadians reporting some religious affiliation.

Among Protestant religions, the United Church showed the biggest decrease. The 20.1 per cent of Canadians belonging to that denomination in 1961 dropped to 17.5 per cent in 1971.

The Anglican Church lost percentage points in the same 10-year period. There also was a slight percentage decrease in the Baptist, Lutheran and Presbyterian churches.

Showing slight increases were the Roman Catholic Church, up by half a point and the "other" category which included all denominations observing the Greek Orthodox rites as well as persons who indicated no religious affiliations.

The report is based on 1961 and 1971 census figures.

Explore Tundra

Biologists from ten nations are preparing a large scale investigation of the vast tundra-like marshland in northernmost Sweden. Results of the probe around Lake Torneträsk, in Lapland above the Arctic Circle, may aid future exploitation of oil resources in permanently frozen areas. Taking part in the project are scientists from Canada, U.S., Sweden, Canada, U.S., Britain, Ireland, Norway, Austria and Australia.

Canada, the United States and Russia are taking particularly active role in the investigation which may help them exploit oil resources hidden beneath the permafrost in northern parts of those nations.

The project is part of a sweeping international program to study the biological basis for productivity and human welfare. The project is expected to get under way in next April. (CP Newsmap)

Ross Farm Replica Of Past

NEW ROSS, N.S. (CP)—Historic Ross Farm is a living reminder of the past for visitors to this farm community about 40 miles west of Halifax.

Rosebank Cottage, built in 1817 for Capt. William Ross, is one of the biggest attractions.

Capt. Ross led 172 disbanded soldiers into the area on a land-clearing project, and many stayed to settle here.

Ross Farm features an actual working farm as it would have been more than 100 years ago. Oxen are used to plow fields, and a horse is also required to earn his keep.

An old-fashioned country store, which serves as a reception centre for the many thousands of annual visitors, is another attraction. There is a 100-year-old school house which was moved from its former location to be a part of the attraction.

A cooper shop is also in full operation. Visitors to the site can watch barrels being made the way they were a hundred years ago.

Many of the artifacts included in the displays at the farm were donated by Nova Scotians, and most of them are native to the province.

The farm was officially opened in 1970 and has become an attraction for both residents of the province and visitors alike.

Officials estimate there will be 15,000 admissions to the farm this summer alone.

Hamlet Surrounded By Barbed Wire

Kirby is commanding officer of Canadian Forces Base Dana, a radar installation built 10 years ago as part of the Pine Tree defence system.

Barbed wire surrounds the station 55 miles northeast of Saskatoon and rings the living quarters for the community's 500 residents, including 150 military personnel and their families.

The military work force is supplemented by about 60 civilians from nearby towns and Saskatoon. Four car pools operate daily between the station and Saskatoon.

Houses are scattered in crescents on the side of a hill and bicycles are the most popular form of transportation on the narrow roads around the community.

Domestic affairs on the base are handled by a community council, which is responsible for organizing and financing community activities.

It gets its funds from special events, a monthly fee of $1 from each family on the base and profits from a small general store.

"Many people think the government pays for everything," Commander Kirby said. "They don't. They provide the equipment for the military operation and the houses; recreation facilities are provided by the people who live here.

"We've like a self-contained municipality and the people living here have the same obligations as citizens anywhere else."

Beer Fest Operators See Mackey

KITCHENER (CP) — The battle between Oktoberfest organizers and enforcers of the province's liquor laws may reach a climax today, three days before the start of this year's festival.

James Mackey, liquor licence board chairman, said Monday he has called a meeting today at his Toronto offices with organizers.

In a telephone interview, Mr. Mackey refused to comment on the nature of the meeting, saying only that it would deal with regulations.

Two hundreds of beer hall operators and festival committee directors are expected to make the trip to Toronto.

The entourage also may include civic officials from Kitchener and Waterloo.

It will be the first time Mr. Mackey has met with a full body of Oktoberfest organizers and beer hall operators.

The cabinet has rejected follow charges made over the last few weeks that Mr. Mackey is cracking down on festival operations although he has denied this.

Death Sentence Is Pronounced

TORONTO (CP) — Rene Vaillancourt of Montreal was sentenced Monday night to be hanged Jan. 23 after he was found guilty of capital murder in the fatal shooting of a Metro Toronto police constable.

Vaillancourt, 25, was silent after sentence was imposed in the Ontario Supreme Court following his jury trial.

Last February Constable Leslie Maitland was shot while he was investigating the robbery of a bank in east-end Toronto a few minutes earlier.

Vaillancourt fired two bullets into the constable at close range, the jury was told.

His case automatically will be appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada. If the death sentence is upheld, it can only be commuted by the federal cabinet.

Reach Accord

MONTREAL (CP) — Tentative contract agreements have been reached with five newsprint companies comprising the Eastern Canada newsprint group and with Consolidated-Bathurst Ltd., a union spokesman said.

The tentative agreements were reached with 10 locals of the United Paper Workers International Union (UPIU), representing about 3,500 workers at the five mills involved.

Another 7,700 UPIU members remain on strike at nine other plants in Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick, where production remains at a standstill.

Rates Cut

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — An official of the Ontario Northland transportation commission said Monday freight rates in northeastern Ontario have been reduced by an average of 18 per cent.

James Jetsman, chairman of the commission which operates the Ontario Northland Railway and its trucking subsidiary, Star Transfer, said the rate reduction will mean lower prices in northern stores.

Seek Pair

HAMILTON (CP) — Police are looking for two men who escorted Gail Ryan, 20, to a tavern the night before she was stabbed to death.

Autopsy results were not complete but police said Monday they believed the girl died from stab wounds to her head and neck. She was apparently murdered overnight last Tuesday and lay in a pool of blood for two days.

Ok Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Postmasters' Association, representing about 8,000 small town and rural postal employees, has ratified a tentative contract agreement with the government.

D. A. Bilkie, association president, said Monday that although all votes are not yet in, more than 90 per cent of those eligible to cast ballots have approved a proposed three-year contract.

ROBERT STANFIELD

Energy Parley Demanded

TORONTO (CP) — The time is long overdue for the federal government to call a national energy conference, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Monday.

At the same time, he told reporters he had not thought of himself as a mediator between the provincial governments in Ontario and Alberta.

Ontario is objecting to Alberta's intention of using a two-price system for natural gas which will mean substantially higher prices for Ontario markets.

The Conservative leader, who met with Ontario Premier William Davis and Energy Minister Darcy McKeough, said he will meet Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney today and Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed Wednesday.

Fire Halts Algonquin Group Meet

TORONTO (CP) — Fire at the historic St. Lawrence Hall forced 350 persons, including Robert Nixon, Ontario Liberal leader, and Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party provincial leader, to flee Monday night.

One fireman suffered a leg injury but the fire was quickly brought under control. No damage estimate or cause of the fire was available.

Witnesses said smoke began seeping into a large auditorium on the fourth floor of the building, just after the two provincial leaders took their seats on a platform and prepared to address a public meeting sponsored by the Algonquin Wildlands League.

A fire alarm began ringing but the near-capacity audience remained seated until a building caretaker approached the platform and asked everyone to leave because of a "small fire."

Mr. Nixon and Mr. Lewis stood up and silently filed out along with the audience of the public meeting, which was called to discuss government policies regarding Algonquin Park.

The two party leaders were scheduled to address the meeting about the government's decision to establish a Crown corporation to take charge of park logging operations.

Firegen said damage was confined to cloakrooms and storage compartments adjoining the auditorium.

Two Given 7 Years For 'Grass'

TORONTO (CP) — Two men who admitted importing 500 pounds of marijuana into Canada from the United States were sentenced Monday to seven years each.

But Judge Donald Couture said that if he had not been bound by provisions of the Narcotic Control Act he would have imposed lighter sentences on Harvey Ernest Gosling, 27, and William Goldhart, 26, both of Toronto.

The use of marijuana is controversial, said the judge, but the two men and Kenneth Arthur Hicks, 26, also of Toronto, were indictable men who knew their plan was illegal.

Hicks pleaded guilty to conspiring to possess marijuana for the purposes of trafficking.

Testimony was given by RCMP Cpl. Douglas Nickson that the operation involved Goldhart flying a light plane loaded with marijuana to Tecumseh, Ont., from Medford, Wis.

The witness said Goldhart's plane was trailed by another aircraft carrying RCMP officers and U.S. customs agents on the flight Oct. 14, 1972.

Goldhart was filmed unloading the marijuana but managed to escape in the plane which later was found abandoned and out of fuel in Michigan, court was told.

Drug Trafficker Given Life Term

TORONTO (CP) — Ng Yuen Hing, a 37-year-old cook from New York City, was sentenced Monday to life imprisonment for trafficking in 25 pounds of heroin worth $4 million on the illegal market.

Federal prosecutor David Scott, who had called for a life sentence, said he did not believe Ng was not an addict but dealt in drugs solely for the money.

In sentencing Ng, County Court Judge James Boland noted he was a high-level drug dealer and not one of the "little tadpoles" his lawyer Walter Deeton had contended.

"During the trial, court was told the man was to receive more than $100,000 for selling Asian heroin in Toronto. Most heroin imported into North America comes from Turkey via France and the seizure of the brownish Asian variety indicated a new source of the drug to Canada.

Judge Boland expressed concern that this was the first time the Asian heroin had been seen in Canada, and its importation must be discouraged, she said.

Ng was arrested March 24 in a Toronto hotel room by two undercover agents for the United States Drug Enforcement Administration posing as New York-based drug dealers. RCMP officers later seized additional heroin in a Toronto rooming house.

Ontario Seeks to Force Ruling by Alberta Board

CALGARY (CP) — The Ontario government will seek court action to force the Alberta energy resources conservation board to make rulings on constitutional issues in a gas export case, Robin Scott, counsel for the Ontario attorney-general's department, said Monday.

The board is currently re-examining a gas export permit issued to Consolidated Natural Gas Ltd. in 1969. Consolidated was to sell 125 billion cubic feet of gas annually to Northern Natural Gas Inc. of the United States.

Consolidated resold the gas to TransCanada PipeLines Ltd. for distribution in Eastern Canada, primarily in Ontario, after the national energy board in October, 1970, ruled in 1970 that the gas was not surplus to Canadian needs and denied the export permit.

Ontario is challenging the constitutionality of the Alberta Gas Resources Preservation Act as well as the hearing and the lieutenant-governor's order in-council authorizing the hearing, on grounds that they interfere with inter-provincial trade, a federal jurisdiction.

Board Chairman Dr. George Govier said last week that the board has grave doubts that it is the proper forum to settle the constitutional battle between the two provinces.

Mr. Scott said Ontario will seek court action to stop the board from proceeding with the hearing until it has ruled on the constitutional issues. He asked the board to adjourn its hearing while Ontario takes the necessary legal steps to go before the Alberta Appeal Court.

The request was denied by the board.

Robert Macaulay, counsel for Ontario Hydro, said the case will be taken to the Supreme Court of Canada if necessary.

Wage Raised

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's minimum wage rose Monday to $1.50 an hour from $1.75.

For employees younger than 18 years of age, the hourly minimum increased to $1.65 from $1.50.

At the same time, a scaled learner's rate, with its minimum of $1.60 an hour, was dropped.

Snow Fence Removed Days Before 400 Crash

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Highway maintenance crews removed a snow fence from a stretch of Highway 400 nine days before a crash which killed 13 persons in a fresh snowstorm just south of here March 16.

The inquest into the 11 deaths opened Monday with more than 20 witnesses. Another 30 are still to testify into the 45-vehicle pileup which included a truck loaded with lumber and a bus.

Much of the day was devoted to identification of the bodies.

Later, the five-member jury heard accounts of the flaming crash and testimony from Alec Boyd, a road maintenance supervisor with the ministry of transportation.

Mr. Boyd said there had been three weeks of warm weather prior to removal of the snow fence which was taken down a month earlier this year than it was last year.

He said the weather office described the snow storm as a freak.

Other testimony said police had closed the divided, six-lane highway briefly on the 18th because of the storm.

Much of Monday's evidence centred on pathologists' reports and the dental detective work to identify the dead.

He told of going to another stuck car to borrow a shovel and on returning back to his car, he said he saw cars coming out of the blowing snow at high speeds.

Under questioning, Mr. Caccia said he made a palms-down gesture with his hands to slow the vehicles down. He said he was dressed in blue ski wear.

Other witnesses testified they saw a man at the side of the road dressed in either blue or beige waving his arms quickly in front of his face while another said the signal appeared to be a pushing signal with the palms out.

Mr. Caccia, who took his family away from the crash in another car and left his own buried in the snow, was questioned by Dr. Cozana as to why he didn't telephone police and make a statement later.

Mr. Caccia said police telephoned him the next week.

Agnes Johnson, whose husband died in the crash, told of her experiences. Some of it was just "the screaming, burning, and black."

The Johnson vehicle was hit several times and when it stopped, Mr. Johnson told his wife and two sons to get out. The boys and the father got out, but then there was another collision.

The father was jammed between the two vehicles and killed while one son was tossed over the car and the other had his foot jammed underneath the vehicle.

Witnesses said the crash came just after a "whiteout."

Witnesses who were travelling in the opposite direction told of blinding their headlights as vehicles unknowingly approached the carnage.

James Clair, 26, of Guelph, Ont., said he tried to warn the truck and bus by flashing his headlights and waving his hands. The bus driver, he said, waved back and kept going. The truck driver flashed his lights in return.

A passenger in the Clair car, John Aikens, said the bus was travelling at at least 60 miles an hour and passing every car.

Cpl. Ed Kelso of the provincial police was the first policeman on the scene and radioed immediately for fire trucks and ambulances. Firemen fought the blazing wrecks for 19 hours.

The inquest continues.

Hundreds Flee Homes

Wild Alberta Well Spews Poison Gas

NEW NORWAY, Alta. (CP) — A night of fear ended for hundreds of farmers and small-town residents early today but a day of anxiety started for others as a cloud of deadly hydrogen sulphide gas moved toward a town of 175.

The RCMP said it was considering evacuating the central Alberta town of Edberg, 12 miles east of the site where a natural gas well ruptured Tuesday, spewing deadly gas into the air.

The wind was blowing the cloud of gas towards the town and traces of the gas — which smells like rotten eggs, were detected in the small farming community.

Many of the hundreds of people evacuated from their homes in this town of 230 during the night and from areas north and west of the well site were allowed to return in the morning but were warned to be ready to flee again.

The cloud was reported six miles east and two miles north of Edberg during the night.

An RCMP air patrol reported the cloud was about a mile long and moving at a rate of about 30 yards a minute in an area 30 miles south-southwest of Edmonton.

There were conflicting reports about whether the cloud had started to dissipate in the light wind that started after sunrise.

Some said the cloud was being scattered while others were sure there was no indication of dissipation.

The RCMP said a decision to evacuate Edberg "will be made in lots of time to avoid a panic."

Douglas Walker, a spokesman for Sun Oil Co. in Calgary which owns the well, said the company's environmental officials "did not detected any fatal concentrations of hydrogen sulphide.

He noted, however, that the odor of the gas was strong in the areas he monitored.

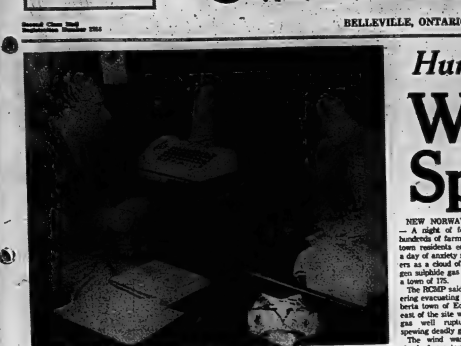
Crews wearing gas masks and to cap the well that blew out of control Tuesday. The gas, which experts say may be harmful in small concentrations and deadly in larger doses, was still spewing from the well.

A well owned by Sun Oil Co., located on the north end of Red Deer Lake 50 miles south-southwest of Edmonton, blew out a mixture of crude oil, water and sour gas containing the lethal gas mixture.

The gas formed a cloud up to a mile wide and 800 feet in height, moving north-northwest along the Battle River. Then it changed and followed the wind in a southerly direction.

An RCMP spokesman early today said the village of New Norway was evacuated, along with the village of Bittern Lake and the hamlet of Gwynne.

Farmers in the Fenkosh area had been alerted and were told they would have to evacuate if the deadly gas moved in their direction.



RCMP said about 5:30 a.m. that the gas had skipped over Fenkosh and eight miles south of New Norway, and had struck Edberg, about five miles farther east.

An RCMP spokesman said Camrose, a city of 9,000 about 30 miles northeast of the well site, "could become vulnerable for evacuation."

Dr. Hugh Horner, deputy premier and agriculture minister in charge of the Alberta Emergency Measures Organization (EMO) flew to the scene Tuesday night.

Fenkosh, about five miles east of the well site on Highway 21, has a population of 127. New Norway, eight miles north of Fenkosh, has 220 residents. Bittern Lake, 10 miles north-

Confrontation

Israeli Premier Golda Meir, right, and Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky are shown during discussion Tuesday in Vienna, Austria. Golda Meir Fails in Bid To Keep Schoenau Open

JERUSALEM (A) — remier Golda Meir says she believes the flow of Jews from the Soviet Union will continue despite her failure to get Austria to let the Schoenau transit camp continue to operate.

Mrs. Meir returned to Israel Tuesday night after a fruitless 90-minute meeting in Vienna with Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky.

She told reporters she was "very sad" about Kreisky's insistence on fulfilling his promise to Arab terrorists to close the facility 20 miles south of Vienna. The Jewish Agency had processed emigrants from the Soviet Union at the centre before flying them to Israel.

Asked whether she expected the closing of the camp to cut the movement of Soviet Jews through Austria, Mrs. Meir replied: "I hope not . . . I believe not."

Mrs. Meir was to meet with her cabinet today to discuss the situation.

Mrs. Meir said the most convenient solution would be to flie the emigrants direct from Moscow to Tel Aviv, but this could only be done with the approval of the Soviet government. It appeared unlikely that the Kremlin would co-operate in such an arrangement because of the opposition of its allies.

Kreisky told a news conference after his meeting with Mrs. Meir he had proposed that the United Nations high commissioner for refugees, Prince Sadruddin Khan, take over the Schoenau camps. But he said she was "not very impressed.

"Perhaps she did not think it was very realistic.

Arab and Soviet opposition appears likely to rule out any such UN role. An official at the high commissioner's office in New York said it was doubtful that the Jews passing through Austria could be classified as refugees since they had left the Soviet Union legally and had an assured destination.

Kreisky stressed that he was not going to bar individual emigrants from passing through Austria; "only the special facilities we have been able to grant so far will not longer be available." He said his government feels it cannot protect the camp adequately against Arab terrorist attacks.

Mrs. Meir said she and her cabinet will discuss the offer of the Netherlands to take over as the main route for the immigrants from Russia. She called the Dutch proposal "a moving gesture."

Kreisky defended his capitulation to the two Arab gunmen who seized three emigrating Soviet Jews and an Austrian border guard last Friday and released them only after he promised to close Schoenau.

Foreigners Draw Job Insurance

TORONTO (CP) — A senior official of the immigration department said Tuesday that more than 3,000 migrant workers from such countries as Portugal and Italy are drawing unemployment insurance benefits from Canada.

He said the seasonal workers have been flying to Canada for years as "visitors" and working in seasonal construction jobs from May until October. In October, they register with Unemployment Insurance Commission offices and have their cheques sent to mail drops in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver.

"Then they fly back home with their loot and enjoy it all winter—and, those unemployment cheques from Canada don't hurt a bit," he said.

He said they are employment here by obtaining social insurance cards which do not require proof of identity.

Some get as many as five social insurance cards under five different names and are paid under different part-time employment identities, he said. Another gimmick used by the workers is to claim the maximum number of dependents for income tax purposes "although many are single men".

Workers Losing Battle of Inflation, Prices Outrace Wages

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian workers are losing the battle of inflation after three months of extraordinarily sharp rises in living costs that more than wiped out wage gains, latest government figures show.

Statistics Canada reported Tuesday that the average wage of four million workers—nearly half of Canada's work force, and concentrated in the highest-paying industries—declined in Canada a week to $151.35 in July.

The decreased wages can be attributed to various reasons—the number of workers unemployed because of strikes during the month, shorter working hours because of holidays and the traditionally higher number of low-paid employees, such as students, during July.

The drop, coupled with the 2.3-per-cent jump in consumer prices in June, July and August, put the average worker's wage behind rising prices for the first time in this year of Canada's worst inflation since 1951.

The July wage figures of $151.36 a week was $11.64 above July of 1972, but the 7.7-per-cent rise in living costs over the same period wiped out $11.64 a week in increasing power for a net loss of 78 cents a week.

August's steepest monthly rise in living costs in 22 years is likely to make the workers' deficit even greater.

The wage reports cover forestry, mining, manufacturing, construction, trade, finance, insurance, real estate and service industries. They do not include wages of the other half of Canada's work force in agriculture, fishing and trapping, education, health and welfare services, religious organizations or government employment.

In a breakdown by provinces, Statistics Canada reported average wage figures for Ontario for July, based on initial reports, as $160.40, down $1.06 from June and up $11.14 over the year.

British Frigates Leave Cod Waters

LONDON (AP) — Three British frigates and three unarmed naval tugs prepared to sail out of disputed fishing waters around Iceland today and avert the imminent Iceland's threat to break diplomatic relations with her North Atlantic Treaty Organization ally.

The frigates and the big ugs were not to return home, however. They were ordered to begin patrolling just outside the 50-mile limit unilaterally proclaimed by Iceland 13 months ago.

Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain warned that the ships will move back inside the disputed zone if Icelandic warships renew their harassment of British trawlers. The trawlers are ignoring Iceland's orders to stay clear of the fishing grounds.

Iceland said its four gunboats will go on hunting what it calls pirate trawlers in the 50-mile zone.

"The coast guard will keep on defending the fishing limit," said Foreign Minister Einar Agustsson. "It depends on the behavior of the British trawler captains if there will be any incidents at sea."

Britain, like most countries, only recognizes a 12-mile fishing limit. Iceland maintains it must have exclusive fishing rights in all waters within 50 miles of its border to maintain its vital fishing industry.

Heath also ordered a halt order to the ships Tuesday, 12 hours before Reykjavik's deadline for breaking of relations between the two NATO allies if the navy ships were not withdrawn.

Pets Choke In Planes Is Claim

OTTAWA (CP) — Angela Heifferman, an Ottawa doctor and director of the city's Humane Society, says a six-month study shows airliners cold-bloodedly commercial lacks concerning the number of animals abused and killed on planes.

"There is an extremely high number of dead animals found in baggage," Dr. Heifferman says.

Dr. Heifferman said pets often suffer especially badly because the pressurized air in baggage compartments is not changed and the animals eventually breathe their own carbon dioxide.

Simpson-Sears Sells By Computer-phone

TORONTO (C) — A major department store has introduced a computer-age catalogue ordering system which has 2,000 customers ordering by pressing a series of numbers on touch-tone telephone at home.

Maurice Anderson, a divisional general manager of Simpson-Sears, said the experiment has been going on for three months and is limited to customers who have a 12-key touch-tone telephones in their homes.

Some push-button phones have only 10 keys, and their owners can't participate.

The customer presses a special number that connects directly with a computer which talks back in a computer-generated tinny monotone, telling the customer when to press the next series of numbers.

During the procedure the customer never talks, but merely follows the computer's instructions and presses the required digits.

Mr. Anderson said the computer first asks for the customer's telephone number, which it then checks for accuracy and compares the number with the shopper's street number.

The customer then presses the digits for the catalogue number of the desired item. For sizes, a numerical code has been developed.

If items are available in a variety of colors, the computer will ask the customer to press the catalogue code for the color.

Sidney's System Speeds Reaction To Fire Calls

Speed in arriving at a fire is almost as essential as having water to fight the blaze. With this in mind, the Sidney Township Fire Department has spent $20,000 to gain seconds.

As fire commissioner, John Carmuck put it . . . "When someone is standing out in the road watching his house burn, even two minutes seems like a long time. And the first question he'll ask is "what kept you so long."

The fire department's new radio dispatch system will shave those long seconds off those between the time firemen receive the call and the time they'll arrive at the fire site.

Phase one the department's new number (968-3111), and the system swings into action.

The distress call is received by either one of two base stations — Sidney Township municipal offices or Telephone Answering Service in Belleville. Each station is equipped with a 35-watt radio which beams a signal to a 300-foot antenna on the Oak Hills. Whether the fire is in the west or east division of the township, monitors carried by 33 of the town ship's 40 volunteer firemen will screech the fire signal.

The fireman need not pick up the phone, the monitors, just larger than a package of cigarettes, screech and speak. Unlike some systems which force the fireman to carry what is essentially a small suitcase, these monitors can be tucked inside a shirt pocket.

Further safeguards are built into the system. Should the base station operator not receive a call from a division's radio equipped fire truck indicating firemen are on their way, he can immediately call out the other division. The township is split in two divisions — east and west — by White's Road.

John Aquino, fire chief, noted another benefit. Using either a fire-truck-mounted radio, or the portable transmitter-receiver he eats and sleeps with, he will "be sure as hell" he's out at a fire where there is no telephone, we can call back for an ambulance. Or, in winter, we can call maintenance crews (also radio equipped) if we need a truck to plow a road to get to the fire."

Although some problems with the positioning and strength of the antenna have been experienced, they will soon be ironed out. Budget allocations have already been made to provide the other 16 firemen with monitors.

Previously, west division firemen were equipped with telephones that rang simultaneously at a call from the chief. However, such a system could not be installed in the east division because the 100 volunteers have been prohibitive. West division firemen live close together — in or near Batawa. If a fire occurred in the east, Mr. Aquino said he'd call Maple Haven Nursing Home where a staff member would then telephone each individual fireman. The home has staff working around the clock.

Running A Test

Hundreds Flee Gas

west of New Norway, has 80. Gwynne is eight miles west of Bittern Lake.

Twenty-five RCMP cars were involved in the evacuation alert, which a spokesman said was done through radio and television stations and "travelling from farm to farm where possible."

The evacuees went to emergency relief centres in Camrose and Wetaskiwin, about 20 miles northwest of the well.

Gas detection equipment was set up throughout Camrose, where a few men were reported to have been taken to hospital suffering from chest pains. The first symptoms of exposure to hydrogen sulphide gas are chest pains and sore throats.

After issuing the evacuation alert, RCMP closed off sections of Highways 21, 13 and 53 to the north, south and east of the affected region, as well as an area east of Camrose. Highway 13 was reopened at about midnight.

About 300 evacuees had registered at the civic centre in Wetaskiwin and officials estimated another 300 were staying with relatives or friends in the community.

Most of the evacuees in Wetaskiwin were billetted in private homes.

The affected area is prime cattle-raising country and the gas would take a heavy toll of livestocks.

Attempts to stop the poisonous emissions by igniting the gas flow were stymied by the water also pouring from the well.

A Sun Oil spokesman said repair crews were conducting regular maintenance work on the well when it began to blow sour gas, oil and water and "got it away from them."

Trenton Preliminary

Adjourn Hearing For Final Witness

TRENTON — The preliminary hearing into a charge of non-capital murder against a Trenton woman has been adjourned two weeks.

The prosecution Tuesday called its last witness during the second day of the hearing. But, on a special request from defence counsel, provincial Judge R. J. Jackson adjourned the hearing until Oct. 17.

Defence lawyer Joseph Dewhurst, of Kingston, was granted his request for adjournment so a final witness could be called.

The witness, was described by Judge Jackson as "one of those hard-to-locate people."

During Tuesday's six-hour session, witnesses included a neighbor of the defendant Barbara Smith, 23, — charged in the death of serviceman James Robbage, 25, — a coroner's report and the reports of investigating police officers.

Mrs. Smith was charged with non-capital murder by Trenton police July 15. The court has ordered against publication of the hearing proceedings. Mrs. Smith is on bail. Cpl. Robinson was stationed at the Canadian Forces Base here.

Trucker Hurt, $59,000 Cargo Damaged Near Tweed

TWEED (Special)—A Smiths Falls man is in the intensive care unit at Belleville General Hospital following an accident at 12:45 a.m. today in which the cab of the tractor trailer he was driving on Highway 37, a mile south of Highway 7, was demolished.

Donald Edwards, 40, was driving the vehicle from Perth, with a load of long playing records and stereo tapes valued at $59,000. Police say he was thrown from the cab before it hit a tree, as the transport went out of control. The trailer jack-knifed, damaging its cargo. A crane was sent from King-ston to right the trailer and officials from the record company were expected to visit the scene to salvage undamaged items.

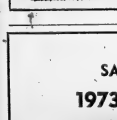
DESERONTO — Town council here has been asked to pass a bylaw covering construction of a community centre on town property.



Clarence Zieman, campaign manager for Deseronto and District Community Arena, also asked council to apply for a forgivevable loan for the project under a senior government winter works program.

Council was to discuss the arena request in more detail at a later committee meeting.

W. J. Barlow: 35 Years Paperwork

For Township Veteran:

Much Work, Many Changes

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

How the increasing popularity of the automobile and the demand for more and better roads has spiralled the cost of municipal road expenditures is a topic recalled by William J. Barlow, longtime clerk of Rawdon township.

Now in his 36th year as municipal clerk, Mr. Barlow recalls that when he assumed office early in 1938, municipal road work was still being done by statute labor.

(Statute labor was a system under which local road work was the responsibility of farmers on the basis of so many days' work per thousand dollars assessment.)

In 1938, the year after Mr. Barlow became clerk, his municipality abolished statute labor and set up its present road department.

A road superintendent was hired and all road work was paid for by the township. Total amount of the township's first road bylaw was $6,500.

By contrast, Rawdon's 1973 road bylaw was for $100,000.

But there have also been many other changes in municipal administration since the one-time Rotarian general merchant took on the duties of clerk during the closing days of the 1930's big depression.

In 1938, the township paid its auditor $25 to audit the municipal books. The tab now has gone to more than $700 with less work involved.

In 1938, township ratepayers paid a tax levy of 10 to 77.3 mills depending on the levy for their own school section.

This was made up of 11 mills county, 1.8 mills general township rate, 1.5 mills for roads, 6 mills special school rate and from 3 to 6 mills school section rate.

This year the total levy is 90 mills — made up of 25.3 mills county, general township rate 16.8 and a whopping 47.9 mills for schools' work.

Advent of the county school system four years ago resulted in a lessening of work in one phase of a clerk's duties.

Back when Mr. Barlow took office, Rawdon had 22 different school sections, including six union schools. Each of the school sections had different school rates — all of which had to be figured out by the clerk.

Now the one school rate applies throughout the township.

Under the county system all the 22 township schools are now closed with pupils of elementary school age going to classes at Stirling and Marmora. Students of high school age are bused to Madoc and Belleville.

In 1938, the township's total tax roll, for county, township and school purposes was $42,000. This year the tab is up to $182,324 — a figure already reduced by heavy government grants and subsidies.

As a young man Mr. Barlow started work at freight clerk with the CPR at Tweed and Bonarlaw. But, after four years with the railway, he decided to go into business on his own.

In 1925 he became a partner in Bell and Barlow, the general store business at Bellrlaw. His partner died in 1944 and Mr. Barlow carried the business on alone until 1965 when he sold the store. The post office business at Bonarlaw was carried on in conjunction with the store operation.

So, from 1938 when he took on the clerkship, Mr. Barlow actually wore three hats — merchant, postmaster and township clerk, — until he sold the store eight years ago.

Although a township official for many years, Mr. Barlow has never had any desire to run for public office.

He says, however, that he has been asked many times to run for reeve or councillor.

Even after holding the clerk's position more than 35 years, Mr. Barlow has no immediate plans for retirement.

But that could be changed by the trend toward regionalization or amalgamation.

As result of a scheme for amalgamation proposed by the county regional reform committee, Mr. Barlow says there is talk of Rawdon joining up with Stirling village to become one municipality.

"When amalgamation comes I am through," he says.

Crowe Conservation Group Draws Criticism at Marmora

Ralph Neal, Marmora's representative on the Authority, laid a series of complaints about the Authority's operation before council this week.

This included lack of interest — or action — on the part of Authority officials and poor communication between various committees, particularly the water control committee.

Mr. Neal claimed the Authority was making no effort to implement engineering recommendations made in 1962.

The organization's constitution calls for at least three meetings a year, but has, generally, met only once a year, Mr. Neal claimed.

Reeve Jack Reynolds said village council had felt for some time it was not the Authority. He said a recent bill submitted by the village for replacing stop logs at Marmora dam on the Crowe River had been returned unpaid. Council felt payment came within the Authority's financial jurisdiction.

The dam, said the reeve, also benefits neighboring Marmora township and other municipalities upstream on the river.

Mr. Neal said the Authority's water control committee had inspected the dam and decided work was needed on a bad leak to be secured for the work but must first be dried.

Councillor Grant Akhart told bulletin logs on the dam had not been changed in 14 years and current low water levels made for an ideal repair opportunity.

Unite For Library Board

MARMORA — Village council has adopted a draft agreement, subject to some minor changes, prepared by the villages legal advisors for a combined local library board serving three municipalities.

The agreement calls for a board comprised of five appointed members, consisting of two from Marmora, two from Marmora and Lake townships and one from Deloro village. These hold office for two years, and must reside in the municipality they represent.

Financial sharing formula for the library's operating 1974 budget was recommended as: Marmora Village, $1000; Marmora and Lake, $500 and Deloro Village $400.

Mill Near Algonquin

BARRYS BAY, Ont. (CP) — McRae Lumber Co., which operates a sawmill in Algonquin Park, has been licenced to build a new mill near but outside the park boundary, an official of the ministry of natural resources said Tuesday.

Regional forester H. J. Henry said the new mill will be a scaled-down version of standard sawmills, designed to process low-grade, short length, small-diameter logs economically.

The tendency in the past has been "to avoid processing such species due to exorbitant processing costs in standard-sized mills," Mr. Henry said. The new mill "reflects renewed ministry insistence on sound management practice such as the remedial extraction of deformed trees and undesirable species to promote vigorous growth of high-quality trees.

The province is establishing an Algonquin Park Authority to supervise all timber cutting in the park.

Separatism Unacceptable

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa says separatism is "unacceptable in its economic and social consequences" and his Liberals are the only clearly federalist party in Quebec.

Besides difficulties that would be involved in setting up a workable monetary union with Canada, as the Parti Quebecois proposes, Mr. Bourassa cited Tuesday the "vast wealth of northern Canada which we will lose if we separate."

He said Creditiste leader Yvon Dupuis "is skating" on this issue. Mr. Dupuis opposes Quebec's separation from Canada but says the question would have to be settled in a referendum.

The Discipline Bit

One of Ian Acton's most enduring memories of his year at school in South Africa has to do with discipline.

There was the getting used to it, helped along by some personal experience, and now there is the business of getting used all over again to the "casualness" of school here.

The personal experience? Well the Belleville Collegiate student was caned along with 30 other boys for being in the wrong place at morning assembly, while 25 girls got detention.

Acton describes a complex ritual in which first the boys stand en masse at assembly, then the girls. Everybody is standing though when the principal enters, takes his place at the front and says "Good Morning," to which the students reply "Good Morning Sir." Once, while "looking at the girls," the Belleville student sat down the same time as the rest did when he should have remained standing.

All this took place at the high school in Dundee, Natal, a community of 6,000 white South Africans and 15,000 non-whites — Bantu, Indians and coloured. And Acton's year there was under the Rotary exchange program.

The students in this school wear uniform. And ... so many rules. Hair must be an inch and a half above the collar and must not touch the ears. The girls must wear their skirts not more than five inches above the bottom of the knee cap, and no jewelry other than a watch.

Now we are sure this works very well in South Africa and in other places following school discipline British style. As one Rotarian (the BCI student was describing his experiences to the Rotary Club here) noted, similar discipline is meted out in private schools in Canada. Undoubtedly we could do with a little bit of it in our State schools too, but in all probability it is too late. The schools in Canada have gone too far in the other direction, in the ways of freedom. Try to introduce tight discipline and who knows what would happen. For better or worse, we are stuck with the system we have.

What was young Acton's own opinion of it, a Rotarian who is a clergyman asked.

"They can have it," he replied.

Of course these are not his only memories. Acton got around to quite an extent. He address:d Rotary Clubs in Johannesburg and three other centres and visited a Game Reserve. He was also at three English-speaking and two Afrikaans-speaking families, the latter the language of the people of Dutch background and a mixture of Dutch and German and other tongues. Once he addressed a "Rotaryanne's" women's group numbering 350.

One significant plus in South African life, Acton found family life quite close because there are "no distractions such as television" and this permitted "quite a few warm family discussions."

Anyone for bed around 8 or 9 p.m.? That was another concomitant of the "no distractions" life in Dundee, Natal!

Silly Season

Those records the kids of Confederation High in Ottawa established recently — like kissing for nine hours — may get into the record books all right, but it's hope they are hitting the school books again as well.

A little "silly season" stuff is good for the soul, fo be sure, perhaps even conducive to betterment of humanity as classified, but sometimes we wonder if the image of modern youth might be served in better fashion — and remembering that all this took place in our capital city, perhaps will contest — or setting aside another day, devoted say to raising funds for the needy, visiting shutins, that sort of thing, and recognizing also that our young people frequently do display much thoughtfulness and community spirit.

Come to think of it, adults act pretty silly at times, when all around it is the youngsters who are displaying maturity. A strange mixture indeed is homo sapiens.

Next Election Likely to Be Fought on Inflation Issue

By FARMER TESSINGTON
...Thomson News Service

OTTAWA — If the next general election is fought on the issue of inflation, as seems likely, then Canadians will be deluged with many conflicting reports and statistics as governments and opposition parties try to put the best, or the worst, face on the country's economic performance.

Government spokesmen have been blaming the rise in food and other prices largely on their international situation, a point to high rates of industrialized nations. They note the crop failures, increasing world demand for food and energy supplies, the time lag between demand and supply, panic stockpiling and even currency realignments have all played a role in forcing up commodity prices in the major nations.

Opposition parties reluctantly admit the truth of this argument but claim the present governments' record is not as good as it should be and that Canada has suffered more from inflation in some areas than comparable nations.

Two of the major and most respected international reports on inflation to be published by the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development and the International Monetary Fund.

The OECD is the 24 - member nation organization based in Paris and it is the body investigating the behavior of the consumer price index in eight industrial nations. Its latest period ending in mid-year. For all goods and services, Canada ranks fourth with a rise of 8.1 per cent in the consumer index. The United States the most recent had the best performance, followed by France at 7.4 and West Germany at 7.9 per cent. Italy had the poorest record at 11.5 and Japan's was almost as bad at 11.1 per cent increase in the year.

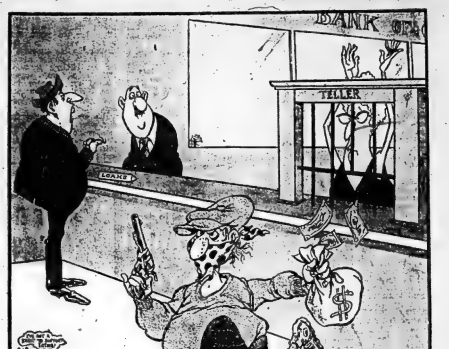
But it is the cost of food that affects people, the most and usually draws the most headlines and the attention of consumers. In this category alone, the Canadian performance has been the worst with a jump of 15.1 per cent in the year. The United States was not much better at 14.7 per cent and Italy was third poorest at 13.7.

The annual international Monetary Fund report, released recently, does not deal with specific statistical matter but makes general observations on the inflationary problems and suggests methods by which nations might counteract the trend.

There seems to be a growing belief that the task of governments to use a wide range of policy instruments to policies, manpower policies and the like," the IMF report declares.

It goes on to say that this viewpoint reflects the disappointing experience many countries have had in relying solely on fiscal and monetary policies to handle inflation. It notes that many countries have been making use of incomes policy to suggest this is sensible as it helps achieve better resources utilization and price stability.

This is grist for the Conservatives mill as the Tories are the only party to come out strongly in favor of at least temporary wage, price and profit controls.



One Conservation MP, Sinclair Stevens, recently made a detailed study in Canadian food prices for 15 common items in seven cities in Canada and the United States. His conclusion is that Canadian food prices now overtaken the levels in the U.S. even though the statistics on the other side. He notes that personal disposal income, the amount available to Canadians after payment of direct taxes, is up 13 per cent over a year ago and the real increase in income, the amount available after taxes and discounting the rise in inflation, was up 6.2 per cent in the first half of this year. And Canadians are managing to save at a record rate of 8.5 per cent of their available income after taxes.

It wasn't many months ago opposition politicians were declaring that unemployment was the major issue in Canada. But since some improvement in recent months and with newspaper classified columns filled with new jobs, politicians in declaring that unemployment is the issue.

They claim there are plenty of jobs for those who want to work but generous unemployment insurance, welfare and other benefits cause many to shy away from a steady 12-month a year job.

This sort of statement refers primarily to the more industrialized and wealthier provinces and does not alter the fact that unemployment rates remain disappointingly high in the poorer provinces. The Liberals are proud to quote figures showing that money jobs have been created in the first seven months of this year than in any comparable period and that the year - over - year rate of growth in employment was 31 per cent greater than in the US.

If the Conservatives and New Democrats hope to make substantial gains from the government in the next election, whether it is this fall or 1974, their best bet seems to be in the cost of living — inflation in fact. Even here, voters will become confused as the competing parties trot forth statistics to prove that his better their own chances, while confusing over those that prove embarrassing.

Henry Kissinger Is No Stranger to Canada

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

In his days in academe he performed brilliantly here on several occasions, as well as during his visit to the 1961 Couchiching Conference at Orillia, Ont., of the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs on Diplomacy in Evolution.

That summer, this famous Canadian thinkers' conference concentrated on such subjects as arms limitation, nuclear weapons, detente between East and West, the very meat then and now of Dr. Kissinger's profound foreign policy expertise.

The mood of that conference was definitely for conciliation between East and West, a mood which Dr. Kissinger responded to admirably if this columnist can accurately remember his paper called, Realities of War.

In the wider arena of world affairs Secretary of State Kissinger's intellectual interest in detente was the basis for bringing about an accord over Vietnam and for his understanding of the time and long negotiation needed to do this.

In the much narrower area of Canada-United States relations, one hopes his former academic association with many Canadians, some now in high political and government offices, will make a difference at the State Department.

A casual participant at Couchiching Conference of these years was another former academic, namely Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau. But it was External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and not the prime minister who made the first contact at the United Nations with Dr. Kissinger as the new Secretary of State.

Secretary of State Kissinger hasn't had time to prepare himself fully on Canadian-American affairs although he is probably aware the honeymoon in our relations with the U.S. on such matters economic and political which still existed intact when he came here as a scholar, has now gone.

When he is enamored in office, Dr. Kissinger can make use of a unique division of the policy department created by his predecessor, namely the office of the assistant under secretary for Canadian affairs.

No other nation including the giant nations with whom America must maintain sound relations—Japan, the USSR, West Germany—receive such special organizational treatment in the state department's doors cupids. And Rufus Z. Smith the effigist in charge has had very wide diplomatic experience in the U.S. Embassy in Ottawa both during the 1960s and 1970s. So there is really no excuse for ignorance about us by the new Secretary of State.

What might still happen despite all this is a future low priority for Canada in overall US foreign policy. Already there are rumors Presidents Nixon's fall European tour has been cancelled in exchange for some fence-mending with the Japanese.

Fence-mending is also needed in Canada-US relations and a wider understanding in Washington of our energy, pollution and foreign ownership problems.

Tyendinaga Seminar

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In your paper of Monday, September 24, you carried an article on the editorial page referring to a seminar which was held on the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve on September 24 and 25.

The article was quite correct in one respect — the meeting was not held with representatives of the Ontario Public Service Commission, but with Commissioner Irene E. Johnson and other senior representatives of the Public Service Commission of Canada from Ottawa.

Clarification by your paper on this point would be appreciated and at the same time a vote of thanks to Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte who were so kind to host a most productive meeting.

Citizens' Bureau Praised

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

There seems to be much controversy and lack of support for a fine organization like the Citizens Bureau.

Organizations of this kind are what is required to protect people, but due to lack of funds to seek professional help, or the lack of educational knowhow to attack their problems in the right quarters, go for long periods of time frustrated because they cannot get satisfaction.

I personally had a problem in getting such benefits allowed to my wife from the UIC for which she was entitled and after a period from July 8 and countless phone calls to people, I could never seem to reach, finally went to the Citizens Bureau at the end of August. There I had my problem solved immediately, treated extremely cordially, not asked how much money I had or if I knew what counted, but asked to sit down and explain my problem, which I might add to be in a few well placed phone calls has was settled within a few days.

Granted this organization operates on public funds but value is received for everyone who wishes to go to the bureau, as much value that is received for driving on a new street built by taxpayers' dollars.

Sex Education Endorsed

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

As a Separate school ratepayer, I should like to reply to the letter Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Simboli in your Sept. 25 issue.

As a parent whose child attends one of the schools in which the program of Family Life Education is to be introduced, I can say that I heartily endorse the whole concept. Parents have had ample opportunity to become informed and more opportunities will be presented as the program progresses. My husband and I have attended lectures, watched films and slide presentations by Mr. Ed Reagan. We were impressed by his sincerity and the sensitivity displayed in the slides and films.

The idea is not to instruct the child solely in sexual matters but rather to show him a path toward healthy, well - adjusted adulthood. Surely no parent wishing a good life for his child could object to this goal.

Sexuality is only one side of the spectrum but it certainly seems to be the thing on which most of the objecting parents are hung up. If, as parents, we are to do our job and imparting information on sexual matters as our children require it, then, in all probability, they will learn nothing new in these areas. On the other hand, if we are not or cannot (because of our shyness or discomfort) what better sex can be our children to obtain except from their parents. Perhaps some of us are sexual cripples but must not inflict such a disability on our children?

No classroom will ever teach a child to be moral. If his parents are either immoral or amoral because these concepts

Party's View

Montreal La Presse: The 72-point manifesto adopted by the superior council of the Creditiste party is clearly people-oriented.

For example, the Creditistes propose to give more help and aid to students, the underprivileged, the handicapped, the infirm and the aged. Everyone over the age of 60 would receive a guaranteed minimum annual income. A housewife would receive a salary and could benefit from a 1,000 grant for several vocations.

Once again, all this is designed to please an important sector of the population. More will be helped by those who have less, assurance is given to those who have been disconcerted by changes in the education field, the fears of those concerned about the evolution of our social and moral climate are appeased.

What strikes us about this manifesto is the rather blurred nature of some of its proposals. It is filled with generalizations and little about it is precise.

For example, what will be the nature of the guaranteed annual income? What will the housewife receive? And what will these social measures cost?

These manifesto does not speak of tax increases. It suggests the abolition of school taxes. But here are all the improvements in schooling proposed by the manifesto to be financed?

will always be learned in the home environment. But perhaps the children can perceive the notion that the human body is God-given and good and should be used for holier purposes — never cheapened or degraded. To distort or disguise these facts is a distortion of the Creator and certainly no true Christian clergy could induced. I can say that I heartily endorse the whole concept. Parents have had ample opportunity to become informed and more opportunities will be presented as the program progresses. My husband and I have attended lectures, watched films and slide presentations by Mr. Ed Reagan. We were impressed by his sincerity and the sensitivity displayed in the slides and films.

Ontario Prices Board Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition members attacked Tuesday what they termed lack of government action to control rising food costs, and called on the Ontario legislature for a prices review board to act as a public watchdog.

The charges came during an emergency debate on food costs, which was requested by Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, and agreed upon by Premier William Davis.

While agreeing to the debate, Premier Davis repeated what he had said before—that the real attacks on the problem will have to be made by the federal government.

Food prices, he said, are part of a broader problem of inflation.

He said he hoped to have a "non-partisan" discussion on inflation in the legislature next week, and called also for a federal-provincial conference to discuss the problem.

Mr. Lewis said some of the profits made by chains at the retail food level are "absolutely indefensible."

The NDP leader called for a food-prices tribunal which could conduct the "most vigorous and exhausting examination" of food-price increases and would have the power to roll back prices if the increase wasn't justified.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon said there is "something in the matter with the policies of the Tories. The inconsistencies are appalling."

The Liberal leader also said it is up to the government to ensure that farmers "are not given short shrift" because of greed at other levels of marketing.

John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial affairs, said there is evidence that the retail food stores aren't making as much of a profit as Mr. Lewis suggested, and investment counsellors are advising not to invest in retail chains.

"The inflationary trends are not peculiar to this province and this country but are common throughout the free world," said Mr. Clement.

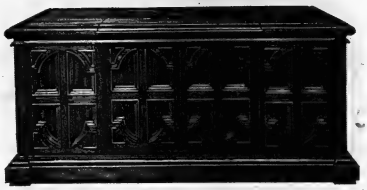
He said that unless the income of farmers continues at its present plateau there would be no increase in food production in Canada.

Michael Cassidy (NDP—Ottawa East) said the legislature has heard "an awful lot about farmers and game birds about consumers."

"The government has not shown an ounce of initiative to solve the problems in Ontario," said. "The government's performance has been deplorable."

Treasurer John White said food prices are going up all over the world "and the reason is there is a worldwide shortage of foodstuffs."



Bus Fuss

BLACKPOOL, England (CP) — Council officials of this seaside resort were angered at the appearance of a bright-yellow, double-decker bus emblazoned with the slogan "Bournemouth for Sun, Sea and Sand." Blackpool council accused Bournemouth of breaking a gentleman's agreement that you don't take your advertising bases into rival resorts.

One way

it's still Electrohome component stereo performance.

Because there's an all-new Electrohome solid state component receiver at the heart of every full sized 1974 Electrohome stereo.

Choose the basic Electrohome component receiver and you start with a fully featured model in one of three power ranges. 100 watts, 150 watts. Or 300 watts, peak music power. Each one includes all the refinement stereo buffs look for in a quality stereo component, including AFC, filters, flywheel tuning, stereo indicator light, the works. And built in four-channel sound circuitry in every model.

From there, you can add extras to your Electrohome stereo as you like 'em. Matching DUAL and Electrohome record changers. Built-in 8-track tape players. Extension speakers. Casette decks. The works.

Even a Delcraft cabinet.

There are thirteen new Electrohome console stereo models to choose from, with the performance of Electrohome component stereo all wrapped up in the warmth of a hand-rubbed Delcraft furniture cabinet. Same control panel. Same chassis and features. Same component performance.

The best place to experience 1974 Electrohome stereo is, naturally enough, at your Electrohome dealer's. In either basic component or bedecked console.

The choice is yours.

But the quality is all ours.

In India

Aristocrats Turn to Welfare Work

TANJORE, India (CP) — This city in southern India is known for its ancient temples housing diamond-studded Hindu gods, museums, brilliant lawyers and musicians.

It is also famous for its aristocratic women. Belonging to wealthy landlord clans, they are privately educated and some have as many as a dozen servants.

These women have recently decided, as one well-preserved grandmother put it at a women's club meeting, "to move with the times and get in tune with the spirit of the new India."

Some half a dozen welfare organizations financed by rich women have sprung up in Tanjore and adjoining areas. As Kamala Duraiswami, wife of a prosperous textile merchant, put it: "We wish to be of some use to poor people. No family in Tanjore should have reason to feel that it cannot send a child to school or to a hospital for medical treatment."

So far, at least 700 poor children have found it possible to get admission in the city's schools. "We speak to the principal or say the school fees if it is not a free school," said Parvati Ramanathan.

Mrs. Ramanathan, a graduate of Madras University, has started a kindergarten for the children of slum residents. Every day she spends four hours teaching.

Other Tanjore women visit hospitals to give food baskets to poor patients and toys to destitute children. Recently, a desperately-ill child was taken by the wife of a landlord to Madras, 250 miles away, for specialized treatment.

A group of wives led by Gouri Govindrachari, a law graduate, have started a small circulating library for poor school children.

Many of the Tanjore women's movement's leaders belong to the higher Hindu castes which generally frown on fraternization with members of lower castes.

"Caste walls are breaking down and should be broken down," said Mythili Varada chari, a rich widow belonging to the aristocratic Brahmin caste. She recalled that her mother never touched a member of other castes all her life.

Mrs. Varadachari has opened a kitchen for landless farm workers at the back of her sub-urban bungalow where on Sunday mornings as many as 100 people are fed.

Ann Landers

Nice Guy Lonesome Girls Just Laugh

Dear Ann Landers: Your answer to Living Proof (the guy who never had an honest-to-goodness date because he was turned down so many times he just gave up) was very sweet, but you've lived an awfully sheltered life, lady.

I am also Living Proof (age 37). I gave up looking for Miss Right after the third girl (in succession) did everything but laugh in my face when I asked her for a date.

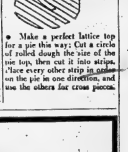
I'm a former school teacher, who now runs his own garbage company. It isn't a big business, just 19 trucks and 23 employees. But I don't owe one cent. I pay good wages to my men and I am proud to be improving the quality of life in this area.

I'm average-looking, have no bad habits, and there are no skeletons in my closet. But I gave up hope of finding anybody decent about five years ago. Now it doesn't hurt so much. At my age there are very few unpicked flowers around. Most of them are pretty shopworn, if not worn out. Face it, Annie, nice guys DO finish last. Sign me—Lonesome

Dear Lonesome: Sorry, I don't buy it. If I printed your name and address you'd be deluged with invitations. For, every lonesome guy in this world there are two lonesome girls. And some of the girls are attractive and decent. Any man who gives up looking for a wife at 32 doesn't want to get married.

And now a word to all you lonesome girls out there: Please, don't ask me for this bird's address. He didn't send it. And even if he had, I wouldn't pass it on. This isn't that kind of column.

Dear Ann Landers: Just wanted to thank you for the column telling the symptoms of high blood pressure. I, too, had been irritable, not very amorous and plagued with headaches, but I didn't think it was anything serious enough to look into. But when Ann Landers says, "See your doctor," I do as she says. And what a lucky thing for me that I did.



Imagine how shocked I was to learn that my blood pressure was 170 over 110, which is high for a 29-year-old woman. The cause was a kidney infection I didn't know I had. So now I am taking antibiotics and other medicine and hope to be my normal, sweet, sexy self again soon.

Thanks a million, Ann. You did me a tremendous favor—Mrs. D.A.S., O. City

Dear Mrs.: It was good of you to let me know. Tomorrow there will be another letter on the same subject. So those of you who don't know what Mrs. D.A.S. is talking about, please be sure and read this column

CAN BE REFROZEN

Partially-thawed food removed from a freezer can be safely refrozen if ice crystals are still present.

• Make a perfect lattice top for a pie this way: Cut a circle of rolled dough the size of the pie top, then cut it into strips. Place every other strip in one direction, and the others for cross pieces.

Empey-Macmillan

The marriage of Sharon Elaine MacMillan to Ross Holmes Empey took place in September at Bethesda United Church, White Lake, with Reverend D.W. Heard officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. James MacMillan of R.R. 3, Madoc, and the late James MacMillan. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Empey of Madoc.

Given in marriage by her brother, Raymond MacMillan, the bride wore an A-line style velvet gown designed by her sister. It featured long bell-sleeves trimmed with blue daisies, and had a train of French lace fastened to the shoulders with velvet bows. Her bouffant veil was secured with a rose, and she carried a bouquet of red roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Louis Barnard, the bride's sister, was matron of honor in a pink gown with a bouquet of pink mums.

Bridesmaids Susan Armstrong of Madoc and Eleanor Turcott of Stirling were yellow and mauve gowns with white accessories and carried matching flowers.

Kimberley MacMillan of Madoc and Ronda Empey of Whitby wore green gowns with white accessories and carried matching flowers.

Best man was the brother of the groom, Ron Empey.

Serving as ushers were Wendell Empey, brother of the groom, and Wayne Barnard, brother-in-law of the bride, of Brooklin.

Following a reception at the Madoc Legion Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Empey travelled to Niagara Falls. They now reside at 89 St. Lawrence Street, Madoc.

FOOD WILL KEEP

If your freezer stops ceasing, food will stay frozen about two days if it is fully loaded; about one day if partially filled.

Successful Living

No Man Is an Island

By DORIS CLARK

We can work like mad at digging out the weeds in our own garden, but if the man next door lets his dandelions flourish to the seeding stage, the first wind plants a brand new crop in our own back yard. If his dog barks incessantly we get a headache or are roused too early.

the price of food goes up and the person on fixed income finds it harder to make ends meet to put it mildly.

No single person can act without in one way or another affecting those around him. And the same thing goes for world concerns.

Air and water know no national boundaries, and what one country does affects another. DDT was used to rid crops of weeds. Its poisonous effects were carried through streams and oceans to pelicans 1,000 miles away, with the result that pelican eggs had soft shells; shells which cracked and trapped the little new pelican lives in the bud!

When a country insists on developing and testing nuclear weapons we can guarantee more disfigured children, more arms, legs, toes missing; more stillbirths. There are still people dying in Hiroshima as a result of the blast which took place in 1945.

As for cod fishing off our Canadian coasts — where do international boundaries begin? In the air how high is up? Where does the atmosphere end? Or does it?

An outbreak of smallpox in England brought about a requirement of vaccinations in Spain. The World Health Organization is immediately alerted when any country develops a disease to begin functioning at world level.

We have a universal postal union, international telecommunications for telphone cooperation and international agreements regarding commercial air travel.

But these facts in promoting the idea that no nation can live unto itself successfully. World Federalism presses for some form of world forum and world government.

Try to understand and support it when you can. It doesn't mean your own identity would be lost, either as a person or as a nation; it means that we now live in the World. It ought to be a regulated one, in which every human being can claim the right to a fair share of the world's good, the world's concern; and to individual dignity as one of a peaceful aggregation of well-organized fellow humans.

MR. AND MRS. BRIAN BOULET

Boulet - Alyea

Tabernacle United Church was the setting for the September wedding of Connie Lynn Alyea, daughter of Mrs. Rex Alyea and the late Rex Alyea, and Brian Joseph Boulet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gord Smith.

Rev. Leslie Dean officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Monty Alyea. She wore a gown of sheer over sharkskin with a sheer yoke and long sleeves, and a high neckline. Lace and sequin trim accentuated the gown from the shoulder line to the hem of the full skirt. Lace trimmed the detachable train and the full length veil which fell from a headpiece of lace and sequin. The bride carried her grandmother's Bible covered with lace, and with an attached bouquet of pink roses.

Sherrie Zandbergen, the bride's sister, was matron of honor in a peacock blue dress of brinkle organza with an empire waist and puff sleeves, trimmed with white and blue flowered lace. She carried a bouquet of white and blue mums.

Serving as best man was Ron Smith, brother of the groom.

The ushers were LeLwis Zandbergen and Ken Parsons.

Following a reception and dance at the Hotel Quinte's Fiesta Rooms, Mr. and Mrs. Boulet travelled to Niagara Falls. They now reside at 58 Geddes Street, Belleville.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Frank MacKenzie, Toronto, are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Janet to Stephen Foster Neale, son of Mr. Thomas Lacey, Belleville. The wedding will take place October 6 at West Hill United Church, West Hill, Ontario, at 4 p.m.

A Different Way to Talk Turkey

For most folks, Thanksgiving means turkey and that's that.

On the other hand, that same bread stuffing and cranberry sauce can get pretty stale year after year.

For variety, stick to turkey but dress it a different way. And try a jellied salad sort of a solid dessert with the extra taste appeal of cranberries.

Odd suggested menu geared to serve 8 to 12:

Roast Turkey
Sausage Dressing
Cranberry Apple Gelatin
Glazed Squash Rings with Peas
Hot Rolls
Pumpkin Pie

Turkeys these days aren't the tough old birds your mother roasted under cheesecloth for 12 hours Thanksgiving day.

To prepare your turkey for cooking, first thaw at room temperature in the original unopened bag. Poke a few holes in the bottom of the bag and set on rack in sink or shallow pan. It will take about one hour per pound to thaw the bird. When you're able, remove giblets and neck from body cavities. Store in refrigerator once its nearly thawed and cook within 24 hours. Rinse bird inside and out with cold running water and pat dry. You can then rub the bird in the refrigerator but it will take about five hours per pound.

Turkeys should be roasted in a shallow pan on a rack without a cover. A loose tent of aluminum foil, open at both ends, can be used. Brush the skin of the bird with melted butter if you wish.

Four hours should be sufficient to roast a 12 pound turkey at 325 degrees. It done when a leg pumps up and down easily.

Sausage Dressing

8 cups fresh bread cubes
1 cup butter
¾ cups chopped onion
1 cup celery, diced
1 tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. salt
2 lbs. ground shoulder pork
1 tsp. fennel seed

Melt butter in small skillet. Saute onions and celery, just till tender. Do not brown. Remove from skillet. Brown ground pork with fennel, salt and pepper. Do not fry crisp. Drain. Mix bread cubes, butter with celery and onions and meat in a large bowl. Dress turkey.

Cranberry Apple Gelatin

1 tbsp. gelatin
3 tbsp. water
2 cups cranberries
1 cup apple juice
one third to ¼ cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
¼ cup walnut pieces
1 cup finely diced celery
1 cup finely diced pared apple

Coak cranberries in apple juice until skins burst. Strain. Soften gelatin in water. Add sugar to juice, tasting for sweetness. Add salt. Stir in gelatin and chill. When thickened, stir in celery, walnuts and apple. To serve, unmold on salad greens and serve with real mayonnaise.

Glazed Squash Rings

4 large acorn squash
¼ cup brown sugar
½ cup butter
2 cups frozen peas.

Cut acorn squash into thick slices — about two inches. Remove seed, but do not peel. Brush oil lightly over both sides of each slice. Place on racks over hot water in shallow pan. Bake in oven with turkey about 45 minutes.

When the squash is done, heat brown sugar and butter in a heavy skillet over low heat. Meanwhile begin cooking peas. When brown sugar is bubbly — be careful not to burn it — add squash rings. Turn a few times to coat. Remove to warm platter. Surround and fill with cooked peas.

Pumpkin Pie

½ cup flour
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. ginger, mace, cinnamon ½ tsp. nutmeg
one third cup brown sugar
½ cup maple syrup
1 cup scalded milk
2 eggs, beaten
1¾ cups canned pumpkin
1 unbaked pie crust

Mix all ingredients. Bake blind (empty) shell five minutes, at 450. Remove from oven and add pie filling. Reduce oven temperature to 325 degrees. Place pie in oven immediately and bake 30 to 40 minutes until filling is firm.

Phoned Tip Produced $110-million in Drugs

ANKARA, Turkey (Reuter) — The telephone rang in a Turkish police station and an unknown informant passed on what must rank as one of the greatest tip-offs in the history of organized crime.

It was a call worth more than $110 million.

Speaking in the Arabic-laced southern Turkish accent, the caller said that a truck loaded with "mal" (contraband) would be travelling along the Mediterranean coast road between the towns of Mersin and Adana.

He gave Mersin Police Chief Resat Akkaya a full description of the vehicle and its number plate.

Police received the information immediately — false tip-offs are rife in Turkey — but once night a squad of men waved down an open truck as it trundled along the road, nine miles east of Mersin.

They unloaded the crates of fruit it was carrying and pulled off a tarpaulin. Underneath, police found two tons, 257 pounds of raw opium — Turkey's biggest-ever drug haul.

VALUE STAGGERING

Refined, this would boil down to 474 pounds of heroin with the staggering value of something like $113 million on the New York streets.

Turkish narcotics detectives traced the gang back to the central Turkish city of Konya, home of the whirling dervishes, capital of the Anatolian wheat belt and a stronghold of the so-called Turkish Mafia.

The opium had been buried underground for at least five years near Gaziantep, a smuggling centre close to the Syrian border. (Scientists believe five raw opium will remain in good condition buried underground for up to 300 years).

The opium load was destined for Beirut where it was to be refined into morphine base, the first stage of the conversion to heroin. From there it was probably to be shipped to Marseilles.

Detectives are still baffled by the identity of the telephone informant. Normally police informers in Turkey get one third of the haul's value as a reward.

The Mersin informant, perhaps in fear for his life, did not ask for payment.

The gang behind the haul are believed to include hajis (Moslem pilgrims to Mecca) and local politicians.

Since opium poppy cultivation was banned in Turkey last year, drug smugglers have begun digging up some of the opium, buried underground, much of it in Malatya, in mountainous eastern Turkey.

There now is evidence that they are beginning to feel the pressure of a renewed drive by Turkish and U.S. agents. Until recently opium was refined into morphine base in Turkey and usually carried by barge trucks to Europe.

Now the smugglers have reverted to their old practice of shipping the raw opium to Lebanon for refining," a narcotics department chief said.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

QUESTION: I am looking forward to my first weekend in Montreal. Have you any suggestions about taking in some of the sights and absorbing some of the atmosphere of the city?

ANSWER: The visitor to Montreal has a wide choice of tour itinerary and price. Gray Line Sightseeing Tours, Murray Hill Sightseeing Service and Montreal Transportation Commission companies. A taxi is a flexible, convenient way to see the city. Guides are available to ride in your own car.

The competency and fees of all guides are regulated by law. Guides must hold a certificate from the School of Tourism of Montreal; they must wear an official city badge; and they must produce on demand a valid tourist guide license. As they are not allowed to peddle their services, they must be engaged in person at the office of the tourist bureau: consult the Provincial Department of Tourism, Fish and Game in Place Ville Marie or the Montreal Municipal Tourist Bureau, 1010 Ste. Catherine St. W.

The walking tour of "Old Montreal" is a journey of the historic area beginning at Place Royal and D'Youville Square, the "cradle of Ville Marie", and proceeding east on St. Paul's Street, the oldest street in Montreal. On St. Sulpice St., bronze plaques are dedicated to the foundation of the first hotel, 1664, and the building of the first parish church of Ville Marie, 1656. Further up on St. Sulpice Street is Place d'Armes, the oldest financial district of Montreal which includes the monument to Paul de Chomedey, Sieur de Maisonneuve. On the south side of rue St. Sulpice is Notre Dame Church, "mother" church of Montreal. West on Notre Dame Street is the home of the first seigniors and first priests of Montreal. East on Notre Dame St. are the two old Court Houses, the new Palais de Justice, statue of Jean Vauquelin, a column erected for Admiral Nelson and farther on this street, Jacques Cartier Square and Bonsecours Market. On St. Paul St. is the Bon-Secours Chapel.

Montreal can compete with any major city in the wares and variety of wares available in its stores. The main shopping district is in the heart of the city, along Ste. Catherine, Sherbrooke and Ste. Catherine. Visitors are drawn by the prices on well-imported items as fine china, woolens, cashmere garments and perfumes.

Details on scheduled entertainment in and around Montreal are available from the several tourist bureaus and in the daily newspapers. The City of Montreal publishes a calendar of events, "Current Events," listing all cultural, social and events of the week. It is free and is obtainable at the Montreal Tourist Office.

As a major cosmopolitan centre, Montreal draws the best of the theatrical and concert worlds. Place des Arts is the city's showplace for all types of performances. Various musical programs and plays are also held at the three universities, certain churches and at privately owned clubs throughout the city. Movie houses are myriad, showing films from many countries. Some show movies only in French.

If your taste runs to the Nightlife, whether your mood is for an intimate little night-cap lounge with music and specialty or a full - fledged nightclub with dancing and floor shows, Montreal can fulfill it. Near - Eastern belly dancers, gusty German Gemutlichkeit, pop and art decorated discotheques, ragtime, Monmartre can be found or consulting a comprehensive burlesque are here for the listing of many of the latest popular nightspots may be found in "Current Events." Reservations are in order, especially on weekends.

Going by Hwy. 2, Montreal is about a four to four-and-a-half hour drive from Belleville.

Horsefly Hobby

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Cornelius Philip doesn't mind the hundreds of horseflies which occupy his office. In fact, he likes it that way. Philip, 25, is a tabanidologist, an entomologist who specializes in horseflies. During his half-century career he has identified and named 250 previously unknown horseflies. All of which are mounted and displayed in his office.

Weapons Seized

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Six months of heavy security precautions at Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport resulted in seizure of 208 items which officials labelled "dangerous." They included four guns, 19 knives and 16 tear gas containers. Scissors and containers of Mace also were taken from passengers.

Ignoring Seat Belt Saved Man from Death

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — The lone survivor of a small Japanese car involved in the carnage of a 35-vehicle collision last March apparently is alive today because he wasn't wearing a seat-belt that night.

Thomas Byrne's girl-friend and two other occupants of the car died in the crash. An inquest is being held here into their deaths and the deaths of nine others in that fatal jumble of fire, gasoline, lumber and heavy metal.

The five-member coroner's jury heard terror-laden tales Tuesday of rivers of fire, screaming victims, a lost baby and sudden death as witnesses told of the March 16 accident on Highway 400 just south of here.

Mr. Byrne, 26, of Toronto, was a passenger in a car being driven south on the highway by his friend, Peter Lisfont.

Mr. Byrne testified that he was turned around talking to Eileen Jones and Susan Reese, when he heard his friend Peter shout: "Jesus Christ."

A blur, then blackness, he testified. He woke up eight hours later in hospital. His three friends were dead and Mr. Byrne learned that he had been buried out of the death car.

One man—John Crow, 38, of Toronto—was fortunate enough to survive the holocaust but was later killed in a hunting accident. The statement he had given police was read into the evidence.

Dennis Moffatt, his wife and mother were among the fortunate.

Their car was almost in the middle of the 35-vehicle tangle as car after car slammed into the wreck, turning the collision into a full-scale disaster.

Mr. Moffatt, 32, testified that visibility was near zero shortly before the crash. He stopped his car, he said, but then was struck from behind with enough force to burble his car forward into the wreckage. Then, he said, the impacts came more frequently from the rear.

Mr. Moffat said fire poured in through the shattered window as he pulled his unconscious mother out through the open back door. He described the scene as "canopy of lumber" from spilled wood.

Other evidence Tuesday included traffic accident statistics from Tom Mahoney, administrator of transportation safety for the ministry of transportation and communications.

He said there had been no accidents on that stretch of highway in January and only two in February. He said it was not a particularly bad stretch of road and that in 21 years there had been 13 fatal accidents on a six-mile stretch there.

Previous testimony had shown that road crews had taken down the snow fences along the road nine days before the crash. There were 29 accidents after the fences was down, said Mr. Mahoney, and 22 were on the same day as the fatal crash.

James Aubrey Gee, 30, a bank manager from Manchvering, Ont., testified in an emotion-choked voice of breaking free the crest of the hill, bumping one car and being hit repeatedly himself. Finally he was side-swiped and the side of the car disappeared. He was travelling with his wife and four children.

When the injured family struggled out through the hole in the side of the car and went looking for help, his wife told him that the baby was gone.

Mr. Gee told of looking for the baby, peering into other cars and finally finding the slightly-scratched infant safe in another car.

A Toronto couple, John Christie and his wife, Barbara, told of stopping their vehicle 1,200 feet north of the main accident. Then they said, a series of rear-end collisions pushed their car into the death scene, and they had to escape through a window.

Douglas Taylor, 35, of Barrie said he saw five or six cars in disarray. Then he saw a lumber-laden truck appear out of the swirling snow and jackknife with the cars piling up in front of it.

The load of lumber lifted at a 45-degree angle but held, he said. Then a bus came at a straight line, squashing cars against the guardrail, and hit the lumber trailer spilling wood over the cars with fire starting shortly afterward.

Up In Smoke

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's smokers spent $3.7 billion for 255.6 billion cigarettes in the fiscal year ending last March, the government reported. It said the figures represented an increase of 18 billion cigarettes over the previous year.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN
A WIDE CHOICE FOR THANKSGIVING DINNER

Though your favourite sizes and grades of turkey may be in slightly short supply for this year's Thanksgiving dinner, there's still plenty of choice in festive poultry and meets at reasonable prices.

For instance, utility grade turkeys, 12 to 14 pounds, are a particularly good buy at Miracle Food Mart this week. Because they are so economical, they're excellent for the family, or for cutting up to barbecue or use in a casserole for the cottage. Remember that utility birds are usually grade A quality and never below grade B. The lower price is simply because of a loss of a wing, leg or drumstick during processing.

For dinner for two, consider Cornish hens, grade A or utility. Both are good buys. Or if you like duck, there are both utility and grade A birds at Miracle Food Mart.

An old time Thanksgiving tradition, stuffed leg of pork, is another economical choice for this year's Thanksgiving. It can use the same vegetables and accessories as turkey.

Canadian Beer Prices Coming Under Pressure

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian beer is beginning to feel the pressure of rising raw material and labor costs.

The price of a packaged case went up 16 cents to $3 in British Columbia Monday. This includes 12 cents to the brewers and four cents to the provincial government.

Major breweries indicated Tuesday the same pressure that pushed up the price in B.C. also exist in other provinces.

Canadian Breweries Ltd. of Toronto said in its annual report to shareholders that higher prices for farm products could result in higher beer prices.

"It is expected that some relief will be obtained this year through increased prices," it said.

Molson Companies Ltd. of Montreal also said in its latest shareholders report that profit margins are being affected by increased production and distribution costs, including sharply higher prices for barley and other primary materials.

A spokesman for John Labatt Ltd., London, Ont., said the B.C. increase was the first for packaged beer since 1963. He attributed it to higher prices for raw materials, salaries and wages and other costs.

R. J. Harris, deputy commissioner of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, said any request from a brewery for an increase would have to come before the board which in turn would make a recommendation to John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations.

He said there has been no such request and increases are unlikely this year.

Alberta Wife Denied Half Husband's Ranch

OTTAWA (CP) — An Alberta woman who says she was forced to leave her matrimonial home "without even so much as a spoon" is not entitled to a half-interest in her husband's ranching business, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled Tuesday in a 4-1 judgment.

Mrs. Irene Florence Murdoch of Nanton, Alta., sought the half-interest as well as a judicial separation from her husband.

Alberta courts awarded her the separation on $200-a-month payments but denied her claim to an interest in the business which Mrs. Murdoch said she contributed to financially and worked like a man for more than 25 years to help her husband acquire.

Mr. Justice Ronald Martland, who wrote the majority reasons, said there was no evidence on the findings of the trial judge that Mrs. Murdoch did contribute towards the purchase of properties.

Mr. Justice Bora Laskin, dissenting with the four other judges, noted that the trial judge rejected Mrs. Murdoch's claim on grounds she made "only a normal contribution as wife to the matrimonial regime."

"In making the substantial contribution of physical labor, as well as a financial contribution, the acquisition of successive properties . . . the wife has, in my view, established a right to an interest which it would be inequitable to deny," said Judge Laskin.

Gas, Oil Boosts Likely

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite a federal price freeze, eastern Canadians could soon face yet another increase in the cost of gasoline and heating oil.

The energy department disclosed Tuesday that Imperial Oil has applied for permission to bypass the freeze and raise its prices to offset a weekend increase in the cost of Venezuelan crude.

Details were not disclosed but a spokesman indicated the result could be one-or two-cent increases in the cost of gasoline and heating oil.

The government approves the application.

Similar applications are expected, within the next few days by other eastern refiners, including Shell Canada Ltd., and Gulf Oil Canada Ltd.

Imperial has already made three price increases this year, the last (Aug. 1 when gasoline went up two cents a gallon and heating oil rose 1.8 cents. The rises left prices in Montreal at about 36.9 cents for regular gasoline and 27.7 cents for heating oil.

By O. D.

NOT IN VAIN — Ken Bell. Ken Bell took part in the Normandy invasion in 1944. He carried his camera with him then and took many photographs. After the war he became a professional after D. Day he returned to Normandy to photograph the scenes of battle that are now scenes of peace. It is a brilliant and touching photographic essay and for many it will evoke their own experiences.

CLOTHING LIBERATION— Laura Torbet.

This book has two purposes: to give you ideas for making new clothes by remodeling old out-dated things, and to give you ideas for making fancy clothes from plain. The author's approach is very straight forward with uncomplicated directions and easy to follow drawings. Individual chapters provide a wealth of ideas for refurbishing skirts and sweaters, hats, pants, dresses and coats. There are instructions on batik, quilting, embroidery and block printing.

THE COMPLETE BOOK OF BAZAARS — Dorothea S. Britten.

There is a magical quality about a bazaar that appeals to us all. There is the enjoyment through group activity, personal creativity or selling of the satisfaction derived through the support of a good cause. Mrs. Britten has written a splendid book that tells you what to make and how to display it. There are the myriad details on how to plan, stage and evaluate a church, school, charity or other fund - raising bazaars.

N. C. WYETH — Douglas Allen.

Through 42 years of illustrating from 1903 until his death in 1945, Newell Convers Wyeth created a large body of important and lasting works. This book is a marvellous tribute to one of America's artists. It brings to life Wyeth's great love of his Brandywine country in Pennsylvania — its rolling fields and wooded hillsides, its meadows and farms. There is a wealth of biographical detail about the artist and the exquisiteness of the reproductions of his paintings and drawings is stunning.

LOOKING BACK — Joyce Maynard.

Joyce Maynard calls her book a "personal history" — the sixties as seen and experienced by someone who grew up in them. It's about the things that made the author and her generation what they are today. It is a book about junior high dances and the Beatles and fishnet stockings and marijuana and open walks and assassinations.

MY LIFE IN THE MAFIA — Vincent Teresa.

A very unique book, for Vincent Teresa is the only high - ranking member of the Mafia ever to break the code of silence and to write his memoirs. Now a witness against the mob, he has helped to send dozens of important criminals to jail. His story is full of anecdotes that are sometimes funny and sometimes terrifying. He narrates many a mob murder, names many show business personalities ensnared by the mob.

SEACOAST MAINE — Martin Dibner.

Maine's coast — of Stonington, Port Clyde, Eastport and other towns, and of the Maine people whom the author lets speak for themselves in interviews about their lives, about what Maine means to them. Throughout are George A. Tice's magnificent photographs, endowed with his own unique vision — the sea, the rocks, Monhegan Harbor, gulls and people.

Hope to Cut Hail Loss By Modifying Weather

PENBOLD, Alta. (CP) — For two decades, a co-operative group of farmers in central Alberta has been claiming success in reducing crop losses to hail through a weather modification program.

Most of the time the farmers, who live in one of Canada's most hailed-upon agricultural areas have bewildered weather research scientists, who refuse to endorse th results of the program because of insufficient meteorological evidence.

After a long neutrality between those who believe it is possible to use chemicals to break up hailstones and those who consider it a waste of money, the Alberta government has stepped into the "rainmaking" field.

It established an interim weather - modification board and a parallel program of pure hail research and applied cloud-seeding operations in an effort to ascertain whether it is scientifically possible and economically feasible to wage war against hail.

Hail causes between $20 million and $40 million a year in crop damage in Alberta. Hardest-hit areas are the Lethbridge-High River corridor, the Peoples-Penhold corridor, and the area bounded by Drumheller, three Hills, Airdrie, Didsbury and Olds, known as "hailstone alley," among scientists.

Formed last December, the interim weather modification board started a five-summer program ultimately aimed at province-wide hail suppression.

The board, whose functions will be taken over by a Crown corporation to be created by legislation next year, already projects that present technology can reduce crop losses to hail by 10 to 25 per cent.

Board chairman Gordon Sterling says if a $1-million program could reduce crop losses by 10 per cent, crops saved would be worth $4 million.

Mr. Bishop told the story of Bill Conner, a Delrain, Man., farmer who, on a chance trip day in 1951, drove through a small town in the midwestern United States and stopped for gas.

Mr. Conner noted that the fields around the town seemed greener than in other parts of the midwest that summer, and the gas jockey gave all the credit to Dr. Irving P. Krick, rainmaker for hire who had been Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's weather advisor for D-Day in 1944.

After a major hail disaster in "hailstone alley" June 28, 1956, a committee of farmers, chaired by Mr. Bishop got in touch with Mr. Conner, and, through him, Dr. Krick.

Within three weeks, Dr. Krick had set up his ground generators and begun spewing silver iodide into the clouds. Funds for the operation were raised—$35 per quarter section for farmers in the townships to be covered, and $10 per quarter section for farmers in surrounding townships who might benefit.

Hail suppression, like rainmaking, is carried out by injecting nucleating agents into clouds around which raindrops gather—drops which might otherwise never fall, causing drought, or drops which might bounce around in cooled clouds until they did fall, as hail.

"We observed lesire damage immediately," Mr. Bishop said.

In 1957, a plebiscite, the first of a series in the late 50s and throughout the 60s, approved tax support for the program in the municipal district of Kneehill and the county of Rockyview.

By 1958, Dr. Krick had introduced aircraft seeding of clouds with silver iodide.

But in 1959, the hail-suppression area was severely damaged. Skeptical farmers, especially those in lower-risk portions of the rural municipalities taxed for the program, began to oppose further taxation to support it.

Dr. Krick intensified his suppression efforts in 1960, bringing in four aircraft to fly seeding missions and increasing ground output of silver iodide.

In the same year, the Alberta Hail Studies group was formed. Scientists from McGill University in Montreal and the University of Alberta participated, and the federal and Alberta governments paid the bills.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1973

Stirling Woman Crash Victim

Harold Cameron Snider, 19, is in fair condition in Belleville General Hospital today following a Tuesday morning accident that took the life of his mother.

Mrs. Vona Mae Snider, 41, was pronounced dead at the scene by Coroner Dr. Peter Briggs of Stirling. She and her son reside at 138 Church St., Stirling.

Mr. Snider has a concussion and small lacerations. He was driving, when the accident took place.

The two were in their car headed south on Highway 14 when a tank truck, pulling onto the road from Thurlow Township's fourth concession, struck them from the west side.

The vehicles slid into a ditch on the opposite side of the highway with the truck coming to rest on its side a few feet from the car.

Mr. Snider was able to crawl out of the demolished car but his mother, who had been in the passenger's seat, succumbed to massive injuries.

Mrs. Snider is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emory Deitrik, her husband, Paul Conrad Snider and a son and daughter, Harold and Pamela.

She was the sister of Mrs. Ronald (Gail) Vanderwater, McCloud Lake, Alta., Mrs. John (Marilyn) Schofield of Bloomfield, Donald of RR 1, Belleville, Kenneth of Kelowna, BC and Wayne of Corbyville.

Driver of the truck, Sidney James Faulkner, 32, of RR 2, Belleville, escaped with a cut ear and sore arm. He was taken to BGH for treatment but later released.

The accident occurred at 8:10 a.m. during the height of a morning downpour. No other cars were involved.

Volunteer firemen from Thurlow Township Fire Department stood by during cleanup operations after the collision. At one point, they sprayed the highway with chemical foam while the truck was lowered by crane onto its back before being righted.

Police had to divert traffic to adjacent concession roads for more than three hours while the accident site was cleared.

A spokesman for Superior Propane Ltd., which owns the truck, said the metal skin on the truck's back was half full of the explosive liquid. Walls of the tank are ¼-inch thick.

He said an internal valve system automatically seals the tank when the vehicle's engine is started. Despite the impact and manoeuvring afterward, none of the propane escaped.

Damage to the truck was confined to the cab and left rear corner. The estimated cost of repairs is $6,000.

Awaiting The Call

Telecare — the telephone answering service for people in distress — is marking its sixth year in community service with a new project — an operation that will make daily phone calls to the lonely and shut-in. Awaiting calls at Telecare listening post with volunteer counsellor are Peter Postra, (right), project chairman and its director, Ted Milliken.

Telecare Adds Service On Sixth Birthday

Belleville's Telecare — the volunteer team which shaped the telephone as a means of communicating compassionate concern for people in distress — is six years old today.

It's marking the anniversary with a new service.

Reassurance Telecare is the team's attempt to lighten the burden of a common human condition — loneliness.

It likely will particularly involve shutins, the neglected or forgotten elderly. But, from today, anyone shouldering the burdens of loneliness is now guaranteed regular contact with a concerned, humanitarian source.

The service is organized along the lines of Telecare — so successfully emerged as an emergency listening post for people in distress.

It's simply a matter of dialling Telecare 962-4111 and confirming the need for personal contact.

After that, the Reassurance people take over. Their trained volunteers will return a call daily — or on whatever schedule requested — just for a chat.

The idea isn't new. It's been tried in Belleville before but discontinued.

Says Telecare director Ted Milliken. And there are some private individuals, maybe even church groups, now engaged in such work, he believes.

But the Reassurance plan has behind it the organization and experience of Telecare — now an established source of personal involvement with people's problems in the community.

Telecare itself celebrates its anniversary with a total of 10,200 calls logged since it launched its first experimental venture in human relations in 1967.

Through the years, only the volume of calls has changed. The aim and design remain the same.

Volunteers, intensively trained in human relationships, staff telephones around the - clock, an instant ear for those in distress and needing a quick source of understanding — even answers.

Reciprocal anonymity remains the operative key. The Telecare post today still remains a carefully - guarded secret, the identity of its workers a secret.

Neither is there any burden on callers to reveal identities. Telecare is different in another aspect.

The team not only does the work, but virtually finances it.

Although there are some community contributions, the monthly $300 budget — including $100 rent — is mostly met by Telecare membership.

It's a group that's grown from 35 in 1967 to almost 100 — graduated from its last 17 - week training course earlier this year. New counsellor training programs begin Oct. 15 at St. Thomas parish hall.

In its first year, recalls Mr. Milliken, Telecare averaged a call a day. The daily average has now grown to five callers.

Such a volume of contacts with human problems inevitably led to recognition of other needs. Last year Telecare started a credit counselling service.

A specialist in the team now advises people in financial difficulties how best to extricate themselves and guides them through the necessary recovery stages.

Then came the Reassurance idea. In vogue in some United States centres, its local introduction received impetus when Telecare board chairman Peter Postra observed such a program in operation in Burlington, N.J.

Telecare is certain a need exists in the Belleville area for a similar service, says Milliken.

"Loneliness is a terrible disease — one we all suffer from at times," he says. "We're sure there's a need here."

The Reassurance plan calls for a "brief, friendly" phone call daily, or whatever requested, "to let the people using it know we are concerned about them. It's letting them know people are interested in them."

It also has a secondary role. Such contact is a means of promptly checking on people immobilized, living alone, whose presence may otherwise receive little attention. Being alone when illness or accidents strike is a worry of the shutin. Any concerns happening could be revealed by the daily phone call.

If a phone is left unanswered after repeated calls, Reassurance would then immediately contact friends, neighbors or relatives to personally check the reason.

Reassurance Telecare will relay evening callers, says Mr. Milliken. Any one wishing to take advantage of the service must make the first phone call.

Duck Season Excellent, Hunters Bagged, Too

Duck hunting season in the Quinte district — so far rated excellent by conservation officials — also saw law enforcement officers mark up some hunting success protecting wildlife.

Close to 30 charges have been laid against hunters for a variety of offences since the season opened Saturday.

Ministry of Natural Resources officers use a helicopter to step up enforcement in both the Tweed and Napanee districts.

The helicopter was used in the days immediately before the season opened to seek out areas which had been illegally baited to attract ducks.

Conservation officers later went in on foot on opening day and charged the baiters.

The miscellany of remaining charges laid by ministry officers and police ranged from hunting without licences to use of unplugged shotguns. Firearms were seized in many instances.

In the Napanee area — which ranges from Presqu'ile provincial park to east of Kingston — hunting was described as "excellent" by conservation officer Jack Stewart.

Prime hunting areas were Presqu'ile, where 82 hunters bagged 182 ducks, and Camden Lake waterfowl management area where 61 marksmen shot 170 ducks — indicating an "excellent start to the season which runs until Dec. 15," said the official.

Education Week Theme Is Chosen

Plans are already shaping up for Education Week 1974 in Hastings county.

The theme: Communicate to Learn to Communicate, was chosen by Brant county, this year's kickoff host, which is celebrating the 100th anniversary of Bell Telephone.

Education Week will run from April 21 to 27, with Walter Raniowski principal of Our Lady of Fatima School, as chairman of the committee.

The two bearpit sessions held in secondary schools, will be abandoned in favor of five shorter sessions involving local speakers and students from the grade 6 level up. The bearpit sessions will be limited to one hour.

Purpose of Education Week is to make people aware of education and of the new programs and techniques in the schools says Mr. Raniowski. He is also second vice-chairman of the Ontario Education Week committee.

Education Week in Hastings county is distinguished by the presentation of the Sir Mackenzie Bowell Award to the person who has contributed the most to education in the area in the previous year. Fred Beckley, principal of North Hastings High School in Bancroft is chairman of the committee to choose the winner.

Arthur Brooks, vice-principal of Harry J. Clarke school, is chairman of publicity for Education Week and Walter Cochrane, principal of Dufferin St. School in Trenton is chairman of the publication committee that puts out the annual Education Week tabloid.

Budget presentations to the supporting school boards are expected to be made in November.

300 Are Expected For HPR Reunion

The 29th annual reunion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will begin Friday night with a wine and cheese party at the senior noncommissioned officers' mess at Belleville armory.

Registration begins in earnest Saturday morning and continues all day, as veterans of World War II, return to Belleville. Lieut.-Col. Angus Duffy, wartime regimental sergeant major of the regiment, says about 300 people are expected to be in the city of the Thanksgiving weekend reunion.

Events include a dance in the armory, beginning at 8 p.m. Saturday and the annual general meeting beginning at 10 a.m. Sunday. At 12.15 Sunday the veterans will fall in for the memorial service, to be conducted by Archdeacon A. D. McConnell, MBE, CD, a former padre of the regiment. Lord Tweedsmuir, son of a former Governor-General, will read the lesson. Wartime commanding officer, Col. "Ack-Ack" Kennedy, will lead the parade to the regimental grounds, where the wreath will be laid by George Ponsford, who is coming from Durban, South Africa, for the reunion. Lord Tweedsmuir will take the salute.

George Ponsford, better known as "Sockless George", is bringing his wife and 12-year-old son from South Africa for a holiday in Canada. The last time he attended a regimental reunion was in 1967.

Car Rolls In Rain

An Arden couple was treated and released at Belleville General Hospital Tuesday morning after their car rolled into a ditch on Highway 37 south of O'Brien's Bridge.

Alvin and Jean Vanness suffered lacerations. Damage to their car was estimated at $1,000 by investigating officer Constable Don McDermott of Belleville Provincial Police.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanness were southbound during a downpour when the car's tires lost contact on a curve. The vehicle rolled once and ended up in the west ditch.

Baseball in October Better Than Hiding

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles, after an agonizing year on the sidelines, are looking forward to what used to be their annual post-season baseball jaunt.

"Playing in October is a lot better than sitting in the closet, hiding and painting," outfielder Merv Rettenmund said. "That's what I did last year after we finished third."

The Orioles, who played in the World Series in 1969-70-71, bounced back this season to win the American League's Eastern Division, and Saturday they open a best-of-five playoff against Oakland Athletics, who won the Western Division.

"It has to be satisfying to win when we weren't picked to win," said outfielder Paul Blair. "But we haven't done anything yet. If we don't get into the World Series, everyone will ask again: 'What happened?' "

Shortstop Mark Belanger said he didn't know what to do when he found himself with free time last October.

"It cost $20,000 not to be in the World Series," he said. "And another $5,000 during the three weeks I spent fixing up our home."

Jim Palmer, a 22-game winner due to pitch the opener against Oakland, said the post-season play meant "it will take me longer this year to get my golf game in shape."

In Oakland, Jim (Catfish) Hunter said the Athletics' pitching is stronger than it was last year," "mostly because of the bullpen."

Rollie Fingers is the only reliever back from the bullpen corps of last season's World Series winners. Darold Knowles missed the 1972 playoffs with a broken thumb and Paul Lindblad and Horacio Pina were acquired in trades last winter.

BROOKS ROBINSON
"I Got Lost"

"We have good, experienced starters and so do the Orioles," said manager Dick Williams. "I think our staff is better than theirs because of the bullpen."

"He wore us out this season," said Williams of the veteran who had 20 hits and seven walks against his team.

Hunter, 21-5, had a 3-0 record against Baltimore this year despite allowing the Orioles eight home runs.

"If I worried about giving up homers, I wouldn't be in the big leagues today," said Hunter, who threw 38 home run pitches for the season. "I'd rather give up a homer than three or four singles. It takes less out of your arm."

International Pro Football In the Works

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gary Davidson, who helped start the American Basketball Association and the World Hockey Association, now has plans for an international professional football league with franchises stretching from London to Tokyo.

A source in the office of the Santa Ana, Calif., lawyer, who is president of the WHA, confirmed the league is being organized by Davidson.

"It will be the first international football league, and the organizers plan to have it working a year from now," the source said.

Initially, the league wants 12 franchises in the United States, with franchises already lined up for the Los Angeles area, Honolulu, New York, Boston, Chicago, Toronto "and maybe Europe" for the first season, said the source.

GARY DAVIDSON

The league, as yet unnamed, also is looking to establish franchises in London, Tokyo, Germany and Mexico as well as Memphis, Tenn., Milwaukee, Phoenix, Ariz., Oklahoma City, Seattle, and North Carolina.

The source said some of those involved in the new venture include owner Robert Schmertz of Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association; Nick Mileti, owner of the Cleveland Indians baseball team and Cleveland Cavaliers of the NBA; Howard Baldwin, president of New England Whalers of the WHA; and New York lawyer Steve Arnold, who helped sign many American Football League players before the league merged with the National Football League.

The new league will not try and lure established leagues for players, said the source.

Seek Fan Opinion

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new organization has been formed for sports fans who believe that more than lung power is needed to have their voices heard.

Fans Inc., a non-profit corporation, was established to represent the interests of the little guy against the professional team owners and the players who "have been organized in order to fight for their own very narrow, special interests."

"Too often, the sports fan has been abused and had no place to turn," said Charles V. Reilly Jr., 34, a public relations man from Wilmington, Del.

Reilly will be corporation president, and Catherine Perle, 34, a Wilmington grandmother of eight, will be vice-president.

"I've been a sports nut for years," said Reilly, "and it has always seemed to me that the average fan never asked his opinion on major decisions such as moving a team from one city to another and raising ticket prices."

He said the group will seek fan opinion on major issues through questionnaires.

RETAIN STITLE

LONDON (AP) — Big Joe Bugner of Britain retained his European heavyweight boxing title Tuesday night, outpointing Bepi Ros of Italy in a scintilling 15-round fight at Royal Albert Hall. The six-foot-four Bugner weighed 220 pounds. Ros five-foot-nine, weighed 237 pounds.

BUC'S COACH FIRED

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pitching coach Mel Wright was fired by Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League Tuesday. The Pirates finished 2½ games behind New York Mets in the East Division and pitching was considered the weak position. The staff finished the 1973 season with a 3.74 earned run average compared with 2.81 in 1972.

John Bradshaw says:

"Winterize your lawn with CIL Winterizer."

You've spent time and money on your lawn this year. Why let winter kill it all off?

And that's why CIL developed Winterizer. You simply put it in the spreader and take a walk around the lawn.

One treatment protects your lawn three important ways: First, it protects against frost damage. Second, special elements condition the grass plants against disease like snow-mold. Third, it helps the grass store up extra winter food to protect against winter-starvation.

So if you'd like to keep your lawn in good shape — and save yourself the trouble of patching up a winter-killed lawn next Spring — get some CIL Winterizer this weekend and put it on . . . just as daytime temperatures are in the low 60's.

Anticipation and timing are very important to any goal tender and Gary Wallace is no exception. Wallace, net minder for the Quinte Saints senior soccer team, astutely portrayed both attributes as he consistently came up with key saves, like this one, to stop Nicholson in their Bay of Quinte high school contest yesterday. The 1-0 victory for the Saints gave Wallace his second shutout of the season.

Bobby Orr, Goalies, And the Game Itself

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

Don't look now but that annual madness known as Christmas shopping is almost upon us once again. Some of the more organized citizens are probably already well on the way to getting the job done.

But most of us will procrastinate. A lot of the fun is in waiting until the last minute ... isn't it?

Recently, three books turned up for perusal and consumer. Two of them tell the stories of players and the third is an excellent effort on the game itself.

All three should be on the shelves of your favorite book store by now. If they are not, be patient. These are worth waiting for.

Random House of Canada, Ltd., offers two additions to its pro hockey library series. John Devaney's 'The Bobby Orr Story and Frank Orr's Great Goalies of Pro Hockey are the newcomers.

Devaney describes Orr as being the equivalent of a baseball pitcher who wins 30 games and leads the league in batting with a .350 average.

Hockey fans in this country may find Devaney's referring to the dressing room as the "clubhouse" a little tryng at times but all in all, the author provides an interesting study of a truly great athlete.

It's all there. Orr's brilliance on the ice in Parry Sound, Gananoque, Oshawa, and finally Boston Garden, is described. And there are plenty of pictures to add to the interest.

Frank Orr's offering to the library, this one confining itself to goaltending greats, past and present, is his second of the series. Earlier, he gave us The Story of Hockey.

Some first rate photos add to Orr's sparkling text as he tells of the exploits of Tony Esposito, Jacques Plante, Johnny Bower, Glenn Hall, Ken Dryden, Bill Durnan, the late Terry Sawchuk, Gerry Cheevers and Gump Worsley.

Howie Meeker, the guy who tells it like it is when he's included in the team providing coverage, via television, of National Hockey League games, does the same with his Hockey Basics.

Published by Prentice-Hall of Canada, this hockey handbook is, to say, the description of a 13-year-old called in for consultation on the matter, "tremendous".

It's great for player, coach, parent. And it fits in well with Meeker's TV series in which he outlines his techniques.

The book covers it all, from playing equipment (including skates, "the most important basic"), protective equipment, the art of skating, puck control, passing and receiving, and goaltending.

Weller with Eagles

Right winger Wayne Weller who finished last season with the Owen Sound Downtowners after Oakville Oaks folded, has signed on with the Belleville Screaming Eagles of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series.

Eagles' manager Tod Seale expects the winger will be a decided asset. Weller collected 33 goals and as many assists last season.

Two more returnees have also signed with the club They are goaltender Karl Bagnell and forward John McConnell.

Training camp sessions continue as the club prepares for its league opener at home this Friday with Brantford Foresters supplying the opposition.

Foresters recently hooked up with Binghamton Dusters, in a pair of pre-season games and came away with a 1-1 tie and a 4-3 defeat.

Reports indicate the exhibition series was a costly one for Foresters. Several Brantford players picked up injuries, the most serious to goalie Stan Worosz and forward Dave MacDonald. Worosz suffered a knee injury and MacDonald has pulled chest muscles.

Saints Edge Nicks

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

The Quinte Secondary School Seniors were the only team of four to score throughout 140 minutes of soccer yesterday as they downed Nicholson in their Bay of Quinte high school game. Earlier in the day the junior teams of both schools had fought to a 0-0 tie.

During the opening half of the senior contest the teams portrayed equal ability, both offensively and defensively, with neither team able to put the ball in the opposition's net. Nicholson had the better scoring opportunities, continuously feeding the ballup the middle of the field to beat the Saints defensive backs who appeared to be playing very shallow in the back-field. Only the outstanding goaltending of Gary Wallace kept Nicholson off the score board.

The second half of play began much the same as the minute mark there was no score.

Randy Nelson broke the game open for the Saints when he drilled a shot from about 25 feet out that the Nicholson goalie had no chance on.

Nicholson, knowing they would have to score at least once to salvage the contest began to play wide-open ball, which acted somewhat as a deterrent on their game with Quinte finding it much easier to break up the losers' offensive drives.

Steve Edwards was a defense standout for the Saints while Wallace, in the Quinte net, was consistently good at he received his second shutout of the season.

92 Points for Moira

By MATTHEW SMITH

The Moira Trojans last night ran up a total of 92 points on the scoreboard in their doubleheader with BCI to capture half games of the twinhill in Bay of Quinte

The Seniors romped to a 66-0 win over the Collegians, while the Juniors were racking up 53 points in a whitewashing of their junior counterparts.

Running back Dave Rutherford ripped the BCI defense for four touchdowns, with Brian Calnan adding one from his end position. Quarterback and kicker Glenn Shaw added four converts.

Larry Kirby accounted for the other points, as he picked off a Russ Simonds pass and ran it 105 yards for the score.

Audie Brant and Dave Hillborn played well on defense to hold BCI in their tracks and record the shutout.

Frankford Midgets brought the Ontario Baseball Association championship home on the weekend. The final series with Dorchester was a tight fit. Each of the three games was decided by one run. Dorchester took the first game 5-4 with Frankford battling back to win two and the title, by scores of 3-2 and 2-1. Ben Dyer and Greg Kendrick handled the Frankford pitching, Supplying the key hits in the wins was catcher Danny Post. Rear from the left are Dwight Mater, Greg Kendrick, Terry Tomcsek and Ken Lewis. Front, Glenn Houlden, coach, Randy Mitchell, Jeff Baker, Tim Letch, Jim Conley, Danny Post, Paul Bedard, Benny Dyer and Frank Payne, manager. Holding banner at right is Alex Gaudet. John Bacchus is also a member of the team.

Esposito Back In Top Form

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston fans can quit worrying about Phil Esposito—he's back to normal.

PHIL ESPOSITO

The 31-year-old centre, who suffered a knee injury in the spring in a Stanley Cup playoff game, picked up two goals and an assist in a National Hockey League exhibition contest Tuesday night as the Bruins defeated Montreal Canadiens 6-4.

Esposito, who has won the NHL scoring title the last four years, also helped linemate Wayne Cashman to a big night. Cashman scored a goal and added three assists as Boston raised its exhibition record to four wins and a tie in seven games.

When Esposito was presented with the Lou Marsh trophy in August as Canada's outstanding athlete in 1972, he discounted a report that his knee was not mending on schedule and would keep him out of Boston's lineup until early 1974.

He underwent surgery after suffering torn knee ligaments when checked in the Stanley Cup contest by New York Rangers defenceman Ron Harris.

In other NHL games Tuesday, Chicago Black Hawks tied Toronto Maple Leafs 3-3; Minnesota North Stars whipped St. Louis Blues 5-1; New York Rangers and New York Islanders tied 6-6; and Los Angeles Kings defeated Vancouver Canucks 6-3.

In the World Hockey Association, Edmonton Oilers defeated Vancouver Blazers 4-2 in Calgary, while Quebec Nordiques battled to a 2-2 tie at home with Chicago Cougars.

The Bruins trailed the Canadiens 4-2 in the second period until second-year forwards Gregg Sheppard and Fred O'Donnell and rookie Andre Savard scored within a three-minute span late in the period before 8,761 fans.

The Islanders, undefeated in exhibition play with four wins and three ties, erased a 4-1 first-period lead held by the Rangers. Bob Nevin got the tying goal for the Islanders at the 33-second mark of the final period.

Billy Harris, 21-year-old right winger who had 50 points for the Islanders as a rookie last season, scored three goals. Defenceman Brad Park scored twice for the Rangers.

Powis, with Omaha of the Central Hockey League last year, scored the tying goal at 7:31 of the third period. The Leafs led 3-1 after the second.

"We'll end up with three or four rookies on the team, probably," said Chicago coach Billy Reay. "One of them will be a goaltender, either Mike Veisor or Michel Dumas."

Veisor, with Dallas of the CHL in 1972-73, blanked the Leafs in the third period after taking over from Tony Esposito who played the first 40 minutes. Dumas also was with Dallas last year.

Rookies Rod Norrish and Tony Featherstone each scored a goal for the North Stars in their easy win over the Blues.

In Portland, Ore., the Kings handed the Canucks their first defeat after six wins in a row, three against Los Angeles and two against Montreal.

Top Operator On Sidelines

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association said Tuesday that left-winger Bob Leduc would be lost to the club for the first month of the season because of a freak accident.

Leduc, who played for the team last year when it operated as the National, set of Ottawa suffered a foot injury when he was pinned against a wall by a dolly carrying team equipment. Part of his second toe had to be amputated.

Leduc, a native of Sudbury, Ont., scored 22 goals and had 23 assists last season. He was the team's top penalty-killer.

Frazier And Ali?

NEW YORK (AP) — Madison Square Garden has called a news conference for noon EDT Thursday, giving rise to speculation that the arena is ready to announce a heavyweight boxing rematch between Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier.

Spokesmen for the Garden declined to go into details on the announcement other than to say that it involved a major fight to be held in the Garden after the first of the year.

Garden boxing officials have figured in intensive negotiations to arrange another bout between the two former champions, whose first meeting March 8, 1971, is reported to have grossed $20 million, with each fighter receiving $2.5 million.

On that occasion, Frazier, then an undefeated champion, won a decision over previously unbeaten Ali.

Marlboros Have Their Problems

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros, who dominated the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league last year and captured the Memorial Cup, emblematic of Canadian junior hockey supremacy, are finding things quite different so far this season.

After dropping their season opener to Oshawa 8-4 Sunday, Marlboros suffered their second humiliating defeat on Tuesday, an 8-3 verdict to Peterborough Petes who are undefeated in three games and top the league standings with six points.

In other games Tuesday, St. Catharines trounced Kingston 8-3, Sault Ste. Marie outscored Sudbury 5-4 and London defeated Kitchener 5-3.

Toronto, who put four players with junior eligibility to the World Hockey Association, now have given up 16 goals in two games while scoring only six times. Last season they averaged more than six goals per game while allowing opponents an average of 2.14 goals per game.

Peterborough scored three unanswered goals in each of the first two periods and led 8-0 before Kevin Devine scored twice for Marlboros late in the final period.

Ed Smith scored twice for Peterborough with single goals going to Tony Conacher, Doug Jarvis, Paul Evans, Gord Duncan, Don Laurence and Bill Eho.

At Kingston, the Black Hawks registered their first victory after two losses. Dave Gorman led the 41-shot attack with three goals, Rick Hampton, Kevin Kenney, Dave Salvian, Greg Craig, Wilf Paiement, and Rick for London with Vern Stenlund, and Dave Tabb once for the Addonos got the others.

At Sudbury, the Wolves lost their first game after three consecutive victories to slip to second place.

Charlie Skinner sparked Sault Ste. Marie with three goals and also added two assists. Cary Farrell scored twice getting the others. Jerry Bakdok, Danny Djakalowic and Paul Evans replied for the visitors who remain winless in two games.

GIANN TO COLTS

Levy Favors Rule Change

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Marv Levy of Montreal Alouettes says he wants a change in a rule which prevents blocking on punt returns in the Canadian Football League, following an injury to Ron Perowne in Sunday's game against Ottawa Rough Riders.

Perowne suffered a fractured transverse process in one of his vertebrae, which makes the graduate of Bishop's University a doubtful starter for Monday's interlocking game against Calgary Stampeders.

"The injury is not as serious as it sounds but it's painful," said Levy after the Alouettes watched films of Sunday's game.

MONZON TO QUIT

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Carlos Monzon, world middleweight boxing champion, said Tuesday his next fight will be his last. He made his fifth successful defence of the title last Saturday in Paris against Jean-Claude Bouttier. One of three challengers he is considering is Jose Napoles of Mexico, who successfully defended his world welterweight title against Canadian Clyde Gray in Toronto on Sept. 22.

"It solidifies my opinion that the punt-return rule should be changed. The punt return is a brutal thing and there's no place for it in the game the way it stands now."

What Levy would like to see is unlimited blocking on punts as is permitted in United States professional and Canadian and American college football.

Levy also said that defensive end Junior Ah You, who suffered a severe charley horse Sunday, is a "50-50" starter for Monday and defensive half Jim Hetlies, who injured a hamstring, could be ready for the Calgary game.

In Toronto, CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur said the punt-return rule had come up at past league meetings.

"There's no indication of an increasing interest for unlimited blocking," Gaudaur said.

"There's no doubt it would add an entertainment dimension—but our concern is opposite to that of Mr. Levy's. We believe it would increase injuries."

Gaudaur also said he hoped the fair catch rule used in the U.S. "never enters our game."

Opening Games

Shoot for Spot In the Playoffs

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Football League's 1972 divisional champions find themselves in the uncomfortable position of bringing up the rear going into the final stages of the 1973 schedule.

They meet tonight in the only game in the CFL. It will be televised on the full CBC network beginning at 8 p.m. CDT (9 p.m. EDT).

The Eastern Conference Tiger-Cats trail third-place Ottawa by two points and second-place Montreal by three.

The Blue Bombers, the defending Western Conference champions, are one point behind fourth-place B.C. Lions and four behind third-place Calgary Stampeders.

The Hamilton defence will have its hands full containing running back John Bledsoe and quarterback Don Jonas.

The game promises to be an offensive contest. The Tiger-Cats have scored more than 200 points in nine games, led by Caley, receiver Garney Henley and the leading rusher in the East this season, Andy Hopkins.

The Winnipeg defence is the best in the West and second in the CFL only to Toronto, but when they have problems, it usually is against roll-out quarterbacks, such as Caley. The sophomore quarterback is the fourth leading rusher in the East with 373 yards.

Ralph Sazio, Tiger-Cats general manager, said he is happy with his club's defensive play and expressed confidence in Caley, who he said "could be suffering from the sophomore jinx.

"Last year he was a free soul. This year he started to think, which he has to do now and he had an element of doubt in his mind, whether to run or throw."

Favors Women Members on IOC

In the first two days of the congress, speakers have called for reforms in running the Games with sports federations "subverting the supreme authority of the IOC.

Willie Daume, an IOC vice-president from West Germany, is scheduled to bring the latest challenge to the IOC in one of three major addresses today.

Daume said he would suggest that women be chosen as members of the IOC, whose membership is old, male and heavily weighted with royal and noble titles.

"I'm sure she IOC will accept my suggestion," Daume said. He said it is likely that most of the several vacancies in the 71-member IOC will be filled at a meeting in Vienna next year, but that one or two may be chosen at an IOC session here following the congress.

Former Olympic skier Suzy Chaffee, member of the United States Olympic Committee, said the Olympic movement needs the humanism women members would bring to the IOC.

Body Is Named To Set Fees For Doctors

TORONTO (CP) — A committee to recommend fees for Ontario doctors was announced in the legislature Tuesday by Premier William Davis.

Mr. Davis said the committee, headed by Harold J. Clawson, a steel company executive from nearby Mississauga, will also include three representatives of the Ontario Medical Association (OMA) and three representing the provincial government.

Its task will be to recommend to the OMA and the government "a fair basis of professional compensation for all practising physicians in this province."

Mr. Davis said the committee will also make proposals on both the needs of patients and cost of the service to the taxpayer.

In the past, the OMA reviewed medical fee schedules every two years. The last revision was May 1, 1971.

Earlier this year, the OMA decided to defer any revisions until May 1, 1974, a review Mr. Davis said now will be made by the committee.

The premier said he hopes the new committee will avoid "fixed, rigid positions being taken by both the OMA and the government."

A law graduate of the University of Saskatchewan, Mr. Clawson has been with Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. since 1954. He will serve as a company vice-president until his retirement early next year.

Other members of the committee are Dr. L. R. Harnick, Toronto; Dr. J. S. Colquhoun, Thunder Bay; Dr. G. H. Isaac, Toronto; G. H. U. Bayly, management board of cabinet secretary; Dr. Douglas Wright, deputy provincial secretary for social development; and W. B. Nichols, an assistant deputy with the health ministry.

Under wide terms of reference, the committee is charged with reviewing the gross and net incomes of physicians, alternative methods of pay including the proposition that they be paid by salary instead of fee-for-service, the value to be placed on fringe benefits, effect of technological advances on medical practice, and comparison of costs with other professions.

King Seeks Work

Mathematics Is Branching Out

OTTAWA (CP) — Karl Friedrich Gauss, the celebrated German mathematician, knew all the important developments in mathematics, astronomy and physics in his heyday more than 100 years ago.

Today Gauss—brilliant as he was—would do well to know one-tenth the knowledge in mathematics alone, and would have to do his homework to keep even that level as mathematical knowledge doubles every 18 years.

The mathematics discipline is reeling under this proliferation of knowledge, Dr. John Coleman of Kingston, Ont., said Tuesday in an interview.

Not only are Canadian mathematicians being fragmented into little spheres of interest, but they are blithely unaware of the extent of mathematical application to new disciplines—the social sciences in particular.

Dr. Coleman, head of the mathematics department at Queen's University who is preparing a study for the Science Council of Canada, said all sciences in Canada will suffer if mathematical program and objectives are not redirected.

Advanced mathematical methods—once the domain of the physics believers—now are important in economics, sociology, biology, medical sciences and business.

Mathematical training, unfortunately, is not directed at the practical, said Dr. Coleman. While more students take math courses as an adjunct to another discipline, they are still taught math for math's sake.

He said PhD programs continue to stress development of the creative pure mathematician. Enraptured by theb eauty and elegance of pure mathematics, many PhDs are reluctant to soil their hands with the nuts and bolts of applied work.

"Mathematicians ought to have another string in their bow. They ought to be aware of the application of mathematics to at least one other discipline," he said.

Dr. Gordon Edwards, a recent Queen's graduate who will assist in preparation of the science council report, said the expansion in mathematical applications even includes the study of linguistics.

Students of language are using symbols in place of words to understand better the grammatical aspects of a language. Research into the development of translating machines also uses this technique, explained Dr. Edwards.

Too few mathematicians are aware that theoretical developments often have evolved from practical applications of mathematics, Dr. Dilworth said.

For instance, Isaac Newton invented calculus to determine rates of change from static information because mathematical knowledge of the day was inadequate to deal with his theories of gravitation and the solar system.

As well, non-quantitative graph theory, once considered a highly abstract branch of mathematics, has become important in the social sciences.

The science council report, expected to be ready in June, 1974, will look for mathematical applications for Canadian approaches to resource management, transportation, communications and energy.

Showbiz Shorts

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The Soviet Union's Bolshoi Opera will perform in the United States for the first time, in 1975, it was announced Tuesday.

Impresario Sol Hurok said he will also present in 1975 the Bolshoi ballet, which will offer full-length productions in the U.S. for the first time in nine years.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Jazz clarinetist Pete Fountain has entered the race for mayor of New Orleans.

Fountain, who owns a night spot in the French Quarter, said Tuesday he will run as an independent. He now joins a field that includes Mayor Moon Landrieu and two others. Landrieu is seeking a second term and is considered a heavy favorite to win.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Lou Rawls has been divorced from his wife of 11 years.

Superior Court Judge Lester Olson granted the decree Monday to Lana Jean Rawls, 31, and ordered Rawls, 39, to pay $1,650 monthly support. The support will continue until either Rawls dies, until Mrs. Rawls remarries, or until 1980, whichever comes first.

Custody of the couple's two children, Lou Jr., 5, and Luanna, 9, will be shared by the Rawls.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Josephine Baker, celebrating 50 years in show business, has been honored for her worldwide humanitarian efforts.

Miss Baker, a black, spanned the color-line of show business in pre-war Europe by becoming one of the best known and best paid entertainers in the Folies Bergere. She is in Los Angeles making for an appearance.

Comic Collection

EDMONTON (CP) — Klaus Beckman, 10, estimates that his collection of 6,000 comic books is worth $4,000. He has invested about $1,500 in his yellowing portfolio over the last six years, including $150 for the first edition of All-Star Comics, published in 1940.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You will not have much patience with one close to your heart. Be careful not to overreact and cause a rhubarb.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Things will be a little hectic around home today. Everyone will be trying to serve his or her own interests. You'll be in the middle.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Your ability to concentrate is not up to its usual standard. This will reflect itself in your shoddy performance at work.

NEW DELHI (AP) — The city government honored the Polish astronomer Copernicus by naming a street after him on the 500th anniversary of his birth. First, local radio announcers pronounced it "Copernicious Road." As people caught onto the new name, it came out sounding like "Copper Knickers."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X K

B L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Dizzy Dominoes

DARLINGTON, England (CP) — A tiring team of domino players from Devon were losing 3-0 to Darlington but uncorked their secret weapon and won the next six matches against the national champions of the post office league. Their secret was the hidden kick of Devonshire apple cider, three gallons of which they offered their unsetting opponents.

Stamp Savers

LONDON (CP) — The Daily Mail reports that Royal Family chauffeurs are filling the tanks of their limousines only at stations which give away trading stamps with purchases. The chauffeurs, says the paper, are saving the stamps in hopes of redeeming them in the fall for a wedding present for Princess Anne.

201 Trout Catch Said Legal

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec government cannot enforce the catch limit of speckled trout under current regulations, Judge Guy Guérin of sessions court ruled Tuesday.

Judge Guérin dismissed charges against six American businessmen from Maine and Vermont who had two Cessna airplanes seized last spring when they were charged with exceeding the legal catch limit on a fishing trip to the James Bay region in northern Quebec.

The aircraft were released on $16,000 bond last week. The seizure of the planes was quashed Tuesday when the charges were dismissed.

It was alleged that the six Americans, Raymond Wyler, Clark Hemmon, Raymond Marsh, Charles Coffran, Oliver Millar and Anthony Cernosino, caught 301 speckled trout when they were legally limited to 150 fish, or 25 a man.

Defence lawyer Morris Fish argued that Quebec fishery regulations make it an offence for someone to have more than the legal limit of certain kinds of fish of which the sale is regulated.

Judge Guerin dismissed the charge because, he said, there is no regulation governing the sale of speckled trout.

Not Discussed

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis told the legislature Tuesday that he hadn't discussed potential conflicts of interest with John Robarts when the former premier agreed to accept chairmanship of the Algoquin Forestry Authority.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon, who brought up the matter, told reporters outside the legislature it is clear that Mr. Robarts's name will be withdrawn.

Ordeal Fatal

HONOLULU (Reuter) — James Fisher, who survived 72 days at sea clinging to an overturned trimaran, died Tuesday in a hospital here from kidney complications and an infection.

Fisher, 30, and Robert Tinnenko, 34, both from Washington state, were rescued Sept. 21 by the British vessel Benador after their trimaran capsized in Tacoma, Wash., to Costa Rica.

Raise Prices

MONTREAL (CP) — Dominion Stores Ltd. and Steinberg's Ltd., two of the province's largest supermarket chains, announced Tuesday they are raising their food prices following a similar announcement Monday by a rival food store chain.

Spokesmen for both supermarkets said Tuesday the price increases are a result of the decision by Marche Union Inc. to end a six-week price freeze.

Marche Union had announced Aug. 14 that it would freeze the prices of food items despite rising costs.

Raises Illegal

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal ruled Tuesday that members of North York council are not entitled to pay raises provided by two by-laws passed Feb. 12.

Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly said the two bylaws are illegal because they deal with appropriation of funds and therefore require passage by a two-thirds vote, not by the simple majority vote used by the council.

Warned

TORONTO (CP) — About 40 organizers and operators of the Kitchener-Waterloo Oktoberfest beer festival have received a warning on liquor licence violations from James Mackey, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Licence Board.

Five Killed

COWANSVILLE, Que. (CP) — A priest and four nuns were killed Tuesday when the car in which they were riding collided with a bus near this community, 45 miles southeast of Montreal.

Names of the victims have not yet been released.

Challenge Court

MONTREAL (CP) — Six Indians from the nearby Caughnawaga reserve told a sessions court judge Tuesday no Quebec court has direct jurisdiction over the reserve.

The six, all members of the militant Warrior Society on the reserve, pleaded innocent "under reserve" to charges of threatening, intimidating, mischief and depriving others of property.

DAVID LEWIS

Wants Facts

CAMPBELL TON, N.B. (CP) — New Democrat Leader David Lewis called Tuesday night for legislation which would require all foreign-owned corporations to fully disclose financial details in the same manner as public corporations now are required to do.

Lake Clean-up Said Slow

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A United States embassy official said Tuesday that the U.S. and Canadian governments are not "putting their money where their mouth is" in efforts to clean up the Great Lakes.

Miller Hudson, scientific adviser to the U.S. embassy in Ottawa, told the Community Planning Association of Canada (CPAC) that new institutions must be found to speed work on such programs as the Great Lakes cleanup agreement.

In an interview later, he suggested that a new international agency with greater powers than the International Joint Commission (IJC) be created to carry out anti-pollution work.

Mr. Hudson said many problems, such as water pollution, could be solved by existing technical skills. But institutions were sometimes slow to react.

A recent IJC report said the two governments have made it difficult to staff the commission's Great Lakes regional office in Windsor. The U.S. was slow to provide money while Canada was tying the commission's hands with regulations.

Pleads Not Guilty to Draft Evasion

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — Gavin Neave, 23, a naturalized Canadian citizen, pleaded not guilty Tuesday to a six-year-old United States charge that he failed to register for the draft.

Neave and his family moved from the Brattleboro, Vt., area to a farm in North Hatley, Que., in 1967, when he was 18 days away from his 18th birthday and selective service registration.

He was indicted by a federal grand jury in Vermont in 1967, on the draft evasion charge.

His family said they did not learn of the arrest until a sister received Neave's personal belongings from New York's West Street jail.

They also said they did not learn he was lodged in the Chilliwack County Correctional Centre here until Monday, despite efforts by three lawyers to locate him.

The director of the American Civil Liberties Union in Vermont, David Harrison, said the organization was looking into the matter to determine whether Neave's civil rights have been violated in any way.

Under U.S. law, Neave can be prosecuted on the 1967 charge, despite the fact that the draft ended in the United States last year.

Lowell Naves, the young man's father, was a conscientious objector during the Second World War and spent four years in U.S. detention centres.

Confusing Labelling At Government Orders

OTTAWA (CP) — Chairman Beryl Plumptre of the food prices review board may have opened a bigger can of worms than she reckoned on with a recent complaint about the size and price of baby food.

At a Sept. 26 news conference in Vancouver, Mrs. Plumptre held up two jars of Heinz baby spinach bearing the same price. But one jar was 4½ ounces, the other 4%. The sizing, she said, was "very misleading."

Tuesday, she met with representatives of the H. J. Heinz Co. at their insistence to discuss the complaint.

Afterwards, the board said in a statement it was "satisfied . . . that the appearance of differing labels on Heinz baby food products was the result of government labelling regulations introduced in September, 1970, and was not caused by an intentional attempt by the Heinz company to mislead the consumer."

"These regulations called for a reduction of the label's declaration of the content from 4½ to 4¼ ounces. It was agreed by the board and the Heinz company that consumers would continue to be confused by this practice while cans bearing these different labels continue to appear on store shelves."

Downtowners Are Helping Themselves

Aggressiveness is good for business.

And the push in recent times provided by the Belleville Downtown Business Association — collective action group for commercial enterprises in the community's core — appears to be paying dividends.

Business is up generally in the sector this past year — "no question about this," says Al Trotter, BDBA president.

Commercial success is significant to more than businessmen where the downtown is involved. All city centres have a social tradition.

But, no matter what its appeal, the key foundation of any downtown like Belleville's must be the success of its commercial enterprises — which, in turn, increases the social factor.

It all descends on people. The more citizens drawn downtown, the greater the activity in all areas.

A major project for the BDBA was the attraction of more customers. But the spin-off of financial success is an improved city centre as a community resource. More people drawn automatically to the area means increasing redevelopment — in both public and private sectors — to keep the core contemporary with changing lifestyles.

In modern times these have been:

1. Arrival of suburban centres, offering a built-in alternative to the conventional, long - established central areas. (2) The automobile, which demanded parking and flow space for which downtowns had not been designed.

Vacant store fronts became the markers for what was seen as a downtown decline.

Vacancy of storage spaces were a jolt, they also were a spur says Mr. Trotter, who, as manager of Walker's department store is also typical of a new generation of aggressive retailers.

"Downtowns used to be very complacent. The malls and plazas made us much more aggressive," he says. "In downtown Belleville, they're now more aggressive than ever."

The BDBA also set about fostering and promoting collective change — by both public and private sectors.

There's now a downtown improvement area, set aside under city ordinance, financed by an additional 14 per cent tax business assessment. The funds raised, and approved by city council, are earmarked for various projects.

Cleanup work has been carried on that is amazing. There's a program for tree-planting. There's new styling of parking facilities. There's talk of trying to develop a riverside parklet with the city on the Moira River behind Front St. stores.

There's not only an indication that closures are out of fashion. Expansion is in the air, says Mr. Trotter.

When Loblaws recently shut out its long-established Front St. outlet, the premises were taken over by North Front St. grocery operator Mike Amodeo, as a downtown store. There's a new catalogue order house being opened for a Hudson's Bay enterprise. There's talk of a trust-company development for a burned-out site at Victoria and Front, says Mr. Trotter.

"Maybe in the past there's been a lot of publicity about people closing and moving out. But it's still going to develop," he adds.

There's actually been an increase in public parking space and Mr. Trotter feels parking facilities now are "excellent."

Construction of a new bridge across the Moira at the downtown's north end will do much to offset traffic problems.

Such developments added to business trends are seen as promise — laden for the city's centre, says Mr. Trotter.

"The trends now are justifying the return of downtown as the core of city business and community activity," he says.

Monetary Fund Parley Ends in Deadlock

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The International Monetary Fund (IMF) ended on Friday a week-long meeting that left it entangled in a dispute over Chinese membership and unable to agree on basic monetary reforms.

Johannes Witteveen of the Netherlands, managing director of the 128-country IMF, told a news conference that mainland China had made a formal request to replace Taiwan in both the IMF and its sister organization, the World Bank.

Witteveen said executive boards of the IMF and the bank will consider the Chinese question next month.

The IMF decided last year in Washington to try to reach basic agreement on reforms in time for the Nairobi meetings.

But, leading countries were still hopelessly divided here on details and the IMF set a new target for basic agreement, July 31, 1974.

Finance ministers in the Committee of 20, the group charged with drafting the reforms, meet next in January. The site has not yet been chosen. Canada is a member of this group.

There was some suggestion that reforms might have to wait for a stronger United States dollar. The dollar is floating in foreign exchange markets and many finance ministers think it is undervalued.

Many delegates said the un-

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission has renewed the broadcasting licences of Ottawa Cornwall Broadcasting Ltd., it was announced Friday.

The licences are renewed to Jan. 3, 1975.

The commission said it expects the stations to be a significant supplier of programs to the CTV television network.

certainty of the present floating arrangements are likely to increase problems such as inflation and trade discrimination. They urged progress on the reforms.

Plumtre Under Fire Again

HALIFAX (CP) — Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the federal food prices review board, said Friday the board has next evidence to the consumer and corporate affairs department which may lead to the prosecution of some supermarkets and food manufacturers.

Mrs. Plumptre told a news conference here that, when consumer complaints came in only at a trickle after the board was first formed, the board hired 90 investigators to go out and dig.

She said about 50 cases have been compiled for consumer affairs action.

Mrs. Plumptre also said that Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia promised her during talks Friday that he would take action to stem price increases by creating a provincial consumers affairs department similar to the federal department.

She did not reveal the names of the corporations being investigated.

There has been no general exploitation of customers during this year's inflation of food prices, she said, but "there are individual instances where prices are unduly high."

Mrs. Plumptre's meeting Friday with Premier Regan was part of a cross-country study of food prices and their effects. During the tour she also is consulting with each premier to discuss ways in which the provinces can help.

Children Dislike Shouting Teacher

LONDON (CP) — The most unforgivable sin a teacher can commit, according to a survey of British schoolchildren, is to shout.

Shouting and yelling were far and away the main complaints among more than 400 children in the poll recently published in Where, the magazine of the Advisory Centre for Education.

After shouting, the most unpopular characteristics were favoritism, sarcasm and "making clever remarks."

"Nearly all our teachers shout sharply when they tell you off," said one nine-year-old boy. "I don't know why they don't talk softly."

But the survey of primary students at several schools in Manchester and London showed 65 per cent like their teachers. Another 18 per cent dislike teachers and 17 per cent were undecided.

The most surprising thing about the survey, education authorities said, was that it showed children were far more sensitive to teacher's even casual remarks—praise or criticism—than most teachers realize.

One child treasured the memory of a teacher replying, "yes, my darling." while another fondly recalled a teacher saying, "Take 20 points, ducky."

But "come on, boy!" remained for years as an unforgotten insult with one lad. Another still resented the remark, "What big feet you've got."

Many children remembered with pleasure remarks by a teacher that showed awareness of their lives outside school.

In general the kids rated as first-class teachers who were "bouncy," calm, tactful and "make you have a little laugh now and then."

A bad teacher is "cross and bossy, dull and boring," and has pet pupils.

In general comments many children said they thought students should be permitted to write reports on their teachers.

"I think if they can tell our fathers and mothers, why can't we tell their parents?" one boy wrote.

"My idea of a perfect teacher is one who never shouts and always talks to you," said an eight-year-old girl. And one boy wrote:

Saskatoon Trolleys Are Doomed

SASKATOON (CP) — The electric trolley bus will soon meet its end here despite its ecological and historical significance.

The fleet of 30 trolleys, which are 25 years old, will soon be replaced by 18 diesel units equipped with $1,100 anti-pollution devices.

Saskatoon's decision to scrap the trolley buses was a result of the city's low air pollution and the small contribution made to pollution by the diesel buses, said transit manager Bert Scharfe.

Edmonton and Vancouver were expected to bid for the city's buses, overhead network and power supply equipment, Mr. Scharfe said the buses could be put to use for many more years in a new city, although the buyers may wish to scrap the trolleys for their valuable running gear.

Edmonton city council has already ordered a new fleet of electric trolleys and Calgary and Vancouver are considering extending the life of their electric systems because the long-term ecological advantage outweighs the short-term financial disadvantage.

The life expectancy of the electric motors and controlling devices is so long that many cities buying new trollies are simply trading in their old buses. The power trains are transplanted into the new bus bodies, bringing the unit cost down to the $40,000 now charged for diesels.

The cost of getting a new electric trolley unit on the road is estimated at $46,000.

The Saskatoon decision is in contrast to the recent decision by Edmonton city council to maintain the city's electrical transit system for at least another 30 years.

Ahead of Halloween

Started Early

Downtown business can mark its beginnings back to early 19th century.

Today's bustling business core along the Moira River developed from the scattering of settlement that naturally gravitated toward the river area in pioneer days.

Trade changes with the times — and so do appearances, names, locations.

Downtown's oldest store dates from about when what now is the Ed Thomas tobacco shop was opened by a Thomas ancestor as a meat and general provisioners, often trading with Indians who canoed to its back door on the riverbank. The store has changed ownership in recent years, but the location is still the same — nearly 140 years later.

Today's downtown businessmen can also trace their merchandising origins back further — to the 18th century, and one of the earlier settlers in what was to become Belleville.

He was a man who engaged in more than one occupation — a common factor in a time of sparse population — when versatility and enterprise not only brought rewards, but served vital needs.

Col. William Bell is described in local history as both a school teacher and merchant.

His store is in the records as located close to what now is Front and Dundas Streets intersection — when the settlement that became Belleville was still known as Meyer's Creek.

The earliest of these is dated July 7, 1787.

In 1789, he was selling tea at six shillings a pound and sugar at one shilling and 10 pence. His inventory in that year also included knives, razors, beaver spears and "scaloing" knives.

In 1806 he was selling whisky at five shillings a gallon to Margaret Simpson, who carried on the tavern built by her soldier husband. Simpson's Tavern on the York — Kingston stagecoach route also was something of a community hall in the city's early settlement days.

Downtown Group Pushing Charge

The Belleville Downtown Business Association has become a banner - bearer for change in the city's core.

Its thrust is backed by a membership of more than 250 — the latest, biggest grouping of downtown business interests in the community's history.

It's a forward looking group, concerned with the future of business volume — hence the future of downtown's capability in attracting people into the city centre.

The association's interest in downtown improvement and development is ongoing.

It also involved the community as much as possible in identifying with downtown.

Currently it's giving the drive a boost by having the campaign symbol posted on business fronts.

During the summer, it retained personnel from ARC — the workshop for retarded persons — to keep the downtown centre spruced up.

Other projects contemplated are planting of trees and a riverside parklet.

The association may be future - oriented. But it also has a long history.

In 1913 the first merchants' association was formed. But time rings changes. One of the goals sought was a reduction in business taxes from 28 per cent of assessment to 16 per cent. The bid failed.

By contrast, today's BDBA actually had city council step up the levy — setting a 14 per cent increase aside into a fund to enhance the downtown.

In 1913 merchants were talking about co-operating in refusing to give donations or buy tickets during business hours.

They also were urged a special tax on business done by outside catalogue houses and worried about co-operatives.

Downtown Belleville has the potential to encourage new growth.

If it didn't, says George Basilone, he wouldn't be adding a new service to the outlet he opened earlier this year on Front St. — the latest expansion for a businessman already operating in city shopping centres.

Mr. Basilone is the owner of Hair, the hair-styling and beauty salon he opened in February on Front St.

Now, to Hair, he has added the Venus Health Salon and Men's Club.

The undertaking, which opens Thursday, is a fully - equipped gymnasium and sauna.

Designed for use by both men and women, the new facility offers programs of physical conditioning. For the women there will include weight - reducing, figure recon-ditioning, body - building. For the men, there's also body-building, weight - reducing and general conditioning.

Mr. Basilone came from Toronto seven years ago to open his first hair - styling store in the North Front St. Park Plaza. Then he expanded into the Quinte Mall.

Customer potential was among reasons that convinced him to open yet another operation — this time down-town.

In the health centre operation there'll be different in-structions and hours — for men and women.

Supervising the women's programs will be Pat Garneau, while Dan - Stewart will be instructor for the men

Commerce Outclimbs Dominion

TORONTO (CP) — There's one reason the new Commerce Court observation tower in downtown Toronto is superior to its counterpart on the 54th floor of the neighboring Toronto-Dominion Centre according to Peter Moller.

"It's higher and we can look down on them," Mr. Moller, manager of the building's service department, said.

The new observation deck was opened recently on the 57th floor and has such peculiar attractions as sloping mirrors on the ceiling which allow intrepid visitors to look straight down 784 feet to the ground.

The new gallery also claims other advantages over the other deck. It has clear as opposed to tinted glass and no railings to hold the curious back from the floor-to-ceiling windows. There is also an attraction for bird-lovers in the new gallery—86 birds in glassed-in cases are on display.

The price of admission is the same as the other deck. Adults are charged 50 cents and children under 12 years old, 25 cents. Senior citizens are admitted free of charge.

One dwarfing aspect of both decks is their clear view of the Canadian National Railways communication tower, currently under construction. On completion, the tower will stand 1,801 feet above the ground, the tallest self-supporting structure in the world.

And it will have two of its own observation decks.

home — and complete the financial and legal details involved.

Downtown is an operations centre for an estimated 260 services, businesses and offices.

This also means much to community economy — both public and personal.

About 2,000 people are needed to staff the lineup of downtown services. Tax assessment that enriched the city treasury last year amounted to $700,000 in business and property taxes — about 9.3 per cent of the total local government revenue generated in the city.

Then there are close to 120 establishments offering a wide variety of retail services — from quick dry cleaning to floral arrangements. There are food outlets, bakeries, furniture stores, paint stores, gift shops, cigar stores and ready-to-wear clothing stores.

But downtown Belleville also offers restaurants, women's beauty salons and barber shops.

The financial enclave includes five banks, two trust companies, two stockbrokers' establishments, 11 finance companies, 19 insurance businesses (including both underwriters and adjusters) and seven accountants.

About a score of lawyers maintain offices in the downtown core of Belleville.

Other professionals are two optometrists who practise downtown.

The area has nine real estate offices, seven hotels and seven amusement centres (theatres, bowling alleys and pool halls.)

There are businesses serving the motorist and five communications centres — a cable television office, radio station, newspaper, a commercial printer and Bell Telephone.

The miscellaneous category comprises 12 outlets — most of them service-oriented. They range, from the Chamber of Commerce to the city police station and include an architect, a telephone answering service, the city's public utilities office and its transit commission headquarters.

New Shrimp Grounds

VANCOUVER (CP) — As many as 20 specially-rigged boats likely will be in service by next year harvesting a bonanza of shrimps from major new grounds discovered off Tofino on the west coast of Vancouver Island, says the federal fisheries department.

Maury Houghton, regional special programs manager, said exploitation of the resource will enable Canada to make a bold move into the international shrimp market where at present there is an insatiable demand.

He said initial estimates indicate the grounds could support a harvest of "millions of pounds" annually on a sustained yield basis. British Columbia's 1972 production totalled 794,000 pounds.

And the discovery is likely only the beginning, Mr. Houghton said.

A research vessel under contract to the fisheries service has been exploring Queen Charlotte Sound where scientists suspect there is a shrimp fishery potentially as bountiful as that off Tofino.

Renfrew Farmer Likes Old Threshing Machine

RENFREW, Ont. (CP) — Edward Reid is proud of his Waterloo Junior—an old-fashioned threshing machine, not a university student—and says it has served him faithfully for 29 years and others before that.

Mr. Reid bought the machine second-hand in 1944 for $850 and spent another $100 repairing it.

"We spent 10 days fixing it up before we turned a wheel," he said recently, "but since I've fixed it, it's been good and faithful."

Mr. Reid, now 67, he has been threshing for 60 years, having started with his father's hand-fed machine when he was a boy.

"I can't see gaining anything buying a combine," he says, preferring the old method of cutting oats with a binder, stooking and drying the crop in the field and then hauling it to the barn, where his old threshing machine separates the grain from the straw.

"They're all swinging to the combine. Threshing people have quit because they can't get people to help. But I've been beating the combines every year."

Mr. Reid's two sons, Bruce and Tom, and a nephew, Doug Eady, supply the manpower required for threshing.

He said he would have trouble with a modern combine in any event because of his rolling farm land.

A combine, self-powered or hauled by a tractor, separates the grain from the straw as it cuts the crop, feeding the grain into hoppers and, if the farmer wants it, baling the straw automatically.

More Parking Now

Parking is a cruilal key to the commercial success of any downtown trading area.

Downtown Belleville — like most city centres everywhere — came in for criticism over — came in for critiism over the years for inadequate facilities.

But says Al Trotter, president of the city's Downtown Business Association, persistent attention to the problem has gone a long way to reversing the situation. Facilities now are more adequate than may be generally realized.

In fact, in and around the downtown area, public parking can now provide space for close to 850 vehicles.

Providing parking has been a problem that multiplied everywhere with the popularity of private transportation.

For the older, downtown centres, the new transportation style created a pressure that put parking at a premium. Vehicles flowed faster in the city cores than facilities were developed.

This mean disgruntled drivers — and shoppers. The situation helped set the scene for parking as a major attraction as the big suburban shopping centres introduced a new fashion to the consumer scene.

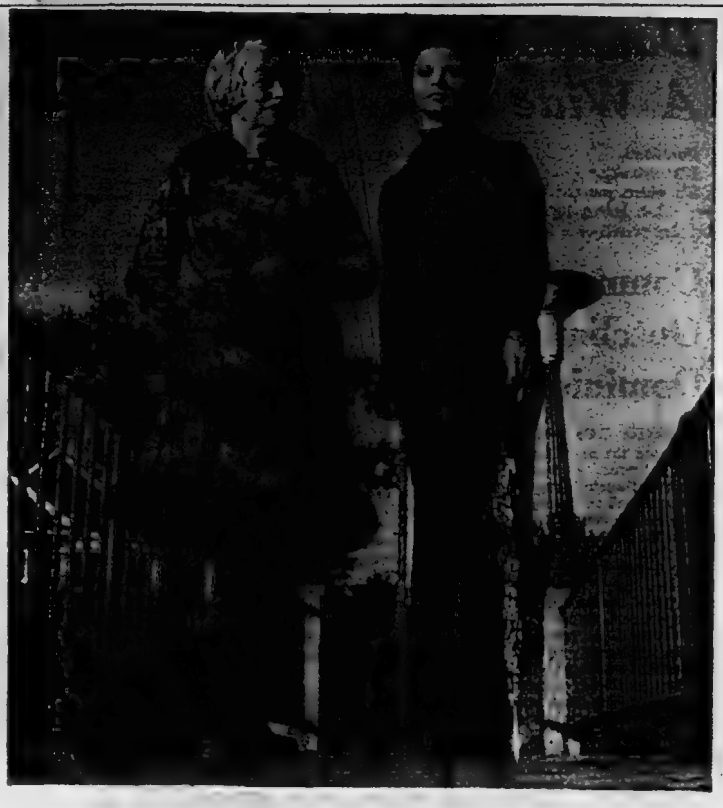
"Parking has been a big issue — one of the biggest," says Mr. Trotter. "But now, I feel we have very adequate parking."

In the past year, there's been an increase in the number of parking spaces available right on Front St. Other developments include redesigning of existing facilities to smooth out parking movement and traffic flow.

Right now the Belleville Parking Authority has a total of 831 spaces under operation. Parking lots and off-street parking accommodate a total 355 vehicles. On the street there are 476 metered spaces — some in fringe areas bordering the downtown core.

"The authority has an ongoing program involved with increasing parking spaces," says a BPA official.

Among more recent developments, has been an addition of 38 spaces at the Don-Har parking lot on Front, near Victoria Ave., boosting the lot's total capaity to 166.



The big parking lot on the east bank of the Moira River — with 128 spaces — has been redesigned for angle parking. This, says the BPA spokesman, has resulted in easier manouvering for the motorist and a "big improvement in traffic flow.

Crayfish Returning

AMSTERDAM (AP) — The crayfish, which disappeared from Dutch inland waters in the early 1960s, is returning in large numbers to rivers and canals of the southern Dutch province of Limburg, says the biological laboratory of the University of Nijmegen.

The crayfish are of the North American variety imported to France and Germany at the beginning of the century. They are apparently resistant to pollution, blamed as the major reason for the disappearnce of the indiginous crayfish.

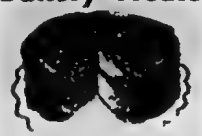
City Core Is Vital

Downtown Belleville is more active than ever, and its future as a new, revitalized community core seems certain, say its business spokesmen.



The decline of downtown — a common conclusion drawn in other centres in past years — is now a past phase, say businessmen.

The significance of the city's downtown area was formally restated in recent years in the city's report on urban renewal.

The report noted the city centre's assessment, business activity, incomes and jobs, together with its retail function.

As such, it said, the central business district plays a "significant part in the economy of Belleville."

Police Promoted

Four senior constables in the Belleville Police Department have been awarded promotions, Chief Douglas Crosbie announced today.

Promoted to the rank of sergeant are Charles Peters, 44, and William Spencer, 39. Sgt. Peters has been on the force 17 years while Sgt. Spencer is a nine-year veteran.

Assuming active detective status are Glen Jaques, 44, and John Ashley, 37. Detective Jaques joined the department 16 years ago and Detective Ashley 15 years ago.

All four men passed medical examinations last week to qualify for their new postings. The promotions are effective today.

Outlawed

VENICE (AP) — In order to evict the 180,000 pigeons causing decay and health problems in St. Mark's Square, city authorities are moving the birds' feeding places to the outskirts, banning stands selling corn from the square and attempting to sterilize some of the birds.

Fatal

TETOVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — Police said Ivan Skarpo, a 23-year-old soldier, was electrocuted by his gold false teeth. Lightning struck Sgarpo while he was playing soccer with fellow soldiers. The others were not injured. Authorities speculated the teeth may have attracted the lightning.

Down

ORANGE, Tex. (AP) — Four city council candidates spent a grand total of $66.31 campaigning for election last July. Figures released by the city secretary showed re-elected Mayor Cecil K. Smith made no expenditures while his closest opponent spent $21.85 on printing and stationery.

Vitamins Cure Heroin Addict

VICTORIA (CP) — After nearly four years as an addict, a 27-year-old Victoria man has turned off heroin and turned on with vitamins.

Rod stole, cheated, pawned his possessions and lived with a 15-year-old girl addict turned prostitute, supported a four-cap-a-day habit to spend four years as a "walking corpse."

Now, he is something of a pioneer, among the first in a handful of heroin addicts to benefit from experimental treatment with large doses of vitamins.

Rod says details of the four years are fuzzy but he clearly remembers his first taste of heroin in 1969. He started with "washing"—diluting a trace of heroin with water in a spoon. He soon graduated through the steps to the four caps daily.

"It happened so subtly. There's no way I could break away. Every time I tried I felt I was 100 years old."

He recalls forging cheques, shoplifting, pawning anything he could lay hands on and, often as not, the victims were his relatives and friends.

Although he was married, he spent most of his time apart from his wife.

Two years ago, he tried Dr. James Laing's methadone clinic in Vancouver but that only lasted two weeks.

Once, Rod lived with a girl, 15, and a boy, 17, who were all addicts. When the money ran out, the girl became a prostitute earning $80 a day.

Rod says a single cap costs about $20 but buying in bulk, as in many other cases, results in a saving. A bundle of 25 caps costs about $8 a cap.

About eight months ago, Rod dropped into Dr. Ross MacLean's New Westminster, B.C. clinic which is pioneering mega-vitamin therapy.

Immediately, he went on 10 grams of vitamins a day. These included vitamins B3, C, B6 and smaller doses of vitamins A and D, the only ones the body stores.

Again, after a couple of weeks, he dropped out but then was arrested for breaking into a house. A jail term reinforced his desire to get off drugs.

He's taking the vitamin cure again and is convinced it's working.

"I think I'm back on balance biochemically, no longer an acute paranoid schizophrenic."

Rod has gained 33 pounds and is eating high-protein food ravenously.

He's earning $700 a month with the provincial department of highways and he and his wife are planning to rent a house.

"I'm pretty well convinced I'm off for good."

Prices Change Value Stays

Downtown, much changes over the years — including prices.

And the price tags on goods in the current downtown Festival of Values are in contrast to what they might have been 60 years ago, if the same event were under way.

Devaluation, different income - cost ratios and lifestyles make comparisons with days long gone little more than an exercise in sentiment.

When prices are placed in such perspective it's always necessary to recall that the level of common prosperity enjoyed by downtown customers also has drastically altered — upwards.

But — for sentiment's sake — shoppers in downtown Belleville this week in 1913 were being asked to examine goods at these advertised prices:

Men's fall suits were being sold at Quick and Robertsons from $7 to $27.

For the ladies, Ritchie Company was selling autumn suits at $25 - $35, kid gloves at 50 cents and cashmere hose at 25 cents.

J. J. Haines had fall footwear marked at $2.50 to $6.

Wallbridge and Clarke's were selling one-lb. tins of asparagus for 20 cents and fresh cream was 40 cents a quart at Charles Clapp's.

At McKeown drugs there were five-cent cigars.

And, enroute downtown, the shopper would book a 50-cent seat at Griffin's Opera House for one of the theatre's smash hits of all times — Peg O' My Heart.

Globe-trotting Hasty Pee

With the 29th annual reunion of the Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment scheduled for this weekend, former Hasty Pees have been arriving in the city from all points in the world. The one travelling the farthest is Sgt.-Major 'Sockless' George Ponsford, left, who comes from Durban, South Africa. Greeting him is Art Hobbs, who was a platoon sergeant-major while Ponsford was a corporal when they first served together in the regiment. Art Hobbs presents Sockless with a collection of Hasty Pees literature he has been saving for him for 15 years. In the middle stands Sockless' son, Barry, 13.

Disposal Income Up

Turner's Office Denies Purchasing Power Lost

OTTAWA (CP) — A finance department spokesman said yesterday it was not true that the average Canadian worker is losing the battle with inflation.

"People are at least holding their own," said the spokesman from Finance Minister John Turner's office.

He said government calculations show the latest reported average weekly industrial wage of $163.36 is about seven cents.

Other estimates that workers had fallen behind by some 28 cents a week in Canada's worst inflationary bout in 22 years were "erroneous."

He also said the comparison of wages with inflation was only party of the national picture, and that other figures showed the real disposal income of all Canadians had increased by 8.2 per cent in the first half of this year compared with the same period last year. Disposal income is the figure after taxes and after allowance for inflation.

A non-government calculation showed that the July average wage of $161.36 had $12.42 less purchasing power after considering the 7.7-per-cent rise in living costs over the previous year. This would be 28 cents a week more than the average wage increase of $11.64 for the same period.

Keith Rapsey, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, condemned earlier reports as "unbelievably shortsighted and irresponsible and encouraging Canadians to go on picking each others' pockets."

Mr. Rapsey said the consumer price index is not increasing at as high a rate as the wage and salary costs faced by producers.

"Average hourly earnings in manufacturing have increased more than nine per cent in the past year. The only lesser figure reported by Statistics Canada is the increase for employees of hotels and taverns, whose wages rose only 8.8 per cent over the year.

"The dramatic July increase in the consumer price index puts it just 7.7 per cent above the same month last year."

Ottawa Sends Official To Aid Dozen Chileans

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is sending an immigration officer to Chile to help about 12 Chileans who have come to the Canadian embassy seeking immigration to Canada, an external affairs department spokesman said Wednesday.

The immigration officer, R. A. Caldato, will be dispatched from the embassy in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Until Wednesday, only two Chileans had asked the embassy for admission to Canada. But there now are a dozen refugees living at the embassy awaiting permission, and more are expected.

The announcement came a few hours after a delegation from the Canadian Council met External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp to urge greater assistance for refugees in Chile, where a military junta took power in a coup d'etat Sept. 11.

The delegation also called for more concern by Ottawa for the "flagrant violations of human rights" that had occurred under the military government.

"Thus far we have not seen evidence that Canada's voice has been effectively heard," the council said in a brief to the minister.

Representatives of the Anglican church of Canada, United Church of Canada and Roman Catholic churches were in the group.

Dr. Floyd Honey, general secretary of the council, said Mr. Sharp voiced sympathy, but told them there is only a limited amount Canadian embassy officials in Santiago could do.

The government has been willing to accept refugees since the coup, a spokesman for Mr. Sharp said.

The churchmen told Mr. Sharp that many Chileans had been turned away from the embassy in Santiago. "We contested that," Mr. Sharp's aide said.

Elliott Roosevelt Denies Story He Offered $100,000 to Assassins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elliott Roosevelt Wednesday denied before a Senate investigation committee that he was involved in an alleged plot to assassinate the prime minister of the Bahamas.

He said he believes that at the end of the Senate Committee inquiry he shall stand "before the world completely acquitted of all the vicious lies" which he said were contained in testimony by two committee witnesses.

Convicted stock swindler Louis Mastriana, 51, told the government operations permanent investigation subcommittee Sept. 18 that Roosevelt and Haitian casino operator Michael McLaney once offered him $100,000 to kill Prime Minister Lynden Pindeling.

Mastriani's allegations were made in public session. The Bahamian leader, to whom Roosevelt referred is convicted Stock swindler Patty Lepera who has talked to the subcommittee in closed session.

Austrian Camp Stays Open Until Other System Devised

VIENNA (AP) — Austria probably won't close the Schoenau transit camp for emigrating Soviet Jews until other arrangements are made to move them through Austria, official Austrian sources report.

The camp, in a castle 70 miles south of Vienna, is continuing to process Jews bound for Israel despite Chancellor Bruno Kreisky's promise last Saturday to close it. The promise was made to two Arab gunmen who had taken three Russian Jews and an Austrian border guard hostage.

About 100 more Soviet Jews arrived in Vienna Wednesday and were taken to the castle under heavy guard. They were expected to leave by Israeli airliner within 24 hours.

But Kreisky was reported firm in his intention to close the camp, and Austrian officials were reported at work on the "technical problems" of shutting it down.

The chancellor has stressed that closure of the camp will not affect Austria's policy of issuing transit visas to Soviet Jews and emigrants from all other countries looking for new homes.

Another demand placed on the Israeli government is that it be paid on oil and gas will be eliminated.

Amendments to the Mineral Taxation Act, which established a tax on crude oil reserves last year, will be repealed and new legislation introduced to provide for taxation of freehold minerals.

Wind Carries off Gas Cloud
Thousand Evacuees Return to Homes

NEW NORWAY, Alta. (CP) — Residents of central Alberta chased from their homes Tuesday by a cloud of deadly hydrogen sulphide gas began returning Wednesday afternoon on roads newly reopened by the RCMP.

About 1,000 evacuees from the villages of New Norway and Bittern Lake and the hamlet of Gwynne were given permission to return to their homes after the blown-out Sun Oil Co. well was capped about 3 p.m.

Brisk winds had carried the gas cloud, which observers said looked like a blue fog, high into the atmosphere and Pete Fearnehough of Camrose, Alberta Emergency Measures Organization co-ordinator, said tests found no indication of gas pockets left in the area about 50 miles southeast of Edmonton.

There were no serious effects evident from the gas although 11 persons were treated and released from hospital for nausea and chest pains, symptoms of gas poisoning.

There were no reports of any livestock harmed or killed by the gas. Cattle were sighted grazing a half mile from the well Wednesday morning.

The gas-oil well blowout occurred about 4 p.m. Tuesday as it was being serviced by increase production.

Gordon Fredericks of Camacho Well Servicing Ltd. said a violent blast blew about 50 feet of pipe more than 20 feet in the air while pipe was being pulled from the bottom of the 5,500-foot well for replacement.

The well spewed out oil, water and sour natural gas which contains lethal hydrogen sulphide. The hydrogen sulphide was estimated to be five per cent of the gas flow.

Persons in the 250-square-mile area fled in their night clothes to emergency relief centres in nearby cities.

Tuesday night, Sun Oil lined up dozens of pieces of heavy equipment from Calgary, Edmonton and oil well sites within a 100-mile radius to be used in the capping operation.

At sunrise Wednesday, bulldozers began clearing the well site for the equipment and 30 men were moved in to cut the pipe extending out of the well.

Winds kept the gas out of the work area, and by noon workers had begun operations to cap the remaining pipe, a job which took five hours.

Alberta Boosts Oil, Gas Royalties

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government moved today to increase substantially royalties on oil and natural gas in an angry reaction to Ottawa's recently imposed tax on crude oil exports.

The detrimental effects on the provincial economy of the 40-cent-a-barrel tax left Alberta with no choice, Premier Peter Lougheed told a news conference.

"We are forced—in effect have no choice—but to respond with major revisions in Alberta's oil and gas policies, legislation and royalty arrangements which in our judgment will protect the Alberta and Canadian public interests."

The premier said the new royalty system, to go into effect next January, will be based on a formula whereby the rate will increase, as the price at the wellhead increases. Under the current system, royalty rates are tied to production.

The provincial cabinet will be given the right to determine the price on which royalties will be paid "in relation to an assessment of world commodity prices in a free international market."

CN Passenger Fares Increased

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian National Railways has filed passenger fare increases with the Canadian transport commission to offset increased costs of labor, material and food supplies, the company announced Wednesday.

Y. H. Massé, general manager of passenger, sales and services, said the new rates will take effect Nov. 1 and will increase the railway's gross passenger revenues by three per cent.

Mideast Community Proposal Rejected

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Arab delegates have thrown cold water on an Israeli proposal that the Jews and Arabs follow Western Europe's example and join in a new Middle East community.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban made the proposal Wednesday during the general debate in the United Nations General Assembly. He called for "a community of sovereign states in the Middle East as in . . . the European democracies."

"Empty words," said Lebanese Ambassador Edouard Ghorra. Egyptian Ambassador Ahmed Esmat Abdel Meguid told a reporter the idea was "completely unacceptable."

"What works in Europe would not work in the Middle East, said Saadat Hassan of the Palestine Liberation Organization, because "we and the Israelis are not the same people."

Ambassador Abdalla Y. Bouhara of Kuwait called the proposal "the same linguistic delta couched in a little more civility."

Cafik Likely Candidate As Leader

OTTAWA (CP) — Norman Cafik, parliamentary secretary for health and welfare, has called a news conference for today when he is expected to announce his candidacy for the Ontario Liberal leadership.

"I'm not actually saying that I'm going to run but I do want to leave the impression that it's a pretty likely thing," he said after the news conference was announced by his office. It 's scheduled at 3 p.m.

Liberal MP for the riding of Ontario, Mr. Cafik was first elected in the Commons in 1968, re-elected last October and subsequently named parliamentary secretary to Health Minister Marc Lalonde.

He said he has discussed the possibility of running with both Mr. Lalonde and Prime Minister Trudeau and has started work on a campaign organization.

He said a key reason for running would be to resolve animosities that have developed during the provincial leadership campaign.

"I think they can best be resolved by an outsider."

Sidney Future Plotted

Sidney Township council prefers that future development in the Quinte area be based equally around the existing larger municipalities — Belleville, Trenton and Frankford. Council will so recommend to the Quinte Planning Board at its meeting tonight.

In the discussion over the Quinte concept plan that will guide planners in formulating an official plan for the five participating municipalities, council declined two other possible future development schemes proposed as alternatives by a study originating from QPB long range and research planning staff. Alternative one called for development around a single urbanized area, while alternative two proposed an entirely new city be located in either Sidney or Thurlow Townships.

Discussing from Tuesday's council meeting, the following recommendations will also be made to QPB planners:

—Where the study proposed residential areas surrounding existing hamlets, council would sooner see land set aside for industrial uses, said Reeve Gordon Wilman this morning. Although Sidney Township does not own land near Belleville, it has geared 45 acres for industry outside Trenton.

Council prefers to see Glen Ellis and Batawa incorporated into future development surrounding Trenton and Frankford respectively. Services to Glen Miller could be extended from Trenton, council felt, while those of Batawa could be connected with Frankford's.

—Although the study recommends a 1,000-foot separation between rural non-farm buildings to retain the feeling of openness, council felt 250 feet would suffice.

In line with Thurlow Township, Sidney Township council would prefer that rural land splits by an individual owner or company be allowed once every two years contrary to the study's recommendation of once every three years.

Where the study recommends that land severances only be made from total holdings of a 100 acres or more, council felt the minimum holdings should be five acres. Thus, should an application be made to sell a lot, the five-acre-piece of land would be split in half.

Finally, council would wish that certain areas of Oak Hills and along the Trent river be set aside for estate type residential use. Land requirements for this style of development range from two to two and a half acres.

Lack of vitamin A caused 100,000 children in Bangladesh to go blind and international agencies are now giving 15 million youngsters emergency doses of vitamin A to prevent further blindness.

Members of Quinte White Cane Club heard a report on conditions in India, Pakistan and Bangladesh at the recent meeting at the recreation centre. J. F. Entertainment was provided by Craig Brownlee on the violin, accompanied by his mother at the piano. Refreshments were served by the Kinettes.

Picton Caution:

Progress--But Homes Urgent

By MARY HATLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — "Where is the town headed?" is the question council must consider periodically, says councillor Larry Richardson.

He made the observation after hearing earlier requests before council for a subdivision development and a trailer park. No official guidelines are available for these proposals.

Councillor Richardson said Picton seems to be expanding but housing needs are urgent.

He noted that Councillor Jack Evans, chairman of the planning and development committee, had stated approximately 150 building lots were available in Picton but he did not know how many were ready for immediate development.

The councillor proposed a study with recommendations by the planning committee.

Mr. Evans replied that his committee originally had been appointed to discuss "certain suggestion matters" between Picton and Hillier completely outlined.

The Prince Edward Central Planning Board in past has acted on the town's behalf in such matters.

"But if this board is to do this work thoroughly it will no doubt need more funds," said Councillor Evans.

He indicated willingness to comply with councillor Richardson's request for a study of future growth but noted further direction from council might be appropriate.

Police Find Stolen Goods, Castleton Man Is Charged

By COLIN BRUCE

TRENTON — A father of four has been charged with possession of stolen goods following investigations by police at Brighton and Toronto.

Robert Walker, 39, of Castleton, was released after remand to Oct. 31 in provincial courts here Wednesday.

He was arrested at his home Tuesday.

Brighton police at Brighton say investigations have recovered goods worth $5,000.

An OPP spokesman said the investigation is continuing.

Included in the recovered goods were furnishings, dishware, televisions, radios, and a minibike.

Subsequent searches in the Trenton area at an undisclosed location disclosed more goods, say officers.

A Toronto doctor whose Castleton summer home was broken into twice since last January identified some of the stolen goods as those belonging to him, said police. Included are items stolen last winter.

Free Skating Planned For Trenton Small Fry

TRENTON — Public school children here have free skating this winter as a result of a recreation committee bid for maximum use of the Community Gardens arena.

Dero Gettas, administrator of the recreation complex in Centennial Park, earlier explained to council ice time is available each year and the arena is standing idle.

While there is considerable activity on the rink with learn-to-skate classes for small fry, there are isolated time slots which in the middle of the day are inappropriate for renting.

Following a favorable town hall reaction Mr. Gettas approached each of the local public schools offering an average of eight free hours a week.

Separate scheduling being administrated through school principals and Hastings County board of education

Mr. Gettas' administrative assistant Sharon Gaudaur, said the more diplomatic co-operation between the town's resources and of the board of education. Currently, the recreation department uses some school room facilities and gymnasiums for town sponsored programming.

She said there was approximately one free hour a day for the arena. However, in the event a "regular paying customer" wanted some ice time, the schools would be given notice to allow re-scheduling and the custom given priority.

Ice time at the Gardens sells for $15 an hour. The schools are invited to use the facility for the entire season early next April.

Trailer Site Asked

PICTON — Town council's planning and development committee will study a Picton man's application for a mobile home park on Main Street West.

Les Ryan told council the site he proposes is zoned industrial and change would be required to the commercial zoning if his application were approved. He suggested that a trailer park would be a welcome facility in Picton since suitable homes are steadily gaining in popularity.

Town solicitor Jack Ward said that council could authorize the trailer park but pointed out the advisability of proper setting out guidelines.

Conservation Group Will Get Own Offices

PICTON — A provincial grant of $2,600 to the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority has been approved for establishment of an administration headquarters in the Macaulay Mountain conservation area.

The announcement was made jointly this week by Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier and James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

PERCA now has a small office in a rented building in Picton. Office quarters will be built in a portion of the park service building recently constructed at Macaulay Mountain. Partitions will be erected, suitable lighting installed and additional furniture and equipment purchased.

All member municipalities of the authority will benefit and will bear PERCA's share of the cost for this new facility.

Check Trenton Plants For Fire Prevention

TRENTON — The fire department this week began systematic checking of this community's 40 factories.

The check for enforcement of fire regulations is one aspect of Fire Prevention Week beginning next Monday.

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis said this Wednesday the inspectors were most interested in enforcing "good housekeeping" practices in local factories and some attention would be paid to adequate fire exits and extinguisher equipment.

The prevention week will be in full swing Monday with fire department officials moving into smaller businesses and a strong drive in local schools.

Public school children will view special films on fire prevention, talk with firemen and be put through a fire drill. Teachers will also be reacquainted with fire drill procedures.

The following Friday junior public school grades will be touring the fire department and see first-hand, the equipment used by the department.

Safety Checks Free

TRENTON—Fire prevention information and help is the biggest bargain going. It's free.

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis said Wednesday, the department is "only too happy" to visit homes — and check over the furnaces as accident preventive measures.

"It doesn't cost anything and it could save lives," said the chief.

Beginning Monday, the fire department here will be observing Fire Prevention Week. Department officials will tour local factories and businesses to check observance of fire regulations.

Truck Wrecked

TRENTON — A Parry Sound man escaped serious injury early today when his pickup truck rolled five times on Highway 401.

Edgar Lacklin, 29, was driving east when the accident occurred near miles east of here.

The truck "completely fell apart" said a Brighton OPP officer. Crews clearing the site were forced to make several trips and were not finished clean-up job until mid-morning.

Mr. Lacklin was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital where he was treated for minor cuts and later released.

Golden Girls

PICTON — Not to be outdone by Ripley's Believe It or Not four members of a Prince Edward County family have celebrated golden wedding anniversaries. A similar quadruple celebration was recorded in Ripley's jottings recently.

Veda McCormack (Mrs. Clarence Pierce) Grace McCormack (Mrs. Harvey Hicks) Edith McCormack, (Mrs. Norman Ackermann) and their brother Clive, husband of Ethel Hicks, all have enjoyed a 50th wedding anniversary celebration.

County Control Proposed

PICTON — The Prince Edward Centre Commission has recommended that county council assume control and operation of the County Centre.

The motion, made at a first must be reviewed by the Prince Edward Agricultural Society. If approved, the proposal will be presented to council.

The motion, calling for a recess commission meeting, change in administration, was forwarded by Fred Welsh, a member of the commission, and seconded by Archie Kingma, commission chairman.

It was observed by Mr. Welsh that the commission "feels that the county can do more the the arena than we can."

Council Endorses Pool

PICTON — The Quinte's Isle swimming pool committee will have support from the town of Picton in its application for a LIP (Local Initiatives Program) grant to build an open pool.

Letters in favor of the project were requested by pool committee chairman Ronald Holston during a recent public meeting to discuss a possible county-wide project for submission for a LIP grant.

Town council has agreed to send a letter of approval for the pool which will cost an estimated $78,000. It will be constructed so that at a later date it can be covered and heated. Proposed location for the pool is at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Liquor Vote For Elzivir

ACTINOLITE — Residents of the townships of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe will go to the polls on Oct. 17th to vote on three questions under the liquor licence act.

The questions are: (1) Sale of beer under a dining room licence; (1) Sale of liquor in a dining lounge; (3) Sale of liquor at a lounge without meals.

A court of revision is being held today at the township hall when names of any persons appointed to act for affirmative and negative sides will be announced.

Polling will take place at Institute Hall, Queensboro and at the residence of L. Duquette, RR 1 Flinton — the same polls as at municipal elections.

Township Clerk Lloyd G. Price said the Oct. 17 ballot will be the first time for a liquor vote in the municipality.

Wartime Memories

War may be hell, but it has its own built-in turn of adventure and comradeship that draws men together at the time, and again in later years, when deeds turn to legend and those same men gather at reunions.

Such an occasion was the ninth annual meeting of the Royal Air Force Escaping Society (Canadian branch) in Belleville recently. The camaraderie of those days and the intervening years, even with members scattered near and far, was typified by the meeting of two members who had not seen each other for 30 years.

Baron Northomb, a native of Belgium who is now a religious brother in Detroit, encountered wartime pilot Tom Wilby of Fredericton, one of some 500 pilots he estimates he helped to safety across the Pyrenees to Spain.

Such adventurousness is rare nowadays, unless we consider the international drug traffickers or those tough groups of men we read about who are carving their way through muskeg, swamp and jungles in North and South America in latitude-by-explorations for oil, minerals and other necessities.

There will never be another era like 1939-45, not in our increasingly computerized and nuclear society. Nevertheless, the men of the Escaping Society lived through dangerous times and if they seek in their present circumstances something more than just memories, it could well be in helping to preserve a society that is human rather than dehumanized, one that maintains democratic ideals and the rights of the individual.

Without such a prospect, there may be no future worth contemplating.

A Tough Winter?

According to The Farmers' Almanac we are supposed to be going from fair to unsettled weather through to October 7 and thus far this is accurate enough.

Someone had mentioned The Almanac as predicting a tough winter so we are perusing its pages for confirmation or otherwise of this ominous intelligence.

Cold spells are predicted later in the month but the period to watch — and make sure those storm windows are up — is November 5-6 when "The Lady" sails for "severe storms in Ontario through Maritime provinces then fair, cold."

In December "dangerous storms" may hit Ontario just before Christmas gladdening the heart of Irving Berlin and Bing Crosby fans. Incidentally, Berlin was born in Russia where the winter winds blow quite unkindly too.

Now if you are planning anything for the New Year, like hitting the roads long-distance style, forget it. For January 1-3, The Almanac predicts "severe storms, heavy snow across Manitoba and Ontario eastward. . ." Instead, better start getting in shape for digging that snow . . . and if you are not in shape, then think twice about the digging bit.

It could be a good year for snowmobilers and we hope their driving habits will have matured somewhat, especially as the new machines seem bigger and presumably better. There is even a luxury job which is the latter-day equivalent of the old bicycle-built-for-two. Yes, there is the fancy looking two-seater which looks as if it could get you to Siberia and back via the Bering Strait. The local commissars permitting of course.

As some storefronts are saying -these days: Think Snow!

Fire's Aftermath

Serious as the loss of its office and printing facilities has been, The Evening Guide in Port Hope still has its files and copies of previous issues. The latter were untouched by the recent fire. Had they been destroyed also, a major record of the life of a community would have disappeared into limbo. Other arrangements can always be made for printing, but files are virtually irreplaceable — except of course in the years they have been micro-filmed, and many newspapers nowadays do just that. A wise move it can be too.

International Telephone's Role in Chile

'Corporate Diplomacy' Replaces Era of the Gunboat

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Gunboat diplomacy, it would appear, is being replaced by so-called "corporate diplomacy" when big-power's wrist to interfere for their own, reasons in the domestic affairs of Third World countries.

The most blatant example of this has been the activities of International Telephone and Telegraph (I. and T.) in Chile both before and after the election of the late President Salvador Allende in August, 1970.

As revealed in internal company memos and admissions by I., and T. executives in the American press and before the Church Congressional Committee on Multi-National Corporations, this global company's concern was to prevent Allende's election and failing that to try and get him unseated as Chile's Marxist president.

All this was happening when the United States official foreign policy toward critical Latin American countries like Chile was announced as expressly low key. There would be no interference direct or overt in the domestic affairs of these countries by the U.S. Government or its agencies.

Accordingly the Nixon administration tried to appeal, ambassadors in the Third World who would avoid the earlier exuberance of U.S. ambassadors in some countries who had offered unsolicited advice to national leaders on how to run their country.

Unfortunately low-key diplomacy has not worked very well either, since the pay-offs which have been endemic in the Nixon years, included ambassadorial jobs for wealthy business executives who were friends of the President or had contributed to his campaign funds.

These have been men of deep conservative convictions, quite out-of-touch with the economic nationalism rampant in emerging countries in Africa, Latin America and Asia and clearly exponents of the US free enterprise system.

Although it is true the United States had not attempted another disastrous military intervention like the one in the Dominican Republic in 1965, neither has she shown any skills in making low-key diplomacy work.

Nixon's business friends as ambassadors in developing countries where multi-national companies often dominate local economies are sympathetic to the US corporation abroad. Often their senior executives are personal friends or associates. They think alike. They are ideological brothers.

The result has been a new and even more bitter rash of anti-Americanism around the world. It surfaced during the Chilean military coup with charges the armed forces in Chile received secret US support from the CIA and business interests eager to regain some of what they lost under the Marxist President Allende.

And since there is nothing new under the sun, the game players in the multi-nationals should be reminded that the United Fruit Company in Guatemala, a multi-national before the word was popular, played the power struggle openly and blatantly in Guatemala for more than 30 years.

It could and did make and break Guatemalan governments. But in the end it fost, broke by a neo-Marxist revolution under Jacobo Arbenz in 1954 who expropriated that company's once huge land-holdings and distribution system. That same revolution also forced United Fruit to radically change and make more progressive its corporate style.

These are changes which have made that company more enlightened but which it never planned from strong-arming a small country for a quarter century.

'Forty – Plus' Group Aids Jobless Executives

By VINCENT EGAN
BUSINESS AND CONSUMER AFFAIRS ANALYST
Thomson News Service

For unemployed executives, a new way of getting back into harness is helping to replace the desperate and often futile do-it-yourself job-hunting technique.

It's an organization called Forty-Plus, and its strength is the mutual self-help of its participants—all temporarily displaced business executives over 40.

Its record of achievement: more than 90 per cent of the participants land new jobs within 13 weeks of joining.

There's an important bonus. During the period that they are looking for new jobs, the Forty-Plus participants operate an active, organized and useful program. That does wonders in sustaining morale, which can otherwise be difficult at a person over 40 who is used to important responsibility and suddenly has nothing to do, no income and no familiar contacts.

Forty-Plus of Canada (250 Bloor St. East, Toronto) was established a few years ago as an organization to help unemployed executives find new positions by their own efforts.

It is not an employment agency nor is it a charity. Participants are assessed $25 for a year's membership—$150 of which can be paid after the executive finds a job.

There's also an associate membership at $50, again with Forty-Plus office, working with others who are in similar circumstances and have similar goals.

Each has a specific task—for example, scanning business publications and maintaining a card file on current career advertisements. Mutual self-criticism sessions help members to see themselves as prospective employers see them.

After two or three months of diligent work—writing letters, distributing resumes, attending interviews and the like—the typical Forty-Plus unemployed executive finds he has a number of job offers to choose among.

But that's not the end—many ex-members continue to help out, part-time at Forty-Plus after they start their new jobs.

Executive director of Forty-Plus and one of its founders is Jean Toombs, former editor of consumer magazine. Her part-time volunteer associates include another founder, management recruiter Herman Smith, as well as other businessmen.

An insurance company has donated the use of office space and several Canadian business organizations contribute financial support.

Economic Nationalists Pose An Embarrassing Issue

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — Politics can find one in some surprising situations.

Such as one Premier David finds himself in at the moment.

The premier, as was made known last winter, owns a condominium in Florida which he uses for occasional recreational trips.

But now the Economic and Cultural Nationalism Committee of the legislature has brought down some fire-breathing recommendations.

In effect it would have ownership of Ontario land open only to Canadians.

Which should be enough at least to make the premier and our other U.S. land-holders blink.

Actually the chances are that the government will go easy when it comes to considering action to be taken out of this report.

Some of the recommendations could be most embarrassing and possibly even harmful economically.

This is particularly true when the committee gets into the area of industrial land.

Under its thinking for any company to build land it would have to be 75 per cent Canadian-owned. Any other company could only lease.

Even some members of the committee violently disagreed with this recommendation, on the grounds that it would throw up economic roadblocks.

And the recommendation reflects a situation which has been tending to confuse the economic nationalism picture.

This is the tendency to overlook the fact that while it may be laudable for Canadians to own more of Canada we also are a nation which still needs a lot of development and a share of that development must come from foreign investment.

The first possibility cut of the committee's report probably will be some action on recreational land.

The committee recommended that recreational land now owned by non-Canadians could not be inherited—could only be passed on in an estate.

This seems pretty rough, when considered in terms of a family cottage or small holding.

Almost certainly, however, we will see some action which will put a bar to the future purchase of recreational land.

Oil Industry Economics

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to draw your attention to two items items on CBC and CTV news. On September 17 CTV interviewed an independent gasoline dealer in Unionville who had had his supplies cut off by his supplier (Gulf) because of what he was told was a "shortage". A sign on his service station advertised gas at 46.9 cents a gallon.

On September 18, CBC national news carried an item on mounting further protests by oil companies against the Alberta and Ottawa energy proposals. It also presented a report from Calgary on the industry's state of health, which is apparently blooming with average profits this year up 25 per cent. This is not an sudden development the revenue of oil companies operating in Canada increased 80% from $1 billion to $1.8 billion, between 1968 and 1972 while their spending increased only from $0.95 billions to $1.13 billions (1972) in the same period.

Yet the oil industry is articulating a threat to the government because it says it will reduce profits and the incentive for exploration and thus lead to shortages and price increase in the future.

We are, however, suffering from shortages and price increase already. The school bus I had to find an extra $22,500 for heating oil next winter to cover a rise in price and retail gas prices here have gone up 6 cents a gallon since January. So much for the value of high profits. In this situation, should it be up to government to take action of some sort, since the oil companies have so far shown no interest in securing adequate supplies of petroleum for the Canadian market at reasonable cost. The economy is already suffering enough from other cost increases without destabilizing any further companies already earning record profits, the bulk of which are paid to parent corporations and stockholders outside Canada.

We might also ask, in closing, why it is that Canadian gasoline prices are higher than those in the U.S., when it is the latter that is supposed to be having the shortage. Could it be entirely a coincidence that most of the oil companies operating in Canada are American subsidiaries?

Germany East-West Joins UN

Ottawa Le Droit: The admission of the two Germanies into the United Nations in a way lifts the final veil of disapproval which, since the last world war, covered the former German power.

It is not a question of erasing with a stroke of the pen the list of crimes committed by the Nazis but, 28 years after the end of the war, it is time unduly to recognize that the political masters of today are not the same as those of yesterday.

In admitting the two Germanies to the UN, it is not a question of approving the internal policies of the two new states nor of declaring for or against their respective alliances with the East or West.

It is simply a way of being realistic and recognizing that one cannot line indefinitely under the ban of international society, two countries which actually exist and with which a great number of UN members have commercial or diplomatic relations.

The admission of the two Germanies to the UN is the beginning of true universality. With the arrival of the two Germanies and the Bahamas, the UN now has 135 members compared with the 51 who founded the organization in 1945.

We are moving towards a true society of nations. Soon the 1919 dream of a great human fraternity will be realized. This dream, alas, is often accompanied by nightmares but these would probably be more numerous without the UN.

The bigger the club, the more the members will speak the same language, the more we will approach universal peace. We have a long distance, however.

It would be difficult to expect the UN to restore democracy in Chile or to establish it in the Middle East where it does not truly exist.

All this remains in the realm of dreams but dreams often end up coming true.

This year's session in New York opened under better auspices than last year and that is a tremendous hope for a pacified, prosperous and humanity, remains, unfortunately, what its name implies, merely a simple hope.

Cattlemen Say Beef Is Bargain

NEW YOR (AP) — The president of the American National Cattlemen's Association predicted Wednesday that prices of some beef cuts would drop by as much as 30 per cent in the next few weeks.

John R. Trotman, ad a news conference to present the rancher's side of the story and to try to convince consumers that beef is really a bargain food, said the price paid for live cattle had dropped from a high of 58 cents a pound in August to 49 cents a pound last week. Retail prices should reflect the reduction shortly, he said.

Trotman said cattlemen have been "experiencing the most bewildering series of ups and downs in their history."

Fluctuating prices and government controls had hurt the cattlemen as well as the consumer. The average rancher, he said, owns less than 30 head of cattle and made a net profit on his investment last year that was less than he could have earned by putting the money in a savings account paying four per cent interest.

Right now, Trotman said, "the news we bring is good news. Beef prices already are down and we expect them to go even lower. Beef is a bargain again."

Contractor Will Purge Charge of Contempt

TORONTO (CP) — A contractor who refused to answer a question before the Ontario royal commission on crime in the construction industry was ruled in contempt of court Wednesday and told he will be jailed for three months if he persists.

But Norman Donaldson's lawyer told the Ontario Supreme Court's divisional court that the Toronto executive will purge the wishes of the royal commission, so his only penalty will be a $500 fine.

The court imposed the fine for Mr. Donaldson's first refusal. The jail term was dependent on his future action before the commission.

In his appearance before County Judge Harry Walsberg's inquiry, Mr. Donaldson testified his lathing firm paid $8,000 and $6,000, respectively, to two men employed by other firms for help in preparing contract bids.

Argument Settled

All-out Food Production Needed--Hamilton

OTTAWA (CP) — An international argument that has affected farm and eating habits for the last 20 years has been resolved, former Conservative agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton said Wednesday.

World leaders now agree that all out farm production is more important than restrictive measures aimed at managing the food supply.

Arguments over which of the two courses the world should take broke out shortly after the Second World War, the MP for the Saskatchewan riding of Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain said during an interview.

Economists, particularly from the major western exporting countries, convinced first the European predominic Community, then the United States and finally Canada that the countries stood to benefit from supply management practices that increase returns by forcing food prices artificially high.

Nutritionists, sociologists and others have continued to argue that it was immoral to restrict production in a hungry world. Demand for farm commodities had grown during the 20 years at about 3.9 per cent a year. Production grew at only 2.7 per cent.

The argument ended last week in Nairobi, Kenya, Mr. Hamilton said.

Robert S. McNamara, president of the World Bank, announced that the major thrust of the bank between 1974-78 would be to push aid to rural areas to promote increased production on small subsistance farms, particularly in developing countries.

That goal, he said, "will call for immense courage, for political risk is involved."

"The politically privileged among the landed elite are rarely enthusiastic over the steps necessary to advance rural development.

"This is shortsighted, of course, for in the long term they, as well as the poor, can benefit."

Mr. McNamara said "the fundamental decency" of nearly a billion people—40 per cent of the people in the 100 developing countries that belong to the development bank—is at stake in the decision.

"Without internationally-financed increased production, the outlook for the world was dark.

"The extremes of privilege and deprivation are simply no longer acceptable."

The international move toward unrestricted food production is a dream come true for Mr. Hamilton and a smattering of Canadian officials who have fought for such measures throughout the 1960s.

While Canada has leaned toward such a stance this year following unprecendented world demand for more meat and cereals, the Trudeau government has generally followed a different course since coming into office in 1968.

Farm policy followed a pattern mapped out in an agricultural study group report commissioned by late prime minister Lester Pearson which essentially called for fewer, more efficient farms and production that matched demand.

To accomplish that, a number of programs have been introduced during the last three years: The LIFT, for lower inventories for tomorrow program, that paid farmers to take wheatland out of production in 1970; the 1972 Farm Products Marketing Act which allows farmers to match supplies with demand through a system of quotas; the soon-to-be reintroduced farm income stabilization bill that sets up a fund guaranteeing farmers a yearly income if they produce as the government sees fit; the small farms development program that helps older farmers get out of farming and into other businesses.

"Together, they show that the government had decided on a restrictive approach," Mr. Hamilton said.

"The government was listening to the economists."

The McNamara speech, however, signals a "hammer blow" to these philosophies, Mr. Hamilton said.

He points with pride to the spring of 1970 when he alone argued for continued farm production at a time of a billion-barrel grain surplus and sagging prices. Then, as now and 10 years before, he said he was convinced that growing world demand would inevitably take care of any surplus problems.

Inquest Hears Tales of Heroism and of Death

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Tales of heroism and flaming death emerged Wednesday amid divergent testimony at a coroner's inquest into a multiple-vehicle collision that killed 12 persons.

Two key witnesses during the day were the driver of a transport laden with lumber and the driver of an Ontario Northland bus filled with southbound passengers.

Their testimonies conflicted with each other and with that of other witnesses.

James New, 38, of South River, Ont., at first said his truck did not hit anything before coming to a full stop. Later, under cross examination, he changed his testimony. He said he was not 100-per-cent sure and might have hit another vehicle.

Victor Raymond Heath, 51, of Toronto, employee of Grey Coach Bus Lines, who was operating the Ontario Northland bus involved in the Highway 400 disaster last March 18, gave testimony which was later contradicted by his passengers.

However, it was two tow truck operators who provided a brief insight into the human agony when 32 vehicles piled out of a snow cloud and into each other.

Pat Micks, 26, of Stroud, Ont., told of coming to the aid of a screaming, bloody man who was trapped in what was left of a red car. The car was on fire and the tow truck driver valiantly attempted to shovel snow on the flames until an explosion drove him back.

The charred body of the man later was found limbless with the other three members of his family, also dead.

Another tow truck operator, Stanley Earl Copeland, of Bradford, Ont., told of arriving at the carnage and working his heavy duty truck until the clutch burned out.

Before the clutch went, he tore apart a Volkswagen van that lay shredded between the lumber truck and the bus to enable Dr. Paul Mersereau to get out.

Dr. Mersereau, of St. Annes, Ont., told of being wedged in the wreck and smelling smoke from the approaching gas-fed fire.

The doctor's wife, who was able to get out of a side door of the van, was screaming a warning of the fire when the tow truck appeared in the opposite lane of the divided highway.

After freeing the doctor, Mr. Copeland switched his attention to the bus, where the driver was wedged in the front seat while the fire burned in front of him.

At first he was unsuccessful, but he finally hooked on to the bus and pulled it 30 feet back from the fire where the driver was freed.

Mr. Heath, who hobbled into the inquest with the aid of a cane because of a broken knee suffered in the crash, testified that he wasn't aware of an accident on the road ahead of him and said he did not hit anything other than the transport trailer after it suddenly skidded and toppled.

He said he hit the underside of the toppled lumber truck, adding that his speed had been less than 50 miles an hour on the highway.

However, passengers in the bus said the speed was higher than that and Dennis Boulanger, 23, of Timmins, Ont., who sat directly behind the driver, told of the bus hitting a median before the main impact.

Patricia Baxter of Kosebec, Ont., said the lumber truck was upright before the collision with the bus. Before hitting the truck, Mrs. Baxter said she felt other impacts.

Another bus passenger, Gary Lake, a Timmins school teacher, told of his wife's uneasiness about the speed of the bus before the crash. He estimated the speed to be at least 60 miles an hour.

1973 French Wines Finest of Century

PARIS (Reuter) — This year promises to be one of the finest this century for French wines. Some say it will be the best ever.

The greaty irony of 1973 is that while a major scandal threatens to tarnish the reputation of the wine industry, the wine itself will be almost unmatched for quantity and quality.

From Bordeaux to Burgundy and Champagne to Cognac, delighted wine growers predict bumper grape harvests that challenge all records.

Total wine production 1.4 billion gallons—enough for some nine billion bottles—is forecast by government experts. This compares with 1.27 billion gallons last year which itself was considered exceptional.

The only cloud hanging over the wine scene is a scandal in Bordeaux, where government inspectors have seized vast quantities of doctored wine falsely labelled to give it a price three or four times in excess of its real value.

But while the entire industry agonizes about the potentially harmful impact of the Bordeaux fraud, a bountiful summer of warm sunshine and measured rain has drawn ecstatic reports from the vineyards.

Here is anummary of the outlook:

Burgundy: "The 1973 vintage will be glorious," says the Burgundy wine council. Last year's record crop will be surpassed.

Beaujolais: Possibe the finest vintage of the century. The 1973 harvest will be a record with a of 21 million gallons likely crop of 27 million gallons. First samples have so impressed experts that they say it could rank as the greatest year ever.

Bordeaux: A huge harvest expected with total production of red and white wines one-third greater than last year. Experts are comparing the crop to the excellent 1970 vintage.

Alsace: An abundant harvest is expected. The potential quality of the dry white wine of the Franco-German border region is ranked as excellent.

Champagne: The Champagne council expects the second largest harvest of the century, enough for more than 200 million bottles. The 1973 bubbly will probably win the supreme honor of being labeled by its year, an extremely rare occurrence.

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD CUNNINGHAM

Cunningham — Koch

An early September wedding took place in Grace United Church in Trenton when Linda Diane Koch was united in marriage with Harold Edward Cunningham by Rev. Frank Hobbs.

The bride is the daughter of John and Lois Koch of Belleville, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cunningham of R.R. 4, Trenton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white organza over peaudesoie, with a smocked bodice and empire waistline. Her chapel length train was trimmed with lace, and her shoulder length veil was caught with a cap. She carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums.

The best man was Don Lennaire.

After a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cunningham, the couple left on a wedding trip to Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham now reside in Toronto.

Alcohol-free Wine Sold

TORONTO (CP) — A by-product of brandy is being marketed in Canada as an alcohol-free wine.

It was first made in Germany about 70 years ago, at a time when the abstinence movement was booming. It is being introduced in this country under a Counterweight label, for a firm that makes products for people who want to lose weight. They say it contains eight calories an ounce.

Dr. Otto Jung of Rudesheim-Rhein, says his father developed the process of vacuum distillation at low temperatures that produces the de-alcoholized wine. Instead of the "spent liquor", usually produced when brandy is distilled from wine.

Dr. Jung is managing partner of Carl Jung Mönes.

He says the drink is already marketed in Scandinavia, Arabian countries, where religion prohibits the use of alcohol, and Australia.

He says the people who buy it usually cannot drink alcohol either out of conviction or for health reasons.

Civic Action—Help When You Need It

A lonely frightened woman, in Belleville to be with her injured husband, runs out of money at the end of a week. With a motel bill and food and transportation costs to pay, where can she turn?

A school teacher notices that some of his students come to school in cold weather without adequate clothing or boots, or without lunch. What does he do?

A young couple with a small baby are unable to pay the furnace bill and the heating has been turned off. Cold, discouraged and friendless, who do they contact?

Action Committee is ready to help.

A volunteer organization that responds quickly to people in need, the Civic Action Committee is a short-term emergency service available to any member of the community. It's been operating for 20 years.

Within hours of contacting a local church, the out-of-town woman had food and appliances to make her stay more bearable. Her motel bill was paid until she could meet with the appropriate agency after the weekend. In addition, volunteers took turns sitting with her at the hospital to keep her spirits up until her husband could be moved home.

If a school principal or nurse calls with information about a needy child, the Civic Action Committee visits the child's home and supplies necessary clothing on food coupons.

The volunteers also furnish emergency aid for persons without heat or light, or who are in conflict with their landlords.

Every dollar the Civic Action Committee received from the United Way is used to help Belleville's citizens in time of need.

In the past year, more than 100 families received aid, and were given supportive counselling.

A personal visit is always made to the family or individual, not only to determine the nature of the need, but to put persons in touch with Civic Action volunteers.

"We trust people," says Betty Jones, Committee Chairman, and have never yet encountered a case of fraud. What is important is that people in trouble have someone to talk to.

"Our volunteers invariably encounter good reaction from the persons they call. They often continue visiting long after the immediate need is over.

Four women are the direct contacts for the Civic Action Committee. Several other people help in indirect ways; such as moving furniture or supplying equipment.

These women are prepared to listen, to comfort, to advise, and sometimes to refer families to other agencies in the city for assistance they are not qualified to provide.

Mrs. Jones says that the volunteers are willing to go out any time, day or night.

"I remember I was cooking a batch of chili sauce when one call came," she says. "I got my mother over to watch the sauce and was on my way in minutes."

Why do these women give so much of their time and energy to strangers?

We feel a need to help," says Muriel Brennan, one of the volunteers. "Like most women do. But we've recognized that, in order to help others, you need to join some service organization.

"You could have all the good intentions in the world but be unable to act if you didn't know ways to help."

Mrs. Brennan emphasizes that the volunteers prefer to work in an almost anonymous way.

"We aren't helping as individuals," she explains, "but representatives of the community."

There is no working capital for the volunteers of the Civic Action Committee, who must depend on the generosity of people for their supplies.

They feel it is important when giving used clothing or furniture to maintain high standards.

"A person's dignity must be maintained," says one of the volunteers.

"Just because someone has fallen on bad times is no reason to give him poor-quality clothes that look disreputable. This is the time when, above all, he needs something of value to keep his self-esteem."

Because tragedy or bankruptcy can strike anyone anywhere at anytime, there is no one segment of the city that the volunteers help more than any other. But their chief concern is for children.

Through schools, churches, neighbors or other agencies, they hear of children who require assistance.

"In cases pertaining to children, "says Mrs. Jones, "parents never ask for themselves. Mothers will sometimes refuse a coat, but will never refuse clothing for their children.

"People don't ask for as much as you'd think."

Perhaps this is one of the reasons that, although the Civic Action Committee receives one of the smallest grants from the United Way fund, it is still able to make its presence felt in Belleville.

Homeminder Will Talk to Your Plants

TORONTO (CP) — Lois Flaum and Pat Norton have been trying to make a living pampering pets and plants.

The two recently gave up their regular jobs because they wanted to work for themselves and set up a home-minding business aimed at people who travel.

Pat, 28, was a bonded counsel and Lois, 31, worked as a fashion buyer until "the fashion business wasn't fun anymore . . . people are wearing what they want."

So the two decided to offer a service that includes plant-watering, house-checking, cat-sitting, lawn-mowing, dusting, mail-forwarding, bill-paying and anything else the homeowner wants.

But those pets and plants sometimes pose problems.

"One couple wanted us to talk to their plants—to tell them how nice they look today," said Lois, a plant lover who talks to her own plants in the same way.

"People are very fussy about their cats. At one house, we had to prepare the cat's meal of three tablespoons of liver, one tablespoon of baby food, one to a teaspoon of cat food and half a cup of milk."

"I always thought there would be a good business in minding homes and apartments while people were away. It couldn't work in New York because it's kind of dangerous going into strange people's apartments and dangerous to go out at night."

They charge from $10 a week to $4 a day, depending on how much has to be done.

"But we decided not to look after dogs," says Lois. "I'm a dog lover and I don't want to encourage people to leave their dogs alone.

"Dogs get very sad. Also, walking someone else's dog is asking for trouble—they can get into fights with other dogs."

Anne Chose 'Classic' Ring

LONDON (CP) — The design Princess Anne chose for her engagement ring was an oval sapphire flanked by two brilliant-cut diamonds mounted in a classic coronet setting.

A spokesman for Garrard and Co. Ltd., the London jewelry firm that made the ring, was asked whether the choice of a traditional style by the 23-year-old princess came as a surprise.

"Not in the least," he said. "Her taste reflects that of most young people. Although there is a marked swing to modern design for dress rings and other modern jewelry, when it comes to an engagement ring most young people want something classic and ageless that they can wear for the rest of their lives."

Garrard, which has served royalty for more than 200 years, has more than 1,000 rings in stock in its shop near Piccadilly Circus, which also offers fine gold and silverware, both new and old.

On display is a set of diamond and emerald earrings, necklace, ring and bracelet. The ring alone is priced at $75,000 ($180,000). But a gold bracelet with charms can be had for $1 ($2.40).

"Even the smallest pocket can stretch to that," the company spokesman said. "We are particularly keen to encourage young people to get into the habit of coming in to browse around. After the engagement ring we hope they will come back to buy the wedding ring and so establish a regular relationship with us."

Garrard also encourages its staff to stay on for a long time and some customer-salesman relationships continue for generations.

It was Frederick, Prince of Wales, father of King George III, who gave the company its first royal warrant in 1728 when he appointed George Wickes to be his "goldsmith, jeweller and silversmith." The name Garrard did not come until 1798 when the business became the property of Robert Garrard, whose sons Robert, James and Sebastian subsequently came into possession as Garrard Brothers.

In 1737-1738 a service of plate costing £3,000 was made for the Prince of Wales. After his death in 1751 a new warrant was issued for the new Prince of Wales, the future George III, during whose reign another warrant was issued to the company as "court jewellers." By then the company had built up a steady clientele consisting of most of the nobility, and royal patronage had become the norm.

The coronation year of 1821 brought much new business to Garrard. The Duke of Wellington went there for his coronet which cost him £26. Later the firm was asked to recut the famous koh-i-noor diamond which at London's Great Exhibition of 1851 was valued at £2 million.

Another famous piece of jewelry from Garrard was the pendant which Queen Victoria presented to Florence Nightingale, of nursing fame, in 1895. It had been designed by Princess Albert, the Prince Consort.

In 1902 Garrard was commissioned to design and make the suite of diamonds and pearls which was the wedding present from the City of London to Queen Alexandra. A similar gift was made 31 years later to Queen Mary on her marriage to King George V.

Traditional Style

Drug Use Increasing Medical Secretaries Hear

The use of drugs is not diminishing, contrary to popular opinion, said Dr. Lionel Dockrill in his speech to the Quinte Medical Secretaries at their September meeting.

In fact, drug use is becoming more widespread.

The effect of drugs has become less obvious because drug users and distributors are more sophisticated, and fewer cases of overdose are brought to hospitals.

Drug takers have become very adept at managing any adverse effects of drugs on themselves or others.

Also, said Dr. Dockrill, we don't see the effects of drugs in the street because the drug scene has moved to more comfortable and affluent surroundings.

The use of alcohol brings the government last revenue in excess of $400,000,000. Dr. Dockrill believes that more of this money should be funnelled into a fund for prevention of abuse and education of people in the use of all drugs.

He described the valuable work being done by the government sponsored Addiction Research Foundations of Ontario, with their experimental treatment centres and "Detox Centres." Dr. Dockrill stressed the need for more qualified workers to help in this field.

Statistics from other countries are not valid in considering drug abuse in Canada, Dr. Deckrill said. Except in metropolitan areas we do not have hard-line criminal and drug-oriented social groups. "In smaller centres, like Belleville, most people are drug-users by accident, simply as a result of existing in stress - ridden times when drugs are readily available.

Successful Living

Should Cousins Marry?

Dear Doris: Because of the distance between us, my daughter met my sister's son for the first time when they were 13 and 18 respectively. We stayed at their summer cottage for a week three years ago and these two were inseparable.

Since then they have exchanged letters from time to time. This summer they came to visit us, and instead of these two-some-agers recognizing that they were both just part of the family, they fell in love.

After they left I had a long talk with my daughter and told her that this was an impossible situation. Now I have an unhappy girl on my hands. She has had crushes before but this time she is so serious. She cried when I told her she could not possibly take her own first cousin seriously.

I feel so helpless and just want my daughter to be truly happy.

Dear Impossible: What was once thought morally and physically bad is now O.K. First cousins are marrying by the dozen and all the time.

The one concern might be if there was any strain of an inheritable disease in your family. If anything like diabetes were known to run through the family, it might be passed on by two young married cousins in a sort of double dose to any children they could have. Where there is no such family history, they will have just as healthy, happy children as any other marriage combination.

Add to this the fact that at 16 your daughter has a good many more born to get to know before she makes her choice for life. Let her have cousin for a friend if she wants him.

Ask your doctor if I'm not right.

Dear Doris: Is it true that a divorced woman can go by her maiden name without legal action? My friends are calling me by my maiden name.

What about legal signature, as with income tax forms and financial documents?

Happy To Be Free Again.

Dear Happy: Any person in Canada may use any name he pleases, as long as this is not done with the intention of defrauding anyone. If you want to make it official, you simply comply with the Change of Name Act in your own province.

(Has Doris helped you with a problem? Write and tell her so!)

Monoplies Cost $2 Billion, Ads $4 Billion

Agribusiness in United States Reaps Subsidies and Tax Losses

WASHINGTON (AP) — At crucial aftermath of the United States' massive 1973 grain exports is the emptying of once-bulging government storage bins—a development which spells trouble for the American consumer and the small farmer.

In the fiscal year which ended June 30, U.S. agricultural exports increased $1 per cent. The key to this boom was $1.2 billion in grain sold to the Soviet Union.

"I think the chief benefit is we've got the United States government out of the commodity business," Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz said in an interview. "I don't think [government belongs in the commodity business."

In response to the export grain crisis, the government released almost all its stocks.

The trouble is that farmers have only limited storage capacity. More than half of the storage capacity in major U.S. grain-shipping ports is held by six big grain companies.

So government doesn't store surplus grain, it winds up in the hands of a few giant "agribusiness" corporations.

The government's commodity program has protected the consumer as well as the farmer by leveling out the natural fluctuations of agriculture.

By buying up surplus crops in years of overproduction, it has kept many farmers in business. By storing these surpluses and releasing them in poor crop years, it has softened the price rise to consumers.

During the last year, when the export explosion drained domestic supplies and government reserves, the consumer felt the full impact of this lost protection with record food prices.

Government officials say Americans spend less than 16 per cent of their disposable income on food. This average lumps millionaires with paupers.

To spend 16 per cent on food, an American would have to clear $17,125 after taxes for a family of four. Such a family with $9,186 in disposable income spends an average of 17.6 per cent of it on food. Families clearing less can pay half or more of their income for food.

Meanwhile, the farmer hasn't been getting a proportionate share of the extra fare paid by the housewife. The retail price of food increased 43 per cent from 1952 to 1972, but the price paid to the farmer went up only six per cent.

Three million farmers have gone out of business since the Second World War and while farmers get fewer, the farms get larger and production more concentrated.

By 1985 the agriculture department estimates there will be only one million full-time farmers left, with 168,000 of them producing more than three-fifths of total sales.

The American farmer's worst problem has been his efficiency. He produced so much food that there weren't enough customers to buy it all.

The new wave of exports has reversed that for some farmers and may be the answer for the future—if the new demand holds and stabilizes.

However, while world shortages of grain and other protein sources are expected to continue for the foreseeable future, there is no guarantee they will remain as high as the demand, which brought the record exports of 1972.

Bumper crops around the world one year could deliver a smashing blow to an American agriculture turned to all-out production.

Minimum prices set in new legislation are well above the market prices prevailing last year before the export boom but also well below the current market. A farmer mortgaged on the expectation of $3 or $4 wheat would be ruined if the price fails to the $2.05 target level.

The winners would be the big agribusiness corporations which could absorb the loss until all the competition from independent farmers was gone.

Price support payments, based on volume and acreage, put a premium on bigness. From 80 to 70 per cent of the subsidies have gone to the top 15 per cent of the farms responsible for most production.

The roster of the agriculture department sounds like a Who's Who of the agribusiness corporations. Secretary Butz was on the boards of Ralston Purina, Stokely-Van Camp, J. I. Case and International Minerals and Chemical Corp. before joining the Nixon administration.

Clarynce Palmby, was Washington lobbyist for the grain trade before becoming assistant secretary of agriculture in charge of grain programs. He helped negotiate the Russian wheat sale and then, bloodless vice-president of Continental Grain, the firm which later sold the biggest order to Russia.

The list goes on and on—none of it illegal but all of it illustrating the close ties between government and agribusiness.

The agribusiness theory is that large-scale corporate farming supply more and better food at lower prices. But government studies have shown that one-and two-man family farms are just as efficient as the larger operations and that half of the bigger farms actually report net losses.

But the trend is toward concentrated production. Already some 70 per cent of production comes from the largest 15 per cent of the farms.

Tax code provisions in the United States is encouraged by laws which allow diversified conglomerates to write off farm losses against non-farm income, or, deduct farm losses one year on a product which may not be profitable the next.

One of the newer trends in agriculture is vertical integration by which one corporation controls most or all of the entire chain of production.

Another increasingly popular method is contractual integration.

Farmers sign an advance contract to sell a corporation their crops at a fixed price. That takes the risk out for the farmer but it also makes him little more than a hired hand on his own farm.

About 95 per cent of processed vegetables are produced under vertical or contractual integration, 85 per cent of citrus fruit, 80 per cent of seed crops, 60 per cent of sugar beets, 97 per cent of broilers and 100 per cent of sugar.

A Federal Trade Commission study says American consumers are overcharged more than $2 billion a year for food because of monopolies in 23 food lines it studied.

The consumer absorbs $4 billion a year tacked on to his food bill for the price of advertising.

Advertising has such a powerful influence over a housewife's food purchases that it is very complacent for a producer to advertise than to improve quality or reduce price.

The consumer does not necessarily benefit from the supposed economies of size and mass production in the food industry.

National brands, with a dominance of the market and unlimited advertising budgets, cost up to 40 per cent more than private brands, although both lines may have come from the same factory and not be identical in quality.

Blacksmith Practises Old Style

WYMER, W.Va. (AP) — The mountain valley echoes daily with the rhythmic ringing of a hammer striking an anvil as college graduate Michael Snyder practises an age-old trade that has become his service.

The stocky, smoke-blackened smith, just 24 years old, uses only his anvil, coal-fired forge and a few hand tools to practise a craft that threatened to die in the mountains with the few remaining veterans.

Most modern smiths use power tools and acetylene torches, even to reproduce old hand-wrought ironwork. But the only concession to the age of power tools in Snyder's farmyard shop are a light bulb and a radio.

Much of Snyder's wrought iron trade has been in functional tourist items—trivets, fireplace gear, candle holders, dinner gongs and wall brackets and hooks for displaying other craftsmen's wares.

He starts with plain iron or mild steel stock, heating it in the forge until it glows red-hot, then cutting it roughly to shape on the anvil.

Then it is laboriously reheated and rehammered, again and again, until it reaches its final shape. Even welding is done by hand, heating two pieces of metal and hammering them until they fuse.

He also is involved in the restoration of West Virginia's historic log cabins, handmaking authentic door hinges, door latches, fireplace fittings and even the old hand-forged nails.

He is the first generation of his family to go to college—his father was a coal miner and his grandfather and great-grand father were blacksmiths.

But after college, he said, he drifted from one job to another, editing a state travel magazine, working in a New York public relations firm, reporting for a Charleston newspaper and spending time in Colorado as a ski bum.

"I tried everything. I didn't realize it, but I'm more suited to working with my hands."

"I'm proud of the way I make a living," he added, even though it isn't lucrative.

"I get satisfaction knowing I can make something for someone that isn't going to wear out in their lifetime . . . something people will use."

Doctors' Records Checked

TORONTO (CP) — A provincial police commissioner confirmed Wednesday that complex investigations of several Metropolitan Toronto and Ontario doctors, suspected of fraudulent practices in billing the Ontario Hospital Insurance Plan (OHIP), have been under way for six months.

Assistant Commissioner Kenneth Grice, in charge of the force's special services division, said in an interview that anti-racket detectives have checked on provincial doctors ...while Metro Toronto police investigated doctor's records in Toronto.

The investigations started early in May after Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Toronto High Park, said in the house that some doctors are obtaining money from OHIP by fraudulent billing practices.

Clay Powell, the attorney-general's senior prosecutor, refused to say how many doctors were under investigation for billing OHIP for operations or treatment not performed as stipulated in their statements to the insurance plan.

He refused to say how much money was involved, saying only that "we're not dealing in hundreds."

"Each case is separate . . . they're all very complex, as complex as anything I've ever been involved with. There's hundreds of billings and we have to go through all of them."

Gets 3 Months

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 23-year-old woman who escaped from the Kingston, Ont., penitentiary for women in July was sentenced to an additional three months in jail Wednesday.

Theresa Maureen Edwardson pleaded guilty to the escape. She had been serving a two-year term imposed in Vancouver six months after she was arrested during a narcotic check at a hotel here.

The three-month sentence is to run consecutive to the two-year term.

Tower Collapses

ROWLEY, Iowa (CP) — Five men were killed and several others were injured Wednesday when a 2,000-foot broadcasting tower of a radio station buckled and collapsed.

Witnesses said at least four of the men killed were about 1,900 feet up the tower.

No Licence

TORONTO (CP) — Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. said in a statement Wednesday it does not have a current logging licence in Algonquin Park.

The Canadian Press last Saturday distributed an erroneous report from London, Ont., which said the company holds such a licence.

Six Black Youths Set Woman Afire

BOSTON (AP) — Evelyn Wagler was a stranger in town. The 24-year-old white woman from Chicago arrived last week-end to look for a job.

Just moments before she died Tuesday night, Evelyn Wagler, her body aflame, walked into a liquor store and calmly asked the clerk to call an ambulance.

"Her face was black," said the clerk, Fred Cortney. "It was amazing she could even talk."

Evelyn Wagler had been set on fire by six black youths, police say. They said the trouble started about a half hour before when Mrs. Wagler set off down Blue Hill Avenue in Roxbury to get gasoline for her stalled car.

Her walk halway completed, Evelyn bought a small can of gas and started back. She walked through Oak Hill, one of the many hauling business districts on the avenue.

A few seconds later, at 500 Blue Hill Avenue, she was stopped.

It was here, police said, that the six young blacks jumped Mrs. Wagler and dragged her into a litter-filled vacant lot behind an apartment house.

They told her to pour the gasoline on herself, and when she refused, they threatened her.

Police said there was no known motive. Apparently neither robbery nor sexual assault was involved. No arrests have been made.

Mrs. Wagler rolled on the ground, throwing dirt on the flames. Then she got up. She was smouldering, and her long dark hair was burned to her blackened scalp.

About four hours later, Evelyn Wagler was pronounced dead.

Doctors Seeking Payment by Chargex

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — A period by five Canadian chartered banks.

Delays in payments to doctors under the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) have prompted the attempt, Dr. Lansky said. Doctors can expect reimbursement from Chargex within weeks after a customer turns over his wallet-size credit card for payment.

The move is also aimed at garnering interest from doctors across the province and giving the provincial government, specifically OHIP, "something to think about in upcoming negotiations with doctors' representatives over a higher fee schedule."

The advantage of a credit card system, Dr. Lansky said, would be placing "the correspondence, the problems and the screaming back where it belongs—between the government, the politicians and the voter."

Patients who pay by Chargex would pay the full fee, claiming from OHIP 90 per cent of the fee charged by the doctor. Doctors would receive 95 per cent of the fee, after Chargex had deducted a five-per-cent service charge. This would compare with the 90 per cent payment they now receive under OHIP.

Patients without the credit necessary would pay cash to the doctors and file for reimbursement to OHIP.

More Traffic Lights On the City's Books

Canada Cement Joins U.S. Firm In Expansion

Canada Cement Lafarge Ltd., which closes its Point Anne plant at the end of the month, has announced it is co-operating in the formation of an American cement corporation.

Jointly owned with Lone Star Industries Inc., the new company plans to take over operation of two existing plants at Roanoke, Va., and Birmingham, Ala., as well as construct a new 750,000-ton plant to serve the eastern gulf coast.

The Roanoke plant will be doubled in capacity to 1.2 million tons by 1975.

CCL also says it is issuing 2.1 million common shares Nov. 12. The stocks will provide funds for the U.S. investment and broaden the company's capital base.

The intersection at Bridge Street and Macdonald Ave. will have traffic lights some time next year if a recommendation from the city traffic and light committee is approved in council.

The recommendation for installation of the lights was made at the committee's regular meeting Monday following a report on accidents at the corner from Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie.

The report showed that most of the accidents at the corner were right angle collisions or a type that normally could be eliminated by lights.

The traffic committee also considered a request for lights at the corner of Herchimer and Victoria. A traffic and accident report is now being prepared and will be presented at the committee's next meeting.

Scheduled for installation under this year's city budget are four sets of traffic lights in the city's north and west sectors.

Lights are to be installed at Tracey Street and Valleyview Street and Macdonald Ave. will and on Sidney Street at Bridge Street and College.

Also being installed this year are traffic lights at Sidney Street and Dundas and at Dundas and Palmer Road at Dundas.

Lights at these two last mentioned locations are being installed under the H. J. McCann contract for the reconstruction of Dundas Street.

West. However, completion of the installations are being held up for equipment arrival.

Alderman Arnold Orr said residents in the North Front Street area are becoming frustrated about delays in getting ramp to North Front Street from Tracey Street during busy traffic periods.

One resident, the alderman said, had been forced to wait as much as 20 minutes to get out of Tracey Street.

He said the fact that lights are to be installed at the intersection is not good enough for these residents. He wanted to know when the lights were ordered and why they had not been ordered earlier.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell told the committee that detailed traffic information has been necessary before the correct type of equipment could be ordered.

He said the Tracey Street lights would have to tie in with the present lights at Bell Blvd. which he said "were working beautifully."

The survey to determine traffic movements was necessary so that equipment could be designed to have the least effect possible at the Bell Blvd. installation.

Mr. Purcell said the lights were ordered in September but since then it has been learned delivery will take from 16 to 20 weeks, thus delaying installation until after the New Year

Area Men On Erie Board

TRENTON — Three area residents have joined the seven-member board of Erie Technological Products of Canada.

The United States—based company has two Canadian Facilities, both in Trenton.

Joining the board are Peter Ransom, general manager of the High Voltage Products Division, Trenton; George Lewis, secretary treasurer and manager of accounting; and The Hon. George Hees, Conservative MP for Prince Edward—Hastings.

The company says the new board will be active and give guidance for further development and expansion of the Trenton operations.

Three Hurt In Collision

Three Belleville residents were taken to hospital Wednesday after a two-car collision on Dundas Street East that caused $800 damage.

Cecil Wannamaker, 22, of 209 Coleman St., suffered lacerations while James and Grace Alexander of 130 Macdonald Ave., both in their 60s, had minor bruises. All three were treated and released.

The accident occurred just before 1 p.m. at the corner of William Street when the Wannamaker car ran into the rear of the car driven by Mr. Alexander.

City police estimated damage to Mr. Wannamaker's car at $450, to the other vehicle $350.

No Monday Mail Delivery

There will be no mail delivery Thanksgiving Day, Belleville postal officials have announced.

All depots will be closed although the lock box lobby will be open all day. Special delivery service will be available.

Downtown Facelift

Renovations to the Crystal Hotel on Front Street were completed this week and hot meals with a glass of beer in comfortable surroundings are the order of the day. The renovations which involve desegregating, the men's and ladies' and escorts' sections were begun in May. The hotel itself goes back to 1884. Hotel owner, manager and admissions chief, George Haggis prepares a meal for a customer while his wife, Tavia, handles the cash register. Hot meals such as roast beef, or corned beef and cabbage are served from noon to 7 p.m.

Recreation Trail Support Grows as Grant Sought

The Quinte — Hastings Recreational Trail is seeking a $75,000 Local Initiatives Program grant to extend and improve the big wilderness facility to completion.

If approved, the federal funds would:

— Develop feeder paths from the Belleville Deseronto urban sectors into the main trail that now meanders 225 miles across Prince Edward and Hastings counties.

— Create various outdoor facilities for the hikers, minilake, pony and snowmobile riders now plying the trail year-round.

Such projects would make jobs for 24 men over nearly seven months, with the bulk of the programs centred in high unemployment areas in north Hastings County during winter.

QHRT directors — volunteers who look over the trail's administration after it was built last year — Wednesday put finishing touches to the LIP application and despatched it to Ottawa.

The LIP submission is approved it would create an environmental - recreation resource with 320 miles of trail, used year-round, and unique in Canada, trail officials said yesterday.

The application goes to Ottawa as mounting private and public response indicates the trail's potential "at last is being fully appreciated," claims QHRT spokesman Jim Staveley.

The LIP request seeks funds for extending the trail from Lake St. Peter, in north Hastings to Whitney, adjacent to Algonquin Park.

For Bellevillians a major access route — following the Highway 14, — is planned. There also would be a linking area.

Slide paths would loop off the main route to special interest areas along the route. Shelters, picnic tables, garbage containers, stone fireplaces are among facilities for installation. Other work includes bridges, roadways, fences and clearing of undergrowth.

Deadline for LIP applications is Oct. 15.

The LIP request comes at a time when glimmers of broadening public support are starting to shine through the despondency that has overhung the ambitious wilderness project for nearly a year.

While the trail apparently has been widely used, the necessary funds and manpower needed for upkeep have not been present — until now, says Mr. Staveley QHRT chairman.

"The trail was created as a big make-work project in the winter of 1971-72 and drew LIP grants totalling $130,000.

But once government groundwork funding was finished, little willingness was shown in buying QHRT memberships to fund its continuity or to organize local volunteer groups for upkeep.

Then application for an LIP grant which might have eased the problem was refused last winter.

The volunteer board of directors who assumed responsibility for QHRT administration were repeatedly frustrated in a hunt for solutions. Funds fell so low they couldn't even advertise for members. They kept an office only because the landlord waived the rent.

The trail meanwhile, was being well-used — by school study groups, for militia manoeuvres, by naturalovers, hikers and snowmobilers.

Now, suddenly, there's a quickening of support, says QHRT secretary Grant Harvey. Memberships have started to climb. Various groups — snowmobile clubs, student organizations, community organizations — are talking about organizing into maintenance teams long the trail.

"It's partly because of this interest — at last confirming public support, that we've decided to apply again to LIP this year," said Mr. Staveley as he prepared to sign the new application for federal funds, Wednesday.

Completion of the trail — and an organized process of maintenance — is necessary at this time, he believes.

There are not only the economic benefits — the money spent for services along its length in summer and winter. "Belleville Industrial Commissioner Fred Bemis, another QHRT director, is emphatic about the facility's financial benefits, particularly in the northern townships.

There also is the need to create a resource in a region that will be a major outdoors recreation rendezvous as urbanization expands.

"We're going to be flooded with people seeking recreation in the next decade or two," predicts Mr. Staveley.

The trail would also be a source of environmental control, a ready-made resource channelling recreational activities would reduce the scatter-gun affect of random wilderness use by the recreation swarm.

LIP grants will, it is hoped, materialize to create these ends.

"If so, says Mr. Staveley, "we're in ahead of the game. Ten years from now what chance might you have to organize and create such a project?"

Wells Back From Trip

The minister, accompanied by his wife, was host Sept. 15 at a dinner in Lake Ontario Park for Belleville students and others connected with the student exchange program between this city and the German city.

In a speech given at the dinner, Mr. Wells noted that three levels of government in Canada are involved in the student exchange.

The city of Belleville initiated the exchange, the province is involved through the educational system and the federal government's department of national health has provided transportation.

The minister invited three German students to visit Belleville and other parts of Ontario this fall to observe schools in operation.

"We are very proud of some of the educational developments in our province, and the visit would give us in the ministry an opportunity to display to the teachers a number of the more significant developments which characterize our educational community," he said.

Elmer Iseler Has Brought Singers to World Notice

Internationally Acclaimed Choir Performs October 17

Since 1954, when conductor Elmer Iseler founded the Festival Singers of Canada, the reputation and status of the 36-member professional base of the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir has grown internationally.

Critical comments from across Canada, the United States, Britain and the remainder of Europe have acclaimed the choral group as one of the few able to hold their own against the world's best. During their current Ontario tour, the Festival Singers will raise voices, awarded such glowing accolades, in Belleville.

The Quinte Arts Council, in conjunction with Stewart-Warner Corporation of Canada Ltd. will present the Festival Singers to the Quinte audience Wednesday, October 17. Tickets for the concert at Bridge Street United Church are priced at $3.50. No seats will be reserved.

Unique in their ability to interpret complex arrangements of choral liturgy, the Festival Singers will perform five pieces by Hans Leo Hassler, a 16th century composer. The late Igor Stravinsky will be represented with Pater Noster. The initial half of the program. After the intermission in Bridge Street United Church, considered to be one of the finest acoustically in Belleville, the singers will perform three Chinese love lyrics by Thomas Baker. Three songs from the Merchant of Venice by John Cook and another three Yoik songs by Ralph Vaughan Williams round out the evening's program.

Although conductor Elmer Iseler originally founded the singers as a small Canadian choir which could be used by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the group has developed steadily into one of Canada's foremost choral virtuosity. Mr. Iseler's work demands on the mixed choir have created a group which has been honored by such guest conductors as Karel Ancerl, Seiji Ozawa, Walter Susskind and Boris Brott.

Mr. Iseler's reputation has grown alongside that of his Festival Singers as well as a result of work with other musical groups and The Toronto Symphony Orchestra, the National Arts Centre Orchestra and the Chamber Players of Toronto, among many. He elected to give up a teaching career in 1963 after his appointment as Canada's first full time choral director of the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir, a position he still holds.

It's Just Another Ball Game-Blue

OAKLAND (AP) — Vida Blue, starting pitcher for Oakland Athletics in the American League baseball playoff opener at Baltimore Saturday, says, "I can't even remember 1971."

That was his reply today when asked whether he was nervous two years ago when he went out to the mound in another playoff opener at Baltimore. The left-hander, who won 24 games that season, was pounded for five runs in seven innings, and the Orioles went on their way to a three-game sweep.

"Sure, our team was tense then," recalls manager Dick Williams. "We'd never been in that situation before and they (the Orioles) had been through it two years in a row.

"Things are about reversed now."

Most of Oakland's starters are going into their third straight playoff series.

"It's going to be just another ball game," said Blue, 29-9 this season. "I'll be trying to win and make some money. Everything else is irrelevant."

Oakland's Sal Bando said: "Baltimore is a lot less experienced team than they were two years ago, especially in the bullpen."

Don Baylor, Bobby Brich, Earl Williams, Rich Coggins and Al Bumbry, all expected to be starters for the Orioles, are young players who have join the team since 1971. Rookie Bob Reynolds is Baltimore's top right-handed relief pitcher.

Third baseman Bando was Oakland's hottest hitter during the last month, batting over .400, hitting seven home runs and driving in 32 runs. He finished with 29 homers, 98 RBI and a .287 average.

"This team was so good that a lot of things were almost unnoticed," said Bando, whose team-mate Reggie Jackson was the league leader in homers with 32 and RBI with 117.

He won 11 of his last 13 decisions. Jim (Catfish) Hunter, who will face the Orioles in the second game of the best-of-five series Sunday, was 21-5 despite missing almost a month of action because of a broken thumb.

The Athletics were to fly to Baltimore today following a morning workout. They will practice Friday in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium.

The Orioles are expected to continue their platooning system which played a large role in their success this season.

Paul Blair, Merv Rettenmund and Baylor were expected to play most of the way in the Baltimore outfield in 1973, but extended early slumps by Baylor and Rettenmund called for remedial action.

Almost immediately, they lived up to their impressive minor league hitting records, and captured the imaginations of Baltimore fans with their dash on the bases.

Despite their quick success, however, manager Earl Weaver used the rookies almost exclusively against right-handed pitchers and switched back to Baylor and Rettenmund against lefties.

During the stretch drive, when the Orioles pulled away to nail down their fourth American League division title in five seasons, each ran off a lengthy hot streak.

"It's a credit to Weaver the way he used the four players," said coach Jim Frey. "He stuck with Rettenmund and Baylor because he had confidence in them, and it proved to be the right choice."

Cubs' Owner Disgusted

CHICAGO (AP) — Owner Phil Wrigley Wednesday expressed "disgust" with his Chicago Cubs' performance this National League baseball season and said the team is definitely ready for a major overhauling.

The Cubs, who at one time led the East Division by eight games, once folded to finish five games behind the champion New York Mets in fifth place.

"I've been unhappy over the team's performance in other years, but there's only one word to describe my feelings about this year and that word is disgust," Wrigley said in an interview.

Wrigley exonerated manager Whitey Lockman for the second-half collapse of the club, handed by Lockman since Leo Durocher was dismissed in the middle of the 1972 season.

"I feel Whitey did a good job," said Wrigley, "He can return as manager if he desires. I don't say that of the others who earned their money this season."

Wrigley did not mention any specific expendables, but his expression of disappointment coincided with a request by star pitcher Ferguson Jenkins to be traded.

Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., has won 14-16 this season after six straight 20-plus victory seasons. He disclosed he asked Cubs vice-president John Holland to be traded right after the last Cub game Monday.

"I know I had an off year and I told Mr. Holland I was unhappy here," said Jenkins, who earlier this season expressed a keen dislike for pitching in compact Wrigley Field.

"I think a different city would be a big help. I'm pretty sure there will be other guys on our club going to different cities."

The 29-year-old right-hander has closed out a two-year contract said to pay him $125,000 a year.

Holland said that Jenkins held nothing against the Cub organization.

"He just doesn't like our park," said Holland. "I am in a position to turn other clubs down if they don't offer what we have a right to feel Jenkins is worth."

Sparky High On Driessen

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds, who produced three National League rookies-of-the-year during a six-year span in the 1960s, think they've produced their first of the 70s.

Dan Driessen, a 23-year-old infielder who says "I'd rather play in the World Series than win any award," looms as a prime candidate for the 1973 rookie honor.

"There's no doubt in my mind he's the best rookie in the league," says manager Sparky Anderson as the Reds brace for the National League baseball playoffs, starting Saturday, against New York Mets.

Driessen, upon joining the Reds two months into the season, became an immediate fixture in the lineup and finished the season with a .301 batting average.

His arrival coincided with the removal of the Reds' ailing attack which ranked last among the 24 clubs in the major leagues.

"He's done it all as long as he's been with us," said Anderson. "The only thing he lacks is being here a full season. He's going to be a .300 hitter for many years to come."

Driessen, virtually overlooked by pro baseball's extensive scouting system, was signed by the Reds in 1969 at a tryout camp. A diabelieving coach saw him spray six consecutive hits in a sandlot game and asked if he was interested in pro baseball.

Later nicknamed The Cobra for his uncoiling batting style, Driessen was hitting .459 at the Reds' Class AAA farm team in Indianapolis when called up in early June.

"The way I figure I've done a half decent job this year," said Driessen. It averages out that I hit .355 for the season.

Driessen was alternated between third and first in the 102 games he played.

He was "scared to death" when he made his big league debut and was aided out by Ferguson Jenkins of Chicago with the bases loaded.

"Then I made an error the first time ball was hit to me. That's when Joe Morgan reminded me everybody can't be a Brooks Robinson."

The biggest adjustment was the move to third. His natural position at first, but Tony Perez is difficult to dislodge.

"It's coming much easier now. But there for awhile, my body was at third and my mind was at first."

The last Cincinnati player to win the rookie-of-the-year award was Johnny Bench in 1968. Tommy Helms preceded him in 1966 and Pete Rose was the choice of the league in 1963.

Anderson plans to start 19-game winner Jack Billingham if the Mets open with Tom Seaver.

Seaver? He's Grinning

NEW YORK (AP) — A grin, Seaver's arm was a source of on the bullpen told the story for concern throughout the Mets' New York Mets and their ace right-hander, Tom Seaver.

Seaver took his tender shoulder down to the Shea Stadium bullpen to do some throwing Wednesday as the National League East Division champions plans held a 30-minute workout.

And how did baseball's most expensive right arm feel afterwards? The answer was in pitching coach Rube Walker's face, creased in a smile from ear to ear.

"All you have to do is look at Rube's face and you can tell how I threw," said Seaver. "When I saw him grin, I grinned too."

September drive to the division crown. The thought was that 200 innings pitched this season had taken their toll. He seemed to be throwing tired and there was a chance that Gil Hodges would get the call Saturday's playoff opener against the Reds in Cincinnati. No more.

"It never did hurt," said Seaver. "It manifested itself as a little stiffness."

The prescription was a three-day supply of Butazolidin pills. Seaver took them for two days and that was enough. "I'll finish the supply anyway," the pitcher said.

In the bullpen, Seaver threw to backup catcher Ron Hodges while Walker watched. "Rube just had a grin on his face," said Seaver, who logged a 19-10 regular-season record. "We both could tell. I threw nice and fluid and smoothly."

"He was able to pop the ball," said Walker. "He was throwing the ball free and easy. He did not have to force himself. He had a real good easy motion. You can tell."

The successful workout boosted Seaver's spirit.

"It was a big lift," he said. "My arm feels like it has some life again."

John Bradshaw says:

"Winterize your lawn with CIL Winterizer."

You've spent time and money on your lawn this year. Why let winter kill it all off?

And that's why CIL developed Winterizer. You simply put it in the spreader and take a walk around the lawn.

One treatment protects your lawn three important ways: First, it protects against frost damage. Second, special elements condition the grass plants against diseases like snow-mold. Third, it helps the grass store up extra winter food to protect against winter-starvation.

So if you'd like to keep your lawn in good shape — and save yourself the trouble of patching up a winter-killed lawn next Spring — get some CIL Winterizer this weekend and put it on . . . just as daytime temperatures are in the low 60's.

6 More Sign on with Eagles

By ALAN TEBWORTH
Sports Staff

The Belleville Screaming Eagles appear now to have a team ready to open their 1973-74 Senior A hockey season Friday night, as they signed six more players after last night's practice session to bring their total to 19.

Four of the six signed last night are returning from last year's squad. They are Al Ferguson, Ralph Plane, Bob Edmunds, and Ray Johnston.

Ferguson, a Trenton product, has been one of the team's most consistent goal-scorers in the past and should add some scoring punch to this season's version of the team.

Plane, who has been with Belleville senior teams since the revival of senior hockey in Belleville, needs no introduction to most fans. Plane is the policeman of the Eagles, and will contribute goals to the offensive attack.

Edmunds, a steady defenseman, was one of the better players on last year's team. He is 25 years old.

Johnston has been with the seniors for three seasons, and is a hard-checking digging type forward. He is one of the players signed under the age of 21, one of seven mandatory under the new rule in the league this season.

Also signed in the under 23 bracket were Greg Burkitt and Roy Campsall, both defensemen and new to the team this year.

Burkitt, 22, played with the Wellington Dukes intermediate team the last two seasons after performing with the Belleville Junior B teams for four years.

His partner will be Campsall, who is still junior age by a few days. Campsall will turn 20 on Friday. He played last season in the Ottawa Valley Junior B League.

Run for Funds

On Saturday, October 27 from the Quebec to Manitoba borders, Ontario's Track and Field athletes will be running to raise the necessary funds to further their sport.

What is its purpose?

Runathon '73 is the Third Annual fundraising Runathon organized by the Ontario Track and Field Council (OTFC). The young athletes will be running over a 400 metre track for a one hour period to raise money which has been pledged by their supporters at varying amounts per lap.

Its purpose is two-fold — to raise funds for the Local Clubs (who retain 75 per cent of the money raised), and for the Council, which sponsors the following activities with its 25 per cent:

Finance the Ontario team which represents Ontario in National and International meets. Provide financial travel aid for athletes at all age levels. Subsidize the cost of Championship Medals. Undertake coaching, athletic, and officiating clinics. Maintain Provincial Track and Field Office.

Over the past several years, Ontario has been well represented by its Track and Field athletes. Not only in Canadian and North American meets, but at the Olympic level as well.

Bobcats at Trenton Tonight

Hockey fans take note! That exhibition hockey game at Trenton Community Gardens tonight is set for an 8 p.m. start and not 7 o'clock as had been previously announced.

Belleville Bobcats and Trenton Birt's Handy Stand Juveniles will supply the action in a contest that is expected to draw well. Trenton fans have been anxiously awaiting a chance to see the new version of the Charlie Drake-coached squad that captured the Ontario Minor Hockey championship last season.

An as usual, Bobcats will have a large following on hand to supply the necessary support. This will be the final preseason game for the Belleville squad which opens its Metro Junior B schedule at home this Sunday at 8 p.m. with one of the new league entries, Pickering, the visiting club.

While Bobcats' coach Moe Hunter watches his charges under game conditions for the fifth time this season, coach Drake is getting only his second look at his skaters in a game.

Both these clubs own recent exhibition wins over the Frankford Junior C team and each squad will be out to add another plus to the win column.

The Trenton team is preparing for its overseas junket to Finland late this year and indications are the club will be solid again this time around.

Coach Hunter will use tonight's match to get goalie Steve McDonald some action. McDonald, a product of the Trenton Minor Hockey Association, was with Brockville in the Central Junior League last season.

"He (McDonald) was a regular with Brockville and I want to see what he can do," advised Hunter.

Hunter is optimistic when it comes to discussing the 1973-74 Bobcats.

"We'll be alright after we've been able to settle on a lineup. But it (the Metro League) will be no cakewalk. I look for the league to be stronger."

Howes Produce

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Howe family was a big hit, but the popularity of the World Hockey Association in Montreal was debatable after an exhibition game Wednesday night.

Mark Howe, one of Gordie's two sons playing with Houston Aeros, scored two goals in a 3-2 triumph over Winnipeg Jets.

Gordie, 45, who retired two years ago as a player with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, set up Mark for the winning goal at 17:44 of the third period.

Mark, 18, got the important goal before 3,000 fans in the 3,346-seat Maurice Richard Arena when he broke down left wing and then cut in front to tuck the puck past goalie Joe Daley.

The other member of the family, Marty, 19, didn't figure in the scoring, but took a regular turn on defence for the Aeros.

In other games, Los Angeles Sharks defeated Vancouver Blazers 3-1; Cleveland Crusaders topped Chicago Cougars 8-4 and New England Whalers whipped Quebec Nordiques 8-2.

The Jets held a 2-0 lead on an unassisted goal by Danny Spring at 7:36 of the second period and Christian Bordeleau's power-play goal at 10:11 of the third with Gordie Howe in the penalty box.

But the Aeros rallied with a goal by Mark Howe at 15:10 and one 14 seconds later by Frank Hughes.

The crowd gave the elder Howe a standing ovation when he was introduced at the start of the game and followed his every move with eagerness when he took his turn on the ice.

The turnout was disappointing to Gerry Patterson, a sports management consultant who was asked to stage the game for Houston and the WHA.

WAS FIRST GAME

It was the first WHA contest to be played in Montreal.

"I think anyone who promotes is disappointed when there is not a capacity crowd," Patterson said. "We had 60 per cent capacity . . . but we expected to have more."

Tiger-Cats Rebound To Complete Sweep

WINNIPEG (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats completed a sweep of their Canadian Football League two-game western swing Wednesday night by sticking to the script.

The Tiger-Cats came from behind with two fourth-quarter touchdowns to beat Winnipeg Blue Bombers 21-16 before 22,608 fans. Hamilton earlier beat Calgary Stampeders 31-28 and the two victories put them in a tie for third place in the East, just two points behind front-running Toronto Argonauts.

Hamilton Coach Jerry Williams said his club, which trailed 15-7 at half time, didn't have to make any major adjustments to overcome the deficit.

"It was just a matter of doing the things we had planned and doing them right."

The Tiger-Cats did the right things in the second half, as quarterback Chuck Ealey and running back Andy Hopkins lightened up the Winnipeg defence and Ealey then went to the air to loosen it up.

Winnipeg Coach Jim Spavital said the Tiger-Cats "ran the ball into our guts" in the second half.

After picking up just 37 yards rushing in the first half, Ealey left like I had to run more to loosen things up" and combined with Hopkins to give the Tiger-Cats a solid ground game to balance their attack.

Ealey, whose touchdown strikes to tight end Tony Gabriel and Dave Fleming and halfback Hopkins, scored two touchdowns, Ian Sunter converted all three.

The Bombers built up an 18-7 lead by the 1:18 mark of the final quarter before the familiar pattern of this season began to show through and the team coughed up the ball at costly times.

Quarterback Don Jonas was sharp in the first half, hitting Bob Landes and Bob Kraemer with touchdown passes and covering both himself. He booted a fourth-quarter field goal and Wally McKee added an 80-yard single.

But errant Jonas passes, three for interceptions, cost the Bombers and further dimmed their fading playoff hopes.

Winnipeg still trails Calgary by four points and has only five games remaining while the Stampeders have six.

After a bad third-down snap set up Hamilton's touchdown in the second quarter, Jonas came right back and marched Winnipeg to the Hamilton 10-yard-line. But an end zone pass was intended for Willie Miller ended up in the arms of Lewis Poretz.

A Jamie Rotella mid-field interception midway through the fourth quarter set up Hamilton's winning score and Louis Clare ended any Winnipeg comeback dreams with an interception in Hamilton territory in the final three minutes.

The Bombers were effective in the first half with screens to Kraemer and John Bledsoe that Williams said "really hurt," but the Hamilton defence made the necessary adjustments at half time.

Spavital was not-pleased with the performance of his defence but they were faced with a diversified Hamilton attack that gave Ealey a number of options on most plays.

"The Bombers forced our rollout pretty good," Williams said, "but the sprint draw to Hopkins off the rollout is difficult to stop."

Ealey used the play, along with keeping himself and following the flow or passing off basically the same motion.

Although Tiger-Cats had 118 yards passing in the first half, most of it was in their own end of the field. But Ealey stuck to the game plan and the plays began clicking in the second half when the Winnipeg defence was forced to close up to try to shut off the running of Ealey and Hopkins.

Winnipeg came out gambling, succeeding with an on-side kick on the kickoff, and continued their daring through most of the game.

The game was turned around in the fourth quarter when the Tiger-Cats stopped Jonas short as he tried to run for a first down on the second and three. The Bombers had to settle for a field goal.

Bob Plager Suspended

MONTREAL CP — Defenceman Bob Plager of St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League has been suspended by NHL president Clarence Campbell for his actions in an exhibition game in Brantford, Oct. Sept. 29.

Campbell said in a statement the suspension will be in effect until he receives a guarantee from the Blues "that Plager will avoid any further misconduct such as the latest incident."

Plager physically interfered with game officials and threatened physical violence to referee Andy van Hellemond during a bench-clearing brawl in the Blues' exhibition clash against Pittsburgh Penguins.

All will meet Joe Frazier in a conference for noon today to announce the fight.

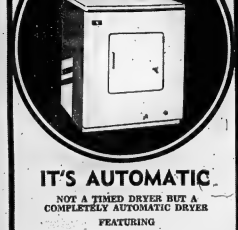
Taxes May Keep Russia Out

MONTREAL (CP) — The Soviets may not make the tour of eight Unified Stattis National Hockey League cities later this year.

Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, said Wednesday the Soviets have been trying to change the deal they agreed to last spring ever since they returned home.

What irks the Soviets is the fact they will have to pay a certain amount of tax on the $25,000 they will get for each of their eight games.



Campbell said the Soviets want the NHL to pay the taxes to the U.S. Internal Revenue service, but said there is no way the league will do so.

"They are faced with the choice of taking the smaller amount or abandoning the whole thing," said Campbell.

Campbell indicated the problem will have to be settled by the end of the week, otherwise the whole tour could be called off.

Mikita, Hull Lead Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks could have a difficult time in the National Hockey League this season without defenceman Pat Stapleton and centre Ralph Backstrom.

But there's still centre Stan Mikita, left winger Dennis Hull and goaltender Tony Esposito to name a few.

The Hawks, who lost Stapleton and Backstrom to Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Association, won their third exhibition game against a defeat and two ties with a 5-2 win Wednesday night over Buffalo Sabres—winless after five starts.

And it was Mikita and Hull who led the Hawks, along with rookie Lynn Powis.

Hull scored once and assisted on goals by Mikita—who turned down an offer to join the Cougars—and Powis.

Powis, with Omaha of the Central Hockey League last year, scored with Buffalo two men short at 15:47 of the second period, and Mikita connected with a player still in the penalty box at 16:33.

About the only good news for Buffalo is that defenceman Tim Horton, who worked out with the club Wednesday, may still play this season.

"I'll be staying and working out until I decide one way or another," said Horton, 43. "I skated an hour; very slowly."

He said he will decide by the end of Buffalo's training camp whether to return.

Canada Council Backing Tours

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Council has announced grants totalling $186,970 for eight touring entertainment companies, covering travel expenses in all parts of the country this fall and winter.

The grants, ranging from $100,000 for the National Ballet to less than $2,000 for a Toronto experimental theatre group, are the first to be made by the council's touring office. It was set up last April to encourage more diversified bookings by Canadian performing companies.

The $100,000 for the National Ballet will subsidize its tour of Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon and Winnipeg this month and next.

The second largest grant is $40,000 for Feux Follets, the 21-year-old national dance company now based at the Centennial Centre in Charlottetown, P.E.I. It takes its name from the French expression for fireflies or will-o'-the-wisps.

Feux Follets will make a 55-stop tour of all provinces and the Northwest Territories under the grant, running to March, 1974.

Altogether, the grants will subsidize more than 250 performances this season, the Canada Council said in Monday's announcement.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Red Skelton said Wednesday he and Lothian Toland, a Palm Springs sportswoman, will marry in the next few days.

Skelton, who recently ended a second marriage of 38 years, then steered his talkaway from wedding plans and onto what he called the sad state of American comedy.

Declaring Americans are suffering from "poverty of laughter," the 60-year-old clown belated young comedians for using belittling ethnic humor and not wanting to really put out.

"Like, Jew, mick, fag . . . these are all words you use to hear now," said Skelton. "They laugh at a shock joke, but then later they'll say to themselves, 'Now why did he have to say that?' "

LONDON (Reuter) — Ghanaian pop musician Anthony Baah was jailed for one month Wednesday for biting the ear of a taxidriver who refused to accept him as a fare.

The court heard how Baah, 30, lead guitarist with the pop group Traffic, kicked and punched two police officers who tried to put him in a van, shouting that he was a martyr for his people.

Baah pleaded guilty.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Two brothers of the Jackson Five singing group were arraigned Wednesday in court here on charges of receiving stolen property.

John Jackson, 22, drummer for the group, and Toriano (Tito) Jackson, 19, one of the group's singers, were arrested last April following a series of more than 50 burglaries in the San Fernando Valley area.

Police said the burglaries mainly involved television sets and stereos.

The two Jacksons, along with another defendant, Sanders Bracy, 26, are to return to court Oct. 17 to enter pleas.

John Jackson is accused of one count of receiving stolen property and his brother on two, while Bracy is charged with four counts of receiving stolen property and eight counts of burglary.

NEPTUNE, N.J. (AP) — Rock star Melanie gave birth to her first child Wednesday and named the girl after a rock recording.

The seven-pound, seven-ounce baby was named Layla, after an album recorded by Derek and the Dominoes. The mother and child are in excellent condition at a hospital here, a spokesman for the singer said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor-dancer Paul Hartman, 69, died Tuesday of a heart attack.

Hartman, who made his Broadway debut in the early 1920s with Jimmy Durante in Red, Hot and Blue, appeared in such movies as the 1937 Forty Five Fathers and more recently in Inherit The Wind and How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying.

Luck Runs Out

WALTON-ON-THAMES, England (CP) — Phoebe Luck's luck ran out when she was given a two-year suspended sentence for writing worthless cheques. The woman had changed her name from Rose Rosa after her business went bankrupt.

Canadians First

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The largest band of Edmonton, says Canadian actors and directors should be given more opportunity to work on their own stage.

And he was critical of two theatre festivals in Ontario, the Stratford Shakespearean Festival and the Shaw Festival on Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Mr. Mikitsky, who held the Edmonton post for five years, noted the recently-announced appointment of English director Robin Phillips to head the Stratford festival in 1974.

"I find it strange indeed that a mature, internationally-famous company needs to go abroad for a new director," he said.

He said he had nothing personally against Mr. Phillips who, he said, was eminently qualified for the job.

Mr. Mikitsky said he felt the Shaw Festival was in error by importing so many English actors when there were Canadian actors capable and anxious to play the parts.

The Irish-born director, a Canadian citizen for 11 years, was in St. Catharines to meet officials of the Press Theatre where he will direct a December production of Treasure Island.

Santa Davis Gives $50 to Pensioners

TORONTO (CP) — Needy old-age pensioners in Ontario will get an additional $50 in yearly income, with payment promised before Christmas, Premier William Davis said Thursday.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, called it "an additional income of 13 or 14 cents a day."

Premier Davis told the legislature that the government intends to make a special pensioners' assistance grant to pensioners with an income from all sources of less than $3,100 for a single person and $5,400 for a married couple.

"The urgent need for this grant has resulted from the unexpected increase in the cost of living," Premier Davis said.

Mr. Lewis said it isn't enough and wanted to know when old-age pensioners in the province would have their pensions increased.

Mr. Davis replied the legislature would be informed when and if pensions were increased but as to when "I am not in a position to inform the house at this precise moment."

Premier Davis said he hopes the Ontario initiative, together with announced increases by the federal government in old-age security and guaranteed income supplements,' will do much to restore the spending power of needy pensioners.

"This grant will make an additional $17 million available to our needy pensioners this year," the premier said.

"In most cases cheques should be in the mail by early December to all Ontario elderly persons who are recipients of the guaranteed annual income supplement between Oct. 1 and Dec. 31 of this year.

The premier announced that in addition, pensioner households are eligible for a special tax credit of $100 along with the Ontario Property Tax Credit and sales tax credit and can claim these credits through the income tax system early in 1974.

Most elderly persons should receive these benefits before the end of March, the premier said.

Outside the legislature, Mr. Lewis told reporters that the $50 should be a warning to pensioners they are not going to get an adequate pension.

He said the government "is back to the old business, two years before an election campaign, of attempting to appease segments of our society" with handouts.

Mr. Lewis said he suspects the government is making a lot more money than anyone realizes out of a sales tax increase to seven per cent from five per cent this year. He speculated that was where the $17 million for the tax bonuses is coming from.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon called the payment "a minimal approach by government . . . a cheap gimmick . . . a cheap approach to political fence-mending."

He said the government should have a cost-of-living clause in old-age pensions so that increases would be automatic as living costs spiralled and "old-age pensioners would not have to be supplicants all the time."

There are almost 500,000 pensions in Ontario, almost half of whom receive the federal guaranteed income supplement. Maximum payment for these pensioners is $171 a month.

Seek Formula To Share Power

BELFAST (AP) — Amid tight security, Protestant and Roman Catholic politicians met on the outskirts of Belfast today in search of a formula for sharing power in tense Northern Ireland.

The representatives of Ulster's one million Protestants and 500,000 Catholics will try to agree on a 12-man cabinet to govern Ulster, in line with a plan outlined by the British government.

News Briefs

Market Vote Planned

BLACKPOOL, England (Reuter) — Britain's Labor party voted Thursday to ask the country's electorate whether it wants to be in the European Common Market. But, the annual conference of the party stopped short of actual opposition to Market membership.

Teachers Work to Rule

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of teachers in Toronto high schools voted overwhelmingly Thursday to join in a work-to-rule boycott of all extra-curricular activities.

Cafik Seeks Post

OTTAWA (CP) — Norman Cafik, blunt spoken member of Parliament for the riding of Ontario, Thursday announced he will enter the race for the Liberal leadership of the province. "I am running because in the provincial scene . . . we need to breathe into the party a real reason to be."

Socialist Hunted

SANTIAGO (Reuter) — Troops were reported today to be mounting a house-to-house search of the Chilean capital for one of the few leaders of the deposed Popular Unity coalition still at liberty. He is Carlos Altamirano, a former senator and secretary-general of the banned Socialist party of President Salvador Allende.

Half Poor Working

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde says there are plenty of economic reasons for a person to stay on welfare rather than accept a job at a lower annual minimum wage offered in most provinces.

"The wonder is that anyone in poverty does work," he told a luncheon meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association Thursday.

"The marvel is that so many do. Certainly there is no truth to those who claim that the work ethic is dead or dying."

Mr. Lalonde said the working poor, those in jobs paying barely enough for survival, constitute more than half the population living in poverty.

He said a current review of Canada's social security system will have to eliminate existing incentives not to work. But a new plan will have to ensure adequate income for those who cannot work or those who work for wages below a level to maintain their families.

The Energy War Is On

Alberta Oil Royalty Blast Brings Federal Sands Rebuff

EDMONTON (CP) — The energy battle between the Federal and Alberta governments passed the skirmishing stage Thursday as both sides fired major shots with the oil industry and consumers caught in the crossfire.

Alberta's broadside was Premier Peter Lougheed's announcement that the province plans substantial increases in its royalties on oil and natural gas to counter the federal government's imposition of a tax on oil exported from Canada.

Later, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said the federal government would not provide any special treatment for Syncrude Canada Ltd.—A consortium of foreign-owned firms—that last month announced plans for an $800 million plant to extract synthetic crude oil from Alberta's Athabasca oil sands.

Mr. Lougheed had said earlier that federal concessions must be provided if the huge project—worth $1 billion to the province during the next 25 years—was to be viable and that he was sure Ottawa would not want to "kill" the proposal by withholding concessions.

Meanwhile, the oil industry reacted by saying it was a pawn, being victimized in the Ottawa-Alberta constitutional battle and that the ultimate loser would be the consumer.

Mr. Lougheed's announcement came less than 24 hours after a meeting here with Mr. Macdonald that ended in a stalemate.

The federal tax, effective Oct. 1, was imposed as an anti-inflation measure to prevent domestic oil prices from rising automatically with soaring prices in the United States, Mr. Macdonald said.

He said Alberta stands to get back some of the federal tax. Mr. Lougheed replied that the province will be substantially royalty increases."

Specific details on how much the increase will be were not announced in the proposed changes which must be approved by the legislature before they can become effective.

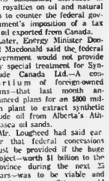
Mr. Macdonald said in Ottawa Alberta's move could mean higher prices for Canadian consumers, a prime concern of the federal government, but that he may put pressure on oil companies to accept the brunt of the increase—in the wake of fast-rising profits—to protect the public.

"We're going to watch very closely to see that the consumer does not wind up the big loser under the Lougheed plan," Mr. Macdonald said.

No Decisions On Imperial's Oil Price Plans

OTTAWA (CP) — No decision has been made on whether to allow Imperial Oil to bypass the federal oil prices freeze and make increases to offset the rising cost of Venezuelan crude.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday he wants to hear from several other companies before making up his mind.



As far as he knows, he told a news conference, Imperial is the only company to apply. The energy department said earlier in the week applications are expected from others.

The price freeze, a voluntary restraint, was requested by Prime Minister Trudeau Sept. 4 and subsequently accepted by all major oil companies.

Ontario's Wild Animals To Get Rabies Vaccine

WINGHAM, Ont. (CP) — Ontario's wildlife, particularly skunks, raccoons and foxes, may be vaccinating themselves against rabies by 1975.

All they will have to do is chew open a small plastic pouch and eat material containing an oral anti-rabies vaccine.

The program in its second year of testing, is a co-operative venture by the Ontario ministry of natural resources and Connaught Laboratories of Toronto.

The chemical firm is in the final steps of perfecting oral vaccine, while the Wingham district of the ministry is testing a baiting method to get the drug to the animals.

The ministry has hired district trappers to distribute 6,-000 pouches of tetracycline, a drug harmless to humans and animals, but one which shows up under fluorescent lights. Later the pouches will contain the vaccine.

The pouches will be sprayed with a cheese or meat solution to attract the animals.

Mr. Mansell said Wingham was chosen for the test site because rabies are prevalent in the area.

"Domestic rabies is fairly well under control with vaccination, but it is still smouldering among wildlife," he said.

RAF Due At Trenton

TRENTON — The Canadian Armed Forces and Britain's Royal Air Force team up next week for missions in flight over Canada's north and parts of the western United States.

The exercise was explained by a base spokesman as a "trading of ideas," and is expected to continue for approximately one week.

Two RAF Hercules aircraft are expected to arrive Oct. 10 at the base here.

In all, RAF and Canadian personnel will be involved in three operations. These are code named Cross Check, Oasis Caper and Eagle Eye.

The first mission will be an Arctic-navigational exercise, followed by the most involved of the three missions, Oasis Caper.

Flying out of Edmonton, Canadian and British Hercules will ferry troops to a remote area in southern California for desert warfare training.

Eagle Eye, the last of the exercises, is intended as "friendly competition" between the two forces.

Two selected teams from each group will be issued sealed flight plans and required to perform precision equipment drop operations. Teams will be scored on their flight paths and drop target accuracy. A trophy will be presented the winning side.

The flights will be the tenth exercise involving Canada's air services and the RAF. The exercises are held twice a year. The next will be held in England. The training is sponsored by Trenton's 436 Squadron.

Potter Challenges Critics

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Richard Potter was charged Thursday with failing to honor repeated commitments to report to the legislature on his ministry's policies to curb medical care expenses.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said the minister has made eight commitments since last February to table a summary of the restraint policies.

New Democrat Leader Stephen Lewis said he counted a dozen commitments in that period.

Dr. Potter countered that some of the policies have already been outlined "but I will be prepared to summarize them for the honorable members if they haven't been paying any attention to them."

Bancroft Water Back to Normal

BANCROFT — Public drinking water has been declared safe in this village of 2,000 after a three-week caution against contamination — now traced to private pipeline system.

Dr. C. R. Lenk, public health officer for Hastings and Prince Edward counties, said Thursday about 30 householders had run lines into the public system to supply their own wells.

When valves or hydrants were opened on the pipeline it created suction that drew water from the wells into the community system. The well water was fixed as the source of contamination after investigations by local public health and Ministry of the Environment inspectors, said the health officer.

Earlier tests had centred on Clarke Lake, three miles away, from where the village draws its water.

In mid-August villagers had been advised to boil or chlorinate their drinking water by Dr. Lenk.

German Tessier, a Hawkesbury model operator, will represent the tourism industry.

Kingston lawyer B. W. Trumpour and Donald Johnson, a Smiths Falls accountant, have agreed to serve on the board.

Mr. Bennett said the appointments will be confirmed in the near future by order-in-council. He was addressing the, Commercial and Industrial Development Corp. of Ottawa-Carleton.

Chilean Bloodbath

Why, in the case of a military coup, as in Chile, must the operation be accompanied by such an orgy of killing?

If there is any resistance from the Government in power then of course casualties will occur on both sides. But when the people seeking power — in the case of Chile, right-wing military generals supported by their own soldiery — proceed to murder and execute people simply because they were supporters of the old administration, what began as an assault on the Government ends up as a brutal massacre.

The left wing in politics, purporting to represent the masses, in essence socialism, may not be to everyone's liking, but in Chile it had formed the first ever democratically-elected Marxist Government in the Western world. Unfortunately, in going overboard for socialism it alienated too many, including one of its own followers.

The Cuban revolution of 1959 was followed by a bloodbath, when Fidel Castro, his Communist leanings becoming more evident each day, put some 600 supporters of the old Batista regime before the firing squad. In Chile the right-wing militarists are displaying as little compassion, less in fact, as did Castro 14 years ago. Nearly 3,000 are said to have been killed in Santiago alone in the two weeks following the coup. A Newsweek correspondent who visited a morgue said many had been shot at close range under the chin or machine-gunned in the chest. Democracy in Chile is dead. In its place, a military junta bolstered by an indisciplined rabble of an army which, like many an army in the past, must exact its own pound of flesh.

As one foreign leader, New Zealand's Prime Minister Kirk (whose government is in no hurry to recognize the new regime, put it) "It is dismaying that the legally-elected government should be pushed out by people who literally shot their way in."

Ironically, so busy were the military men that in the midst of it all one of Chile's great men — world-renowned poet Pablo Neruda — died a near-obscurity, a victim of cancer. Ironic too that he was a Communist, but his poetry goes beyond mere politics, to span all humankind.

The lesson of Chile's latter-day tragedy is that extremism, of whatever political color, is bad news. As The Times of London has noted, former President Allende, who died in the coup, shares much of the responsibility for events, having failed to unite the polarized Chilean opinion and made a showdown inevitable.

One last thought, if we are going to have any political refugees from Chile, the man from External Affairs heading for Santiago had better be selective. If there is one thing we don't need yet here it is revolutionaries — of whatever political stamp.

Bike Risk

The humble bicycle, which today is enjoying such popularity with people of all ages, has been singled out by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission as the most hazardous product — including automobiles — on the American market.

The figures are based on emergency room data from 119 hospitals all over the country. Safety regulations in the U.S. include the outlawing of high-rise handlebars, requiring better reflectors and imposing higher standards of frame construction.

There is no mention of motorcycles but we see in another U.S. news item, that film actor and former pro (Canadian League) footballer James Stacey had his left arm and leg severed and girlfriend was killed when their motorcycle they were riding down a dark, winding canyon road in Los Angeles was sideswiped by a car. The car driver has been charged.

So it was not Stacey's fault, but given his injuries, even though he is expected to live, he is a ruined man. Let's hope his spirit will triumph, for in that will lie his only hope. In the midst of such tragedy there can be a rebirth, even a new life hoped for by others.

For Skaters

An up-and-coming event to keep in mind is the Rotary-sponsored Skatathon. It is scheduled for November 8-9-10 and as last year's opening bash indicated, it promises to be one of the more interesting events of the winter sporting calendar, with entries from Belleville and round about.

Canada Japan Trade Council's Criticism

Collective Bargaining System Behind the Times

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The Canada - Japan Trade Council, which promotes and monitors an annual $3,700 million worth of trade between the two countries, has come out publicly with something many businessmen and taxpayers have been saying privately.

It is that Canada's system of employer - employee collective bargaining relations is "primitive, ineffective, and 50 years behind the development of the economy and society of which it is a part."

Except for last year, when due to exceptional circumstances, Canada was on the shorter end of the trade stick with Japan, the balance — and likely one — has been with Canadian exporters, so the Council can speak with some authority.

It speaks about the "on-cart philosophy and neolithic operation" of Canadian labor relations in the context of the dangage being done Canada as an international trader.

What seems to have brought the Council to a boil was the "totally irrelevant picture which it says was, as usual, "entirely predictable, preventable, disruptive of the national economy and damaging to our commercial reputation as it has abroad."

The role of social labor disputes, believes the Council, is what it calls, "labor's resistance, passive or active, to technological progress."

And it applies to railroading as to other industry.

"Some way," says the Council, "must be found to make Canadian labor and technological change compatible.

"Some substitute must be found for the negative and destructive strike.

"If we fail to do so, we risk a serious future."

"International competition is widening and becoming more intense.

"New technology is at the very core of a nation's competitive ability.

"If we cannot find a place for it in our society, we will inevitably fall behind in the field and out of the race."

The right to strike in essential public services was granted by Prime Minister Pearson in the name of freedom.

But the way it has been working out, while it may have widened the freedom of the powerful few, it has restricted the freedom of the helpless many.

For what kind of freedom is it for whom when a ferry or ferryman can strand 2,000 tourists in Newfoundland and even Prince Edward Island during the railway strike?

Most of the battles of big labor and big business are fought on the public sidelines with only the immediate antagonists feeling the pain.

So it has been Lester Pearson's example in settling acting of permitting strikes in the public service that has caused the most visible and enraging damage to the national interest.

If it is not the postal service, it is the railways, the federal atomic staff, the air traffic controllers, the airport service workers, ticket office clerical staffs or air stewards and hostesses who strike.

Or the garbagemen, teachers, transit workers, hydro staff, firemen, even police — all essential employees of the federal, provincial and municipal level.

It happens because the politicians, from the Prime Minister and his cabinet right down to those through the municipal councils, quail when faced with a determined group of employees whom they are supposed to administer for the service of their fellows.

And it is not only their employees who terrify the politicians.

It is any organized pressure group, no matter how small, as long as it is loud and makes their visible — which is no trick, with TV ready at all times to glorify spectacles, window - smashers, sit - in protesters and assorted militants.

Some 250 striking hooligans broke their way into Parliament Hill's Centre Block, breaking windows, kicking cops, and got away with it.

You try it and see what happens.

The only person who does not put petrify the politicians is you and the hundreds of thousands of people like you: the taxpayers who are too busy working three to four months every year for the government to find the time and energy to protest.

But might suppose that the politicians would fear the voters, but the way they look at it there is safety in numbers and the diversity of the public — and anyway, they are living too much in fear of the militant minorities to notice.

Inflation Has Grown Virtually Out of Hand'

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Can you remember when people worried about inflation of two or three per cent a year?

Or even the better old days, when an annual lost of pursuing power was not taken for granted at all?

Changed, all changed.

Here are a few benchmarks along the way to today's rapid inflation, as compiled by the Organization of Economic Co-operation and Development (members are Canada, the United States, the countries of western Europe, Turkey, Japan and Australia):

It was in the 1950s that price increases of between two and three per cent a year were causing concern.

During the next decade, up until about 1968, that average rate of inflation for these 22 countries moved up to nearly four per cent annually.

It moved over four per cent in 1969, then jumped to 5½ per cent in 1970 and 6¾ per cent for the next couple of years. Last year's inflation is sure to be the worst in the annals of the OECD.

Inflation has been spreading all over the world, in a series of relatively little steps rather than in any great worldwide blow-off.

Governments, have -and abroad, five fresh day to day, year to year, election to election. They find it easier to turn to the printing presses and to turn to classical deflationary remedies, when faced with the choice.

Besides, does inflation' not give the public the illusion that incomes are rising? (Average wages may be three times higher than a generation ago, but is the average wage-earner three times better off?)

The trouble is that so few people can manage to 'keep abreast of inflation, even though they may think they are doing so. If, for example, the government should let it be known that four per cent would be an acceptable rate of inflation next year, corporations will include it in their forward pricing, labor will include it in wage demands, and in the end prices will go up by eight per cent.

It's a matter of record that corporations and organized labor manage to keep ahead of inflation, on the whole. It's equally plain that those on fixed incomes — pensioners, bondholders, mortgage holders — must fall behind.

If that suggests that governments generally tend to favor active producers and entrepreneurs, and to penalize the renters and others who are deemed to be unproductive, it's probably the spirit of the times — harsh and immoral as it may seem to those on fixed incomes.

Most of us are familiar with the usual economic theories about inflation, and we accept them or reject them largely on the basis of our sympathies in the never-ending conflict of management and labor.

But an increasingly significant factor is contributing to inflation — and it cannot be relieved by the usual management-labor test of strength.

The world's natural resources are being over-strained in the name of our worldwide prosperity. Supplies were not able to take advantage of the platform it offered them.

They are always at their best when they have the forum of the house to raise their issues and launch their criticisms.

But they, however, the party has appeared to be suffering from an identity crisis.

To be quite fair this well could have been a lethargy which is hitting our politics themselves.

Individual members have been quite active. But there has been an apparent monotony to their efforts.

An atmosphere of the same old thing.

Complaints about high prices. Charges of corporate rip-offs.

Accusations generally of inefficiency but without proposals of real alternatives.

Along with this there has been some suspicion that Stephen Lewis may be getting a bit bored with politics, or at least the provincial arena.

Over the years the young NDP leader has rull hot and cold on politics.

A man with a strong reform instinct from time to time he has a feeling that he is not able to do enough.

At one point a few years ago he gave quite serious consideration to going to teach in Africa.

Then within the past year he gave deep thought to retiring from the leadership.

His position in the house as second man to Robert Nixon, the official opposition leader, also is bound to be an irksome one.

It is perhaps just a passing phase. But all these circumstances tend to indicate that the party is on a bit of a downgrade at the moment.

NDP Enjoy A Platform

Lucrosity is the writing about the Liberals it was noted that one of the factors in the party's favor was an apparently dropping off of pep in the NDP.

One reason for this, of course, was that the house was on a three-month break and the NDP'ers were not able to take advantage of the platform it offers them.

They are always at their best when they have the forum of the house to raise their issues and launch their criticisms.

Pollution in the Bay

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I am in agreement with Reeve Barbara Allen that the Citizens Bureau owes the county of Hastings an apology.

At no time did the Bureau "unduly harass" the county or any of its officials. It spoke, lighted a couple of candles, raising situations that needed to be brought to public attention as well as correction.

She overlooks the fact that in the case of the allegations regarding the conduct of a field worker, none of the sworn affidavits were seriously challenged and none overthrown.

Likewise she omits to state the negotiations to obtain false affidavits started in January and still have to be completed. In this case, for sheer humane considerations, the most unusual unorthodox methods had to be employed. The man filled it — the man is now getting some teeth.

Forty Black Youths Stone Man to Death

BOSTON (AP) — Two schools, closed because of fear of racial violence, reopen today at the end of a week in which two whites were brutally murdered by black youths.

A 34-year-old woman died early Wednesday after being drenched with gasoline and set afire. On Thursday, a 65-year-old fisherman was stoned and stabbed to death by a band of 30 to 40 black youths.

"No question the problem is racism and fear," said Chairman Paul Tierney of the Boston school committee. "It's deteriorated to the point of these horrible murders and gone down to the level of children."

He was referring to the deaths of Evelyn Renee Wagler and Ludivico Barbs of Roxbury.

A witness to the killing of Barba told police that the youths first stoned him as he was fishing in the ocean, then stabbed him with his knife and rifled his pockets.

Under Water Exercising

Exercise more, ache less and never sweat a drop.

It sounds like a medicine show promise or back page advertisement in a ladies' magazine.

What it is, however, is the new course offered at Belleville YMCA called Aquabics.

Hailed as a "sweatless, painless" way to get in shape it is underwater exercising equally suitable for swimmers and non-swimmers.

Brian Bentley, Physical Director at the Y, is enthused about the program, begun this year for the first time.

Under the direction of Helen Diamandides, 15 women meet in the pool two mornings a week for "recreation and fitness."

It's a good program, Brian Bentley says. "You get exercise but you don't feel it."

While the Y's program is in its "infant stage" according to Mr. Bentley, its already obviously a success.

"People try it and say 'wow — this is better than exercising in the gym'," he says.

Aquabics is the brain child of a Toronto swim coach and a Toronto doctor. Its the title of their book too, published this spring by Fitzhenry and Whiteside.

There are exercises in the book, written by Dr. Bentley, who heads university clinics at the Toronto General Hospital.

Exercising underwater has, Mr. Bentley says, three advantages.

Initially, you're getting better exercise because your limbs meet water resistance and you must use more effort.

Secondly, while the resistance exists you're not aware of it and its easier to exercise. At the same time the water cushions your body, preventing the stiff and sore joints so familiar to joggers.

And you just don't sweat underwater because the water and the body are at the same temperature.

Currently limited to swimmers at Belleville's Y, Brian Bentley says the program will be expanded to meet the demand. If a number of people who can't swim are interested, a second class will be started for non-swimmers.

"You're working in a second environment — water. If you don't know how to swim, it's a relaxing way to learn."

Mr. Bentley plans to introduce his noon-hour men's fitness class to aquabics and is considering using the underwater exercises to warm up in swimming and diving classes in place of the traditional "lengths."

Its status as a United Way agency makes it possible for the Y to offer the course at low rates.

For two sessions weekly for 10 weeks, the fee is $19.

For information, contact the Y at 962-9245.

Exercising in the pool with the help of Helen Diamandides, who is Belleville's aquabics instructor, are Mae Gould, Vivian Britton, Evelyn Mountford and Carol Stam. The women are four of 15 taking the fitness course.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM LESLIE

Leslie—MacInnes

St. Matthew's United Church, Halifax, was the scene of the wedding of Catherine Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. MacInnes, Halifax, to William James Leslie, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bryan Leslie, Belleville, Ontario. Rev. Gordon MacDermid officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white crepe face satin fashioned with empire basque, bib yoke of Guipure lace and seed pearls. The gown featured a high petal neckline and her detachable silhouette and chapel train fell from a belled back. A profile cap accented with seed pearls held her silk illusion shoulder veil.

Mrs. John D. Wade, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a gown of deep pink chiffon with raised pink, mauve and white flowers. Bridesmaids were Christine MacInnes, sister of the bride, Mrs. Bruce Pope, sister of the groom, Mrs. Paul Thompson and Joyanne Jolly. They were identical gowns of light and medium pink with flowered skirts. Each attendant wore a headdress and carried a bouquet of bridal pink roses, purple stolice and baby's breath.

Best man was Robert Leslie, brother of the groom. Ushers were Rick Lyons, Belleville; W. L. MacInnes, brother of the bride, Halifax; Gary Kitchen, Oshawa, Ontario; and Clif Prowse, Vancouver, British Columbia.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Commonwealth Room of the Hotel Nova Scotian.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie will reside in Toronto.

MR. AND MRS. GARY COONEY

Cooney—Clayton

Lindi Ann Clayton and Gary Theodore Cooney were wed Sept 15 at St. George's Anglican Church Trenton in an afternoon ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clayton, Smithfield. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Cooney, Bayside.

Rev. M.J. Caswell officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a peau gown with guipere lace trim and seed pearls. The chapel length train and finger tip veil with chantilly lace accented the gown's florals held the veil. She carried pink carnations, white rosebuds and blue cornflowers.

Eric Cooney the groom's brother, attended with the assistance of Glen Clayton, the bride's brother and Richard Empey, and Larry Reid.

They will reside at Wallbridge Road.

A NOVELIST AND HIS NOVEL

"The hall-mark of good writing is authority . . . ; the writer's belief in what he is saying." — Ludovic Kennedy.

* * *

One of life's enchantments is a novel which lures the reader from his world of daily realities to a realm of fantasy. Such a book on our desk this morning proves a case in point. It begins:

"It all started with the dolls. My particular trouble was with the mannequins, those beautiful store-window figures with their astonishingly human appearance, but I can see how it all began long, long ago . . ."

The book is entitled "San Tang", published by Exposition Press, (1953. 171 pages, wherein a spell of magic, with power to give the inanimate life, falls into the hands of the youthful, "girly-sy" hero, Kelvin Wilde, who successfully casts it over a store-window mannequin named Sheba. Sheba in her changed alive-state reveals her name is San Tang, and later reveals "I am the Princess San Tang, the only one now left of our royal family in exile. My people came from away and away across the land and farther still across the sea; they came to this country a long long time ago and brought their followers and their court with them — and they settled in the Region of the Crooked Lake. There they built the palace, and it was ancient when I was born."

The gifted writer, Jan Stormont, forcefully, confidently, engulfs the reader with wave upon wave of openly impossible situation that seems by his artistry quite natural, realistic, logical, plausible. As suspense rises and builds, a test is met, for as Poe says, the secret of a narrative lies in its end. And interest is held to the very last page. The reader closes the cover with the feeling that all was brought to its proper conclusion.

Descriptions catch and hold the thought: Such as: "Maybe it was the wistful mood of the gray afternoon, maybe it was only childhood memory — or even that I heard the pipes of Pan whatever it was that called."

to me, felt it deeply and passing by left something of my spirit lingering there to wander spellbound in those spots of silent, sylvan beauty."

On the jacket of the book one reads:

"Jan Stormont has fashioned an imaginary world with good taste, creative ingenuity and an inherent sense of drama .. (The novel) is an extraordinary flight into fantasy written by a twentieth-century wit and social satirist, who is also an exceptionally gifted writer of fiction."

A biographical sketch: "A modern, reclusive sort of person, the author dreads exposure to the public eye. Ergo, this pseudonym Jan Stormont. The publishers, respectful of the author's wishes for anonymity, are nevertheless mindful of their traditional obligation to the book-reading public. Ergo, the following compromise:

"Jan Stormont of Westmount, Quebec, is Vice-President and General Manager of an important Canadian industrial firm. He is also a noted inventor and industrial designer. Born in a small town in Ontario, the author lived in Missouri for a while as a boy and went to school there, but most of his growing up was done in Montreal. Mr. Stormont attended McGill University. Tan Ming is his first novel."

Time since has brought changes and the author now lives in the hometown of his birth — which is none other than our own Belleville, and Jan Stormont is none other than a member of a well-known Belleville family: Mr. Morse Robb, 'Trent Road.)

On behalf of all our readers we wish to offer congratulations, with the hope more such work will be forthcoming.

Copies of San Tang" may be found on the shelves of The Corby Library, wherein a delightful world of fantasy awaits you.

Flying After 60

TORONTO (CP) — Norcliffe and Thelma Baker have found a way to add spice to life in their 60s—the couple have taken up flying.

Norcliffe, a businessman, is 65. His wife declines to disclose her exact age but says she is the oldest woman in Canada ever to quality as a private-license pilot.

They fly their own aircraft, a four-seat Buccaneer amphibian and report it's "a terrific thrill."

The couple began training for their licences in 1970 after buying the Buccaneer for $48,000. Since qualifying last year, Norcliffe has clocked more than 400 flying hours and Thelma about 150 hours.

She recalls the time her husband decided to buy the plane and take up flying. Although she had only once before been up in a small plane, she wasn't going to be left out.

Grace Chapel, Stirling, was the scene when Sheila May Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Richardson, RR 3 Frankford, and Alan J. Moorcroft, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moorcroft, Foxboro, were married.

Robert McLaren officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an empire gown with long full banded sleeves and chapel length train. Her layered scalloped veil was caught in a band of roses. She carried a white bible with three red roses and baby's breath.

Groomsman Danny Brownson was assisted by ushers Rodney Moorcroft and Wayne Richardson.

Ann Landers
Husband Thinks Doctors 'Fool Around'

Dear Ann Landers: Your letter from the American who is having an affair with her doctor really riles me. My husband called it to my attention the first thing this morning.

For eight years I've been trying to convince the dah that I should have an annual physical complete with Pap test. I've told him repeatedly that a nurse is always present during these examinations and that my gynecologist is very impersonal and highly ethical.

My husband has the crazy idea that most doctors fool around with their women patients during examinations and the women love it. In recent years I've avoided telling my husband about my visits to the doctor because it always ended up with him making some rotten, uncalled-for remark and he wouldn't speak to me for three days.

That idiotic letter from the fool who is carrying on with her crazy doctor (she asked if she should tell her psychiatrist or would he sic the Medical Society on him), opened up that old can of worms.

I enjoy your column usually, but not always.—Miffed In Mpls.

Dear Miff: Anyone who reads Ann Landers regularly is sure to run into a letter that can be used against somebody, sooner or later.

This column touches on every facet of life, the bizarre and the commonplace, the best in human nature and the worst. That letter proved once again that there are plenty of screwballs around and some of them are physicians, which should come as no surprise. I should have emphasized more strongly that the basis for any therapeutic relationship is complete confidence. Secrets between a patient and a psychiatrist are never divulged.

Dear Ann Landers: Don't you have any Scottish friends? Surely you have a Scot who can send someone to help you with that question. "Dr. Scotsmen won't do anything under their kilts".

I herewith quote the answer given me by a Scot to the man who taught me to play the bagpipes. I asked him the same question. He replied, "I dinna ken, laddie, but if there's war again, I'll join the British army for I'll be damned if I'll go through another winter naked up to the waist."—Jean Call Me Mac

Dear Mac: I've yet to meet a true Scotsman who would have joined the English army because of a few icy blasts—so for any other reason!

Dear Ann: All soft soap aside, I can't go along with your muzzy approval of the woman who telephoned the gray-haired mother from the office umpteen times a day.

Any woman who uses a business phone for personal calls is guilty of misuse of office equipment. She is also using the boss's time. He is not paying her to telephone her mother.

Time spent on the phone is time not spent doing the work for which she was hired. This is unfair. If that other employee is that office, because obviously someone must do it. You recited.—Annabel—A Worker, Not A Talker.

Dear Worker: Sorry. I don't agree. There are values here that outweigh the ones you've mentioned. Some phone calls take less time than is required to write a letter to Ann Landers, such as the one you just wrote—on office stationery and, I'll bet, on office time. .

Belly-Button Sterilization — Go Dancing That Night

EDMONTON (CP) — "Belly-button surgery" allows women to be sterilized as easily as men, says gynecologist Dr. D. M. Buchanan.

Imported from Europe, the surgical technique—otherwise known as laparoscopy, requires two pencil-wide punctures, one usually in the navel and the other in the abdomen.

Dr. Buchanan said only a tiny scar is left and the woman has to remain in hospital for only one day.

One gynecologist said one patient who had a laparoscopy went dancing the day she was released from hospital and another went skiing. This was in sharp contrast to the standard sterilization method of tubular ligation, where a woman often was in great pain for several days after the operation.

Dr. Buchanan estimated that about 1,000 women have had the laparoscopy operation since it was introduced in the city about three years ago. The operation, developed about 20 years ago is used extensively in Europe and England but is not widely used in Canada.

"I don't know why it hasn't caught on here," Dr. Buchanan said.

Dr. K. H. Finner, who introduced the technique to the Charles Camsell Hospital, said part of the reason may be that it takes doctors some time to get used to it.

About 20 doctors in the city can perform the surgery and most of the hospitals have the equipment—or are getting it—necessary for the operation.

"This is the only method of sterilization of women," Dr. Finner said. "It's safe, reliable and a minimum of expenditure in time and money."

Once doctors become used to the technique, the operation takes about 20 to 30 minutes, the same as for the standard ligation.

Dr. Buchanan said any couple wanting sterilization as a permanent method of birth control must decide between themselves and their doctor which partner should be sterilized.

"If there are no problems it's a toss-up," said Dr. L. M. Dushinski, a urologist who performs vasectomies on men.

Dr. Dushinski said a vasectomy does not reduce the sexual drive. About 42 per cent of a recent study group reported an increase in sexual drive after the operation.

Vasectomy is a relatively simple operation that may be done under local anesthetic in a doctor's office. Ligation is done in hospital under general anesthetic.

Dr. Dushinski said a man becomes sterile about six weeks after a vasectomy. With a laparoscopy a woman is immediately sterile.

A vasectomy is reversible, although reversal success depends on several factors such as the technique used and the length of time between the operations. Laparoscopy is usually not reversible.

Dr. Dushinski said he averaged about 15 vasectomies a week two years ago but now is down to three to four.

'Vanishing Wife' Won't Accept Fate

VICTORIA (CP) — A new breed of family runaway, quite different from the youth hunting for adventure, is appearing on the Canadian scene. Vanishing wives are joining the ranks of liberated women who find the shackles of family life unbearable.

Women who traditionally chose to stay with their men and children for better or worse, now are more inclined to walk away from unpleasant domestic situations. A number of runaway wives admit they would not have left five years ago.

Violent husbands may give their wives enough self-confidence to swap a secure family life for their independence. And women who question their social roles seem less willing blindly to accept their fate.

Roy Hundleby of the Greater Victoria Citizens' Counselling Service cited a new social climate and explained the change.

Anne ran three miles in the rain one day leaving a husband, two sons and 24 years of marriage behind her. Anne's husband physically abused her, but refused to admit he had a problem. She waited 21 years to leave, "for the sake of the children."

Cathy left after her husband tried to kill her. He locked her in a trailer and rammed it with a gravel truck. Cathy took her two sons with her when she left.

"We grew up with the idea that women were for keeping and married but our ideas are changing now," Mr. Hundleby said.

Although Mr. Hundleby admits it is difficult for a woman alone, he also understands both the abandoned husband.

The provincial government shares Mr. Hundleby's concern. The Family Relations Act replaced the Wives and Children's Maintenance Act in March, 1972. The word "wife" was changed to "spouse" giving the husband the same legal rights as his wife.

The Victoria Women's Centre recently asked Human Resources Minister Norm Levi for a three-year grant to establish a transition or half-way house for women changing their life styles. The women at the Centre hope to help those women whom marriage counselors and psychiatrists have

Successful Living
Priest in India Thanks Readers

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Thank you for the continued sympathy you show us. Things in West Bengal have improved a bit as far as the refugee problem is concerned but we are always surrounded by the starkest misery and poverty.

I have been here for the last 42 years (in India). The only change is that now the masses, more educated as they are now, feel stronger in advocating their rights (at least one square meal a day and space enough on which to rest their weary bones at night).

They are agitating in a violent way, thus creating chaos in the social life. How I appreciated your words of comfort and all your support!

I am trying to reciprocate with my poor prayers for you and your kind readers.

Rev. J. Ferretti, India.

Dear Father Ferretti: I am glad you received clothing and used Christmas cards as a result of your letter in my column. Canadians are compassionate and we all rejoice that things have improved at least to some extent from the terrible state they were in when you were trying to take care of those thousands of refugees from Bangladesh.

Message to readers: This mission can use cards, used clothing, anything to keep bodies warm during the chill rainy season, and money. Address packages to Rev. J. Ferretti, Catholic Church, Thakurnagar P.O., 24 Parganas, — West Bengal 743287, India. Label packages, "Used Cards, No Commercial Value." Or "Used Clothing, No Commercial Value."

Dear Doris: I had abdominal surgery years ago and they made a horizontal incision. Ever since, I have been bothered with a wad of fat just above the incision. Would massage help?

I have three other incisions, all vertical, and these pose no problems. My stomach muscles are strong and firm but the fat pad is most annoying.

I feel that surgeons should be instructed in opening a patient vertically. (After several grand openings, I suggested a slipper would be a good idea!)

Wad of Fat.

Dear Wad: Surgeons have some tricky decisions to make depending on muscle structure, location of opening and many other things. I can imagine that your horizontal incision might easily have caused a little layer of fat to pile up just above it.

Perhaps my leaflet, "For That Spare Tire — A Special Massage" might help you. That is, if your doctor approves.

The general theory of the tummy massage is that you discourage the fat cells and redistribute the fat.

I have a friend who has had four children, all by Caesarian operation. If anybody would appreciate a zapper, she would! Her tummy shows a pattern of two parallel vertical and two parallel horizontal lines which crisscross each other. Each of the four children knows and claims his own special scar, as the place where he came out!

Dear Doris: My daughter, who lives 900 miles from me, has asked me for help in planning a small wedding reception (about 30 people). I left very disappointed that we cannot make the trip, but do want this day to be a perfect one for her.

Since her father won't be there, can her brother give her away? Any simple guidelines you can give us in planning or proper things to do during the reception, will be appreciated.

Absent Mother.

Dear Absent: What a pity you can't make it to your daughter's Big Day! This is something you—would remember all your life and she would appreciate for all of hers.

If her father just can't be there, her brother may most certainly be the one who gives her away.

Our leaflets about weddings, written by popular request, include "Happy The Bride The Sun Shines On", "Wedding Count Down", "Household Trousseau", "Pre-Wedding Parties". She may be glad to have three or four of them — which she may have by making a selection and sending 25 cents for each one, plus a large stamped, self-addressed envelope, in care of this newspaper.

Four Hold Tickets

Four Quinte-area residents, including one man from Belleville, have drawn horses on the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes based on Saturday's running of the Cambridgeshire Handicap at Newmarket, England.

Two Napanee people have drawn ones on the race as has one Consecon resident.

The lucky Belleville man is Roy Maycen, 14 Albion St., soon to retire after 28 years' employment with Canada Cement Lafarge at Point Anne.

"We've bought all kinds of tickets for years, but have never won anything," said Mrs. Maycen this morning.

The lack of success almost convinced the couple to stop purchasing tickets but fortunately they decided to have one more go, Mrs. Maycen said.

drawn horses on the race as

The ticket is on a horse called London, not a race favorite.

Dave Van Wort of Consecon, who works at CFPL Transcon, described himself as a "nervous wreck".

"I'm crossing my fingers and toes," he said.

His ticket on Pompous, bought under his name on plume "Duke", guarantees a return of about $1,000 even if the horse is out of the running.

Mr. Van Wort, who has been buying tickets for only four years, said he'll make plans for the money after he's received it. But, he added: "It's getting pretty close to Christmas. I could get started early."

One Napanee resident, giving "Rusty" as pseudonym, drew a ticket on Law of the Wise. Another Napanee resident, "Jeannie", has a ticket on Confusion.

None of the horsts drawn by Quinte - area ticket holders are among the race favorites.

A total of 220 Canadians had tickets drawn on 60 horses. The field will be narrowed to about 25 at post time.

Board Members Talk Shop

Before the Quinte Planning Board meeting last night, director Bert Kenny (from left), assistant director Frank Stokmans, policy committee chairman Jack Bush, and Sidney Township Reeve Gordon Wilman spend a few moments discussing planning matters. During the meeting, Mr. Bush brought down his committee's recommendation for new QPB offices located in the present Trenton municipal offices. The recommendation was accepted by board members with an 8-5 vote.

Quinte Planning Board Offices in Trenton

By Al. ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Despite opposition from Mayor Robin Jeffrey and Thurlow Township Reeve Horace Casey, new accommodations for Quinte Planning Board staff have finally been found in the present municipal offices of Trenton.

At its regular monthly meeting last night, the board accepted a policy committee recommendation that will see drafting boards moved from present offices in Belleville's city hall to the two-storey stone building on Dundas St. East in Trenton. The board accepted the committee's recommendation 8-5 with no abstentions.

Belleville aldermen Dr. John Stock and R. C. Porter voted against the motion to accept the board offer which did Sidney Township councillor Reg McCurdy.

"Although I cannot accept the recommendation," said Mayor Jeffrey, "I will support the majority vote. It will be difficult for the city to work with this arrangement."

The Mayor said Belleville certainly had no plans to withdraw from the QPB because the city is committed to the regional planning. "I represent 35,000 people," said the mayor, "Our needs for planning are twice as much as the other municipalities because we're twice as large. We have to have a professional staff that is accessible to our citizens."

Objecting to the Belleville mayor's statements, Trenton mayor Duncan McDonald asked why Mayor Jeffrey had not raised the matter at the time of the two previous lender calls for offices this year.

Reeve Casey expressed his reservations to the new offices saying, "I don't actually disagree, but there have been news items and rumors that Trenton is looking west for expansion. There have been rumors that there might be an amalgamation between Trenton and Northumberland County."

"If the offices were in the designated municipality (Sidney Township), it would have been more convenient for everyone. It's not a great deal of comfort that there is a 30-day clause breaking the lease."

However, Mayor McDonald stressed that even though Trenton offices would be westerly, outside the Quinte planning area, Trenton could still remain one of the five participating municipalities. The contract could have in it that if Trenton leaves the Quinte planning area, the lease would be broken. "But I don't think we'll leave," he concluded.

"I was opposed to the designated municipality. My feeling has always been that it should be in any of the five municipalities."

The policy committee brought down the recommendation after visiting the municipal offices and a building owned by Dr. E. W. Dow at the corner of Dundas St. E. and Bay St., Trenton. Only two buildings of 10 tendered were inspected by the policy committee and Q P B professional staff. Although each of the five municipalities was not represented, four were of favor for offices in Trenton.

Rental fees ranged from a low of $10,800, submitted by Trenton, to a high of $31,200 a n n u a l l y, submitted by Blackburn Holdings Ltd.

Renovations to the Trenton municipal offices will be made at the expense of the ceilings and flooring, removal of partitions, and general cleanup work will be done before the QPB staff takes possession February 1, 1974.

Mayor McDonald said no extensive renovations will be necessary to meet the specifications. Solicitor Robert Ord of Belleville will be retained to negotiate the five-year lease.

A letter, from Mayor Jeffrey indicating Belleville's willingness to continue renting space to the QPB in city hall, was received by the policy committee in mid-September.

However, the Belleville city hall offices have been considered temporary since the QPB inception over two years ago. Trustees have repeatedly been called for new accommodations. Although the bids have been unsatisfactory till the offer of the old Trenton municipal offices. When tenders were called earlier this year for a new building leased under a five-year contract, no bids were received by the board.

Library Extension Officially Open

City readers can now indulge in their favorite pastime in comfortable surroundings. The extension to Corby Public Library has just been completed and an open house was held Saturday to honor the occasion.

The wing is named the Delaney Wing after the library's chief librarian and secretary, Miss Olive Delaney.

Visitors to the addition toured the carpeted areas housing the reference library, reading area, large gallery and meeting room, the Canadian room and five offices.

There are also picture storage facilities, a microfilm reading area and a lobby that can be used as a gallery.

For the occasion, the art work and photographs of local talent was on display. Students from the photography course at Loyalist College displayed their photographs in the lobby gallery upstairs.

Downstairs, on the main floor, water colors of stately old homes in the Belleville area, done by local artist Philippa Faulkner, were on display, including one of Glanmore House where she once lived.

This extension, comprising two floors, adds about 8,000 square feet to the library.

Construction work was done by a Trenton company, Miron - Wiggers, while the architects for the job were the Belleville firm of Bogon and Armstrong.

The new areas are carpeted throughout and air - conditioned. The gallery can be used for a meeting room or lecture hall. There is a kichen area for serving refreshments after meetings. At the open house Saturday, users of the Belleville Arts Council served tea to the guests.

Parks Board Seeks Grant

The city parks board is seeking use of provincial greenhouses at the Federal building on East Dundas Street in connection with a portable LIP program.

Board members Thursday erected that an application be made for a Local Initiative Program grant to assist the board in the propagation and growing of 30,000 annual plants for the parks board and other city departments.

Total cost of the program would be $11,605. The board it asked for a government contribution of $9,000, leaving $2,605 as the estimated cost to the city.

Also, the parks board will ask for a LIP grant to assist in the construction of tow playgrounds in newly populated areas of the city.

Cost of the projects including fabrication of equipment during the winter months and site grading and installation of play apparatus is estimated at $25,120. Grant requested is $16,320.

Plays Shaping Up For Debut Oct. 10

Plays shaping up for the Oct. 10 to 16 Pinnacle Playhouse rehearsals get more frantic, nerves a little more edgy, plays a little tighter, Jules Feiffer's Crawling Arnold, Anton Chekhov's The Proposal and John Hawkes' The Wax Museum take shape for Comedy Bizarre II.

Nancy Barclay and Sharon Fairas quietly discussed their work in The Wax Museum with director Bill Culp after the two ran through the play from opening to closing line last night. Culp was pleased, but sat on the stage, refining the delivery of lines, emphasizing his wants with gestures. Behind the three, stage manager Rene Robertson worried over placement of the furnishings for The Proposal, directed by Ernst Kneisel.

Directed Verna Patterson, and cast for Crawling Arnold noisily come up the stairs from the basement. A chuckle is made — Crawling Arnold goes on next. Stage hands change the props from those for The Proposal.

Speaking of his work with the two girls, Biggo and Sally Ann, in The Wax Museum, Culp says "I see things from a male point of view. they see things from a female point of view. Directing them is not hard, not impossible, — interesting — a feminine interpretation of a masculine interpretation of the play."

Three newcomers to the Crawling Arnold, Isabel Biggs as Miss Sympathy, who sympathises, Clifford Hoy as Mr. Enterprise who complains about Millie, the maid, played by Irene Mayhury. Millie is unpleasant, a black woman wanting equal rights. She locks the Enterprises out of their fallout shelter.

Vivian Barclay as Mrs. Enterprise returns to the stage after Neta Louise in Harvey and the old lady in last year's Tea-house of the August Moon. Steven Forrester, as Arnold on his knees, played Swiss Cheese in Brecht's Mother Courage and Teddy Captain Flaby in Tea-house of the August Moon.

Downstairs, sitting on the floor, Jim Alexander as Ivan Lomov, the suiter of Natasha played by Diane Coyne, and Fred Webster, as the landholding father, Stephen Chubukov, plow through lines for the umpteenth time. Mr. Webster, a new resident of Belleville, comes from a background in theatre in Sault Ste Marie.

Plays

With the working of lines the polish appears, so also opening night approaches and theatre goers must act soon. Subscription sales grow to the point where few, if any tickets, will be available close to the time of staging October 10 - 13, and 17 - 20. Claire Gorcey, subscription secretary, urges those wishing to get seats for tickets, call 967-1442.

Review Park Development Plans

Dushan Marucelj, planning consultant for Totten, Sims and Hubicki Associates, Ltd., points out development feature proposed for the city's West Riverbank Park north of College Street.

Looking on are Alderman Jean Smith, Don Templeman, partially obscured by Mrs. Smith, Doug Burley and Parks Board Chairman Alderman Paul Russell.

$392,400 Plan for Riverbank

Development of Belleville's West Riverbank Park south from Highway 401 to the Reid Street area will cost approximately $392,400.

This was the estimate given city park's board members Thursday as they were presented with the final plan and report of the park project from consultants Totten Sims and Hubicki Associates Ltd.

The development plan, which covers approximately 70 acres on the west riverbank from the four - lane highway to College Street and both sides of the riverbank south of College to the proposed Lost Lee control dam will be up for approval at next Thursday's board meeting.

From there it would go to city council and with approval from that body on to Queen's Park for department okay.

Harry Christian, park assistant officer, Ministry of Natural Resources, said that the park project could be eligible for a provincial grant of 50 per cent up to a maximum of $100,000.

Not all aspects of the park development would be eligible for subsidy but Mr. Christian saw little difficulty in the city being able to obtain the maximum over-all grant if all proposed development was carried out.

He looked on the development plan as a long term project noting that it might take up to 20 years to complete.

"You are not going to do all at once," he said, "and there can be amendments — it is taken for granted there could be changes."

Mayor Robin Jeffrey also saw the project as a long range plan.

"It is a concept — something to work toward," she said.

Estimated development costs of the West Riverbank Park do not include any property acquisitions which might be required in the area immediately above College Street and downstream to the Lott dam site.

Acquisition of property for the proposed ice control dams is the responsibility of the Moira River Conservation Authority. The authority plans two control dams — one north of College Street to retain calm ice and the other downstream in the Reid Street area to alleviate the frasil ice problem.

Construction of the College Street dam will necessitate removal of the old Lazier Dam. board members were told.

First major development for the park are north of College Street would be the extension of Bell Blvd. east across North Park Street and south through the main park area to meet East Bell Street where it now ends at the recently developed swimming and beach area.

Provision of the roadway through the park area would give the public an opportunity to drive through and view the development potential.

Cost estimate for development of the north section of the riverbank park is $240,500, and for the south section $51,900.

Development proposals include the main road through the park area, provision of up to seven different parking areas, provision of paths and trails, picnic area, playgrounds, observation deck, aquatic garden, outdoor theatre, tennis courts, softball and baseball fields, lighting, and tree and shrub planting.

With the exception of washrooms and changerooms, no buildings are planned for the south area, with planned development being for parking a beach area, riverside paths and trails, lighting and fencing.

Two Hurt In Collision

PICTON — A Cherry Valley couple received whiplash injuries yesterday in a two car collision on county road 10.

Injured were Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Fraser of Cherry Valley. The accident occurred when a car driven by Mr. Fraser, 75, collided with a vehicle operated by Leo Gerow, 57, of Picton.

A passenger in the second car, Mrs. Leo Gerow received minor injuries. Total damage to the vehicles involved is estimated at $400.

Sign Becomes Heirloom

PICTON — Town council has given approval for the removal of one of Main Street's landmarks, a brass name sign.

Relatives of the late O. B. Fralick, a Picton merchant, have asked permission to remove the brass letters spelling out his store fears from the sidewalk. They would be preserved as a family keepsake.

The sign, now recessed in the sidewalk in front of a vacant lot, may be removed with town approval by a qualified person, and repairs officially inspected.

Time Out For A Munch

A grade two class from Sir Winston Churchill School was just one of several which took advantage of good weather Thursday to tour Market Square. The children checked out squash, pumpkins and other fall harvest produce before settling down on a curb to enjoy crisp McIntosh apples. It was the first field trip of the season for the class. Meg Gilbert is their teacher.

Cautious Orioles Respect A's Power

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles decline to predict victory in the best-of-five American League playoffs, but at least they agree on the best formula for beating Oakland Athletics.

With Saturday's opening game approaching, the most repeated suggestions are "don't let them hit the ball out of the park," and "keep Campaneris off base."

The A's, baseball's defending champions, scored 33 of their 94 runs and Bert Campaneris stole 54 bases during the march toward another Western Division championship.

Campaneris, with 12 hits and four stolen bases, proved a major adversary for the Orioles in 1973 as the A's beat them on the season seven games to five. Every A's victory was by one or two runs and three were decided in extra innings.

"If you can keep Campaneris in check, maybe you have a chance," said pitcher Dave McNally, who was touched for five of his 16 homers by Oakland while losing three of four decisions to the A's.

"And, when Campaneris gets on base he usually steals second after a couple of pitches, and then he can score on any kind of hit."

"Keeping Campy off the bases is the key," catcher Andy Etchebarren said.

The Orioles think they have the edge in batting. Bill North was the lone Oakland batter to hit .300 against the Orioles, and he's out for the season with an ankle injury. In contrast, over-all Brooks Robinson and Al Bumbry topped that mark for Baltimore against the A's and designated hitter Tommy Davis hit a sizzling .313 against his former team-mates.

The two-time National League batting champion never has forgiven A's owner Charles O. Finley for releasing him in 1972.

"I must be the first guy who was ever released after batting .334," Davis said. "I'd like very much to win the playoffs. I have nothing against the guys over there, just Finley."

The A's were humiliated in 1971 in their first playoff appearance since moving to Oakland, and it was Baltimore that did it, winning three straight.

A's manager Dick Williams doubted that up to inexperience, but now he says the situation is reversed.

"We've got it now in that respect," Williams said in Oakland Thursday, just before leaving for Baltimore, "but probably will not tamper much with the world champion A's batting order.

"The place where I haven't yet definitely made a choice is below Reggie Jackson.

"Otherwise we're set with Campy Campaneris leading off, Joe Rudi batting second, Sal Bando third, Reggie cleanup, Gene (Tenace) or Deron (Johnson) fifth, Deron or Gene sixth, Angel Mangual seventh, Ray Fosse eighth and Dick Green ninth.

Pitching is where Williams feels he has the biggest edge over 1971. The Orioles had four 20-game winners that year and had to use only three. The A's had to rely on reliever Diego Segui in the third game because John Odom and Chuck Dobson had sore arms.

This year, the A's have three 20-game winners in Vida Blue, Jim (Catfish) Hunter and Ken Holtzman.

"With the pitching there is on both sides, there won't be much scoring."

"We have good, experienced starters and so do the Orioles. But I think our staff is better than theirs because of the bullpen."

Frazier-Ali Signing

Antics Upset Tunney

NEW YORK (AP) — It was probably the first time in his life Gene Tunney wanted to run somewhere and hide.

"Gracious, are these things always like this?" said the old ex-marine who whipped Jack Dempsey twice and retired as heavyweight champion of the world. "I feel like I'd like to crawl under one of these tables."

The occasion was the signing of former champions Joe Frazier and Muhammad Ali for a 12-round return bout at Madison Square Garden Feb. 4.

The Garden's Hall of Fame room was sheer bedlam. There was Ali, coatless, vested in full cry, stomping around and yelling at the top of his lungs like a maniac.

"I want Joe Frazier. Gimme Joe Frazier. I'm gonna whup him good this time."

And there was Frazier, menacing looking in a black turtleneck shirt, heavily bearded, with his eyes burning like hot coals.

"I'm gonna whup him good this time," Frazier retorted huskily. "Any time you feel froggy, you just hop. Come on right now."

Associates moved in to keep the two gladiators from getting too close to each other.

The din was ear-shattering.

"No," explained Tunney, in a low, ranging voice which was almost a whisper. "We never had anything like this in my time, and thank God for that. But it just couldn't have happened."

Tunney, 75, is still an impressive figure of a man, straight as a poker, retaining a full head of hair and the chiseled features that made him one of the handsomest men in sports.

He figured in perhaps the greatest rematch in boxing history — a return bout with Dempsey in Chicago in 1927 after wrestling the title from the Manassa Mauler in Philadelphia on Sept. 23, 1926.

"Dempsey and I never went through anything like this," Gene related. "We had our separate training camps and we never saw each other until the weigh-in the day of the fight.

"The din was ear-shattering.

"No," explained Tunney, in a low, ranging voice which was almost a whisper. "We never had anything like this in my time, and thank God for that. But it just couldn't have happened."

Tunney, 75, is still an impressive figure of a man, straight as a poker, retaining a full head of hair and the chiseled features that made him one of the handsomest men in sports.

Reds Are Impatient They're Set for Mets

CINCINNATI (AP) — Heavy rains washed out a scheduled Cincinnati Reds practice Thursday, leaving the defending National League champs in a contentative mood as they awaited New York Mets and the league playoffs.

"Let's get it on," roared Cincinnati second baseman Joe Morgan. "I'm tired of everybody asking us how we feel about facing the Mets. I think people ought to ask the Mets how they feel about playing us. We're the team that won 99 games."

"We ain't scared of nobody."

The National League playoffs, a best-of-five affair between the West Division, champion Reds and the East Division winning Mets, open here Saturday at 4 p.m. EDT.

A pair of 19-game winners, Jack Billingham of the Reds and Tom Seaver of the Mets, will be opposing pitchers.

"They've got the momentum is what I hear," said Rose, mostly for Morgan's benefit.

"That's all I've been hearing," he said Morgan. "Let's get it on and then well see."

Rose, noting that the Mets weren't happy with their scheduled practice time at Riverfront Stadium today, offered this garb:

"If they've got so much momentum, they don't need the practice."

Asked for a prediction on the outcome of the playoffs, Rose replied:

"I don't predict things—I just make things happen."

The Reds infielder has assured himself of a third National League batting title with a .326.

The Reds fashioned baseball's best record—99-63—with a closing rush that produced 50 victories in the last 86 games. They defeated the Mets in eight of 12 meetings.

New York, like Cincinnati, had to come from an 11-game deficit to claim its division title. Hobbled by injuries much of the year, the Mets surged back by winning 34 of their last 44 games.

"If we get moved to that division next year, it will be no contest," said Perez, who completed his best season with a .312 batting average and 104 runs batted in.

Billingham, with a 1.08 earned run average in three starts against New York, was 2-0. Seaver is 0-2 against the Reds.

The Mets arrived late Thursday night and were scheduled to practice today from 3 to 7 p.m.

The threat of showers diminished today. The forecast for Saturday promised sunny weather.

Lockman Back With Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs have reappointed Whitey Lockman as manager of the baseball club for 1974 and named a revised coaching staff.

The reappointment of Lockman was a vote of confidence by owner Phil Wrigley, who Wednesday expressed his "disgust" with the 1973 finish of the Cubs, who dropped from an early lead to finish fifth behind the champion New York Mets in the National League East race.

The Cubs made the announcement at a news conference Thursday.

The new coaching staff includes only one holdover from the current season, Hank Aguirre. Promoted to the coaching staff from the Cubs' farm system were Jim Marshall, Al Spangler and J. C. Martin.

Marshall, former Cub utility player, will become third base coach, succeeding Pete Reiser, who will be a co-ordinator in the farm system next season.

Spangler takes over as first base coach, succeeding Ernie Banks, who was named infield instructor for the Cubs' farm system next Jim Marshall, Al Spangler and J. C. Martin.

Martin becomes bullpen coach.

Lyle KOs Blin in 2

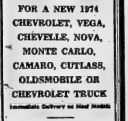
Lyle gained his 25th victory against one loss, his only defeat coming at the hands of veteran Jerry Quarry in New York's Madison Square Garden last February.

The World Boxing Council has ranked Lyle fifth in the world. Blin is now 30-11-4 and is rated 15th.

Pick Orioles To Win First



RENO, Nev. (AP) — Reno Turf Club picks Baltimore Orioles to win the first game of their American League playoff with Oakland A's, but won't hazard a guess on the National League opener.

Bookmaker North Swanson said Thursday the first game between Cincinnati Reds and New York Mets was a tossup.

Nineteen-game winner Tom Seaver of the Mets will face 18-game winner Don Gullett of the Reds Saturday in Cincinnati.

Stiff Test for Cats In Trenton Contest

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

TRENTON — Belleville Bobcats of the Metro Junior B Hockey League played good neighbor to Trenton Birt's Handy Stand Juveniles at the Community Gardens here Thursday night.

With the Trenton team headed for Fineland to represent Canada late this year, club officials and the players have been busy raising funds for the trip.

Belleville's visit here was part of the fund raising program and a crowd estimated at 600 took in the match.

Birt's repaid the favor. Bobcats open their Metro League schedule at home Sunday night and they got all they could handle from a fired-up Trenton squad.

In the words of referee Orval Gravelle, "Bobcats should be ready for Sunday after that. It was a real hockey game."

Final score in the penalty filled contest was a 10-8 for Bobcats who didn't pull it out until John Sergeant fired an insurance goal with just six seconds to play.

Bobcats' coach Moe Hunter agreed quite readily that it was the kind of game likely to get his skaters ready for league play.

"We had to hustle to pull that one out," Hunter observed, "anytime you come back after being down 5-1 in the first period, you've done something."

Trenton broke in front right from the opening faceoff. Just six seconds had elapsed when Curt McLean greeted Steve McDonald with a homecoming present, one the Belleville goalie would have passed up if he'd had his way.

Before the period was over, McDonald, a graduate of the Trenton Minor Hockey Association who was with Brockville in the Central Junior Hockey League last season, renewed acquaintances with Don Armstrong (three times) and Gord Kelly. MORE

Armstrong, a centre, connected for what is termed a genuine hat trick, potting three consecutive goals.

Bobcats' Andy Ricketts had given the visitors a short-lived 1-1 tie when he matched McLean's rapid - fire counter at 1:45. But then Armstrong, the type of player Bobcats' brass admit would look good

HANK DOES FLIP

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — hank Aaron, the home-run slugger for Atlanta Braves, was signed Thursday to make his show business debut on The Flip Wilson Show. Aaron, who ended the season just one run shy of Babe Ruth's career-home-run mark of 714, will appear on the NBC show Thursday, Nov. 15. He will participate in comedy routines with Wilson and be "roasted" by Flip and some surprise guests in a spoof of the famous Friars banquet.

in Belleville colors went to work.

Kelly upped the count to 5-1. With time running out in the period, Ricketts continued on his way to a big night by collecting Cats' second counter.

Birt's appeared to sag in the middle frame when Hunter's squad came on to outscore the home side 5-1 and make it a 7-4 score heading for the final 20 minutes.

Sergeant fired a pair for the revitalized Cats in that second period. Mark Coates, Jim Richardson and Ricketts had the others. Armstrong rounded out his production for the night with his fourth and Trenton's sixth score.

Early in the third, Cats struck quickly for a pair and it seemed to be the knockout punch. Ricketts made it four on the night's play at 2:35 and one minute later, Coates got his second to make it 9-6.

Bob Campbell narrowed the gap to 9-7 at 6:35 and five minutes later, Les Kelly's drive from the point made it 9-8. Then came Sergeant's third goal of the game to clinch it for Cats after the

On more than one occasion, last night's exhibition hockey game at Trenton featuring Belleville Bobcats of the Metro Junior B League and the Trenton Juveniles had missed two excellent chances to get the equaliser.

Forwards Norm Jones and Kevin Joudwa were not in the Cats' lineup for this one. A death in the family made it necessary for Jones to be in Sudbury.

Hunter explained Joudwa's absence: "He played football and just didn't show for our game."

The Trenton team was without the services of forwards Billy Glover and Mark Klemencic who are both out with injuries.

McDonald worked the first two periods with Bob Moore taking over in the third for the Cats.

Trenton used Glen Ogden for the first 40 minutes and Tim Mader finished up between the pipes.

In the penalty department, Belleville was the winner on the loser hands down. Cats took 17 of the 27 minors handed out: added a five minute sentence for good measure and topped that off with misconducts to Barney Holmes and Gary Budden.

Pickering will supply the opposition for the Cats when their Junior B opener at Memorial Arena in Belleville Sunday night. Game time is 8 o'clock.

Paying Respects — Hockey Style

At left, Trenton Parks and Recreation Director Deno Geitas and employee Gene Poirier (a former senior coach in Belleville) have the best vantage point in the house as Bobcats' defenceman Harold Roberts takes Trenton player into the boards. Centre, opposing players take time out for a dance number. Right, Birt's player loses his helmet in clash with Belleville's Jim Richardson.

Greg Burkitt, one of six players signed Wednesday night by the Belleville Screaming Eagles, models one of the Eagles' new jerseys, along with Coach Larry Hughes, left. Foresters Help Launch Season

..By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

Tonight's the night senior hockey people find out if their determined efforts to jack up interest in the Ontario Hockey Association's A loop will meet with success.

All the ballyhoo is over. It's up to the players now to prove they can dish up entertaining hockey for the fans.

Some very necessary steps have been taken to improve the league's image. And all six entries have joined in the bid to put senior hockey on the way up in the popularity polls.

The six teams are in action tonight. In Belleville, the Screaming Eagles ... new name, new coach, new manager and with several players whose faces will not be familiar to local fans ... play host to Brantford Foresters.

While the roster does include newcomers, some of the old favorites are back, too. Players like Karl Bagnell, Paul Grills, Ralph Plane, Al Ferguson, John McConnell, Bob Edmunds and Ray Johnston need no introduction.

One of the recruits from Kingston is not really new, either. Les Colligan played senior hockey here for a season before joining Aces for the 1972-73 campaign.

Also joining Eagles from Kingston are Castle Convery along with goalies Clyde Harris and Darcy Walters.

In their first seasons out of junior ranks come Trenton products John Gravelle and Mike Walt. They're both forwards. Gravelle was with Smiths Falls Bears last season while Walt did his puck chasing with Welland Sabres.

Belleville's Greg Burkitt, not long out of junior hockey himself, will get a shot at playing defence in senior company.

Right winger Wayne Weller brings a wealth of senior experience to Eagles. He can score goals. Weller was with Owen Sound Downtowners last season.

Coach Larry Hughes has only seen his players perform in a game once heading into tonight's season opener. That was during a 3-0 exhibition loss to Cambridge Hornets last Saturday in Galt.

Other teams in the league have had more preseason contests in which to show their stuff but coach Hughes may be figuring he's just as well off without the extra games. At least one of the teams with a more ambitious schedule of practice games came out of it with several injuries.

That team is Brantford Foresters who may be missing some regulars when they hit Memorial Arena ice tonight.

Preseason games or not Hughes believes in conditioning. He also stresses hustle and hitting. The result should be entertaining hockey.

In the other games tonight, Terriers are at Barrie Flyers and Welland Merchants are at home to the Hornets of Cambridge.

Helmets A Must

Officials of the Gas House Hockey League at a meeting last night stressed the importance of safety when they passed a ruling making the use of helmets compulsory this season.

It is also mandatory for all goalies to wear masks.

Eight of the 12 teams in the league get the action started for the new season at Memorial Arena Monday night.

In the 8:30 game, Golden Mile meets Stanley Structures; 9:30, Mead Johnson hooks up with The Intelligencer; 10:30, Fraser and O'Neil Real Estate vs. Doctors and at 11:30, Constellation Carpets skate out against Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund.

Picton Teams Still In

Picton still has two teams active in OASA playoff action, with the two having advanced to the All - Ontario finals. The Picton Bantams are in the Bantam B final series, while the Juveniles are in the All - Ontario C final.

The Bantams lost the first Saturday in Beamsville, with losing hurler Joe Keogh firing third strikes past 18 men.

The next game will be played in Picton Saturday at 4 p.m. If a third game is necessary, it will be at Oshawa's Alexander Park, Monday, at 7 p.m.

The Juveniles, meanwhile, also lost their first game to Smithville last Saturday by a score of 4 - 3.

The second game of that series will be in Picton Saturday night at 8 p.m., with a third and deciding game (if necessary) to be played in Picton Sunday at 3:30.

Hasty Pees On Target

An 11 man team representing Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment made an excellent showing at the recent Ontario Rifle Association competition at Canadian Forces Base Borden.

Winning events in the sharpshooter class were 2nd Lieut. A. L. McLeod, the Dieppe Match, and Col. T. J. Leonard, the Mons Match and the Ortona Match.

Regimental Sergeant Major CWO H. S. Adamson captured the other five individual awards, competing in the expert class. Took trophies for wins in Vimy, Ortona, Arnhelm, Falaise and Waterloo matches.

The Hasty Pees very nearly took the team aggregate honors and the Cole Team match. They were just 12 points off the mark.

Other members of the team are Lieut. R. J. Rosalie, Cpl. H. J. Hicks, Cpl. C. G. Parkhurst, Pte. D. F. Brand, Pte. M. M. Bertrand, Pte. S. S. Elliott, Pte. D. R. May and Pte. M. Ross.

All but McLeod, Ross, May and Brand are members of A Company, Belleville. The other four men are on strength at B Company, Peterborough.

Blazers, Canucks Compete For Fans

VANCOUVER (CP) — Just seven years ago, Vancouver's bid to join the National Hockey League was turned down by the NHL's board of governors, prompting angry comments in local newspapers, the British Columbia legislature and Parliament.

Now fans here, having proved they will support major league hockey, are faced with fit regular-season bonus games.

Vancouver made it to the NHL for the 1970-71 season with the Canucks, a team that has been thrashing in the NHL's nether regions, but wildly supported by capacity crowds.

The Canucks have had every thing from player rebellions to financial wheeling and dealing that culminated in a court case against team president Thomas Scallon.

They also went through two coaches in three years and numerous players, but still received support.

This year, industrialist Jim Pattison decided Vancouver was ready for a second franchise and purchased Philadelphia Blazers of the World Hockey Association, moving the team to the West Coast.

Since then, the sides have been carefully ignoring each other, although the Blazers note they made the WHA playoffs last season, providing a marked contrast to the Canucks' efforts.

The question of whether a metropolitan area of about 1½ million people can support two major league hockey teams hasn't been answered.

Bob president Tiff Trimble, running mate team for Pattison, says the Blazers have sold between 8,000 and 9,000 season tickets, ensuring that losses won't be astronomical. The Canucks, as usual, are sold out of season tickets.

But the Blazers' hopes that they would be in the thick of the playoff fight in the WHA's West Division while the Canucks wallowed in or near the NHL East Division basement appear to have suffered a setback.

Exhibition games are only for coaches, they say, but the Canucks have won seven of their eight starts against NHL opposition. The Blazers won only one of five against WHA teams.

General manager Hal Laycoe of the Canucks says he is aiming for "a better season than we've ever had before."

"I think we've improved everywhere," Laycoe said. "We've added a lot of size to our hockey club, especially on defence, where we needed some size."

The Canucks have added defenceman Jerry Korab, from Chicago Black Hawks; Bob Dailey, a first-round draft choice from the Junior A Toronto Marlboros, and Dave Dunn, the best defenceman in the Western Hockey League last year.

The Canucks have also improved in goal, Laycoe said, adding Gary Smith from Chicago and Jacques Caron from St. Louis.

Phil Watson, general manager of the Blazers says his team also has improved.

"We think we've got a better defence this year," Watson said. "Our guys last year didn't want to hurt anybody."

The Blazers lost goalie Bernie Parent when the team moved west. They acquired Peter Donnelly from New York Golden Blades and Watson said Donnelly may play all 78 games.

The Blazers open at home Wednesday against Winnipeg Jets. The Canucks will be on a road trip and play their first home game Oct. 19 against Philadelphia Flyers.

No Scoffs From CFL

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

They laughed at Gary Davidson twice.

But with the brass of the original pro basketball and hockey leagues still eating their condescending words, there were no scoffs from the Canadian Football League this week when Davidson announced his next project.

Davidson formed American Basketball Association and World Hockey Association, and the impact of both has been staggering, particularly to the bank accounts of the established leagues.

And when he announced this week that a World Football League will be formed within months, the prospect of a bidding war for players was the first dark thought to hit the CFL.

"Everybody in Canada is looking for a good quarterback and an attempt to drain off 300 or 400 players would be a tremendous strain," said David Loeb, president of both Ottawa Rough Riders and the CFL.

"Top calibre players could go for a lot of money and that could turn it into a monetary war."

Junior Hockey Player Takes Hawks to Court

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Supreme Court issued a writ Thursday against St. Catharines Black Hawks and owner Hap Emms at the request of Rick Garcia, whom the Hawks are preventing from playing for another Junior team.

Lawyer Ian Scott, acting on behalf of Garcia and Hull Festivals of the Quebec Major Junior A League, said Thursday night the writ will be served by the weekend. It orders the Black Hawks to appear in court Wednesday, when he will seek an interim injunction preventing the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series team from tying up Garcia's playing rights.

Scott said that unless the Hawks request an adjournment, he expects a decision Wednesday on the injunction, which would remain in effect until the case comes to trial.

The St. Catharins team's action regarding Garcia is based on an agreement signed by the OHA and the Quebec league in July stating that Hull, a new Quebec franchise, will not sign any player belonging to another Major Junior A club or on the protected list without that club's permission. The agreement also says much permission will not be unreasonably withheld.

The Festivals are also seeking to sign Glen Sharpley away from London Knights of the OHA. Neither is playing at present and Sharpley said this week that if the matter isn't cleared up quickly "I'll go to London."

"I can't afford not to play hockey."

Even if Garcia wins his court case it is doubtful he'll play for the Festivals.

John Harman, secretary-treasurer of the Quebec league, has said Garcia and Sharpley "won't play because we'll say we don't want them in our league without the permission of the Black Hawks."

"Quebec will side with the OHA," Horman said. "We will back with our agreement."

Garcia, 17, of Toronto played last season with Weston of the O H A's Provincial Junior Hockey League and was drafted by the Black Hawks. He applied for and received from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association a transfer to the Quebec league so he could play for Hull, but the OHA-Quebec agreement says the presidents of both leagues and the club involved also must approve.

HILL'S KNEE MENDS

DENVER (AP) — Pro golfer Dave Hill was reported in good condition Thursday after surgery to repair torn ligaments in his knee. Hill, of Evergreen, Colo., dropped out of last week's John Player Classic in Turnberry, Scotland and returned here for the surgery.

Webster Paces New England

LONDON, Ont. (AP) — Right winger Tom Webster scored a pair of goals to lead New England Whalers to a 5-2 victory over Toronto Toros in a World Hockey Association exhibition game Thursday night.

It was the final exhibition game for the Whalers, who open defence of their WHA championship at Quebec Sunday.

Talent Agent

Gino Empry, one of a few Canadian talent agents, visits Toronto to "the most booming and exciting entertainment city in North America". He says it is still hard to make a living as a full-time agent in Canada, but there is a future in the business. (CP Photo)

Good Future Seen For Talent Agents

TORONTO (CP) — Gino Empry, one of a few struggling Canadian talent agents, maintains it is hard to make a living as a full-time agent in Canada, but there is a future in the business.

He says Toronto is "the most booming and exciting entertainment city in North America" and that's only a matter of time before the right sort of agents emerge".

Arcenta? Writers and actors need them, but often wonder what they do to earn their 10 per cent. Publishers and producers have been known to call them parasites.

Yet agents are essential, especially in an age when writers and performers can sell their work in so many fields: publishing in all its forms, theatre, movies, television, commercials and the lecture circuit.

Matie Molinaro, who has worked out of the basement of her Toronto home for 23 years, building up her Canadian Speakers' and Writers' Service, said in an interview:

"In the past, there wasn't enough support to make it worthwhile. Now, in this electronic age, Canadian writers are selling to all the media, and there is room for at least another literary agent in Toronto."

Jack Gray, chairman of the Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists (ACTRA), said there is a real need for more Canadian agents.

"Writers are being ripped off right, left and centre," he said. "Very few writers are prepared to say: 'I'm worth $5,000 and I won't work for anything less.' You can always make a better deal—that's what agents are for."

Mr. Empry said: "We still haven't found a system indigenous to Canada. There's a good number of agents who are good administrators, who can look after their clients properly."

If Mr. Empry takes a gloomy view of some of his competitors, it's a view partly shared by ACTRA and Actors' Equity—ACTRA deals with radio, television and films, while Equity oversees theatre, ballet and opera.

Officials of both unions say they've been in trouble in the past because of unscrupulous agents.

With the steady growth of publishing and entertainment in Canada, it's safe to predict that more and more agents will be entering the field. But there's another trend to note: writers and artists are banding together to help themselves.

Aside from the actors' corpse, there's the Playwrights' Coop in Toronto, which makes Canadian plays available cheaply to theatres across the country. Plans are well advanced for a writers' union which may include its own literary agents to deal with publishers.

Also, the new touring office of the Canada Council is acting as agent for traveling Canadian shows. In October, Equity will introduce its Talent Information Service, which, linked to a computer and free to both actors and producers, will provide employers with print-outs on any performer category as performers, classified by sex, age, size, language, dialects and other vital statistics.

All these developments are in the Canadian tradition of public or social enterprise, the agents say, but it's doubtful that they will entirely eliminate the need for the agent, scrambling for his 10 per cent.

Cattle Rustlers Ride Range Again

By BRUCE UASSON
CP Staff Writer

Remember those days in the westerns? The good guys—they wear the white hats—are rounding up the dogies scattered over eye-busting distances.

One good guy rides up a ridge and in a nearby coulee spots a red-'n'-gold cow surrounded by a bunch of other guys carrying black hats.

The good guy yells to his fellow cowpokes:

"Rustlers!" and the hoofpounding chase is on.

Today your comic cases of cattle rustling are reported in Canada, usually in the openranging areas of the western provinces.

And with the recent abrupt increases in meat prices, rustling has hit Eastern provinces.

In a Cross Canada survey by The Canadian Press, Quebec police report 200 head of cattle stolen in three months up to Sept. 1, and Ontario says 50 head in the same period last year.

Not all rustling involves cattle. In New Brunswick at least one pig rustling case was reported. In Newfoundland, sheep have been stolen with one farmer reporting the loss of 47 animals and another 25.

However, despite soaring meat prices, the problem indicates rustling is not a major problem in Canada.

RCMP and cattlemen in British Columbia say there has been no noticeable increase in cattle theft and the comment is similar from Alberta officials.

Rustling has been slightly higher in Saskatchewan but an RCMP spokesman said this is because "there's just more of them around to steal."

Saskatchewan now has an estimated 2.7 million head of cattle and the spokesman said there are no small herds up to 20 head with inadequate fencing.

In Manitoba, an RCMP official said 430 cases of stolen cattle were recorded last year and early estimates were that this year's total might reach 1,000.

Ontario has had only isolated cases of cattle theft. In Nova Scotia one farmer lost 12 breeding cattle and in Prince Edward Island two animals listed as missing were believed stolen.

Although rustling does not appear significantly higher in most areas, officials in almost every province say they are braced for a big increase in illegal hunting—poaching.

Big game—moose, elk, deer—generally is the target. It's poachers seeking to fill the freezer with free meat. But in New Brunswick illegal catches of domestic salmon are a prize although the poacher faces a fine up to $1,000 if caught.

The common form of illegal hunting is "jacking"—using a glaring light at night to dazzle game.

One RCMP officer in Nova Scotia said "our deer-jackers are just as dangerous as the meat poachers."

Poaching is a provincial offence and, depending on the province and the game, carries fines up to $1,000.

However, rustling, despite its long history, is not recognized as a specific offence under the Criminal Code. Rustlers, if they are charged, is under the code with theft undyr $200. Conviction carries a maximum sentence of 14 years.

The cattlemen's association in British Columbia offers rewards up to $1,000 for conviction of rustlers. It has been joined by Alberta cattlemen in asking Ottawa to amend the Criminal Code to make rustling a separate offence and to provide stiffer penalties.

"Too many times a rustler will get off with a suspended sentence," said Andy Russell, president of Alberta's Poothills Protective Association.

In B.C., Alberta and Saskatchewan, the RCMP, who act as the provincial police, maintain special cattle-theft squads. In Quebec, the provincial police instituted special daily reports from each farm area in an effort to halt the increase in rustling.

They said police, cattlemen and sportsmen in provinces such as B.C. and Alberta have established protective groups to keep an eye on strange cars in grazing areas.

There protective associations are not vigilantes, said Darryll Carlson, secretary-treasurer of the Western Stock Growers' Association in Calgary.

"They make ranchers more aware of the problem and work with the RCMP. They would not attempt to stop rustlers if they caught them in the act."

First Time in Nine Years

Saints Drop Second Straight

By ALAN TEBWORTH
Sports Staff

The Quinte Saints went down to their second football defeat in a row yesterday, to Trenton, the first time in nine years the Saints have lost more than one game in a row. The Tigers came up with a 26 - 12 victory to combine with last week's 18 0 win by Monie over Quinte to give Saints the two losses.

Penalties were the big blow to Quinte. No less than 23 penalties were assessed Saints throughout the game. Most of these penalties were of the unnecessary type — roughing, clipping, roughing the kicker, which hurt the Saints due to the resulting field position.

This is not to take anything away from Trenton, however, as they had rolled up a 20-6 lead at the end of the first half.

Gord Kelly opened the scoring for the Tigers, as he pulled in a pass from Don Armstrong on a halfback option play. Armstrong took the ball from Dave Lewis before rolling out and throwing to Kelly from the 10 yard line.

Early in the second period the Tigers hit again, this time after a drive following one of Quinte's 12 penalties in the second quarter. The Saints took a roughing the kicker call to put the ball on the Quinte 49, and following a 12-yard run by Armstrong, Lewis hit end Blaine Rittinger on a 37 yard touchdown pass.

Joe Norman kicked the convert.

The Tiger's defense made their scoring contribution to the game with about two minutes left in the half, as defensive half Steve Smith picked off a Ron McTaggart pass bound for Peter Vos on the Quinte 18 yard line, and followed his blocking back for the touchdown. Norman again booted the convert.

Quinte finally got on the scoreboard with 45 seconds left in the half, as John Masterson took a swing pass from McTaggart and went 63 yards for the score. Quinte penalties had put the ball back to their own 33 yard line to start the drive.

A Trenton pass interference penalty had moved the ball to the 47 to set up Masterson's major.

Kevin Joudwa's 67 yard attempt at the two point convert was stopped by a tight Trenton line to complete the scoring at 20-6 at the half.

Trenton also opened the scoring in the second half, as Armstrong went over from the two yard line at 1:03 of the third quarter for his second touchdown of the game.

The drive had started on the Trenton 36 yard line and had come downfield in eight plays to set up Armstrong's score. The big run in the drive was a 19 yard reverse by Gord Kelly.

Quinte marched 67 yards in the fourth quarter to narrow the margin to 14 points, as Joudwa went up the middle from 10 yards out for the score. His attempt at the two point convert was again stopped at the Tiger line.

Armstrong was the big gainer for the winning Tiger team, racking up 52 yards in 10 carries. Steve Becenti was next in line with 31 on eight runs.

Joudwa led the losers, carrying the ball for a total of 65 yards, while John Masterson had 80 yards in three pass receptions.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will have definite ideas about how you want things done. Getting others to go along with them—well, that's another story.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Money is likely to burn a hole in your pocket today. If you're not careful you'll be extremely wasteful and foolish.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You won't have as much freedom as you'd like because extra family responsibilities will tie you down.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Words will hurt you more than actions. Someone will say something to you. You'll brood if you don't shake it off.

Swallowing Cure For Juicy Mouth

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband is what people call a "juicy mouth." He slobbers and spits all the time. When he is talking, saliva fills his mouth and pops on whomever is near by.

Is there anything we can do to alleviate this condition? We have been married only three years, but he is past 70 and to me he has always been like this.—S.T.V.

The salivary glands are constantly producing saliva and the natural thing to do with it is just what we do. Swallow it.

We also know that the amount produced is variable. You know the expression when you see someone stopping to "work mouth watered."

That's physically true. Seeing, smelling or sometimes even thinking about something tasty triggers the salivary glands. Some medications can stimulate or retard it.

My guess would be, in the case of somebody who has had a "juicy mouth" all his life, that somehow he just never developed the automatic habit of swallowing it. Most of us do it without thinking about it. Possibly—if often only as a possibility and not a sure cure—he might, even at his age, deliberately try to swallow oftener. If he'll swallow before starting to talk, then he shouldn't have so much saliva to spray around.

Your physician might also, in his judgment, see fit to prescribe medication to reduce the saliva flow.

Incidentally, this sort of problem sometimes develops in later life after not having been troublesome earlier. A stroke, even though mild, may interfere with the "swallowing reflex" so some saliva accumulates in the mouth.

This can be true of some diseases that come with advanced age, Parkinsonism being an outstanding example.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you write something about our noises? Or is there any relief? This condition has got me down and I can't enjoy anything.—Mrs. W.K.M.

Not all ear noises (stone annoying buzzing, sputtering, ringing noises in the ears) come from the same cause. Quite often both is nothing to do for some of them except to get used to them and learn to ignore the noises. However, for similar ear noises from other causes there is hope.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to donate my body to the university for medical research but I don't know how to go about it. Maybe you could tell me.—Mrs. E.

Write to the dean of the medical school at the university and ask for the necessary instructions.

Contract Bridge

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

Test Your Dummy Play.

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Seven Clubs and North leads the king of spades. How would you play the hand? (Assume that the trumps are divided 3-1.)

2. You are the declarer with the West hand at Three No-Trump and North, who opened the bidding with three spades, leads the queen of spades. How would you play the hand?

1. The best method is to play for a dummy reversal and then avoid the finesse inherent in a heart finesse.

Ruff the spade lead with the jack, play the ace of trumps to the seven, ruff the six of spades with the queen, play the eight of trumps to the nine, then ruff the seven before playing a low heart card to be king and ruffing the ten of spades with the ace.

Now play a low heart to the ace and draw the opponents' last trump with dummy's ten, discarding your jack of hearts on the trick. As a result of these manoeuvres you win the last four tricks with the king of hearts and A-Q-J of diamonds. The thirteen tricks you score consist of two hearts, four diamonds and seven—count them—trump tricks.

2. North probably has seven spades and either the king of ace or heart king. If he has been bold, your cause is hopeless, so you start by assuming he has only one of them.

North's entry card must be eliminated before the spades question is dealt with and to attack first. Strange as it may seem, the proper method of play is not to force out the ace of clubs but to ruff the spade lead in dummy and finesse the queen of hearts.

If North has the king, he is out of the picture, and you later force the ace of clubs to make four notrump. If South has the king the finesse succeeds and you make at least four notrump.

Thus, you insure making the contract by playing hearts ahead of clubs. If you were to attack clubs ahead of hearts, you would go down if declarer South had the ace of clubs and North the king of hearts.

Tomorrow: Unusual play.

Truck in Crash on 400 Had Bad Tires, Brakes

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — The tractor-trailer involved in a fiery holocaust on Highway 400 last March had bad, defective brakes, springs and tires.

The inquest into the 11 deaths in the 33-vehicle pileup ended Thursday by an expert mechanic that it would have been impossible to stop the truck quickly.

Raymond Stapley, a mechanic and auto-crash investigator, testified that he inspected both the lumber truck and the Ontario Northland's bus that were involved. His speed 16 day testing the two vehicles and found the bus mechanically sound.

However the truck, which is owned by Rolly Truchon Trucking Ltd. of North Bay, had tired and brakes that were unsafe, missing springs and a bent frame. He found three sets of brakes inoperative.

Six of the truck's 26 tires were unsafe and Mr. Stapley said one tire was flat before the collision.

He said the brakes on the tractor unit appeared to be working, but those on the semi-trailer and a dolly-trailer behind were either unsafe or inoperative.

"It would be impossible to stop that truck in any form of emergency ... there were absolutely no brakes on the trailer," he said.

Mr. Stapley explained that although the tractor portion of the big might want to keep, the 3,000 of lumber loaded behind would want to keep going.

"It's one quick way to cause a jack-knife," he said.

Mr. Stapley said any experienced driver should have been able to tell the brakes were not working properly.

However, he noted he had seen brand-new trucks sold on road conditions like those on the night of the crash.

Mr. Truchon earlier testified the unit was "in A-1 operating condition," and said he did a quick check of the truck before it left on its final and fatal run.

The check, he later said, involved inspecting the lights and kicking the tires to see if they said sir. Mr. Truchon said that since the accident, his insurance has been cancelled and he is unable to operate his fleet of 16 trucks.

Other testimony Thursday came from experts at the Centre for Forensic Science Laboratory in Toronto.

Her work showed some of the vehicles had been bounced around like a rubber ball in an avalanche, she said.

One family car had paint scrapings that indicated it had been in contact with 13 other vehicles in the maelstrom of vehicles that whipped out of blinding snow just north of here.

Bus driver Victor Heath earlier testified he remembered only one impact. The forensic scientist found paint scrapings from 12 other vehicles on the bus, one of them a death car.

Paint from the tractor-trailer unit was found on five other vehicles, including the same death car.

Eric Krueger, another expert from the forensic laboratory, corroborated early testimony given by the bus driver.

Mr. Heath had claimed the lumber trailer already lopped when the bus collided with it, but passengers and other witnesses maintained it was upright.

Mr. Krueger said from the indentations on the front of the bus he could only conclude that the pup-trailer was on its side when the bus arrived.

Miss Deaken's chemical and microscopic testing of paints showed that Dr. Paul Merz Bureau's Volkswagen van was pummelled by at least five vehicles including the bus and truck.

The St. Ann's, Ont., general practitioner had to be priced out of his burning and battered car by a low-truck operator.

In an interview later, Miss Deaken said it would be impossible to tell how many "separate collisions occurred that night, but said it would be more than two.

Adjourn Probe

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A provincial inquiry into the political affairs of Kingston Township was adjourned Thursday to Nov. 19 to permit additional investigation.

Judge Edward Shortt granted the adjournment to allow Dr. John Milligan and James Bennett—two principal witnesses—time to prepare further material.

Dropouts High

TORONTO (CP) — The council of regents that run Ontario's 22 colleges of applied arts and technology should be abolished, Floyd Laughren (NDP—Nickel Belt), said Thursday night in the legislature.

Mr. Laughren said the council has failed to check what he described as a shocking drop-out rate that has averaged 53 per cent since 1970, out of a total enrolment in that period of 18,000 students.

"It's not the students who are failing, its the colleges," Mr. Laughren charged during debate of the estimates of Robert Welch, provincial secretary for social development.

Draw Horses

DUBLIN (CP) — Six Canadian stand a better-than-even chance of collecting more than $121,000 apiece in Saturday's running of the Cambridgeshire Handicap at Newmarket, England.

Four of them have Irish sweepstakes tickets on Mr Brief and two have tickets on Negus co-favorites at 8-1 to win the horse-racing classic.

Need Farms

TORONTO (CP) — Farmland the country can't afford to lose will be consumed if plans for Toronto's second major airport near Pickering are allowed to proceed, demonstrators told a crowd in front of Toronto city hall Thursday.

Land owners and sympathizers, members of the 18,000-strong People or Planes (P.O.P.), were joined by 130 residents and four residents of St. Scholastique, Que., the site of Montreal's second airport, in the two-hour rally for public support.

Awaits Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien said Thursday he is still awaiting the results of a $40,000-plus contract he gave to Alberta Indian leader Harold Cardinal to outline changes Indians want made in the Indian Act.

The minister said in an interview that Mr. Cardinal promised to finish the job in late August or early September "but I have not received a report as yet."

Presents Book

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa devoted Thursday to introducing a book rather than Liberal party candidates, but his literary effort won him no respite from Parti Quebecois election campaign attacks.

The premier paused on the campaign trail leading to the Oct. 29 Quebec general election to introduce his 223-page book on the James Bay hydroelectric project.

James O'Reilly, lawyer for Indians and Eskimos opposed to the project, called the book one-sided and said it may be in contempt of Quebec Superior Court, now considering the native people's petition for an injunction to halt the development.

Miracle Market Lowest

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says researchers for the provincial government have found that food prices at Miracle Food Mart were consistently lower than those of its competitors during September.

Miracle Food Mart stores are owned by Steinberg's Ltd.

The newspaper says John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, has received reports from researchers who monitored food prices on 60 items in 11 food chains in 10 cities of Ontario, and that he plans to release the findings today.

Heads Board

McKeough Certain Ontario Will Pay for Alberta Move

TORONTO (CP) — Energy Minister Darcy McKeough said Thursday he is not sure how Alberta's new policy on oil and gas royalties will work, but that it would definitely mean higher prices for Ontario consumers.

Mr. McKeough was responding in the legislature to questions from opposition leaders on the new royalty scheme announced earlier in the day by Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed.

Mr. Lougheed imposed the rate to counteract Ottawa's refusal to abandon its proposed 40-cent-a-barrel tax on crude exported to the United States.

"If the royalty rates are raised, it's the consumer who ultimately pays the shot," Mr. McKeough told reporters. "There's no question about that."

In the house, he said there were some ramifications of Mr. Lougheed's statement that he didn't understand.

"But it appears to me that he (Mr. Lougheed) is moving in only so much and that the royalty rate will float upwards."

Mr. McKeough said Ontario has always supported Alberta's claim that resource taxes should be reinvested in that province. "So, we have no quarrel with what he (Mr. Lougheed) is trying to do. How it will work, I'm not sure."

The minister said, however, that Mr. Lougheed's determination to price Alberta's depleting resources at world-commodity prices would require "some discussion."

Donald MacDonald (NDP—Toronto-York South) asked if the royalty and the export tax will mean that "it's going to be cheaper in Canada, we'll be pricing ourselves out of the American market?"

Mr. McKeough said he would find it difficult to believe that Ottawa would retain its export tax if Alberta's royalty scheme came into effect.

Mr. McKeough also revealed that Ottawa has agreed to hold a preliminary meeting in Toronto Nov. 22 leading to a full-scale, federal-provincial conference on energy.

The provinces have been trying for months to convince Ottawa of the need for such a conference to develop a national energy policy.

Polar Pipeline Decision Is Still Long Time Away

TORONTO (CP) — Energy Minister Darcy McKeough said Thursday it is conceivable that power Ontario ofw Quebec will prove to be the best route for delivering Arctic gas to southern markets via Hudson bay.

Mr. McKeough was replying in the legislature to Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, who said a consensus apparently is within two years of making a decision about moving oil by pipeline down the Quebec side of Hudson Bay.

"Certainly that is the decision were made to locate it on the east (Quebec) side, it would not be to our benefit," Mr. Nixon said.

The consortium of Trans-Canada, Pan-Arctic and Canadian Pacific is involved in the development called Polar Gas Project.

Mr. McKeough said the consortium is not "anywhere near a decision" as to how the gas will be moved.

He said Ontario is viewing the whole question of Arctic resources from a Canadian, and not a provincial position.

"We are tremendously interested in the resources which are in the north, and we have by no means determined at this moment that the best route lies through Ontario, or for that matter through our sister province of Quebec."

He said the difficulties of moving natural gas or oil from the high Arctic are enormous.

"I think the project is some distance away from any kind of a feasible situation."

Mr. McKeough later said in an interview another possible method would be to move natural gas by tanker along the Atlantic Coast. But he said the question of settling routes is still a long way off because there is a lack of technology in the area.

Syrian and Egyptian Borders Aflame

Yom Kippur Fast Broken by Attacks

TEL AVIV (AP) — Fighting erupted on the Egyptian and Syrian fronts today as Israel called for a partial mobilization of its forces.

The fighting broke out about 2 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT) within hours after the Israelis broke their solemn Yom Kippur fast to call up an undisclosed number of reserves.

Sirens sounded throughout Israel five minutes later, forcing thousands from their homes and synagogues into air raid shelters.

A military spokesman said, "The Israeli forces are in action against the aggressors."

Syrian and Israeli jet fighters were reported engaged in dog fights over the Mount Hermon area, where Israeli, Syrian and Lebanese borders meet.

Cairo Radio said that Israeli jets hammered Egyptian positions at Zafra and Sukhna near the southern end of the Suez canal.

The Egyptian radio said Egypt's forces were repelling the attack.

The broadcast said "enemy forces attempted to enter parts of our land on the western bank of the Suez Canal. Our ground forces intercepted them and staged a successful counter-attack behind a concentrated artillery barrage on enemy staging points."

"Then some of our forces stormed across the canal chasing the enemy into certain parts of the eastern side of the waterway."

The engagements still are underway on the eastern bank of the Suez.

Commenting on action along the 60-mile Golan Heights ceasefire line in Syria, a military spokesman on Damascus Radio said Syrian troops were returning fire "to silence enemy positions."

He said Syrian air force jets intercepted Israeli planes trying to violate Syrian airspace and a dog fight broke out.

One Syrian plane crashed in Lebanese territory, reports reaching Beirut said.

The Damascus broadcast, said fierce ground and air battles were continuing.

Reporters near the Syrian front heard artillery barrages and said they saw shells falling near Israeli farming settlements.

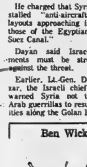
Premier Golda Meir's cabinet met in emergency session shortly before the fighting erupted and a communique said the government had taken special powers to "issue emergency orders."

Defence Minister Moshe Dayan told the cabinet that Arab troops were building up along the Syrian and Egyptian fronts "with aggressive intentions," a spokesman said.

The first indications of possible trouble came Sept. 26, when Dayan visited Jewish settlements on the occupied Golan Heights and warned that "across the Syrian border there are hundreds of tanks and hundreds of artillery barrels in operative range."

He charged that Syria had installed "anti-aircraft missile layouts approaching in density those of the Egyptians on the Suez Canal.

Dayan said Israeli settlements must be strengthened against the threat.



Earlier, Lt.-Gen. David Elazar, the Israeli chief of staff, warned Syria not to permit Arab guerrillas to resume activities along the Golan Heights.

Hydro Probe Report Likely to Clear Davis

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a report to be tabled Tuesday by the legislature's select committee into Ontario Hydro's new office headquarters will clear Premier William Davis of any impropriety.

But the report criticizes Hydro for specifics in the way it awarded a development loan, no fault in the proposal-call method used by Hydro to find a developer, the newspaper says.

The 11-member select committee which held public hearings between May 22 and Sept. 17 found no evidence the premier or anyone in his office tried to influence the choice of Canada Square Corp. Ltd., despite the fact the premier and Canada Square president Gerhard Moog are personal friends, The Globe says.

The committee recommends, however, a system of safeguards to ensure against favoritism for any one developer, the newspaper reports.

Mr. Moog is criticized by the committee for the way in which he sought the co-operation of Hydro architect Kenneth Candy while negotiating the lease-purchase agreement for the building.

The newspaper says all the findings of the select committee are contained in a 15-page report that was approved by all 11 members—seven Progressive Conservatives, two Liberals and two New Democrats.

Diplomat Jules Leger, 60 Named Governor-general

OTTAWA (CP) — He looks like everybody's idea of a small-town corner professor but Jules Leger, a 60-year-old career diplomat and former news paper editor, is Canada's next governor-general.

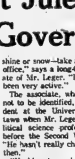
The appointment was announced by Prime Minister Trudeau Friday and is effective in mid-January.

A native of St.- Anicet, Que., where he was born April 4, 1913, Mr. Leger currently lives in Brussels, his base of operations as ambassador to Belgium and the neighboring duchy of Luxembourg. He is married and has one daughter.

Our 21st governor-general, he is the fourth born in Canada and the second French-Canadian. Roland Michener, his predecessor who was appointed in 1967 and who officially retires Nov. 30, is English-Canadian.

Vincent Massey, the first Canadian who had the job, from 1952 to 1959, also was English-Canadian, while Gen. Georges P. Vanier, 1959-1967, was French-Canadian.

Despite his bookish looks complete with heavy-rimmed glasses, Mr. Leger is a tall, spare man who should have no trouble filling Mr. Michener's shoes—especially his running shoes.



Like Mr. Michener, the new governor-general is a man who believes in keeping fit.

"I've never seen him—rain or shine or snow—take a car to the office," says a long-time associate of Mr. Leger. "He's always been very active."

The associate, who preferred not to be identified, was a student at the University of Ottawa when Mr. Leger was a political science professor there before the Second World War.

"He hasn't really changed since then."

"He likes to work long hours and he works very hard." He described him as a strong-willed but gentle man.

JULES LEGER

"There was nothing brutal about his behavior. He had to make difficult decisions many times but even the he was always kind of people."

Described as "elegantly fluent" in both English and French, Mr. Leger apparently "is not a man addicted to jargon"—probably a legacy from his newspaper experience.

A student a be University of Montreal and at the Sorbonne in Paris, where he obained a doctorate in French-Canadian literature, Mr. Leger was introduced to Ottawa circles in 1938 when he became editor of the French-language newspaper, Le Droit.

In 1939, he obtained the professor's chair at the University of Ottawa and held it until 1942. In the meantime, he joined the external affairs department in 1940 and served in Canadian London from 1943-49.

minister Louis St. Laurent's cl-

Returning here in 1949, he served in then Liberal prime missions in Santiago, Chile, and fice before being appointed assistant under-secretary of state for external affairs in 1951 and ambassador to Mexico in 1953.

Mr. Leger's job there lasted only a year. He was brought back to Ottawa in 1954 to become under-secretary of state for external affairs and in 1958 was appointed ambassador to France, followed in 1962 by becoming ambassador to Italy.

He assumed his present post in Brussels just last February, an important responsibility because of Britain's entry into the European Economic Community the previous month and Canada's needs to strengthen ties with the EEC.

The son of a general merchant in the Quebec village of St. Anicet, he has an illustrious brother—Paul Emile Cardinal Leger, renowned for his missionary work in Africa.

Food Board Views Distorted, Claim

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The federal food prices review board has been widely misquoted on its pronouncements on rising prices, chairman Beryl Plumptre said Friday.

Mrs. Plumptre said a news conference her board has never claimed food prices in Canada were not soaring out of reach, only that there was no shortage of food in the country and that rising prices were not inevitable.

Mrs. Plumptre also told reporters that the bulk of the food price increases this year were recorded as the "farm gate."

Surveys show that prices of a selected food basket increased by 13.2 per cent at the retail level, and about 14 per cent at the wholesale level while producers raised prices by 23 per cent, she said.

However, even these increases have not raised farm incomes on the average to the level of those enjoyed by most other Canadian workers, she added.

Mrs. Plumptre said pricing malpractice is not worse in Prince Edward Island than in other provinces.

She reiterated that more than 100 specific cases of business malpractice had been compiled against food concerns for action by the federal department of consumer and corporate affairs, but declined to say if any involved P.E.I. companies.

Some Canadians May Starve

OTTAWA (CP) — Many Canadians aren't going to live through this winter; they're going to starve to death, says Marjorie Hartling, executive director of the National Anti-Poverty Organization.

Speaking at a news conference at the opening of the organization's new headquarters, Mrs. Hartling said food prices are so high that some people below the poverty line actually will starve to death.

She says figures on such deaths are hard to find, because few hospitals list malnutrition as a cause of death.

Mrs. Hartling described some of her organization's aims, including higher welfare assistance, an immediate increase in old-age pensions to a minimum $200 a month and a more powerful food-prices review board.

She said her organization, which represents about 1,700 anti-poverty groups across the country, wants to work for closer communications with federal agencies in the field of social development and welfare.

Her group is non-political, but Mrs. Hartling said she hopes all political parties will eventually seek the same goals for the poor of Canada.

She wants here organization to work with the food prices review board to help alleviate the plight of the "thousands of persons living below the poverty line."

The anti-poverty organization is being run on a $50,000 grant from the secretary of state's department, and it doesn't have the resources to test food samples and investigate prices, she said.

Reuben Baetz, executive director of the Canadian Council on Social Development, said the anti-poverty organization will do some work with the council, and the two groups hope to maintain neighborly relations.

Half-way House Home for 3 Years

A 27 - year - old former Belleville man, arrested by the RCMP and Belleville Police, Friday, Sept. 28 after being deported from the United States, received a suspended sentence and three years' probation when he pleaded guilty to seven charges of fraud and false pretences Thursday in Provincial Court (cr).

Thomas Basil Ferguson was arrested at Toronto International Airport, after being deported from the U.S. for illegal entry. At the time of his arrest he was charged with seven counts of false pretences and fraud that dated back to 1970.

The charges stemmed from a series of incidents in which Ferguson purchased goods from Belleville merchants by using cheques, made out in his own name, or non-existent bank accounts. The total value of the cheques was $138. Among the goods purchased were a cash book, a stapler, some men's clothing and a circular saw.

Ferguson has an extensive criminal record with convictions for break, enter and theft, uttering, forgery, false pretences and fraud, was represented in court by Edward Folwell. Speaking to alleviate sentence, he asked Judge J. L. Clendenning to forgo the passing of sentence in favor of placing Ferguson on probation and ordering him to remain a resident of a halfway house for ex-convicts in Windsor.

In registering convictions against Ferguson, Judge Clendenning noted that, if he had his wished to impose the maximum sentence on each count, Ferguson would have had to serve a sentence that "seems beyond your lifetime and mine."

A false pretences conviction carries a maximum sentence of 10 years. A conviction for fraud carries a two year prison term.

Terms of the probation order handed down by Judge Clendenning include requirements that Ferguson to stay at St. Leonard's House in Windsor for three years and under him is abide by the rules of that institution.

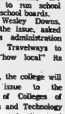
Local Busing Loyalist Aim

Loyalist College's board of governors wants to keep the money it spends on transportation at home in the four counties served by the college.

But ministry of transportation and communications regulations are forcing the college to subsidize a bus service that has its headquarters in the Toronto area.

Pub Nights Cancelled

Pub nights at Loyalist College are temporarily suspended as the result of a change of attitude on the part of the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario.



The licensing body has become reluctant to grant special occasion licences to groups operating in the townships, Loyalist president Herbert Goodfellow told the board of governors at its Thursday night meeting.

Sidney township, where Loyalist is located, is dry. Pub nights are in an institution in post-secondary schools. Thing held so far at Loyalist have been successful in terms of attendance and decorum, the president said.

Loyalist is not alone in its predicament. Trent University, located outside Peterborough in a dry township, has also had its special occasions liquor licences cancelled.

Cemeteries: Funds Needed

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

PICTON — "Youth isn't interested in dying" according to Picton reeve James Bird, chairman of the Glenwood Cemetery Board. This attitude lumped to the forefront during a campaign to raise funds for road repairs and restoration of tombstones at Glenwood.

Although pamphlets were mailed to Picton residents to point out the need for donations response was low-key. Service clubs were approached and some did make contributions but none volunteered a work blitz to clean up the cemetery.

Sophisaburgh reeve George Foster told his council this year have made applications for a Local Initiatives Program-grant to restore approximately a dozen neglected township cemeteries. When municipal officials, service club representatives and school trustees held a joint meeting recently to discuss a possible county project for LIP grants reeve Foster suggested a general cemetery clean up.

It is interesting to note that his proposal was the only one in seven that was not youth oriented. Other suggestions included a swimming pool at the high school, school handball and tennis courts, an all - weather track, a T-bar for Macaulay Mountain ski slope and a new roof for the town arena.

The importance and value of these projects is apparent but it seems there is more thought to the coming generation than to the "now" people.

A student present for that joint meeting was asked if an open swimming pool, which could be built much cheaper than a heated, covered pool, would be useful.

His reply was, "It's better than nothing."

Although a heated, covered pool could cost up to $300,000 it would seem youth might expect age to provide this luxury and to feel a little guilty about providing something inferior.

In this youth - geared society, surely cemeteries have not become passe. Glenwood was once a showplace with beautifully tended grounds. Today it is in need of general maintenance work that is too great a project for the single caretaker who mows its lawns.

Reeve Foster spoke strongly in favor of community respect for the dead and their contributions to Prince Edward County. Reeve Bird has expressed a similar view in an interview with the Intelligencer.

MORE

Since student youth looks to older community residents to provide a pool and has worked to earn $2,000 to contribute toward the project perhaps further co - operation is possible. Why not a student cleanup program in Glenwood Cemetery? Or a fund - raising campaign for cemetery improvements.

The maintenance of all Prince Edward cemeteries should have top priority among community residents instead of being sloughed off to a small group of men with respect for the past.

Funds Remain in Loyalist Building Kitty

But it wound up with about $69,000 still in the kitty.

Some of the money will be put aside for unexpected emergencies, but most of the surplus will be used to develop the campus and put up signs.

Building committee chairman Wesley Downs told the board of governors on Thursday's board meeting that $32,000 has been allocated for development and signs. Of that sum, $14,000 will be spent on interior signs to help students and visitors find their way about the Kente building and its wings.

Pool Push Organized

PICTON — The Quinte's late swimming pool committee will make application for a LIP (Local Initiatives Program) grant of approximately $74,000 to construct a junior size olympic size pool.

The decision, made final Thursday night, has received support from town council, the Prince Edward County Board of Education, and several service clubs. Construction of the pool at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute will begin this winter if the grant is approved, with completion scheduled for this spring. The total could be covered and located as funds permit at a later date.

Cement for the project has been donated by the Lake Ontario Cement Co. Ltd.

Next Tuesday, a large thermometer to enure public donations for the pool will be erected at the Armoury Mall. Accounts for donations are open at all Picton banks.

The pool committee hopes to enlarge its membership and is seeking wider community participation.

Trenton Bureau

No Love Lost In PUC Issue

By COLIN BRUCE

It's about time town council here exercised some control over public in handling the public utilities commission.

To say the least, there has been no love lost between the two bodies during the past several months. The battle lines were clearly marked whenever the water pressure was laid.

For one reason or another council instructed the PUC to lay services. The PUC for their own reasons refused and in one case, refused to lay the line and later told council they wouldn't turn on the water.

In each of the confrontations, the PUC is slapping Trenton's face when it defies council. At last Monday's council meeting it was obvious at least councillors John Bonn, Bob Patrick and Ed Todd are fed up with turning the other cheek.

For Mayor Duncan McDonald Monday's council meeting was a tightrope with council at one end and the PUC at the other, both testing the mayor's political ability.

The PUC at that meeting announced what they would and wouldn't pay for. Council was going to be left paying heavily, raising the ire of Mr. Bonn who proceeded to cross - examine the mayor who sits as an appointed, voting member of the PUC.

While councillor Todd said, "let's have some action or I'm moving out," Dr. Bonn suggested council take a look at the system.

At each election more than 12,000 citizens place their faith in seven people, giving them the authority to carry on the business of running a growing municipality. With this faith of the voter goes the responsibility of legislating all major policy which reflects on the town's growth.

A busy line forms the boundary of authority between the two. While town hall is obviously responsible for debts incurred by the commission, town hall can't order the commission to increase rates.

This upping of rates is the responsibility of the commission's two elected members.

If the problem remains, council is handling negotiations badly with its ratepayers and developers, and they must have a PUC they can pay to.

Council has to put some teeth into its lodgepoles and its muscle for muscle with the PUC.

If the tension cannot be resolved over the conference table, put the question of authority in the form of a referendum and let the people decide in a vote.

Good and Evil

The United States, that great melting pot of the world's peoples, carries within its 50 states the best and the worst manifestations of social structure and behavior.

It is at once the most creative and destructive of social orders, the most cultured and most depraved, the most highly intellectual of peoples and the most bourgeois and philistine, the most respectful of humankind and the most childbloodily brutal.

These contrasting qualities in a land of some 200,000,000.

And while America's undoubted greatness is acknowledged, the essential goodness and generosity of its people undeniable, it is the lesser realms of political skulduggery and social violence that give American watchers so much cause for unease.

Toronto columnist Richard Needham, a frequent traveller in the States, put it this way recently: "too many kooks . . . too many guns . . . too many kooks with guns. . ."

The record of political assassination alone confirms this: the Kennedys and Martin Luther King. Attempted assassinations too: George Wallace, Senator John Stennis, the latter an aging warrior who made a remarkable recovery. In his case the motive was mere robbery.

Among the general population the record is horrendous: some 18,000 homicides annually. In Detroit alone the figure is around 600 a year. The most tragic perhaps, the mass killings — of a young family in Boston, for example, not long ago, by the husband and father; a bank manager in the mid-west — Missouri as we recall — his wife and daughter, tied to trees and shot by robbers; and in recent days, six people killed in Kentucky by two escaped prisoners, three of the dead being a 47-year-old minister, his 18-year-old daughter and 14-year-old son. The minister's wife was away at a church conference.

There is something rotten in a society that fosters such acts amid all else that is good. A variation of Gresham's Law, that bad money will drive out good money from circulation.

If there is a reason, it is significant there is mounting evidence that violence on television does influence young people. The current issue of Medical Magazine says that despite network claims to the contrary, "video violence has actually increased," and that this affects youngsters, first by reducing their sensitivity, then by giving the impression that violence is "an acceptable, if not essential, way to attain goals."

There is no smoke then without fire, and we learn this, from the same magazine, that while drug usage seems to be decreasing slightly, in some areas at least, heavy drinking among teenagers is on the rise, all the way to prescribed alcoholics.

We hope that Canada, whose problems in these areas are markedly less, will continue to be the relatively safe and socially stable land it is. The example of the United States is not one we find comforting.

They're Armed

A little startling was the sight, in a downtown bank recently, of one of Belleville's two young women police officers with a pistol strapped to her waist. After all, even the women members of the Israeli army are supposed not to be employed in combat situations.

In this a sign of our times, of the preparedness that has also seen the city police acquire bulletproof jackets? So it is deemed advisable to arm the ladies in uniform also?

Perhaps they should borrow an idea from the Queensland police in Australia. They have adopted a spatial-age jacket which covers the holster of their pistol. This way our lady police would look that much more ladylike.

Thanksgiving

As ever, amid this beautiful season of the year, there is much for which to be thankful. We are aware of course that these times have brought their quota of tragedy, individually, collectively and nationally. But this is the way of a world that is not a place of permanent or unalloyed delight? Man survives though, he does the spirit, and this weekend we have an opportunity to think of such things, to give thanks for our survival in this great land.

Stanfield Strategy Hits Sore Spot

NDP's David Lewis Waxing Hot Under the Collar

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — You had only to watch New Democratic Leader David Lewis the other day suddenly lose his cool at another of those now countless press conferences to know that Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield's basic strategy is paying off.

The Stanfield strategy is based on the continuing NDP support, with their 31 balance minority Liberals.

He is convinced that in last year's election a great many voters were so unalterably opposed to Prime Minister Trudeau they did not much care which of the two main opposition parties they supported.

Trudeau was cut from 155 to 109 seats.

The Conservatives picked up from 72 to 107.

And the NDP climbed from 21 to 31.

Main objective of some of those who gave the Conservatives that 107 seats was more to give the Liberals the bird than give a leg up to the Tories.

But Mr. Stanfield is convinced that this goes double for the NDP.

And the percentages of those who voted New Democratic who voted anti - Liberal rather than pro - NDP was far greater.

So the thrust of the Stanfield strategy has had to be for a binding together of the Liberals and New Democrats as inseparables in the public mind.

He accomplishes that, convincing people that to vote New Democratic is to vote for Trudeau, and next time all those anti - Liberal votes will not have any place to go but to the Conservatives.

Whether Robert Stanfield is successfully selling the voting public on the idea that his Conservatives are the only true alternative to the Liberals until the votes are counted is another.

But at least David Lewis is well aware — and obviously worried — that Mr. Stanfield has to be getting across to at least some of those anti - Liberal votes that went NDP the last time.

He displayed his irritation openly when he finished the attack on a CBC reporter at his press conference following yet another of those monotonously successive cost of living increases.

The newsman had asked the perfectly straight question as to why the NDP still persisted in supporting the Trudeau government when it had become so obvious to all that it was continually failing to cope with inflation.

Far out of character — for David Lewis is usually cool and in control of himself reddened his collar and barked: "That's a Tory question if I ever heard one."

It was not much of an answer, so the CBC representative tried again, hoping a second question on the Stanfield accusation that Trudeau was slowly destroying the economy with opposition parties against Robert Stanfield.

But he said little, if anything, of Pierre Trudeau and what the Prime Minister was doing, or not doing with the economy.

That David Lewis has been in there since last January with NDP votes counted in support of the Trudeau Liberals is known by everyone who can read or even as much as flip on the radio or TV.

But David Lewis is finally has become edgy, worried and openly angered that people are not only aware, but wonder about it, is something new.

In losing his cool he showed just how much he is feeling the heat.

As Robert Stanfield has said, this has not been a traditional Parliament with the government

Instead, he says, you have a Conservative opposition with three parties against it, the Liberals, the New Democrats and often Social Credit.

David Lewis has made it that way.

So much has he been in control that some people speak of him as Prime Minister - Lewis.

What all this is doing to those New Democrats cannot be sure were most anti - Trudeau than pro - NDP the last time, finally is getting to him.

The worry that next time they could go Conservative half him! Could be the reason he when asked about NDP support for the Liberals.

It is the beginning of the payoff for the Stanfield strategy.

"Voila! We've finally come up with a completely safe cigarette—it's fireproof!"

New Grading System For Meat Is Unveiled

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Canada's agriculture department has been making some changes that could help shoppers get a much clearer idea of what they're buying. At today's meat-counter prices, that's important.

The new system for grading beef supplements the essentially meaningless terms, "red" and "blue" brand. Discarded are the old official grades—Canada Choice, Canada Good and Canada Standard.

Those terms had a tendency to glorify fat, and thus to reward the farmer whose cattle were over-loaded with plenty of fat.

Here's how the new, simplified beef-grading system works:

Quality is rated, in descending order, by a letter from A to D. Such factors as color and maturity help to determine the quality grade.

—External fat is measured by inserting a knife between the eleventh and twelfth ribs of the carcass. The leanest meat is ranked with the number 1, the fattest with the number 4.

Thus, grade A1 indicates that the meat is the highest quality and has the least fat, while grade A4 is also the highest quality but has the highest fat level.

The new grading system will put a boon to bulk buyers of beef. It should result in unstrimmed, hanging hind-quarter, such consumers will be well advised to look for Grade A1 since it will contain more meat and less fat than A4. For example, although prices of the two grades may well be the same.

But if you don't happen to own a big freezer—or a restaurant—the new grading system is of more limited value. That's because small cuts of beef are usually trimmed by your butcher to meet the preferences of his average customer.

The department of agriculture has been asking consumers in a number of Canadian cities about the grading of food products.

It's possible that an educational campaign will be undertaken to familiarize consumers with the department's grading system.

The agriculture department also keeps a close watch on grades of poultry, which must be graded for retail sale in most major cities as well as for shipment between provinces and outside the country.

Different colors are used as well as grade marks, which are printed on a metal breast tag, transparent bag or label insert.

The same grade names are used for chickens, capons, fowl, turkeys, geese and duck. The last three must also be graded as either "mature" or "young".

Grade marks must also be shown on cartons and bulk displays of eggs in stores. Here is what they mean on Grade A1 and A eggs:

—Extra large: At least 2¼ oz. per egg.

—Large: At least 2 oz.

—Medium: At least 1¾ oz. but less than 2 oz.

—Small: At least 1½ oz. but less than 1¾ oz.

—Pewee (Canada Grade A only): Less than 1½ oz.

Housing Policy at Issue

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

Housing should figure largely in the debate at this fall session.

With the startling rate of increase in housing demand, particularly in the metropolitan areas along with growing shortages there has been public pressure which has been unprecedented even for this field where for years there has been continual criticism of the lack of adequate action by government.

Some months ago to meet this criticism, and presumably try and come up with some new approaches of filling the urgent need the government appointed a special task force on housing, with the directive to study the whole housing problem and make recommendations on solutions.

This committee, which was chaired by Eli B. Conaty, former planning commissioner for Metro Toronto and now at York University, has presented its report.

One of its recommendations was that there should be a separate ministry of housing, and Premier Davis has accepted this.

He also has announced that Mr. Conaty has agreed to act for a limited period to help organize a program to expedite housing.

There has to be skeptical, however, whether these and any other steps taken out of the report will actually do very much to meet the crisis.

It has been evident for some time that the root weakness in housing is the extraordinary cost of land.

The task force itself at least has recognized this when it reported that over a 10 year period the cost of building land had risen as much as 400 per cent.

But it had relatively little to propose as to how high present costs could be met or their future growth contained.

It did favor some land banking — and proposed, as other agencies had already done, that provincial governments and other technical details should be made easier.

But the one obvious major restraint it pretty well dismissed.

That would be a freeze on land prices.

Its only observation was that it couldn't see where these would be possible unless there were also controls in other fields.

Austria Plays for Time Over Transit Camp Issue

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky's proposal to ask the United Nations to take over the Jewish transit camp he had promised at gunpoint to close is broadly interpreted as a ploy for time.

As things stand Kreisky is caught in intense international crossfire, accused on the one hand of capitulating to Arab terrorists and on the other to Golda Meir.

The irony of the saga is that Kreisky got himself into this position because of Austria's humanitarian concern for Soviet Jewry and indeed for refugees everywhere. At great expense, inconvenience and danger Austria has supported Schoenau Castle transit camp which has been handling thousands of Jews in transit from the Soviet Union to Israel.

Aside from that, neutral Austria since the Second World War has taken in more refugees than any other country.

The chancellor, himself a Jew with a Socialist living in Communism, was thrust into the limelight last Friday when Arab guerrillas seized three Jews travelling to Israel and an Austrian officer and demanded compromise that the camp would be closed in return for the hostages' safety.

Since then world opinion has been almost unanimously critical of Kreisky, charging that he has emboldened the terrorists to try similar tactics elsewhere.

At a strained two-hour meeting in Vienna on Thursday Premier Golda Meir he put forth the idea of the UN taking over administration of the camp, explaining later that an Arab attack against the camp would be an attack on the UN "and the Arabs have great interest not to hit an official of the UN."

He conceded the formidable Mrs. Meir was no stranger to the idea and many Western diplomats doubted the scheme would gain support since the UN general commission is not anxious to take on new obligations and Arab delegates were bound to oppose the proposal. Arab spokesmen already have charged Kreisky is going back on his pledge to the guerrillas in an attempt to pacify Mrs. Meir.

Meanwhile, in the view of most observers, the consultations and debate at the UN will divert attention while Kreisky considers his alternatives.

For a start, there is no indication the camp will close soon. Certainly Soviet Jews in residence or in transit will be accommodated. The Soviet Union hinted that Austria will continue to help travellers by other means, provided they move through swiftly and do not require stopover facilities.

Others have suggested Kreisky is not bound by a promise extracted under pressure and he is under no obligation to hold to it. But he has indicated he will not renege, arguing that to do so would make it more difficult to negotiate with terrorists in the future.

The dilemma also presents an unhappy situation for Mrs. Meir, who became a target of execution at the end of this month. Her visit to Vienna was something of a gamble and the fact she left Kreisky empty-handed does not help her position.

Nevertheless, this development opens the way for a renewed appeal to Soviet authorities to allow Jews to fly direct to Israel. A number of United States politicians support this approach, urging that it be tied as a condition for any new trade agreement which the Soviets eagerly desire.

If the Kremlin, in its apparent enthusiasm for detente with the West, should agree, it would serve to arm Mrs. Meir against sections of the Israeli press which criticized her trip to Vienna as superfluous and would certainly enhance her status in the election campaign.

Harvest Never Reaped Alone

By Rev. Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

It is well for us to ponder the significance of this week-end's harvest festival. Our century has become so mechanized that we are in grave danger of overlooking the processes of nature. The universe is really less a machine than an evolving organism.

A particular verse of scripture floated in my unconscious mind as summer turned into fall. These words of Jesus stimulated conscious thoughts: "Unless a grain of wheat falls into the earth and dies, it remains alone; but if it dies, it bears much fruit" (John 12:24).

May I share my thoughts with you? Perhaps you are as aware as I am that Jesus was speaking of his approaching death when he uttered those famous words. They have broad implications. They suggest certain laws of the spiritual life that are equally to the transformation of seeds to harvest.

First, consider a bare kernel. Every horticulturalist realizes the importance of starting good seed. Biologists know that hereditary events have considerable influence on our potentiality. The endeavor to produce a better wheat must come to wise and kindly grips with our heredity, both intellectual, moral and spiritual inequalities.

In the second place, some people are so impressed by the importance of the individual seed that they cease to go further. They argue that the only way to save society is to change individuals. But the fertility of seed depends, in no small measure, on the soil's fertility. Poor seed often flourishes when planted in good ground. The personal Gospel and the social Gospel must go hand in hand.

Finally, no matter how choice the soil, no growth can be anticipated unless seed is buried in it. "The practical test is everywhere". Dr. Arnold of a religion, always and Toynbee points out, "is its success or failure in helping human souls to respond to the challenges of suffering and sin. In the chapter of the world's history on which we are now writing, it looks as if the continuing progress of technology were going to make our sufferings more acute than ever before, and our sins more devastating in their practical consequences."

What is our reaction? Some folk are giving up the moral struggle. Some are falling prey to those who have attained command the object of their doctrine as they preach the imminent return of Christ. Some are having all to communes. But the harvest is never reaped in solitude. The Lord's Prayer has not been rescinded. Our spirits do not develop in fellowship. We live by dying.

Finally, in the process of natural growth, there is one influence that determines all the others: The quality of our lives depends on the soil of an ideal environment that we also create. But, in the last analysis, God gives the increase, dust as the point comes in when the farmer trusts the elements, so you and I must learn to rest on the promises of God.

He who spoke the words of our text knew God best of all. And Jesus put his knowledge to use. Because of him we may be assured that God never wearies of mankind. Because of him we may be assured of a harvest - home in Heaven.

Anglicans Confirm Bishop

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — After unprecedented debate, Episcopalians "Anglicans confirmed a Mississippi bishop, Rt. Rev. John Maury Allin, as the church's new presiding bishop Thursday.

Representatives to the church's governing convention also narrowly turned down a sharply-debated proposal to admit women to the priesthood.

The defeat of the proposal for women priests marked a setback to the more liberal elements in the church. Some also saw the election of Bishop Allin as a swing toward conservatism.

However, he told the convention the church "must press on" in the same direction it has been going, although adjustments may be needed.

The church for about a decade has been under the liberal leadership of Presiding Bishop John E. Hines, who guided it into innovative, and controversial, programs of grants to minority groups.

He also had favored women's ordination, which Bishop Allin has opposed.

Bishop Allin was quickly chosen by his fellow bishops for the top office, in which he will serve for 12 years.

Concurrence of lay and clergy representatives with their bishops' choice came only after four hours of questioning behind closed doors.

It was the first time in the history of the church, the American branch of the worldwide Church of England communion, that its governing convention had hesitated at affirming their bishops' selection of the church's top prelate.

The delay occurred in a secret session of the lay-clergy branch of the church's legislature, its 900-member House of Deputies.

They eventually voted by a margin of nearly 60 per cent to ratify the choice of Bishop Allin, 52, of Jackson, Miss., the church's bishop in that state for the last seven years.

Anglican Foundation Aids New Ministries

TORONTO (CP) — When the Anglican Church needed $37,000 to purchase an airplane for its Canadian ministry, the Anglican Foundation loaned it the money.

The foundation also provided $3,000 to the Moosonee, Ont., diocese for a Cree hymnal and $20,000 for the Yukon diocese to operate an educational program for school dropouts.

The foundation, which has assets of $1.5 million, was established in 1967 as a revolving fund to help establish new and imaginative ministries.

"Generally speaking, we favor grants and loans to remote parts of Canada," William Kay, the foundation's executive director, said in an interview.

"If Timmins diocese, for instance, applied for a grant or loan, the directors would be inclined to question it. If the application comes from a purported diocese, it will usually be approved, although it may be reduced."

The foundation is run by a nine-man board of directors from across Canada. They decide what grants and loans are to be made. Its chairman is the primate of the church, Archbishop Ted Scott.

"He feels we shouldn't be financing building programs and paying off old debts," Mr. Kay said. "He'd like the foundation to make grants and loans for new and perhaps unusual programs."

The foundation sits three or four times each year—"When I have an accumulation of applications."

It receives its funds from individuals in the church, not parishes, Mr. Kay said. They donate $50 for annual and $1,000 for life membership or donate money in memorial contributions or bequests.

A major part of Mr. Kay's job is seeking persons to take out memberships in the foundation.

"I spend a lot of my time writing personal letters to people I think are interested in contributing to the church. I write to service organizations, lawyers and stock brokers—anywhere I can get a list of memberships. I get a lot of names out of Who's Who, and out of financial pages of newspapers, most.

"I don't know whether they are Anglican or not. But I write to them, and sometimes I strike oil."

Mr. Kay, a retired accountant, is well suited to his role. He has been associated with many fund-raising activities, among them the Canadian Opera Company and Boy Scouts of Canada. He said Canadians' Protestant people are generous to a fault.

"One woman wrote to me and said she couldn't give $5 all at once, but would I accept $1 a week as all she had was her old age pension. I wrote to her and said it was too generous. I sent her a hymn book as a gift, and she sent me $10."

The Consumer

Food for Dreams --Or Nightmares

Sharon Airhart

I have a recurring nightmare. I am seated, an aged wrinkled woman in hot pants, in a plexiglass and steel rocking chair. A motor rocks my chair, a battery pumps my blood and a bottle keeps my hair brown. My grandchildren are sealed at my feet.

Tell us, Granny, they say, eyes wide, "what it was like to eat a real hamburger?" And I spin tales I hardly believe myself of real fruit in lunch bags and fresh vegetables and how, when their mother was a little girl, eggs came in shells, not bases of powder. A computer on the wall flashes a light, intercepting my narrative. A panel slides back and out pops Thanksgiving dinner. Turkey — flavored soy bean roll is garnished with cranberry (imitation) gelatin. Pumpkin — like pie is topped with Whippy Creamey, an edible oil product.

I usually wake up at this point, hungry, I head for the refrigerator to make sure the left over roast beef is really there. The nightmares, I decided one midnight are the result of a long-standing one-woman battle: me against the supermarkets. Like yesterday, I decided to make a special whipped cream dessert. With misplaced confidence I went to the local supermarket. I found, from honest to goodness real whipped cream in an aerosol can (it tastes about as much like real whipping cream as instant mashed potatoes taste like potatoes — which is not at all) to the local imitation whipped topping in a can. It, like that frozen whipped topping in plastic containers, has never been within a country mile of a cow.

Exasperated, I buttonholed a clerk.

Where, I demanded, is the whipping cream? He pointed to the cans. No, he I said, ready to shake him, the real whipping cream. "We don't carry it anymore," he said and beat it back to the impervious secretariat of "employees only."

At that point, I made up my mind to be a conscientious consumer, (I'm not taking anything they have even if it means stale brownies for dessert again). I moved on with my list.

Spices. I needed a few simple things. I was offered, instead, an incredible array of phoney food. Imitation bacon bits. Freeze — dried mushroom slices. Instant dried minced onions. Dehydrated parsley. Warm spicy thoughts of aromatic kitchens where food is lovingly prepared gave way to a sudden vision of cardboard kitchens where plastic meals are served on paper plates. Want to make spaghetti? Take a pound of hamburger and add a tin foil envelope of imitation flavor. Chili or stroganoff instant? Same hamburger, different envelope.

The reason, of course, for this rash of dehydrated-death food is not that the real thing is less scarce in this bountiful country, but that there is more money to be made from packaged food with nearly endless shelf lives. Little by little the real stuff disappears to be replaced by plastic. And the sad thing is that we'll keep doing it to us as long as we keep mindlessly buying whatever is on the shelf.

Is enough to make you lose your appetite.

Successful Living

Acceptance — Key to Adjustment

By DORIS CLARK

"Life is changin' and living is adjusting to change. Remember that, Marjie!"

Marjie did remember it; quoted it to me a few days ago. Pop Rose must have said it half a century ago and he lived his life as if he believed in it.

He showed it in his own business life, catering to customers of all sizes and ages in his popular store. When the time came he sold his business. When he lost his wife, his career-daughter invited him to move in with her, where he immediately re-oriented himself into the role of chief cook and bottle washer.

Marjie would come home to see him busy over a cookbook; he would look up at her with a smile and point out a recipe he planned to try.

He welcomed Marjie's girl friends too, and they all came to love this easy-tempered gentle philosophe man, at that time in his 70's.

Grandma 'Pest' When Not Needed

qtivay qasoqee crezea eqoeyn

Dear Ann Landers: Isn't it interesting how many grandmothers are needed when the children are small, and then become "pests" when the children grow older and they are no longer useful as babysitters and mother's helpers—A "Pest"

Dear Friend: Anyone who has been reading this column knows my position on this matter. Grandmothers who sit and "help mother" should do so only if they enjoy it, and not because they are looking for thanks. Gratitude has a very short memory. The ideal status for a grandmother is to be a invited guest. Then she will always be welcome.

Dear Ann: It's late in the season to be writing about power lawn mowers, but the unfortunate incident that prompts this letter occurred only last week.

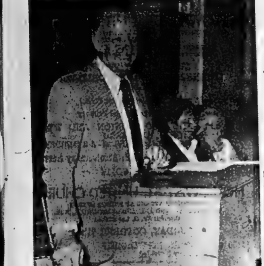
Please tell your readers never, never, never to mow their lawns with a power mower while wearing sneakers or any canvas-weight shoe or sandal. One split second with your toe or foot under that mower could result in a crippling accident. We learned this lesson by experience—and a bitter one at that.—Beatrice La Tampa

Dear Tampa: Thanks for the reason. Are you listening, sisters?

I can recall knocking on his door around about noon. It was flung open with a big smile and his inevitable greeting was, "You are just in time for lunch!" And a good lunch it was; nothing a hot one. I can remember delicious gravy on reheated beef slices, or a salad with a judicious touch of herbs or spices which made it delectable. Most of all, though, was the ingredient of sociability — almost gaiety — in his twinkling philosophy of life.

How many of us can adjust like that? He had never been a cook in his earlier business days.

What about the people in their 30's and 40's who cry out to me about the other kinds of change which are upsetting their platloed ways of life How many accept the computerized age, the shortened work week, the need for new training courses to adapt them to new kinds of occupation



Many are the parents who has sailed through all those bobsledding years on an artificial leg, sums up his philosophy in the words, "Everybody needs to lose at least one leg!" Shocking — but he was trying to say we can't appreciate life properly unless we meet a serious obstacle and rise above it.

Next time somebody introduces a new idea into your life — something which offers a challenge while at the same time representing a difficult adjustment — think twice before building up your defences against it.

Children Discover Thanksgiving Means Sharing

Quiet grey October morning.

Out of the bus rush a feathered bevy of whooping "Indians."

Out of the school run a buckle-hatted bunch of "Early Settlers."

The two groups mingle happily in the school yard, shaking hands and introducing themselves.

They've met to celebrate a re-enactment of early Thanksgiving celebrations, an inter-school project of Holy Rosary and Our Lady of Fatima Separate Schools.

Two weeks ago, four teachers — Cathy Boyd, Mary Lou Enright, Jean O'Sullivan and Diane Kalnay — met to discuss what they could do to make Thanksgiving more meaningful for their classes.

They hit upon the idea of having the children study the origins of the holiday and then take part in a festive day, dressed in costumes of their own making.

The study of Thanksgiving encompassed many areas of study; social studies classes learned about early American customs, science classes studied types of food used in the celebration, and religious education stressed the sharing that is at the heart of the celebration.

"Brotherhood is a theme in our learning program all year long," explains Greg Dobec, principal of Holy Rosary School. "This inter-school visit is simply a way of focusing on the idea."

Most of the day's activities were planned with sharing in mind.

Each child would have a partner with whom to spend the entire day. These two would divide their lunches together, and teach each other how to make the hats, headdresses, and table decorations belonging to the Indians and Settlers.

The teacher explained to the children that what they were studying was the North American approach to Thanksgiving. Although the custom began in Massachusetts, it spread quickly, and by the late 19th century was established as a Canadian holiday.

"But," Mr. Dobec explains, "when it began there were no geographic boundaries between Canada and the United States. Perhaps that too is part of the lesson we are teaching here today."

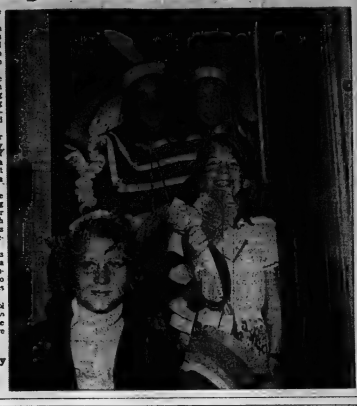
The children, ranging in age from kindergarten to grade six level, find their partners — the Indians from Our Lady of Fatima and the Settlers from the hosting school, Holy Rosary — and gather in classrooms before going to a Thanksgiving Mass together.

At noon, at tables decorated with paper turkeys and teepees, they share sandwiches and apples, while the teachers have lunch and discuss the success of the project.

"The entire venture is a credit to the teachers," says Walter Rakiowski, principal of Our Lady of Fatima, "who have carried out the idea so well."

The two schools have already been engaged in an exchange of ideas regarding themes for the learning program, and hope to continue working together, and with other junior schools.

Both schools' class other visits and found on Friday that even the problem of fitting 720 children into a school built for half that many can be solved, with a little crowding.



In the afternoon, the children are busy making Thanksgiving gifts for their partners, and teaching each other how to do the crafts they've learned for the occasion.

Several senior students from Our Lady of Fatima perform a French-Canadian-Indian song and dance, to entertain the other Indians and Settlers.

By the end of the school day, everyone is ready to agree that this has been the best Thanksgiving they've ever shared.

Air Canada President Retiring

MONTREAL (CP) — The retiring president of Air Canada said Friday he hopes eventually to see the airline operate around the world.

John R. Baldwin 61, was interviewed after Air Canada's board of directors unexpectedly announced he will retire Dec. 15 at his own request, five years after becoming president.

The former federal deputy transport minister, in reviewing his own aspirations and those of the airline, said:

"It has been a rewarding and stimulating period. Air Canada has been my prime interest ever since I became connected with transportation over 30 years ago."

The airline's appreciation was expressed by Yves Pratte, Air Canada's chairman, who came to the post with Mr. Baldwin in 1968, succeeding the late Gordon R. McGregor.

Fine for Pot

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Oregon became the first state Friday to eliminate criminal penalties for possession of less than one ounce of marijuana.

A person caught with less than an ounce of marijuana will be issued a citation similar to those issued for traffic violations and will be subject to a maximum penalty of a $100 fine. But he will have no criminal record.

Attack Made

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — After a one-day delay because of inclement weather, a planned "attack" of Canada took place Thursday evening.

The attack by 110 Canadian and United States fighter-interceptor aircraft. They flew into Canada from the Far North.

The object of the attack was to test the electronic air defence equipment of the 22nd North American Air Defence Command region, headquartered here.

The exercise had been cancelled early Thursday morning when rain and fog made the risk factor high.

Old Angry

TORONTO (CP) — Old-age pensioners' groups in Ontario reacted angrily Friday to the provincial government's announcement of a $50 bonus for 340,000 pensioners who received guaranteed income supplements.

Corabel Penfold, founder of Pensioners Concerned Canada, said the grant is a "mere pittance. It works out to 13 cents a day."

Premier William Davis's promise Thursday to give $50 a year is not worthy of a province as big and rich as Ontario, said Jack Lerette, president of the United Senior Citizens of Ontario.

"At this time when prices are soaring at such rapid rates, the $50 won't make much of a dent."

Gordon Anderson, president of Pensioners Concerned, described the government action as "putting your finger in a leaking dam. It won't really do any good."

Mrs. Penfold said she would rather have seen the government extend health services for pensioners to include eyeglasses, dentures, prescription drugs and ambulance service.

Tri-level Conference On Housing Arranged

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of a tri-level conference on housing decided Friday that officials of the three groups will meet here Tuesday to iron out ways of implementing new federal housing programs.

Ron Basford, federal minister of urban affairs, suggested the meeting, under the chairmanship of Jim Houston, Ontario regional director of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

Earlier, John White, provincial minister of treasury, economics and intergovernment affairs, and Mayor Des Newman of Whitby, chairman of the municipal liaison committee, demanded that guidelines for the federal government's two housing rehabilitation programs—Neighbourhood Improvement Program and Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program—be rewritten to include renewal of commercial and industrial sites.

Mr. White said the two programs, successors to the federal urban renewal program, include provisions for the rehabilitation of commercial and industrial sites, but their guidelines do not state that fact.

Mr. Newman said outside the session the two programs should reflect the old urban renewal scheme which included industrial renewal.

In the morning session, Allan Grossman, Ontario minister of revenue responsible for housing, announced an extension of the program initiated Sept. 29 which gives an 8¾-per-cent interest rate on mortgages on houses constructed on Home Ownership Made Easy (H.O.M.E.) lots in Ontario.

Mr. Grossman said: "In order to encourage builders to build within H.O.M.E. plan price limitations, which currently range between $15,450 and $18,000, for three to five bedroom houses, in the province through the Ontario Housing Corp., will offer first-mortgage financing equal to 95 per cent of either axles price of freehold lots and dwellings, or the appraised lending value, which ever is the lesser.

"These will be at the prevailing rate of 8¾ per cent" he added.

Indians Claim Book Contempt

MONTREAL (CP) — The Indians of Quebec Association (IQA) said Friday their lawyers have filed a request in Quebec Superior Court that Premier Robert Bourassa be found in contempt of court for publication of his book James Bay.

The association also said that the book's English and French publishers, Harvest House and Les Editions du Jour, and the Quebec Liberal party's official agent, Jean Marchand, are included in the petition to the court.

The Indians say publication of the book constitutes contempt since a Superior Court justice is pondering a decision of a request from the native peoples of the province's northwest that the $5.8-billion James Bay hydroelectric development be halted.

IQA Vice-President Max Gros-Louis told a news conference statements in the book that a "development of the James Bay is no longer a question but a concrete reality" and "nothing can stop us now from moving forward" are indications of the government's attitude towards the court's eventual decision.

Stanfield Blames Gas Dispute On Lack of Energy Policy

FORT McMURRAY, Alta. (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield criticized the federal government Friday for not developing an energy policy based on provincial requirements.

Mr. Stanfield, in an interview during a tour of Alberta's Athabasca oil sands, said the lack of federal policy was largely the cause of the conflict between producing and consuming provinces over natural gas prices.

Mr. Stanfield was nearing the end of a round of meetings in which included discussions with Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed. Ontario Premier William Davis, and Saskatchewan Premier Allen Blakeney.

He also met officials of the Canadian Petroleum Association and the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada in Calgary Thursday.

The tour ends today with a news conference in Edmonton.

"We are developing guidelines for our stand on energy issues," he said. The western tour was to assess the views of the producing provinces and oil companies.

He said talks with Premiers Lougheed and Davis showed no conflict over the management of oil resources. Ontario said producing provinces are entitled to the revenues from these resources and not the federal government.

Natural gas marketing, prices and reserve policy is an area of conflict, he said.

"A national energy policy, developed after federal government consultations with the provinces, could have avoided this conflict."

Mr. Stanfield criticized the policies announced by Energyoil prices on the price of foreign Minister Donald Macdonald for crude landed in Montreal, Mr. their suddenness and vagueness.

While the Canadian consumer should be protected from abnormally high American prices, Mr. Stanfield said the government had not said definitely what plans it has for future oil prices in Canada.

Mr. Macdonald has only said that he "may" base Canadian

South Africans' Credentials Are Rejected by UN Assembly

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The UN General Assembly rejected the credentials of the South African white-supremacist government Friday but allowed its foreign minister to make his annual address.

The membership of South Africa, one of the 51 original founders of the UN, was not affected by the action. It served as still another UN con-demnation of South Africa's racist policies.

Only the Security Council can suspend the rights of a member. Any move to bar one from speaking could be vetoed there. In the face of this, the powerful African bloc and its supporters abandoned a drive to bar Foreign Minister Hilgard Muller from speaking, but they staged a walkout, emptying two-thirds of the hall as he mounted the rostrum.

Black Africans contend the South African government represents only three to four million whites and cannot speak in the UN for 16 million blacks and others under its rule.

The vote on a Syrian move to reject the credentials was 71 to 37.

Big Food Price Rise Lies Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers in the United States should expect further sharp rises in food prices over the next six months, President Nixon's chief economist said Friday.

Herbert Stein, chairman of Nixon's council of economic advisers, told reporters that a 10-per-cent annual rate of increase in food prices is "in the ballpark" of what the administration expects.

Even at that, Stein said, the rapid increases will be slower than the more than 20 per cent jump in food prices in the first half of this year.

Stein said it will be toward the end of 1974 before there is a chance that food prices might decline after a tapering off in about the middle of next year.

Wheat Prices May Go Up; Billion-dollar Sale to China

OTTAWA (CP) — Wheat prices "could go higher as easily as lower" in the foreseeable future, Otto Lang said Friday when he announced that China would buy 224 million bushels of Canadian wheat in the next three years.

Mr. Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, said there would be different prices negotiated under the agreement signed in Peking Thursday by wheat board commissioners.

The first firm contract calls for delivery of 37 million bushels for the upgreendented price of about $300-million during the first six months of 1974.

If current international prices hold, the value of the total agreement could top $1 billion.

At current prices, he said, the wheat board wanted long-term contracts with the Chinese for short-term ones.

But, he said, it was fair to conclude that the Chinese expected prices to drop. That was the reason they fought for a six-month contract under the 224 million bushel agreement, rather than a customary year-long contract.

The over-all agreement amounts "to a supply commitment on our side and a purchase commitment on theirs."

The sale is the second-largest agreement reached with the Chinese. In 1961, the Chinese signed a deal for 233 million bushels on another three-year contract. Large contracts have been signed with the Soviet Union in the past, with sales totaling for more than 300 million bushels.

The announcement followed by minutes Statistics Canada production estimates for the current grain crop. Wheat production is expected to hit 622 million bushels, up 17 per cent from last year and well above the 10-year average crop of 614.2 million.

Mr. Lang refused to predict whether world wheat prices, now at record levels of more than $3.60 a bushel, would fall as a result of the expected large harvest.

Ottawa Unlikely To Give Ground In Feud Over Oil

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — From a purely political viewpoint the federal government is unlikely to give much ground to the Alberta government in the flamfest feud over oil.

While the provincial administration is enraged with Ottawa for imposing a 40-cents-a-barrel excise tax on exported oil, and the move could be interpreted as a political disaster so far as the federal Liberals are concerned in Alberta there has apparently been a far different reaction in the East. The federal government is receiving thankyou notes for keeping down the price of oil.

And if it became a political issue, says observers, Ottawa would have far more supporters than opponents, particularly in Ontario, the prime battleground in the next federal election. In Alberta, where Conservatives hold all 19 federal seats, Liberal strategists were not predicting any major breakthrough even before the oil dispute.

There has been increasing talk of the dispute becoming the major issue in the next election.

"But perish the thought," said a senior Liberal here. "There is no doubt that our stand would be supported in a majority of the provinces, but think of the effect on national unity."

And there is no doubt that Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield would prefer to see the issue dissipate before a campaign begins. He could be caught on a wobbly tightrope as he campaigned with both Ontario Premier William Davis and Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed.

Even worse, say some Conservatives, it could cause a split between eastern and western members of the party. While this itself wouldn't disturb the Liberals, officials say that "it's simply too dangerous to let this dispute get out of hand."

However, in the tough day-to-day bargaining, there is no doubt that the federal government is buoyed by the knowledge that there is no national political pressure for ground-giving.

Mounties Trying To Recruit Indians

OTTAWA (CP) — With little fanfare, the RCMP is making some effort to recruit native peoples into the almost all-white national police force.

The 14,000-person force, sometimes criticized by native organizations for lack of understanding, has no hard-sell campaign for recruits to fill what a spokesman said Friday is an "obvious need."

But it is inserting recruitment advertisements in periodicals often read by Indians and Eskimos.

"We recognize we should have more (native peoples) in the force," a spokesman said Friday. "We are advertising in areas where we hope we can attract them."

A typical ad may say: "Have you considered joining the RCMP?"

It is the same no matter where it is inserted.

"We haven't had the success we would like," the spokesman said of native recruiting.

The force needs about 800 recruits annually. Four hundred of these are needed to fill vacancies created by a small annual turnover of slightly more than three per cent a year. The remainder meet the needs of a force that is growing year by year.

The RCMP spokesman said there has always been a backlog of applicants and in the past there has been no need to encourage people to join.

But in recent years there has been some advertising, including attempts to find native recruits.

Natives are given no guarantees that they will serve in their own areas, such as the North. The spokesman said one of the drawing cards of the RCMP may be that some members would like to travel elsewhere in Canada.

But he added that just as Quebec recruits generally serve in Quebec, Eskimos and Indian recruits probably would serve in their own areas.

Force records were not broken down in terms of race the number of native people now in uniform is not known.

The force does employ Indians and Eskimos as special constables and guides, but these are not regarded as members of the regular force.

In a related matter, attempts to have the RCMP create an establishment in Regina train Indian special constables to operate on reserves still are bogged down in financing disputes.

Under a recruiting plan agreed to by Saskatchewan and the federal government the force would give native policemen a course in police work which would help them in their work on the reserves.

The program also would be innovative and experimental and involve such things as Indians giving lectures to RCMP officers on Indian culture.

Chief David Ahenakew, president of the Saskatchewan Federation of Indians warned that lack of the program would lead to the continued deterioration of relations between the force and Indians.

The first course for 30 Indians was to have started this week.

The RCMP spokesman said the course probably would have been similar to the nine-week course provided special constables, second to securing work in airports across the country.

Snow Fence Might Have Prevented 400 Crash During March White-out

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — The five-member jury investigating the multiple-vehicle crash that claimed 12 lives last March, adjourned for the weekend after hearing Friday that a snow fence—taken down nine days earlier might have prevented the accident.

The inquest moved to Guelph for a simulated snow test on a scale model of the highway prepared by Professor Franklin Theakston.

Prof. Theakston an expert on snow and wind conditions, demonstrated the trees at the scene—once considered for their esthetic value—now are a hazard and should be removed.

He noted that along that stretch of Highway 400, eight miles south of here, pine trees line the six-lane divided highway, with some only 25 feet from the pavement.

After returning to Barrie, the professor testified that the effect of the trees was to dump snow on the highway instead of providing a wind break.

Prof. Theakston, who teaches at the University of Guelph and owns a consulting engineering firm, said there are several similar stretches of highway throughout the country that could experience similar whiteouts.

Survivors of the 25-vehicle accident have told of near zero visibility just before the crash.

Prof. Theakston said he would like to see guidelines established for all highways in Canada because improper placing of windbreaks or snow fences may be more of a hazard than a help.

The trees at the crash site were planted for their looks long before the highway was widened and those less than 35 feet from the pavement should be removed, he said.

Snow fences, he said, should be placed 35 feet to 100 feet from the road. He also suggested that to obtain maximum advantage from the snowfences, three should be placed parallel with the road 50 feet apart.

In his Guelph laboratory, the jury watched fine silica sand in a water flume represent the snowstorm last March 18.

The professor said he has used similar simulations to recognize snow problems at many North American airports and town sites. He said his method is "100 per cent accurate."

Fire Departments Hope Their Message Spreads

Sorrow stalks the careless and it may well find those who fail to heed the message the Belleville Fire Department will be spreading here next week.

This year, Fire Prevention Week runs from Oct. 7 through to Oct. 13 and Belleville firefighters are once again preparing to conduct a strenuous fire safety campaign.

Having been called out to fight approximately 250 fires so far this year, the fire department is seeking to drive home the point that fires can be avoided.

In discussing the department's preparations for Fire Prevention Week, Chief Leo Culhane explained that, as in previous years, next week's program will underline the fact that "sorrow follows fire."

"Fire prevention is a 52-week-a-year-job," he said. "In fact fire prevention is the main job facing firefighters today. We work at it all year long and during Fire Prevention Week we simply try to get people to have second thoughts about fire before they have to face the horrors of death, suffering or property loss.

All next week Belleville residents will be able to tour the city's fire halls on Moira Street West and Dundas Street East. They will also be treated to demonstrations of the operation of firefighting equipment and fire prevention.

More

People who wish to have their homes inspected by the Fire Department to make certain they are fire-safe — can phone the department and make an appointment. Inspectors Paul Stephenson and Reg Christopher would be glad to pay a visit to the homes of fire-conscious residents.

The department will also be operating an information booth at the Quinte Mall during Fire Prevention Week. The booth will be open Tuesday, Oct. 9 through Saturday, Oct. 13 from 9:30 a.m. until the Mall closes for the night.

This past week firefighters have been preparing for Fire Prevention Week by visiting the city's schools, conducting fire drills and notifying the students and teachers of next week's program.

Firemen Signing Up

Preparations for Fire Prevention week, Oct. 7 through to Oct. 13, have been keeping Belleville firefighters busy lately. Grant Parks and Don Bowers, firefighters at No. 2 Station, Moira Street West, were busy bringing fire prevention signs out of storage, while other members of the department were touring area schools conducting fire drills and telling youngsters of next week's activities.

Everyones Co-operation is Needed To Put Down Fires

New Jail Cuts Off All Drugs

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — A $4.4-million provincial jail "we may be "therapeutic" but it isn't a place to do "easy time", says Dr. Richard Meen, program director of the new facility.

Unlike the Alex G. Brown Memorial Centre in nearby Mimico it replaces, the building is designed to ensure that none of its 198 prisoners are drinking or using drugs, officials said.

Last year, a confidential report on the present centre revealed its 80 prisoners, sentenced for drug, alcohol or sexual offences, were obtaining liquor and drugs with ease.

But the new institution has bullet-proof glass, electronically-controlled doors, segregated quarters and a high wire fence to resolve former security problems.

The building is divided into two main areas—one to house the first offenders for a three-week assessment and another designed for treatment of 150 prisoners.

Prisoners and staff will eat together in the dining room and mingle in two libraries.

"We will know the residents here very well," Dr. Meen said. "There'll be no unknown quantities."

For the first offenders, aged 16 to 24, the assessment will include physical examination, possible brain-wave tests, psychological tests and interviews.

Once in the treatment section, they will take part in individual and group therapy sessions and work in an industrial shop with equipment for woodworking, metal work and arts and crafts.

Dormitories in the treatment centre come equipped with built-in AM-FM radios, lockers, desks, bookshelves and bulletin boards by each bed. They sleep six compared to 12 beds in the assessment centre.

The jail which has the appearance of a modern high school from the exterior, also has a 400-seat auditorium with a movie projection booth, spectator stands, sports facilities and a large stage.

Electrodes In Brain Help Many

CHICAGO (CP) — A New York neurosurgeon has reported being able to help some patients who have uncontrollable epilepsy or body movements with implantation of electrodes that stimulate tiny areas of the brain.

The report in the Journal of the American Medical Association deals with what is called Cooper brain pacemaker and with a study by its originator, Dr. Irving S. Cooper.

The implants have aided patients suffering from the effects of severe epilepsy, cerebral palsy and spasticity due to stroke. The technique is not a cure, Dr. Cooper emphasized, but it has helped incapacitated patients regain a measure of control over their bodies.

One 13-year-old boy with cerebral palsy could not even sit up before his surgery. Eight months after the operation, he can feed himself and swim in a pool, although he can't walk yet. A number of patients incapacitated by intractable epilepsy are leading nearly normal lives.

The Cooper brain pacemaker consists of small plates of silicon-coated dacron mesh to which bipolar electrodes are attached. They are implanted in the back of the head directly over tiny areas of the brain that regulate certain body movements. The electrode plates are attached by wires under the skin to a small radio receiver implanted in the chest. The receiver gets a signal from a transmitter carried in the pocket or purse, which is about the size of a cigaret pack.

The transmitter transmits its signal through a small antenna that is taped to the patient's chest, directly over the receiver inside the chest.

The actual surgery to implant the device takes about three hours. Electrode stimulation begins within a day. At first, patients feel a mild headache or certain other vague sensations, but these disappear. The pacemaker currently costs between $2,500 and $3,000.

The first epilepsy patient to undergo brain stimulation now appears to be a perfectly normal 36-year-old man, the article says. He had been incapacitated by intractable epilepsy for four years after being hit on the head with a baseball. Drug treatments had little effect. His attacks and the drowsiness brought on by large drug dosages caused him to drop out of college.

Ten months after the start of brain stimulation, the man is virtually seizure-free.

Dr. Cooper said he believes that the new work will "unquestionably lead to a whole new application of physiological surgery of the brain. It will prove that some diseases are reversible and will stimulate research."

Nicholson Graduates Reminded Laughter A Form of Protest

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Nicholson Catholic College graduates were urged Friday night to preserve a "spirit of carnival in their lives.

"This world with its social hierarchies should not be taken too seriously," said Rev. Harold A. O'Neill, guest speaker at the 40th graduation exercises of the school.

"Laughter in both an act of protest and an act of acceptance" of the human condition, he told graduates. Father O'Neill, a Belleville native and graduate of St. Michael's High School, the forerunner of NCC, is now professor of theology at the Toronto School of Theology and a member of the faculty of St. Augustine's Seminary, Scarborough.

"The hippies and flower children have tried to revive the world of carnival, but failed, because they forgot the world of work," he said.

Each individual must cultivate three worlds if he is to have the knowledge necessary to change the world for the better, said Father O'Neill. They are the worlds of prayer — listening to the voice of the Holy Spirit — the world of laughter and the world of work.

Father O'Neill, with wry humor, said he found Belleville known in metropolitan circles for only two things — whiskey and cheese, and the whiskey is not a native, being produced in what he referred to as a "a suburb of the city."

He urged the graduates to work with the talents God has given them — "and they appear to be considerable" and to respect the working materials God has put in their hands through modern technology.

"Never forget how to work and how to pray and you will be faithful to the principle of NCC," he said. "Then, like good whiskey and cheese you will only get better with age."

Valedictorian Mark Dallaire remarked on the "unique spirit that distinguishes NCC students from all others".

"We experienced our share of strife and frustration as we fought for understanding, freedom and responsibility," he said of his and classmates five years at the schools.

Archbishop W. L. Wilhelm of the Kingston Diocese presented the diplomas to honor graduates, giving up another engagement to attend the 40th anniversary of Catholic secondary education in Belleville.

Ontario scholars from the school, who received $100 awards were Mark Dallaire, Raymond Young, Richard Chiu, Peter McCabe, Kathryn Ryan and Emanuel Oliveira.

The Catholic doctors' and lawyers' scholarship of $300 was awarded to Mark Dallaire and the Catholic Women's League of Belleville bursaries went to Joanne Shannon and Karen Fraser.

The Intelligencer scholarship for high standing in grade 13 English was presented to Kathryn Ryan and Kenneth Welch and the St. Julien Chapter Chapter, IODE award of $100 was given to Peter Milne.

Pacelia Smith won the best all-round athlete prize and the student council award for the best all-round student.

The William T. Corney scholarship for general proficiency in grade 13, offered by St. Michael's College of the University of Toronto, was won by Kathryn Ryan and Peter McCabe. Karen Fraser won the University of Western Ontario admission scholarship.

Work on Quinte Plan About to Enter Phase 1

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

Work on the concept plan that will eventually lead to an official plan for the Quinte area will begin soon, Bert Kenny, Quinte Planning Board director, hopes to be able to present a report to the board by the end of this year.

Representatives of the five participating municipalities in the QPB — Belleville, Trenton, Frankford, Sidney and Thurlow Townships — gave their professional planning staff guidelines by which to prepare such a concept plan.

After the respective councils studied and considered the development philosophy report prepared by former senior planner Richard Danziger, each came back with a recommendation that future development in Quinte be based on the three urban areas — Frankford, Belleville and Trenton.

Planners will proceed from these recommendations to draw up more detailed plans for areas to be developed in future. "It's no longer a question of growth around the cities," said Mr. Kenny, "But where, specifically, around the urban areas." It's only logical to extend the services to where the development will go."

The work of Mr. Kenny and Stewart Murray, long range and research planner, will be to delineate several areas and bring a profesinclal staff recommendation before the board.

Taking into account the townships' concern with the manner of deed consents in their municipalities, Mr. Kenny said the work will consist of finding a compromise between rural non-farm development and that immediately outside present cities.

"What we have to look at is that the deed consent policy is not so loose that the designated areas become impotent.

"Growth must be allowed in the townships," continued Mr. Kenny, "but it must not take away from building in these designated areas. If this occurred, serviced lots would become prohibitively expensive for township ratepayers to support."

Landscaping To Proceed

The structure was built to conform in appearance with residential properties in the area, but the Harder Drive PUC substation is still going to be landscaped by planting of trees.

Planting of the trees — nine in all — will be done by city parks employees some time next week. A variety of trees will be planted as a demonstration of what can be done by selective landscaping.

City parks board officials recommended landscaping of the substation property and the utilities commission approved purchase of the trees.

Scottish Show Stopped Short

The Bonnie Scotland Show at Centennial Secondary school was cancelled Friday night because not enough tickets were sold to pay the seven performers their guaranteed fee.

Only some 200 tickets were sold for the show featuring the Twa Braw Lads, singer Dennis Clancy and accordionist Arthur Spinks. Ken Thompson, member of the sponsoring Y's Men's Club, said it would have required the sale of 500 tickets for the club to break even.

The show will go on the Centennial stage next week, Wednesday, October 10, at 8 p.m. said Mr. Thompson. It is hoped by this time that enough tickets will be sold.

Asked the reason why so few were bought, he said he felt the long Thanksgiving weekend drew people away to their cottages instead of drawing them to the show.

"We've held the Breath of Scotland four times in the past three years on Wednesday nights. It was a most successful night all four time," said Mr. Thompson. We took a gamble when we accepted the only day that was available. That was a Friday."

Mr. Thompson said tickets for next Wednesday's concert are available at McKnight's Variety and Leslie's Kki Den, both on Front St..

Youth Fails To Beat Light

A 16-year-old youth was taken to Belleville General Hospital where he remains in satisfactory condition after running in front of a car on Bridge St. East Friday night.

Christopher Bruce Potts, 16, of 71 Hastings Dr., was admitted to hospital with a fractured clavicle.

The youth, crossing from the north to the south side of Bridge St. at Pinnacle St., against a red light, ran in front of a car driven by Irene Swain, 66, of Holloway St. Belleville.

Police said Mrs. Swain was proceeding east on Bridge St. with the green light when the accident occurred. The youth rolled up onto the hood of the car and then fell to the ground.

The accident is still under investigation.

Fair Receipts Are Heavy

Total take, in fact, was down only $12 from a record set two years ago for the two-day event.

Paid admissions for both days this year were $5,129.

Education Beat

The Law Discriminates

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

The laws of Ontario discriminate against non-Roman Catholics through a little-known provision of the legislation covering schools.

Stated simply, the law allows Catholics to attend public schools. But Protestants and other non-Catholics can't switch their children from public to separate schools unless they pay a fee — $8 a month in Hastings county.

The origin of the law goes back to the mid 19th century and was clearly meant to be discriminatory, says a spokesman for the ministry of education's Region 9 office in Kingston. That it survives today, despite equal rights legislation, can be attributed to school boards' reluctance to upset the large sums necessary to fight it out in the courts.

"We could take it to court and win," says a separate school board official here, "but it isn't worth the cost."

The situation came to light when two Protestant children, former pupils at Queen Alexandra Sch ol, were transferred to St. Michael's Academy this fall. Several parents, disgruntled by the closing of the school, threatened to send their children to separate schools rather than have them bused to other public schools in the city. As nearly as can be determined, only two followed through.

One parent redesignated his taxes to the separate school board and caused considerable embarrassment at the Separate school office when it was discovered. The action is illegal.

Separate school supporters may redesignate their elementary school taxes to the public board and send their children to public schools. But non-Catholics can't switch.

(The secondary school property tax goes automatically to the public board, regardless of the religious affiliation of the ratepayer).

The law that denies non-Catholics the right to redesignate their elementary school taxes is hardly a buried issue in Belleville. But in some parts of Ontario (including part of Nipissing district under the jurisdiction of the local separate school board) separate schools are the only ones available. So, in a province where elementary education is supposed to be free to all, some Protestants must pay a fee for their children's education.

The fee is a sum that corresponds to the per-pupil provincial grant for each non-Catholic enrolled.

The irony of the situation lies in recent court rulings that make it illegal to question a citizen on his religious affiliation. In practice, schools do it every day.

Crash Hurts Quebec Man

A three car collision on highway 401 near the high way 37 overpass sent a Point Claire, Quebec, man to hospital Friday night.

Ernest James Sproston, of Pt. Claire, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital for observation with possible head and neck injuries.

Mr. Sproston and Margaret Becker of Kingston, driver of the third car, were travelling in the passing lane when a car driven by Frances T. Steele of Kingston pulled in front of the two cars.

The other two drivers were not injured.

Bike Jumps Off Curb

An eight-year-old girl sustained a fractured leg Friday night when the bicycle she was riding jumped off the sidewalk and crashed into a car at the corner of Catherine and Cedar Street.

Sue-Ellen Harris of Cedar St. was admitted to Belleville General Hospital. She is listed in fair condition with a cast on her left leg.

The car driven by Peter Lamin, 19, of Hanbury Dr., Belleville, was not damaged said Belleville police.

Damage to the bicycle was estimated at $50.

Thanksgiving Tableau

Pupils in the grade 5 class of Mrs. Wanda Bulcher at Queen Victoria School re-enacted the first year of Pilgrim living in New England Friday to give fellow pupils at school the explanation of what Thanksgiving is all about. Among the students involved were Gordon Irwin, Rob Bunnet, Steve Smith, Julie Koomen and Rhonda Fus.

Staub Scoffs At Mismatch

CINCINNATI (AP) — Rusty Staub, playing on a winner for the first time in his 13-year career, scoffed at mention of a mismatch as New York Mets set out to dethrone the defending National League champion Cincinnati Reds today.

"The Reds don't have a lock on this thing," said the red-haired New York outfielder. "Anyone who thinks they do is in for a surprise."

Manager Yogi Berra echoed Staub's sentiments.

"We ain't gonna roll over and play dead. Both teams start from scratch from here."

The Mets, winners of the Eastern Division with a one-game margin over Pittsburgh, have split the season series with seven and had a 2-0 record against the Mets.

Seaver, three-time 20-game winner for the Mets, has not beaten the Reds since May, 1972. He has only eight lifetime victories against the Reds in 20 decisions.

But his 125 victories in seven seasons lead the major leagues in that category.

"He's the best pitcher in baseball," said Sparky Anderson, manager of the Reds.

"Billingham has been our most consistent pitcher this year. That's why I wanted to match him with Seaver," said Anderson, whose Reds rode the right arm of a sensational last-half winning streak to claim a third Western Division title in four years.

The first game was scheduled for 4 p.m. EDT, with reserve skies predicted.

The Mets, making their first appearance in the playoff since their miracle finish in 1969, went into today's opener with 24 victories in their last 34 games.

"We know what we've got to do," said Mets' shortstop Bud Harrelson, member of the 1969 crew that swept through the playoff in three straight and went on to stun highly-favored Baltimore in the World Series.

"This is an all-around better ball club than the '69 team," said Seaver, the winningest pitcher in the 12-year history of the Mets.

Staub dismissed a showdown of Mets' pitching versus the Reds' hitting.

"Remember it was supposed to be the same thing in 1969 and the Mets outscored Atlanta 27-2.

"The Reds feel they have the better team. That's on paper, but we're gonna find out on the field."

Centennial quarterback Robbie Mulong appears to be in trouble after getting away a pass in yesterday's senior football game between Chargers and BCI. No less than four BCI defenders broke through the Centennial lines on this play to complete a sweep of the football doubleheader played at CSS.

Canadians Nip Marlboros 5-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

What a difference a summer can make!

Toronto Marlboros, who dominated the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series last season and captured the Memorial Cup, ran into hot goaltending Friday, losing to Kingston Canadians 5-3 despite firing 53 shots at the Kingston goal.

In other league games, Peterborough Petes tied Kitchener Rangers 4-4, Sudbury Wolves defeated Hamilton Red Wings 5-3, London Knights outscored St. Catharines Black Hawks 6-4 and Oshawa Generals beat Ottawa 67s 4-1.

Steve Dise, making his first start of the season, was the latest barrier in the way of the Marlboros, who have lost all three starts and are the only team in the league without a point.

Brad Rhiness, Mike O'Connell, Eric Brubacher, Barry Scully and Roger Dorion shared in the Kingston scoring. Rick Dudley scored twice for the visitors, with Bruce Boudrias getting the other.

At Kitchener, the Petes needed Billy Eyo's goal at 18:22 of the final period to keep their undefeated record intact. Ed Smith and Paul Mitchell got the other Peterborough goals while Doug Risebrough, Rick Chartraw and Dave Gardner scored for Kitchener who led 1-0 after the first period and 3-1 entering the third.

At Hamilton, the Wolves spotted Hamilton a first-period goal and then scored five consecutive times to get the game out of reach. Ron Duguay, Bill Best, Geoff Grew, Gord McTavish and Bob Russell scored for Sudbury. Greg Hickey, Dwayne Rupert and Dave Buryl replied for Hamilton.

Hamilton drew 10 of 16 penalties, including misconduct and game misconduct decisions for defenceman Ron Roscoe.

At London, Knights recorded their third consecutive win after two defeats. Ron Zanussi scored twice for the winners with single goals going to Dennis Maruk, Jim Beauchamp, Nicholson and Tom Rowe.

Kevin Kenney scored three goals on his first three shots of the game for St. Catharines, Greg Craig got the other.

Oshawa showed the home-team Wfs a 1-0 first-period lead before tying it at 1-1 in the second and adding three unanswered goals in the third.

Brian Kilrea scored twice for Oshawa with Bill Lochead and Bud Stefanski getting the others. Gerry McLeod scored for Ottawa.

SUONO, Japan (Reuter) — Hsieh Min-tan of Taiwan carded a four-under-par 68 Friday for a two-day total of 134, to maintain his lead at the halfway point of the Golf Digest Tournament. Geoff Knudson had a 74 Friday and his 144 total was not good third round.

Oakland Has Experience

BALTIMORE (AP) — Oakland finished as the best team in baseball's post-season experience, but Baltimore Orioles will try to qualify for their fourth World Series since 1969.

While only nine Orioles on the current roster are veterans of American League baseball playoffs, Oakland's 1972 World Series champs have come long way since three straight losses to Baltimore in the playoffs of 1971.

Before today's opening game of the best-of-five series, at 1 p.m. EDT, in which Oakland ace Vida Blue (20-9) was to face Jim Palmer (22-9), manager Earl Weaver of the Orioles said: "This time, I have some players who have a little more wide-eyed."

By starting the left-handed Blue, however, manager Dick Williams of Oakland will enable the Orioles to field a lineup with more experience.

Rookie outfielders Al Bumbry and Rich Coggins, both left-handed batters, were to be benched although they led Baltimore with .337 and .319 averages respectively, and were to be replaced by Don Baylor and Merv Rettenmund.

"I don't know how much experience was out there before, or how much it will be this year," Weaver said, "but in 1971, I heard the A's were nervous and a little awed.

"Oakland not only has more experience now, but the club has been playing together and ready to pitch. In 1971, they brought Diego Segui out of the bullpen to start the third game.

"We have less experience and don't hit as many long balls now, but we have better defence and speed, and hit for a better average."

Boog Powell of the Orioles hit .306 average in Baltimore's three playoff sweeps of 1969-70-71, was to be replaced at first base in the opener by Earl Williams, with Andy Etchebarren taking over for Williams as catcher.

The Orioles' lineup was to include nine right-handed swingers to face Blue, while the right-handed Palmer will likely contend with just two lefties.

Joe Rudi, slugger Reggie Jackson, has been bothered since he pulled leg muscle and a sore throat.

Oakland won the season series with Baltimore 7-3, but the Orioles figure its 8-0 playoff record may be even more important.

"I think we have a psychological advantage," said Dave McNally, Baltimore's pitcher for Sunday's game. "We've never lost a playoff game, and beat them three straight.

"I know that gives us a lot of confidence going into this thing, and I would think it bothers them just a little bit."

Payne Returns to Fundamentals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some football coaches make a habit of fundamentals and it appears John Payne of Saskatchewan Roughriders is one of them.

He promised Friday to go back to fundamentals in preparation for Saskatchewan's Western Football Conference game with British Columbia Lions Sunday in Regina, hoping the Roughriders can extend their mastery over the Lions at Taylor Field.

B.C. hasn't won a game on Saskatchewan turf since Sept. 10, 1963. The Roughriders, smarting from a last-moment defeat by Edmonton Eskimos last weekend, have vowed their Lions won't end their losing streak Sunday.

Payne had some good news for Roughrider fans when he said will be honored by the club at a little game ceremonies commemorating his football records in rushing and touchdowns.

Quarterback Kerry Dougan, Payne's fullback Thompson, apparently has recovered from a pulled groin muscle.

It's a big weekend for every WFC club.

Edmonton, tied with Saskatchewan for top spot, plays at home Monday against Winnipeg Blue Bombers, and Calgary Stampeders, who hold third place, meet Toronto Argonauts in the first game of a two-game eastern swing.

Dougan is expected to start for B.C., although Don Moorhead, ousted No. 1 by coach Eagle Keys, will be dressed. Moorhead has a sprained ankle and has been suffering from the flu.

Running back Monroe Eley also is a doubtful starter for B.C. with a charleyhorse and linebacker Peter Palmer, who wrenched an ankle in practice, won't start. Defensive back Brian Donnelly has a shoulder separation that should keep him out tight end Lefty Hendrickson will play despite a torn calf muscle.

In Donnelly's place, if necessary, the Lions will use import Dave Esquerre. Harry Abels, released recently by Edmonton Eskimos, has been activated.

Running Could Be Difference

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Jim Duncan of Calgary Stampeders admits the Western Football Conference club has not been fair to its running backs.

"We've used Bob Wyatt as a pass receiver . . . as a fullback," said Duncan. "We've used Rudy Linterman in the same position . . . as a tight end, as a slot back; we've just been juggling' these fellows around and we haven't given them the type of attack that we would like to give them."

Heading into today's Canadian Football League interlocking game against Toronto Argonauts, the running game could be a major factor for both teams if one of them happened to come up with it.

The Argonauts have gained 1,192 yards rushing—second worst in the Eastern Football Conference—and have scored 26 tens 733 yards—worst in the CFL.

John Rauch of the Argonauts will have their two new faces in his lineup today—running back Kerry Marbury, linebacker Ken Lee and defensive lineman Ron Curl.

Marbury, 20, who strained ligaments in his right knee in training camp which kept him out of earlier action, will replace Pete Watson, injured in last Saturday's game in Vancouver against British Columbia Lions. Marbury is from the University of West Virginia.

Lee, from Buffalo Bills of the National Football League, will start at middle linebacker against the Western Football Conference Stampeders.

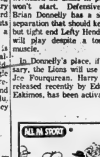
Curl, formerly with Pittsburgh Steelers of the NFL, will start at defensive tackle, replacing Jim Sullwagon who is on the 30-day injured reserve list with a knee injury.

Meanwhile, linebacker Gene Mack was placed on the 30-day list Friday. He received a kidney injury in the Vancouver game. Mike Blum, who has been playing at middle and outside linebacker, will replace Mack.

"Today, we're going to use Linterman as a running back," Duncan told a news conference Friday night. "Wyatt will be used as a fullback."

As a receiver Linterman has caught 26 passes this season for 458 yards and two touchdowns.

He has rushed for 90 yards on 26 carries.



The Stampeders, with one of the poorest records against eastern games in the interlocking schedule, are third in the WFC with 10 points. Saskatchewan Roughriders and Edmonton Eskimos share first place with 14 points each.

In the East, the Argonauts lead with 12 points, one more than Montreal Alouettes and two ahead of Ottawa Rough Riders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The Stampeders will likely start Jim Hadley at quarterback instead of Peter Liske who suffered a dislocated finger in Calgary's last game at home against Hamilton.

Monday, the Alouettes play host to the Stampeders, while the Rough Riders play in Hamilton.

The Toronto-Calgary game will be televised on the CBC national network starting at 2 p.m. EDT.

"I hear you're using the wishbone today, Coach. But is it smart to rely on just sheer luck?"

Bruins Win Without Bobby

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Without Boston Bruins' Bobby Orr, some say Boston Bruins are a mercenary team. So much for that bit of wisdom.

The Bruins played without the 25-year-old speedster Friday night and won 8-4 over New York Rangers in a wild National Hockey League exhibition game in Providence.

Rookie Chis Oddsfidson scored two goals, as did Don Marcotte, and Andre Savard picked up four assists-before 10,647 fans—the largest hockey crowd in Providence history.

Orr? He remained in Boston because of back muscle spasms.

In other NHL games, Minnesota North Stars whipped Vancouver Canucks 7-0, Toronto Maple Leafs tied Philadelphia Flyers 3-3, Denver Spurs of the Western Hockey League downed St. Louis 8-2, California Golden Seals earned a 3-3 tie with New York Islanders and Chicago Black Hawks tied Montreal Canadiens 3-3.

The Bruins snapped a 3-3 tie when veteran Johnny Bucyk connected at 8:08 of the second period. Then Richie Leduc scored the fifth goal against Gilles Villemure and Ed Giacomin took over.

Ten seconds later, Marcotte scored and just another 39 seconds later Oddsfidson — formerly with Winnipeg Jets of the Western Canada Hockey League — made it 6-3.

Other Boston scorers were Fred O'Donnell and Phil Esposito.

The North Stars banded the Canucks their second defeat against seven victories—thanks to three goals by J. P. Parise. Minnesota now has a 5-3-2 record.

The game was played before 9,365 fans—only 209 short of capacity—in Des Moines, Iowa.

In Oklahoma City, Ron Ellis scored with less than four minutes remaining to give the Leafs their tie. Bill "Barber also scored twice for the Flyers.

Veteran Pit Martin got two goals in the third period which enabled the Hawks to tie the Canadiens in Moncton, N.B. Michael Lemaire and Yvon Cournoyer were the Montreal marksmen.

Marshall Johnston's goal at 6:39 of the final period enabled the Seals to tie the Islanders, now defeated after nine games with five wins and four ties.

One of New York's goals was scored by rookie Denis Potvin, formerly with Ottawa 67s of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series. A crowd of 805 watched the game.

Denyer scored a shorthanded goal and one into an empty net as its supreme win over St. Louis. It was the second time the Spurs have beaten the parent Blues in exhibition play.

The NHL concludes its exhibition schedule this weekend.

Buffalo meets Pittsburgh, California plays the Islanders, Atlanta meets meet Detroit, Vancouver takes on Minnesota and Philadelphia tackles St. Louis-in games tonight.

Tough Back Checking

Belleville Screaming Eagle's winger Ray Monahan lays on a check to Brantford's Terry McKnight in last night's Senior A league opener at the Memorial Arena. Johnston's tough checking helped the Eagles to a 4-3 win over the visiting Foresters.

Screaming Eagles Open Year With 4-2 Win Over Foresters

By ALAN TEWORTH
Sports Staff

The Belleville Screaming Eagles played their first OHA Senior A Game ever last night, and came up with a solid team effort to dump the Brantford Foresters 4-3 before a disappointing opening night crowd of only about 600 fans.

The Eagles came out with an entertaining brand of hockey for those in attendance, though, in scoring three goals in the third period to pick up the initial victory.

The first period of the game seemed to be a feeling out type of hockey for both teams, with some of the many near faces on both teams getting their first taste of Senior hockey.

The first period was rather slow and sloppy, although there were several good scoring chances by Belleville early in the period.

Al Ferguson was the opportunist on two of the tries as he and John McConnell went in on a two on one. with Ferguson blasting a strong shot, only to have Brantford goalie Stan Worsan come up with a fine glove save.

About a minute later, Ferguson worked in around the Brantford defense to get a clear shot on Worasz, but again being foiled by the quick glove of the Brantford goalie.

The play was very chippy in the first stanza, resulting in a one sided fight between Brantford's Bill Gratton and the Eagles' Mike Walt. Gratton jumped Walt from behind to deck Walt and put a seven inch gash in Walt's head. For his efforts in received a fighting major as well as an interference minor.

A close checking, but sloppy game continued until the latter stages of the second period when things started to pick up.

John McConnell went in alone on a nice pass from Wayne Weller, but was stopped from behind by Mike Corbett, with the shot going wide of the net.

An excellent chance again was stopped by Worasz, as he beat John Blastarah on a clear breakaway on the resulting power-play, which led to Brantford's first goal.

John McMillan picked up the loose puck and gave it to Terry McKnight, who fired a rink-side pass to Bob Cunningham. Cunningham fired a shot from the back of the forward circle past a screened Karl Bagnell for the opening goal of the game.

Just thirty seconds later, though the Eagles tied the game up, as Les Colligan fired a backhand shot past Worasz in the slot after taking a pass from Al Ferguson stationed in the corner. Ralph Plane also received an assist on the goal.

The third period continued to provide good chances for both teams, but neither team could score until 2:18 of the period. Both goaltenders were exceptionally sharp in holding the score down.

Chuck Forte put Belleville ahead at the 8:18 mark of the third, as he fired a shot from the point that Worasz juggled before letting it drop into the net.

Twelve seconds later, the main boring bout of the night was held which appeared to be started by Mike Corbett and newcomer on the Belleville defense, Greg Burkitt. However the main combatants were Rollie Berry and Gratton.

Berry connected with several good head punches in taking the decision.

On the power-play which resulted from the fisticuffs penalties that were assessed, Weller put Belleville in front 3-1 with the eventual winning goal as he pulled Worasz out of the net to tuck a shot into the net. He had received the puck on a rebound of Burkitt's weak point shot.

The Foresters narrowed the score to a margin of one goal, though, at 14:32 as Al Osbourne skated the length of the ice to beat Blastarah, and sent a pass to Jim Reid, who slipped the puck past Bagnell.

Al Ferguson put the game in the bag for the Eagles, however, at 15:03 of the final period, as he got credit for a goal that went in off Brantford defenseman Ron Woodhouse's skate. Ferguson had shot the puck to the front of the net from the corner, and went in on a 90 degree angle to where Worasz was situated.

Worasz, along with Bagnell, were the stars of the game, with both responding in key positions with the utmost of efficiency.

They were responsible for keeping the score down to 4 -3, with both coming up with numerous key saves.

Eagles' coach Larry Hughes was also quick to point this out, as he stated the goaltending was the key to the team effort which won the game from the Foresters.

He considered possibly the top team in the league this season.

He was also very pleased with the play of the young players in the game, with the under 23 group performing notably better as the game wore on.

The Eagles outshot the Foresters by 13 shots in the game, with totals of 44 to 31.

FAIRLY SIGN CONTRACT

MONTREAL (CP) — Ron Fairly, a veteran outfielder-first baseman with Montreal Expos, has signed his 1974 contract with the National League baseball club, it was announced Friday. Fairly, 35, hit .298 for Montreal in 1973 for his best performance since he hit .322 for Los Angeles Dodgers in 1961. Fairly also had 86 walks, belted 17 home runs and had 69 runs batted in for the Expos.

Centennial Takes Doubleheader, Beat BCI 49-0, 33-12

By CHARLEY VANDERWATER

The Centennial Charger Senior Football team proved too strong an opponent for their BCI counterparts yesterday as they romped to a 49-0 victory over the Collegians in a game played at C.C.I.

Led by Bob Vanderwater with three touchdowns, and Dick Howe with a pair of majors, the Centennial attack showed excellent depth on all fronts.

From the first snap, Centennial never let up, forcing numerous costly BCI errors..

Centennial's Doug Nash picked up an early touchdown on a dive from the one yard line on the first set of offensive plays Centennial had, will Steve Tilley's convert attempt into the wind no good.

On the series after Centennial's kickoff, BCI fumbled to give the Chargers the ball once again in good field position, with Bob Vanderwater picking up the first of his three touchdowns on a short off tackle run.

The end of the first quarter saw another fumble by BCI, and a 19-0 marking on the scoreboard.

Early in the second quarter, Vanderwater supplied the Chargers with his third score of the day as he dove over once again from the one. Dick Howe supplied the two point conversion with a fine reception of a Robbie DeJong pass.

Howe stole the show on his (first of two major scoring plays, a 39 yard reverse which completely fooled the BCI defense.

He then followed up by running back a stray Russ Simonds pass 26 yards for the touchdown, the second time in two games for the Centennial standout.

Although this ended the scoring for the half, the fireworks were not over as a sideline skirmish resulted in five players being ejected from the game, three from Centennial, and two from the Chargers.

This battle somehow seemed to ignite a spark into the BCI squad, as they recovered their own punt, and then managed their only big gain of the day as Peter Lefkaren ran for 31 yards.

Time ran out on the Collegians, however, and they were not able to score before the time ran out in the half.

The third quarter was a much quieter affair, as Centennial Coach Pat Carty played his second string offense for the entire half.

BCI also added to its own dilemma in the second half, with many mixups in the defense.

Vanderwater led the winners with an 87 yard total on 18 carries, while Lynch had 69 yards on 13 carries.

In the junior contest, Centennial's team came up with another fine game to defeat the BCI juniors 33 -12.

Paul Bedard led the Chargers with two touchdowns, while Dennis Kamada, Bob Thompson, and Dave Long adding the other major scores.

Here Centennial's third win against no defeats.

Garrie Vaughan, Kirk Sutherland and Dave McCullagh got the other Orillia goals. Corley Adams scored for Barrie.

At Welland, Terry Keeling scored twice for GALT. Brian Shortreed and Dennis Kramer got the other goals.

MINOR LEAGUE FIVE-PINS

WHA Forecast

Aeros, Whalers Look Good

By LLOYD JOHNSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The world Hockey Association, spawned in a sea of skepticism less than two years ago, is set to open its second season tonight, despite an opening rush that encumbered the teams with leases of $15 million.

But Gary Davidson, WHA president, remained optimistic as he conceded each of the 12 teams suffered an average loss of $1.25 million during the 1972-73 season.

"We didn't expect to make money the first year. We had to make sure we survived and paid our bills," Davidson said.

"This year," he predicted, "attendance will improve and our costs won't be as high—especially the zest of players."

That may be, but you couldn't prove it by Houston Aeros and several other teams that loosened their purse strings indulging in off-season shopping sprees.

The Aeros, second-place finishers in the Western Division last season, pulled off the biggest deal since the signing of superstar Bobby Hull by Winnipeg Jets first lent credibility to the league.

They raised the hackles of the National Hockey League and Canadian Amateur Hockey Association officials by wooing the Howe brothers Mark and Mark, away from Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series and followed through by signing the boys' father, Gordie.

Both Howe boys had junior eligibility remaining.

Playing with his sons on the same professional team—a lifetime dream—and a long-term $1 million contract motivated the 46-year-old Howe into reactivating his career.

Other "name" NHL players who jumped to the WHA this year were defenceman Pat Stapleton and Ralph Backstrom, Chicago Black Hawks; Serge Bernier, Los Angeles Kings; Boston Bruins' forward Mike Walton and Montreal Canadiens' Marc Tardif.

New York Raiders, originally owned by lawyers Dick Wood and Seymour Siegel, were taken over by the league after the season was two months old, but the franchise was subsequently sold to another New York group headed by Lee Madison and the team was renamed Golden Blades.

The switch of the Blazers to Vancouver necessitated a realignment of the league's two divisions, with Chicago moving from the West Division to the East and the Blazers taking Chicago's spot in the West.

Other teams in the East are WHA defending champion New England Whalers, the Golden Blades, Cleveland Crusaders, Quebec Nordiques and the Toros.

In addition to the Blazers, the Western Division is made up of Winnipeg Jets, the Aeros, the Fighting Saints, the Sharks and Edmonton Oilers.

The Whalers, under new coach Ron Ryan, have added at least four players who have tasted NHL competition—Don Blackburn, Mike Keeler, Al Karlander and Hugh Harris. Returnees include Tom Webster, Larry Pleau, Jim Dorey, John French, Ted Green, Brad Selwood, Rick Ley, Al Smith and rookie-of-the-year Terry Caffery.

The Eastern Division teams should finish in the following order:

1. New England Whalers
2. Cleveland Crusaders
3. Quebec Nordiques
4. Chicago Cougars
5. New York Golden Blades
6. Toronto Toros

The Cougars, under Stapleton's guidance, should finish higher than the last-place they occupied in the Western Division.

Tops among the youngsters aimed is Francois Rochon, a left-winger who had 108 points for Sherbrooke Beavers in the Quebec junior league last year. Another promising rookie is centre Dave Walter, who earned 116 points for Rhode Island in the Eastern League.

The Nordiques, with Jacques Plante at the helm, also appear to have improved their roster.

"We should provide some exciting hockey, with players like J. C. Tremblay, Rejean Houle, Serge Bernier and Dale Hoganson," Plante said. He is also pleased with the signing of veteran minor leaguers Jeannot Gilbert and Alain Beaule, Michel Deguise in goal and Pierre Guite for left wing, a weak spot in Nordiques' lineup.

Cleveland Crusaders have added experience in the Hillman brothers, Larry, from the NHL Buffalo Sabres and Wayne from Philadelphia. They're solid in goal with Gerry Cheevers.

Although the Toros finished fourth last season, and knocked out New York and Quebec in the playoffs, they're likely to be involved in a hassle with the Golden Blades for fifth or sixth place.

Carl Brewer's name adds some lustre to the Toros' lineup, but it's been some time since he was an all-star defenceman. Wayne Carleton was a big cruiser for the Nats but power is injury.

That leaves coach Billy Harris in a position where he must rely heavily on his new young forwards—Pete Marrin and Wayne Dillon from Toronto Marlboros, Pat Hickey from Hamilton, Lou Nistico, London and Gord Tilcomb from St. Catharines.

The Blades feel more secure behind the blueline with the acquisition of Harry Howell, But at 40 years of age, he's beyond the rookie stage. If he can impart his knowledge to the budding defenceman, that's an area in which he can be most useful to the New Yorkers.

In the West, out of respect for the Howes, it seems the Aeros could replace the Jets as division leaders.

Probable finish:

1. Houston Aeros
2. Winnipeg Jets
3. Vancouver Blazers
4. Minnesota Fighting Saints
5. Edmonton Oilers
6. Los Angeles Sharks

Winnipeg has the same team, basically, which won the Western Division last year. But the offence still remains suspect and unless there are some last-minute signings, playing-coach Bobby Hull, Norm Beaudin and Chris Bordeleau will still have to provide the scoring punch.

The performance of rookies Dan Spring from Dallas of the Central League, Ron Sedl from Hershey Bears of the AHL, Jim Hargreaves, defenceman from Vancouver Canucks and Ken Stephanson, who was traded to the Jets by the Toros for Steve Carlson, will have a bearing on the Jets' success.

Edmonton may advance a notch. They also have a new coach—Brian Shaw. The addition of Chris Worthy in goal and Jim McCrimmon, a towering defenceman from the junior Medicine Hat Tigers could bolster the offence headed by Jim Harrison.

The B'nars biggest loss was goalie Bernie Parent, who refused to move to the West Coast.

With John McKenzie, Danny Lawson—a 61-goals man last season—and Don Herriman, the B'nars have adequate productivity up front.

"We have to get more goals and we thought by allowing Johnny to concentrate on playing was the way to do it," Watson said. Both McKenzie and coach Phil Watson say the B'nars will be a better team than last year.

But proof of the pudding is in the eating and the first course will be served tonight when the Golden Blades visit Cleveland. The Cougars face the Toros in Toronto and the Nordiques visit the Whalers Sunday in other games launching the 1973-74 campaign.

JACK NICKLAUS

Nicklaus, Greene Tied

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Bert Greene, co-leaders in the rain-plagued $125,000 Ohio Kings Island open golf tournament.

"The greens had a lot of spike marks in the afternoon," said Greene, who matched Nicklaus' three-under-par 68. "Maybe that was good for me the marks threw my putts back in line toward the hole."

Greene had nine one-putters in his 29-putt round. Nicklaus was nearly as sharp on the soggy Nicklaus Golf Centre greens, ramming in seven one-putters and taking 29 putts.

Both leaders took advantage of Thursday's washout. Greene was one-over-par after seven holes. Nicklaus had an eagle-3 and a birdie on his second rounds of 1973.

It was a remarkable turnaround for Nicklaus, who can take over the lead in money winnings from fifth Bruce Crampton with a victory here, worth $25,000.

Instead of being seven shots behind Tom Weiskopf, the leader Thursday, he was sharing the top spot in quest of a 50th career tour victory. Sikes had 71 this time.

Greene wasn't even on the big leader-boards sprinkled around the 6,915-yard course when he charged home with four birdies on the last six holes. That didn't bother him.

"I had enough trouble just watching for my ball in the high grass," explained the 29 year-old blond from Hattiesburg, Miss. He's won only once in seven seasons on the tour.

It was crowded at the top with 18 players bunched within three shots on the 14-month-old course.

One shot back of the co-leaders came Rod Curl and John Schroeder with 69s.

Tom Weiskopf, who lost a 83 Thursday, posted a 70 along with Gary Grob, Tom Kite, Billy Zlobro and Bruce Fleisher.

Blood Donation Can't Give Cancer

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thompson: Is it possible to get cancer through blood transfusions when the donor is found to have cancer a short time (three weeks in this case) after giving the blood.

There is quite a bit of anxiety among donors to the local blood bank because of this. The donor who gave the blood died eight months later.—Mrs. W.M.H.

The very word "cancer" raises fear in most people, but on the basis of known facts, I do not think there should be such anxiety among members of your blood bank.

There is no documented case of cancer being transmitted by blood-transfusions in normal human beings—and believe, me, this is something that has been watched with great care.

In experimental laboratory animals (such as mice), one form of blood cancer has been transmitted by injecting blood with that particular disease but mice aren't people and to my knowledge it applies only to that particular cancer.

So I repeat: we have no case in which a normal human being has been proved to get cancer from a transfusion and until such a thing is known to have happened I am unwilling to believe that it can happen at all.

As further evidence, quite a few years ago actual cancer tissue was transplanted from volunteers, some who already had cancer and some who did not. This transplanted tissue survived and grew in the patients who already had cancer. But, without exception, it did not survive in those who did not have cancer.

Since if you can't transmit cancer with actual tissue, I do not see how it could be done with blood. Personally I'll continue to have blood donations made until there is evidence of harm.

I doubt if there will be.

Dear Dr. Thompson: I am 19 and have sent away for a bust developer (exercises) but now I am afraid to try it for fear it might cause breast cancer or a tumor. Are there any advantages for these systems or am I wasting my money?—M.L.

I'll answer your first question: I don't see a particle of risk as concerns cancer or tumors.

But whether the system works for you—I'll ask for a refund, I want you to let me know, say two months from now, whether this bust development system has done you any good at all. I'm skeptical.

Dear Dr. Thompson: The lady who asked what to do to relieve her husband's dry cough reminded me of my cousin who was 45 and had the same trouble.

He went to three doctors who couldn't find anything wrong. The fourth doctor gave him a prescription for drops and then said: "Do you really want to stop coughing?"

My cousin said, "That's what I came to see you about."

The doctor said, "Then give up smoking and, you'll stop coughing."

He quit smoking and that was the last of his coughing.—F.S.

Terribly hard to recognize the obvious sometimes, isn't it?

Opening lead—four of clubs.

There are set many hands where a play is truly difficult. Usually, when a play is overlooked, it is because the play is contrary to normal procedure.

Consider this deal where West led a club and declarer won East's jack with the queen. Spades were obviously the suit to attack, so South led the jack and finessed, losing to the queen.

Back came a club and South was in trouble. He permitted West's nine to win, but West played another club, forcing out the ace, and soon got in with the ace of spades to put the contract down one.

Actually, South should have made the hand. He should have allowed East to win the opening club lead with the jack. Had he ducked, he would have finished with 10 tricks.

East could then do no better than return a club and South's Q-10 would have trapped West's king. Assuming that West covered the queen, declarer would win with the ace, play a diamond to the king, and finesse the jack of spades. East would take the queen but would be helpless. Whatever he returned, declarer would dislodge the ace of spades and score the rest of the tricks.

There is a sound basis for ducking the jack of clubs. West is marked with the king by East's failure to play it at trick one, and the retention of the Q-10 maintains two solid tricks for South. The advantage of refusing the jack is that it cuts communication between the defenders in clubs in case the heart is divided 5-2.

If the clubs are divided 4-3, the contract is equally secure, for at most, defense will score two spades and two clubs. To duck is therefore perfectly sound — even though it is unusual.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
L O N G F E L L O W

One letter stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Israelis Bomb Damascus, Cairo

From AP-REUTER

Israeli jets were reported to have launched bombing raids on Damascus and Cairo today in a major escalation of the fighting in the Middle East.

Ground battles raged along the Suez canal and the Golan Heights.

Associated Press correspondent C.C. Minicier reported from Cairo that "we are in the middle of an air raid." He made the report in a telephone call to the AP bureau in Athens, but the line then went dead.

Israeli Phantom jets bombing in Damascus were said to have damaged the Syrian defence ministry and the government radio station across the street.

The Lebanese defence ministry said Israeli jets struck an army radar station 18 miles east of Beirut and there were reports of Israeli armor crossing into Lebanon, so far not involved in the fighting, as the four-day conflict widened.

The Israeli strikes on Cairo and Damascus were taken as an indication Israeli air power was having its way in the Middle East skies despite Egyptian and Syrian reports that they have downed nearly a third of Tel Aviv's approximately 600 planes.

Syria threatened retaliation for the raid on Damascus and Tel Aviv residents were warned by loudspeaker trucks to double-check blackout measures and stock up supplies in their air raid shelters.

In a side development, Kuwait called for a meeting of Arab oil ministers, an indication, many observers said, that the flow of Arab oil to western countries might be cut as an indirect weapon against Israel.

The reports of heavy fighting in both the Golan Heights and along the Suez Canal seemed to contradict optimistic Israeli reports Monday that Israeli counterattacks were rolling forward.

Both sides are still claiming successes, but there is no talk in Israel of a six-day blitz to match their 1967 victory. And on the Arab side Syria, at least, also is controlling its optimism.

A senior Israeli air force officer said Monday that Israel had command of the skies but the Egyptian and Syrian air forces "are still basically intact."

"We did not attack and eliminate them on the ground as in the six-day war," he said in a television interview.

Another interviewed Israeli officer, fighting in the Suez Canal front against Egypt, praised the ferocity and discipline of the Egyptian attack and said he was encountering weapons and tactics he hadn't seen before.

On the Golan Heights front, the responsibility of Syria in the Arabs' two-pronged attack, there were no victory claims from the Syrian side, an indication that Israel's claims of advances there were accurate. Damascus Radio has issued no new communiques since before noon Monday, merely repeating earlier information.

Israel reported by Monday afternoon had the Syrian troops and armor were "fleeing in disarray" toward Damascus, but later admitted there were stubborn pockets of resistance.

Israeli chief of staff Gen. David Elazar, asked if Israeli troops intended to move on Damascus, replied:

"The troops are moving from our territory against the other side. We shall see in the next few days the direction and the results."

Israel's top military analyst and former military intelligence chief, Gen. Chaim Herzog, forecast Monday night that a final decision could be a few more days away.

Egyptian communiques were more optimistic than the Syrian. They said Egyptian troops captured the town of El Quseima of the east bank of the Suez Canal in hand-to-hand combat and raised an unidentified Arab held by Israel since the 1956 war.

Cairo said fires were set at the oilfield, a driller was destroyed and that "our troops returned safely to their bases."

There was no word on the attack from the Israelis. The field supplies most of Israel's domestic oil needs.

Egypt said today its forces had swept nine miles from the canal into Sinai, stealing the Israeli "fleeing in disarray into the desert," and were in the process destroying an Israeli tank brigade and capturing its commander, a colonel. But a report from Tel Aviv said Israeli forces were pushing the Egyptians back and were within four miles of the waterway.

Hasty Pees Remember

About 300 wartime members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment gathered in Belleville on Thanksgiving weekend for their 29th annual reunion and memorial service, held at the regimental cenotaph on Belleville armory lawn. The reunion concluded Sunday afternoon with a dinner at Legion Hall where Lieut.-Col. Lord Tweedsmuir, former colonel commanding officer, addressed the guests.

Saskatchewan's Waffle Quits NDP

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — Members of the New Democratic Party in no longer compatible with the goals of socialism and Canadian independence, the Saskatchewan Waffle movement decided in a three-day convention that ended Monday.

The 200 delegates, two-thirds of total Waffle membership in the province, decided almost unanimously Saturday to leave the provincial NDP and set up their own political party. Sunday was devoted to launching a policy-formulation process and Monday's session consisted of debate on organizational tactics.

Except for part of Saturday morning's discussion, the convention was closed to the news media.

At a news conference Monday, Waffle President Don Mitchell emphasized that the new party will not be designed merely to get votes. Their strategy did not have an electoral emphasis, he said. The party would act with workers, farmers and persons exploited by the present economic system.

He said the character of the Waffle—known as the radical left wing of the NDP—would not change, but organization would make the movement more effective.

The convention decided that effective next January no member of another political party would be allowed to be a member of the Waffle. Previously, the Waffle constitution had said membership in the NDP is "compatible with the goals of socialism and independence."

Mr. Mitchell confirmed that the decision means Waffle spokesman John Richards, NDP member of the legislature for Saskatoon University, could not remain in both the NDP and the Waffle. Mr. Richards is the only one of the 45 NDP members of the legislature to be identified with the Waffle.

Three People and Baby Rescued from Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Three young persons and a baby, marooned about 700 yards upstream from Niagara Falls, withstood swift-flowing water for 2½ hours Sunday awaiting rescue.

Before they were helped to safety, their boat went over the falls, a helicopter crashed, a patrol boat was lost to the contract and six would-be rescuers wound up in the water.

A small outboard motor boat on the upper Niagara River was carrying Lee Sweitzer, 21, Jerry Land, 20, Joanne Horn, 21, and her son Michael, 1½, all from the Buffalo area.

The engine went dead and the boat began to drift downstream. As it approached rapids near Goat Island, the passengers climbed out into waist-high water. They stood in one spot, not daring to move toward the island 150 yards away for fear of losing their footing in the current.

Their boat was swept over the crest of Niagara's Horseshoe Falls.

Police, spotting the stranded party, used a lightweight helicopter to try to make an aerial rescue. But when one of the boaters grabbed the aircraft's skid as it hovered low, the pilot lost control and the helicopter crashed into the river beside them.

Park authorities next tried sending a police powerboat to their aid, but its outboard engine failed as it neared the helpless group.

Two officers from the patrol boat made their way to the helicopter but a third officer, the last to abandon the boat, became caught up in the current. He drifted about 100 yards closer to the falls before being pulled ashore by a "human chain" of fellow police. The boat continued on over the brink.

Finally a heavy cable was hurled out to the marooned. After anchoring the loose end to the helicopter's skids, one car rying the baby, inched along the line to shore.

Chileans Say 40,000 Shot, Burned, Drowned

MONTREAL (CP) — Chilean exiles here claim President Salvadore Allende was "assassinated Sept. 11" in the coup that brought a military junta to power, and that at least 40,000 workers were shot, burned to death or tossed bound into a river.

Hernan Ortego, president of a Santiago industrial workers union, said through an interpreter that another 14,000 Chileans are imprisoned, their families persecuted and their homes subject to raids and thefts.

Speaking for a group of 18 Chileans who arrived here Sunday, he said the National Stadium in Santiago is little more than a concentration camp.

Woman, 93, Strangled At Hensall

HENSALL, Ont. (CP) — Police are investigating the strangulation death of a 93-year-old widow whose body was found undebided in the bedroom of her home Friday in this community about 40 miles north of London.

An autopsy Saturday showed Jane Burton McMurtrie, who lived in a large frame house with two cats, died by strangulation. She was last seen Thursday by neighbors raking leaves on her front lawn.

Police said the telephone line to the victim's house was cut, but added that workmen had been repairing the line earlier in the week.

There were signs of attempted entry into the house but apparently nothing was missing, police said. Sunday they conducted a house-to-house canvass to determine whether anyone had seen anything that could be of assistance.

Mrs. Fred Vivian, a neighbor who delivered a meal each day to Mrs. McMurtrie said she became suspicious Friday when she found the rear door to the house unlocked.

The widow had lived alone in the house for 11 years, since the death of her second husband.

Stanfield Demands Energy Policy

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada needs an immediate, comprehensive, long-term energy policy, based on federal-provincial consultation, says Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield.

After attacking the Liberal government for implementing an export tax on petroleum without full consultation with the provinces, the Conservative leader has embarked on his own series of energy talks with provincial premiers.

Fortune In Speed Seized

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police and RCMP seized 378,000 pills valued at about $1.75 million on the illicit market in a weekend raid on what they described as a laboratory for the manufacture of speed, a controlled amphetamine drug.

Also seized were a pistol and a small quantity of hashish.

Charged with conspiracy to traffic in a controlled drug were Morton Canton, 40, Melvin Canton, 42, Mary Lou Battle, 38, Guiseppe Roccari, 44, and Bruno Orticello, 34, all of Toronto, and Michael John Zeduk, 44, of Guelph, Ont.

Morton Canton also was charged with trafficking in speed and possession of a controlled drug for the purpose of trafficking.

Melvin Canton also was charged with possession of a narcotic, possession of a restricted, unregistered firearm and possession of a controlled drug for the purpose of trafficking.

Orticello was charged also with possession of a controlled drug for the purpose of trafficking.

Shulman Sees Quinte Messes

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Dr. Morton Shulman says he will "embarrass" the provincial government into anti-pollution action following a tour of the Quinte area this past weekend.

The High Park (Toronto) NDP member came to Belleville at the request of Clarence Young, a member of PACE (People Against Contaminated Environment).

Mr. Young in recent weeks had delivered a comprehensive pollution brief to Dr. Shulman.

Accompanied by his wife Gloria, Dr. Shulman with Mr. Young and Pace member Ken Peoples were driven about the region by city alderman Arthur Keegan.

First stop for the party was Belleville General Hospital where the doctor was shown some form of liquid waste being emptied into an unprotected culvert.

"It is incredible that a hospital would be guilty of this sort of thing," he said. Throughout the day Dr. Shulman recorded on film the sites he visited.

While driving to Corbyville, the doctor queried why council had not done something to clean up the area.

Ald. Keegan said "council has ask them ... they don't give any answers."

Mr. Young, acting as aide for the tour, lead the doctor to a site on the Moira as it runs through Corbyville.

Three years ago Dr. Shulman made a similar trip to Belleville to check the arsenic contamination of water from the iron ore smelting mine at Deloro.

Sunday he returned to Deloro to see if a three-year-old clean up promise had been upheld. It hadn't.

"I'm going back to raise some hell," he said.

Dr. Shulman said Eastern Ontario was "lagging behind in pollution clean-up because there is no pressure here, due to the Conservative domination of this section of the province.

"There is no one villain, the whole bloody area is a mess," he said.

He said before he returned he would be contacting local county health officials and researching causes of death in the area.

"If I find what I think I'll find, there will be a higher than provincial average number of stomach cancer deaths in this area," due, he said, to the arsenic contamination from Deloro refinery.

He said he would also have up-to-date water samplings prepared.

Driver of the first vehicle was Wallace McCutcheon, 75, of RR 1, Arden. Like the Wagar vehicle, his was northbound at the time of the accident and received $150 damage to the left front.

SIDNEY — A two-year-old Holstein steer owned by Lee Grills on the third concession of Sidney was found killed in pasture land on the farm on two miles west of Wallbridge Rd. Saturday.

Provincial police said the steer, worth an estimated $400, was discovered with the two rear legs removed at the hip joints. It is believed the killers were frightened away before they could complete their work, say police.

REAL ESTATE:
Know Your Zoning

Ed. McElmer
J. E. McElmer Realty Ltd.

In a nutshell, zoning laws lay out restrictions as to what kind of buildings may be constructed and how they can be used within certain geographic limits. A good community has zoning laws that protect its homeowners. However, they may also put a crimp into future remodelling plans you have in mind.

For example, if the area is zoned for one-family homes, you may not be able to use a part of the house for some special use, such as converting an area for an apartment for a family member or rental or using a part of the house for an office or partly for business. There may be height restrictions or lot-size limitations.

Before buying, you should know what the zoning is, and the geographic limits of residential and business-zoned areas in your locality. It may affect the future values of your property and save you from an unexpected disappointment.

Regimental March Past

Battery Reunited

From Vancouver, B.C. to Saint John, New Brunswick, members of the wartime battery, the 32nd Light Anti Aircraft, congregated in Belleville for their 18th reunion this weekend.

The battery, drawn jointly from Belleville, Peterborough and Pembroke, is part of the 4th Light Anti Aircraft Regiment of the Royal Canadian Artillery. It was formed in London, Ontario, in 1941, from where it went overseas to England to provide the southern coast with manpower for batteries of 40 mm Bofor guns during the Battle of Britain. Crossing the Channel on D-Day, the Canadian battery commanded by the late Colonel J. M. Cousins of Belleville, moved through France, Holland, Belgium and into Germany.

Some 120 former gunners and their wives gathered to recall these days when, as one member of the 32nd put it: "we lived together, fought together and died together." The camaraderie was evident at a Saturday banquet attended by Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Guest of honor at the ANAF Club dinner was former Major James H. McCloud. The gunners presented their former commander with a plaque in appreciation of his service in war and peace and his present work in the field of conservation with the Moira River Conservation Authority.

Sunday morning, the members of the battery paraded to Christ Church at the corner of Coleman and Catherine Streets from the market square. Leading the 40 medal-festooned gunners was a color brigade of Belleviliians, Jack Lundberg, Dick Burns, and George L. Johnson.

Later in the day, at the 32nd's general meeting a new second vice-president was elected. George Johnson of Belleville assumed his new duties while Bud Webb of Peterborough became president and Don Treacy of Pembroke, first vice-president. Directors are James Schriver and Jake Browning, both of Belleville, Joseph Maher and G. J. Davis of Peterborough, and William Moore and Percy Mirault of Pembroke. Members decided the next reunion would take place in Peterborough Thanksgiving weekend, 1975.

Honored for Service

The weekend was a busy one for former members of the 32nd LAA Battery Association, 4th Light Anti Aircraft Regiment who reunited in the city. A church parade memorial service and banquet were highlights of the two - day affaih. At the banquet, Major James H. McCloud was presented with a plaque by members of the regiment.

Hasty Pees Join Hands

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Thanksgiving was a weekend of comradeship and good cheer for former members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment who returned to Belleville for their 29th annual reunion.

Their headquarters was the Belleville armory, where they enjoyed a dance Saturday night, attended a regimental association meeting Sunday morning and fell in for the annual memorial service at their cenotaph. A dinner at Legion Hall in the afternoon ended the festivities for Quinte's famous ploughboy soldiers who distinguished themselves in World War II.

The spirit that took the Hasty Pees through Sicily, Italy and northwestern Europe was still in evidence Sunday as the ploughjockeys fell in with lively and jocular comments, klibitzed their officers and marched off with ribald comments on one another's military bearing.

The dichotomy that make Canadians the foremost assault troops of the British forces, took the Hasty Pees past the saluting base and their former commander, Lord Tweedsmuir, in snappy, well-ordered form that would do credit to any active unit today.

Watching the activities with wide-eyed awe was a 12-year-old South African from Durban, the son of regimental "character" Sockless George — CSM Ponsford, MBE, MM. On a dream-of-a-lifetime trip to see the blasting fall forests of Canada he arrived to discover that in the greatest fraternity in the world, the British infantry, he had 300 new-found fathers, every one of them a soldier.

He epitomized what it was all about as his father laid the wreath to the fallen at the conclusion of the memorial service.

"We buried them where they died, and they lie like scattered leaves in a war-torn country," said former padre, Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, MBE, CD. who conducted the service.

"The reason we wander today in peace and happiness through so many countries is because they died. We Hasty Pees must keep the flame they lit alive."

"Let me remind you of the precarious future of the regiment," said the padre. "It would be the saddest day of my life if I had to go up to St. Thomas Church and lay up the colors of the regiment. If there is anything you can do to keep the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment conscious of those who died — that is your responsibility."

RSM Kenneth Carswell marshalled the parade, lead by former CO, Lieut-Col. "Ack-Ack" Kennedy. With Lord Tweedsmuir on the reviewing stand was the regimental wooden Indian mascot, Mayor Robin Jeffery and regimental association president Robert Emerson.

Leading the parade was a platoon of "Pees", the men who took the King's shilling a few days before, or a week or two after the declaration of war, Sept. 1, 1939. In the rear ranks was the most regimental sergeant major of Canadian forces in World War II, Angus Duffy, who later accepted a commission and became a regimental commanding officer.

Coming the longest distance by land was WDL Les McGinn, and Mrs. McGinn, from Banff, Alberta, 2,300 miles away. Mr. McGinn remained in the army after the war and finally retired after training cadet corps from Belleville to the Arctic Circle. He put in 29 years with the Canadian Armed Forces.

Mr. Gray, a native of Amherst Island, first joined the Midland Regiment and was later sent with reinforcements to the Hasty Pees.

He spent his second wedding anniversary in Belleville, visiting relatives and showing his wife the Quinte district.

The next regimental reunion will be held in Peterborough. All newly elected regimental association officers come from that city. They are Tony Basciano, president, Wilfred Schweier, first vice - president, and Peter Castle, secretary - treasurer.

The Arts Survive

With three one-act plays, including The Proposal by Anton Chekhov, Belleville Theatre Guild is set for an interesting start to its season at The Pinnacle Playhouse.

Indicative of public interest is the fact that subscription sales have been heavy and remaining tickets for the performances opening tomorrow are scarce.

Another interesting event in the cultural life of the city this fall is the forthcoming concert by the Festival Singers of Canada under Elmer Iseler. A group of international distinction, they will perform at Bridge Street United Church October 17.

The performance precedes by a day the opening film of the Kiwanis Club travel series, William Kennedy's Highway to Panama, at Centennial secondary school.

Interesting too is a look at what is going on in other communities. Toronto of course has entertainment on a par with other big cities of the world, and the performances of the Canadian Opera Company there of late have been popular.

We heard that Les Feux Follets, as exciting a group as Canada has produced, were going to be in Kingston again, but have not been able to ascertain the date. They may even have been and gone. Belleville would be fortunate if it could welcome this company once again.

A little farther east, the Civic Auditorium in Brockville, once in danger of extinction after a checkered career, only to be revived by public plebiscite, has had the Tommy Hunter show and this past Sunday had Noel Harrison, son of the famous Rex Harrison, in the British farce, No Sex Please — We're British. This was quite a catch for the sponsors, the Brockville Theatre Guild, for the play has also been running in London, England, too.

Brockville's auditorium has been going strong for more than a decade now, following the plebiscite. Past presentations there have included The Four Poster with Edward Everett Horton and Imogene Coca, but-its history goes back even farther and we understand Sir John Martin Harvey, among others, performed there.

All this reflects the efforts of many in our smaller communities to keep theatre alive and well. That their efforts are crowned with considerable success is a matter for satisfaction. We trust the public will continue to show its support. Without it, no such entertainment and artistic endeavor would be possible.

Pass the Salt

When it comes to passing the salt in these days of all-consuming interest in food, the operation may be a trifle more complex than hitherto.

Now salt is one of those items, depending on where you shop, that is occasionally elusive. Anyway we thought we were on the right track the other day and a member of the supermarket- staff said "yes, it's along there . . . but they're putting it in a bag now."

Immediately we had visions of escaping salt . . . you know, the way sugar got lost.

Picking one up confirmed our worst fears: salt on that loose and more of it covering the shelf, like fine snow, as if others had had the same experience.

So there it is folks. Salt in a bag. Better sharpen that aim for getting it into the salt shaker, and have a bowl or something underneath to catch the overflow.

Telecare Service

Not new, but an inspired idea all the same, is Belleville Telecare's decision to add a new dimension to the service of helping those in need by means of telephone counselling. Its counsellors will keep in touch with shut-ins and citizens in other situations of need. These individuals concerned make the first move, indicating that they desire such regular phone contacts. This element of Telecare is an outgrowth of a similar facility operating in New Jersey and has become itself began some years ago as Lifeline, which originated in Australia, and on its inception here was only the second such branch in North America. Others have followed under one name or another in various parts of the world, but whatever their name, the goal is always the same, the wellbeing of people. As such, Telecare performs an incalculable service to the community.

Wilson's Nationalization Threat

UK Could Slump To Third World Country Under Labor

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The British Labor party's program for massive nationalization of key British industries if returned to power, is calculated, if Mr. Wilson's party becomes prime minister again and implements state socialism in a form found in no Western European nation, Britain will slump to the status of a Third World country in economic performance.

Some economists are predicting that eventuality already, with British inability to control an intransigent labor movement and failure to move quickly modernize her industries.

For almost 30 years since the guns stopped in 1945, the British economy has climbed and slumped on disastrous cyclical patterns related to the strength of sterling competitiveness in manufactured areas, efficiency of the British work force.

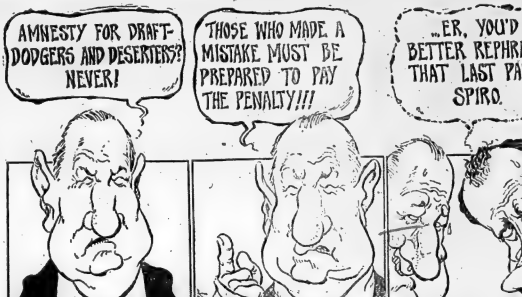
To see what a shambles an even more ambitious Labor campaign for state ownership could become, recall how Labor's bureaucratic class of the Attlee years when major sectors of British industry were nationalized, some of them never to recover.

The chief case in point was the formation of the state-run British Steel Corporation. It was a government monster whose deficits approached $100 millions before the Tory Heath government denationalized the steel mills when it came to power in 1970.

The areas involved in the Labor party's Blackpool statement include North Sea oil and gas (one of the few truly entrepreneurial areas in a sluggish British economy), aircraft, shipbuilding and allied industries, machine tools, construction and road transport.

There would also be a very heavy hand laid on the multinationals with British branch plants. As concerns they control they have already under the Heath Tory government with at least one American manufacturer pulling out of its Scottish operations.

A Britain under Wilson would be a Britain turning back the clock to a gray and despairing 1945 when the Labor government would solve all ills with government playing the key role in industry.



Perhaps the most ominous prospect of massive British state socialism would be the even greater power made available to the British trade union movement whose irresponsibility is endemic and which has a death wish about even a limited capitalistic society.

Since Ted Heath became prime minister in 1970, Mr. Wilson has turned his back on Britain in the European Common Market, a mix of typical petulance that he was not around to implement it and of his intense dislike of the Tory prime minister who did.

Britain has been "in Europe" since January 1st, 1973 competing with dynamic economies like the West German and the Italian where the role of government in industry has a controlled and pragmatic nature to it.

In fact one must closely wonder how much Mr. Wilson's personal pique against Heath and the Tories has to do with Labor's Blackpool party meeting this month-end.

$200 a Month Pension Demand by New Democrats

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

A demand for $200 a month to be paid under Canada's old age pension plan was made in Parliament recently—by a New Democratic Party member, naturally.

It wasn't long ago that the opposition was demanding that old age pensions be boosted to $100. That level has recently been exceeded (by $5), which helps to illustrate two points:

—It's easy for opposition politicians to demand more (of anything) since they don't have to soak the taxpayers to pay the bill.

—Yesterday's luxury quickly becomes today's necessity and tomorrow's flagrant injustice.

Implicit in Canada's universal pension scheme is the assumption that this pension is not likely to be the only source of support of retirement age. Putting it another way, it's assumed that people will accumulate some resources during their working years, and probably participate in a contributory pension plan where they can.

The reality is that relatively few Canadians are working in one job for a lifetime—or even for the 10 years required in some instances before a worker can transfer his accumulated pension credits from his old employer's plan to his new employer's.

A change of jobs usually means the loss of all of the employee's invested rights in the old employer's plan. If the departing employee is not sophisticated as to take a refund of his own pension contributions instead of putting them in the hands of a registered trustee to be held for him, he may well face a whopping tax bill.

Women fare even worse than men, on average, in trying to provide for their old age through contributory pension plans on the job.

That's because they are more likely to move into and out of the work force, depending upon other demands on their time, raising children, attending to aged parents or ailing husbands.

Many women are forced by circumstances to live on themselves to part-time or short-term jobs. That deprives them of the opportunity to build up any continuity of pension contributions, and puts them in serious financial difficulties when their working days are over.

What's worst, widowhood often proves to be a financial nightmare. Rather than receiving half of their late husbands' pensions, many widows find they are entitled to nothing, or to inadequate joint-and-survivor payments.

Here's where's pressure should be that it takes out of the west if it does not already exist. Governments' social-insurance reform commission and economic council, professional economists and others have all called for the establishment of universal rates of inflation-proof pensions.

The federal government hopes to "study" Sen. Donald Benson's plan fully—that is, to increase pension payments in proportion to increases in the cost of living.

With all the signs pointing to steady inflation with every passing year, the lesson is plain:

Start as early as possible to provide for your retirement years (whatever you put aside, it won't be too much).

And try to develop a skill that could provide some income—and some pleasure, if possible—when you retire.

Model Trainmen Hear Navy Man

PICTON — Commodore James Plomer of Milford, Canadian director of the Railroad and Locomotive Historical Society of Boston, Massachusetts, was the guest speaker at the Picton Model Railroad Club's annual meeting, held at the Inn on the Bay Saturday afternoon.

Commodore Plomer, who is retired from the Royal Canadian Navy, is an authority on trains and talked on the history of the Grand Trunk Railway in Canada. He dealt particularly with the personality of the railroad, including its policy of not hiring Canadian executives.

New officers for the 1973-74 year were elected after Mr. Plomer's talk, with William Thorley of Picton, who was elected earlier this year, remaining as the supervisor, Thousand Islands Division of the Niagara Frontier Region of the National Model Railroad Association.

David Cummings, of Watertown, New York, was elected as vice - superintendent of the American division. Canadian superintendent is to be Christopher Driver of Kingston, while Alan Capon of Picton will remain as secretary and Jack Collette of Belleville was voted treasurer.

Election of officers was carried out by Philip Van ce Ven of Picton. Also discussed and adopted at the meeting amin as secretary and Jack club and new bylaws.

Students Still Help

PICTON — Shut-ins and elderly persons living in Picton who have errands to be run can contact Prince Edward Collegiate Institute for student volunteers.

A service for senior citizens and handicapped persons this summer was operated through an Opportunities for Youth grant. It was staffed by students, Joanne Rutter and Jennie Kerr. Both are continuing their studies out of town this fall but other volunteer will assist callers.

It is expected the service can be expanded because of a larger staff.

Duck Bagged Easy Way

CHERRY VALLEY — Prince Edward horticulturist Philip Dodds bagged a duck as the hunting season opened this week without leaving his front yard.

Mr. Dodds report that as he stood on his front lawn he observed a black bird winging toward the pond on his Cherry Valley farm. The duck, apparently wounded by hunters, miscalculated flight plans and crashed into a window of the farm house.

A 12 inch by 16 inch pane of glass was shattered but the duck escaped further injury and flapped from the accident scene to the farm pond.

Window Shattered

During a regular downtown patrol after midnight Friday, Belleville police discovered a five-by-eight-foot broken window pane in the Kresge Department Store on Front St.

Police said there had been no entry into the store and nothing had been stolen. Replacing the pane is likely to cost $200, police estimate.

The case is still under investigation.

Four for the Road

The weather was warm, the 20 mile route scenic and about 90 people took part, in a walkathon in the Picton area Saturday to raise money for the mentally retarded. Four of those who participated in the walk, put on by the Prince Edward Youth for the Mentally Retarded, walk under a bower of trees. They are, from left, Garth Ronsky, Jeff Ronsky, Dusty Sagriff and Clint Quinn. Altogether, about $2,500 was raised by these taking part.

Mr. Simpson and his wife, the former Jacqueline Murphy of Belleville, lived on a farm near Queensboro while he wrote his first novel. With their daughter, Julie, 3½, they now live in Madoc, where Mrs. Simpson is a teacher at Centre Hastings Secondary School. He will take up the position of writer in residence at the University of Ottawa on Jan. 1.

Mr. Simpson has another short story published in the 1973 edition of New Canadian Stories.

Allan Douglas Bryant, formerly of RR 2 Picton, was alone in the car when the accident happened around 11.20 p.m. The car, which sustained $2,000 damage, was headed northbound when Bryant failed to negotiate a curve in the road and the car rolled over.

The deceased was taken to Prince Edward Memorial Hospital in Picton, but was pronounced dead on arrival.

Mr. Bryant is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bryant of RR 2 Picton.

Prince Edward Walkathon

Over $2,500 Raised by Foot

PICTON — Over 90 people walked 20 miles Saturday to raise money in the walkathon sponsored by the Prince Edward Youth for the Mentally Retarded.

The weathermen cooperated for the day, with temperatures in the mid to high sixties, and over $2,500 was raised by the group, which was assisted by members of the Adult Association for the Mentally Retarded.

Over three-quarters of the participants finished the 20-mile route around Prince Edward County, and chocolate bars, soft drinks and chocolate milk were provided at the five checkpoints along the way.

The first three to finish the walk were John Fisher, Eric Reynolds, and Chris Grayson, who ran the 20 miles together and came in at 1.18 p.m., four minutes and 18 minutes after they started. The first girls to finish were Georgina Zaban and Ethel Storms, who took six hours.

The two youngest walkers Saturday were Jeff and Rob Richardson, aged five and six, the sons of Larry Richardson, a guidance counsellor at Prince Edward Collegiate who is a staff advisor for PEYMR.

This is the sixth year that the group has held a walkathon to raise money to benefit the mentally retarded of Prince Edward County. The president of PEYMR this year is Joanne Saunders, a grade twelve student at PECI.

Quinte Cuisine

Schnitz Pie

9-inch pie crust, unbaked
3 tbsp. flour
¾ cup granulated sugar
1 cup sour cream
5 cups peeled apple wedges
Mix sour cream, sugar, flour. Arrange apples in pie shell. Pour sour cream over top. Bake at 450 degrees for 15 minutes.

Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 35-40 minutes, or until the fruit is tender, and the filling set. Sprinkle over the hot pie — ¼ cup lightly packed brown sugar.

Broil for two or three minutes or until the sugar is melted.

Serve warm.

Business No Escape Boutique Owners Say

TORONTO (CP) — Here's a word of warning for bored housewives.

Don't open a little boutique or jewelry store on a whim or in hopes of escaping from the monotony of housework.

At least, that's the advice of two Toronto women, who formed a partnership to open an unusual fold-town shop called The General Store.

"Don't do it on a whim," they both said. "Don't do it unless you're willing to neglect your family, to work from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. every day, and to smile even when you don't feel like it."

The two—Dorothy Lucas and Deanna Kearns—added that there's also a major risk involved—the chance of losing the capital invested in setting up the store.

Luckily for the two Toronto women, however, their business venture appears to be working out.

They started off with a $1,000 bank loan signed by Dorothy's mother, and in three years have made a success of their business.

"We think our shop works because of instinct, hard work, enjoying what we're doing, really caring," they said.

Their store contains a variety of merchandise—dolls, hooked rugs, stoneware, pottery, candles, herbs, jelly beans and just about everything else that might be found in a rural general store.

The instinct involved comes in selecting goods they hope to sell.

"We have nothing in the store that we wouldn't want in our own homes," said Dorothy. "So everything here is our own taste, which we've learned to trust."

"We didn't want the kind of fancy place you can go into and feel intimidated," they said. "We want this to be the kind of place anyone can come into and be comfortable and feel secure and touch and not even buy anything if they don't want to."

The two, both married, have added a mail-order division to their business and also an interior decorating section.

School Destroys Confidence

VICTORIA (CP) — The years between kindergarten and Grades 1 and 2 can be ego-deflating years even though the hardest work may be drawing butterflies and keeping your feet off the table.

Dr. Andrew Kerr of the Victoria Mental Health Centre and Dr. Charles Gregory, director of the Pacific Centre for Human Development, surveyed 256 children and said it didn't take them long to find out what it means to be "dumb or smart."

One hundred per cent of children in kindergarten, when asked how they were doing in school, said fine. By Grade 1, the percentage had dropped to 95 per cent and by Grade 2 it was down to 86 per cent.

In kindergarten, 81 per cent of the children thought they were smart, 12 per cent thought they were average and seven per cent thought they were dumb. In Grade 1, only 55 per cent were still convinced they were smart, 26 per cent thought they were average and 19 per cent believed they were dumb.

Kindergarten children who considered themselves smart and average said it was because they could do some reading and writing—could cut things out or make planes. Children in Grade 1 who thought they were smart gave reasons ranging from doing good work—getting As—to "hanging upside down on the monkey bars."

The May-December marriage of Leonard W. Corneau, 19, and his bride, Eula Mae Fisher, 72, took place last month in Bakersfield, California. Corneau, a maintenance man at his wife's boys' home, said in an interview after the wedding that "age does not matter .... If you love a person like I love my wife, that's all there is to it." Speech Therapy for Unheard Boys

TORONTO (CP) — Watching 24 healthy-looking boys romping on a hospital lawn, one hardly suspects they are fighting a severe handicap—speech impediment.

The boys, ranging from 8½ to 15 years old, from inner-city Toronto, come to the hospital every afternoon for a month for classroom and outdoor speech therapy.

Lifelong frustration and ridicule face the boys, said Dr. Charles Godfrey of the downtown Wellesley Hospital, who calls the program "truly preventive medicine."

Dr. Godfrey, director of rehabilitation medicine at the hospital, said the boys "are not really in trouble yet, if we can correct their articulation defects now."

The boys come mainly from two types of families, one where there is very little talking with almost inarticulate parents and another group from homes where shouting is constant and a child must fight to be heard.

Dale Joffe, a speech therapist for the boys, said use of instant-replay tape recordings has an astounding effect. She described one small boy who listened to another's tape and said, "Boy, does he ever talk funny."

"He talked exactly the same way himself," Mrs. Joffe said, "but he didn't hear it in himself.

She said a few of the boys were chronically hoarse because "they had to yell to be heard," at home.

Dr. Godfrey noted that television watching can be helpful in providing examples of good articulation, but some TV voices, such as those in the Flintstone Family cartoons can reinforce distorted speech.

He said the hospital program, emphasizing real-life situations outdoors, has been repeated this summer at the request of parents and teachers.

Blaming unfavorable home conditions where "everybody is talking and dimensions is a shouting match," Dr. Godfrey noted the result that "with five kids trying to be heard at once, who listens?"

Mrs. Joffe said one problem facing therapists is making the young boys aware of their predicament.

"We have to train them in listening to themselves so they realize they are making a different sound."

Male Domains Challenged

TORONTO (CP) — The construction trades are male chauvinist bastions, says Margaret Scrivener, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for St. Davids.

Their unions are violating the Human Rights Code and Canadian Bill of Rights by denying membership to women, she told a women's club luncheon Thursday.

"The principle is simple and important," she said. "It is not whether women want jobs in the construction trades, but rather the elimination of discrimination within the construction trades unions."

Unions deny women the right to become carpenters, plumbers and electricians.

But, she said, she will ask the ministry of labor to investigate membership discrimination.

This, she said, may "force much more than lip service from both the big three labor leaders and their left-wing friends in support of full women's rights and opportunities in the union movement."

Later, William Ladyman, International vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, estimated one-third of its 60,000 members in Canada are women. But none work on construction jobs.

Even in Newfoundland, Divorce Is Now Common

ST. JOHN'S, NFM. (CP) — Almost unheard of in Newfoundland a couple of decades ago, divorce is fast becoming a common occurrence.

For the first eight months of 1973, 226 petitions for divorce proceedings were filed. Just 38 less than the total number during all of last year.

Divorces were first granted in Newfoundland Supreme Court in 1968. Previously any divorce applications from Newfoundland had to be approved by the Senate in Ottawa, a long and costly process.

Since 1968, about 1,200 petitions have been filed, but not all were granted.

Adultery, physical and mental cruelty and other reasons are advanced but the main ground for divorce in Newfoundland is separation for not less than three years.

Many of the province's lawyers agree with a resolution by the Canadian Bar Association to make marriage breakdown the only the ground for divorce with a minimum separation period of one year.

A Newfoundland Law Society spokesman said: "Most lawyers felt that a man or woman should not be forced to commit adultery or remain separated for three years in order to be granted a divorce."

The 'Lunatic Fringe' Holds Parade

Dear Ann Landers: There seems to be quite a heated argument between Ann Landers, who says homosexuals are sick, and certain psychiatrists and gays who say they are sick. Your opponents say you are ill-informed, or nuts.

Anyone who witnessed the Gay Pride Parade from the moat Harbor to Lincoln Park in Chicago has got to go with you, Ann. In my life I never saw anything to top it. Over 1,500 gays came out of the closet to march with their "brothers and sisters." Some of the costumes were out of this world—sequins, feathers, tights, black leather coats, whips and chains. The wigs were gorgeous and the makeup was fabulous. One fellow (I think) had a live snake wrapped around his neck.

There was much cheering and singing. "Two-four-six-eight. Is your husband really straight!"

There was also good news from the first gay minister of the United Church of Christ. "Sixty-two gay ministers," he announced, "have decided to step forward and declare themselves. No more hiding. They are gay and proud of it."

If those people are normal and healthy, then I wanna be sick. Sign me—Freaked Out

Dear Freaked: I hope you don't think all homosexuals look and act like that. What you describe sounds like the lunatic fringe. Many homosexuals are dignified, quiet, modest people. They do not wear high heels or wigs. That's one real difference between them and us is that they prefer as sex partners members of their own gender. Thanks for the report.

Dear Ann Landers: I watched my sister a few weeks ago. Something I saw in her home has been bothering me and I can't get it out of my mind.

My sister's husband is very strict with the children. They are nice youngsters—bright and well-behaved—but they are terrified of him. The middle child, a boy of seven, seems to have a small appetite. His father insisted he eat and every slight there is a scene at the dinner table. Once the boy recused himself and threw up. Another time he began to cry because his father pushed him for 16 minutes and shook him for 30 seconds.

I didn't say anything to my sister, but I feel now that I should write to her. Or would she consider it interfering?—On My Mind

Dear On: That father needs counseling. And the kids will need it, too. From your description. Perhaps if you suggest to your sister that she discuss the family situation with the school counselor, it would be a useful first step.

Dear Ann Landers: What is this world coming to when a woman can't telephone her aging mother from the office three or four times a day? And whose business is it if they talk about the price of wool—or even whether or not the rain will hurt the rhubarb?

My mother is 84 and she lives alone. God bless her. I'm sure my telephone calls mean a great deal to her. I try to telephone at least four times a day. The world needs more love and consideration and less criticism of people who show it, especially to their aging parents. That office must be a real zoo.—Glad I Don't Work There

Dear Glad: I'm not. I think perhaps you could teach those dumbbells something.

British Legislate Equality

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's nine million working women have been given their biggest boost towards job equality to date in government proposals to ban sex discrimination by law.

The new proposals, which came at the end of a long struggle for some sort of sex legislation, would attempt "to eliminate unfair discrimination on grounds of sex wherever possible and to change the perjudiced attitudes which give rise to it."...

The planned legislation would work in both ways. Women would have equal opportunities to seek jobs normally held by males, and advertisements calling for "Daily Girl" secretaries or "Girl Fridays" would also be banned.

For the first time, women would be given legally-backed equality of opportunity in "three major areas of their lives: employment, training and education," the government promised.

Getting the new legislation through Parliament may prove difficult, however.

There was support in the Commons early last year when debate on an anti-discrimination bill was adjourned.

Women members of Parliament from both the opposition Labor party and the Conservative government benches roared "shame" and "disgraceful" when Conservative Ronald Bell blocked the bill's progress by "talking it out," speaking on it until the allotted time for debating was up, thus causing it to be adjourned without a vote.

In 1970 Parliament approved a bill to give women workers equal pay for equal work but since then they have sought equal job opportunities too.

Successful Living

Help for Blind Available

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My sister is 74. Has had cataracts and operations on both eyes. The operation was successful with the eye, but the retina on the other eye was broken. Nothing can be done for this eye only.

Her income is the only supplement. She has rent to pay and live. Is there any way she may get some allowance from the blind pension, and where does she apply for this? — Sister.

Dear Sister: You mean Old Age Security plus the supplement, don't you? The OAS is available to everybody, over 65, but you do have to apply for it.

A good deal depends on what her costs are, but in any case, no person can draw two federal government pensions. If medications or other needs call for more money than her income, have her consult the local welfare office, or go there for her yourself.

If her vision is poor, I'd recommend a consultation with your local branch of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. The worker there has great resources for making life more pleasant for people like your sister: there are visitors, volunteer readers, talking books (now on tape).

Dear Doris: I've been invited to a shower for a girl to be given by her sister. And in a rented hall, yet. I can't see why the girl's mother can't see that this is next to begging. Showers are usually given by girl friends, never by the mother of the bride — or is this a new custom?

Several months ago, I was invited to a shower for this girl's sister, also given by the bride - to - be's mother. Several hundred people were invited. Later the engagement was broken by mutual consent, but none of the gifts were returned. Is this a new fad, also? — Help!

Dear Help: In recent years, showers have been much abused, and the relative of the bride or groom should ever give a shower, and gifts especially expensive ones, should certainly be returned if the wedding is called off.

Dear Doris: I raised my stepchildren along with my own children. I was good to my stepchildren, but they often irritated me. If they offered to help me, I found it easier to give them money to go to a swimming pool or a movie.

My own children learned more rapidly. They helped around the house. They acted like genuine members of the family. Not my stepchildren — they were noisy, and the neighbors complained often. Now, as adults, many of them refuse to work. They're satisfied with living on welfare. Today, they aren't even grateful! — E. R.

Dear E. R.: It just proves that love and security are more important than material things. Those stepchildren were probably longing to help with the chores, and feel like genuine members of the family.

They recognized those movie tickets as a way of getting them out from under your feet. The irritation should have been met with the same loving discipline you gave your own. Sorry!

Good Locks Will Foil A Thief - Maybe

OTTAWA (CP) — A really determined burglar can gain entry to your home regardless of what precautions you take, unless you happen to live in a fortress.

But the Consumers' Association of Canada says you can make his work more difficult by installing good locks on doors and windows.

Door locks are the most important, the association says. "The accomplished housebreaker prefers a door because his work is less noticeable and faster. He can either force the door open in a few seconds or pick the lock, depending on the size of entry he wants to try.

"Even the best lock is useless if the door frame can be forced back far enough to release the locking bolt.

A handyman can eliminate the "give" by placing solid blocks of wood behind the mouldking in the space between the wall and frame.

Another weakness is exposed hinges. Their pins can be removed, allowing the door to be opened on the hinged side. A locksmith can quickly and inexpensively drill the hinges and insert set screws to hold the pins firmly in place.

With that done, the choice of lock should be examined. Your best bet is the dead-bolt type.

"Dead bolts provide much greater security as the bolt can be moved only with a key from the outside or a thumbturn on the inside. You must use the key to lock the door as you leave—a little less convenient but a lot more secure."

Your key-operated dead bolt will cost about $26 installed.

Latch bolts, the spring action type usually found on inexpensive locks, can be opened by sliding a credit card, a piece of plastic or a metal strip in front of a slightly-sworn edge.

If you are thinking of a night chain to avoid the $26 dead-bolt lock, forget it.

"All types of night chains will give way to a heavy blow from a shoulder or foot," the association says. "They can also be snipped with bolt-cutters."

For an auxiliary lock, your best bet is the vertical-bolt lock, which also works with a key on the outside and a thumb-turn on the inside.

To make windows burglar-resistant the answer is a lock controlled by a key. Some types permit the window to be locked open a few inches to allow ventilation.

"Window locks should be used on all ground-floor windows and vulnerable upper-level windows," the Consumer Association says.

A locksmith can advise you on how to lock just about any type of window or sliding door. Window locks cost between $2.50 and $15, not counting installation.

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — One columnist here has noted that the so-called new natural look for women—going braless—is, in fact, a step back towards grass roots. In Canada, the bra has been accepted 57 women for only 60 years 'or so. Chances are, the columnist adds, that your grandma never wore one.

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

Nuclear Heart Pacer Installed

TORONTO (CP) — A 32-year-old Toronto man had Canada's first nuclear-powered heart pacer implanted in his chest Monday and within minutes of getting off the operating table, was celebrating with champagne.

Jack Tootill, who had worn a conventional battery-powered pacer since 1965, became the first Canadian to receive a nuclear pacer after the Atomic Energy Control Board approved their use in this country.

Dr. Bernard Goldman, surgical director of Toronto General Hospital's pacemaker clinic, said the pacer has "brought us full circle from the days when Dr. (Wilfred) Bigelow first experimented with electrical stimulation of the heart more than 20 years ago."

The $5,000 pacer is about the size of a round cosmetic powder compact and is totally implanted under the skin near the shoulder. Electric impulses are emitted that regulate the heartbeat.

It is expected to run for at least 10 years without replacement with the plutonium having a hard-life of 87 years.

GM Denies Pontiac Defect

DETROIT (AP) — A Washington-based research group is asking General Motors to recall 3.5 million Pontiacs it says have a defect that could cause total power loss.

GM denied the defects exist, and said there have been no reports of accidents in instances where the part, a nylon gear, had failed.

Lowell Dodge, director of the Center for Auto Safety, which is affiliated with consumer advocate Ralph Neder, raised the issue in a letter to GM Chairman Richard Gerstenberg.

Dodge said the defects seem to be concentrated in the 1965-73 Pontiacs with eight-cylinder engines.

"It has been increasingly evident from our consumer complaint mail that for the past several years GM has knowingly been equipping its eight-cylinder engines with poorly designed and dangerous nylon-coated aluminum timing gears," Dodge wrote.

The gears, Dodge said, "usually tend to wear out at some point between 15,000 and 50,000 miles, after the warranty has expired."

COLCHESTER, England (CP) — George Purvis, 35, has claimed the world beer-drinking record after quaffing an imperial pint in 11 seconds.

Air Pollution Inspector Calling for Public Inquiry

TORONTO (CP) — An air pollution inspector convinced he is going to be fired for criticising his superiors in the Ontario ministry of environment, called Monday for a public inquiry into his complaints.

Ross Mackenzie, 34, a Sudbury-based inspector, said in an interview that he thinks he will be fired following a disciplinary hearing Wednesday before Everett Biggs, deputy minister of the environment.

Mr. Mackenzie said he has retained Toronto lawyer Clayton Ruby to support him at the hearing and to press his demand for a public inquiry.

"We have a department that's not operating and claims it is operating," he said, explaining his charges that the ministry is not enforcing the Environmental Protection Act against major offenders in the Sudbury area.

"What I want is a public inquiry. To get light on this whole thing, we need the public and the press in it. I invite you all to my hearing—not that they'll let you in."

Mr. Mackenzie first complained through news reports in July that he was prevented from doing his job thoroughly because the ministry did not want to prosecute large-scale smelter operators in Sudbury.

He said his disciplinary hearing will not deal with his general complaints of inefficiency, but will concentrate on narrower grounds, alleging that he accused a fellow employee of taking bribes.

The hearing will bring forward accusations that he demoralized the air management branch by charging that one of his officers asked for and received a bribe from a polluting company, Mr. Mackenzie said.

"They are not going to look at the things I said about the Sudbury operation—they are going to drum me out on this bribe thing," he said.

Environment Minister James Auld told the legislature last week there is "no evidence whatsoever to support the charge that bribes were at issue."

"We are left with the question as to whether or not the charges were made irresponsible by the inspector in question," Mr. Auld said.

Train Derailed

ST. THOMAS (CP) — A freight-train derailment here Monday cut eastbound traffic temporarily, a spokesman for the Chesapeake and Ohio-Baltimore and Ohio Railways said.

Seven of a 98-car train went off the tracks as they approached the St. Thomas yards. The cars were empty and there were no injuries.

There is no passenger traffic on the line.

ROYAL BANK
ROYAL CERTIFIED SERVICE

Starting January 15, enjoy unlimited no-charge chequing, a Safe Deposit Box* reduced Termplan personal loan rates, Overdraft protection up to $300 and 8 other benefits. All for $3.00 monthly.

ROYAL CERTIFIED SERVICE ELIMINATES SEPARATE SERVICE CHARGES.
It covers much more than just the personal Certified Service case most often —like your Personal Chequing Account. It also includes several other conveniences and cash-saving benefits—even a special reduction on the regular interest rate for your Termplan Personal Loan. It also provides you with a special personal identification card, which will entitle you to special treatment in a number of important ways at any branch of the Royal Bank, anywhere in Canada.

If you apply NOW—ahead of the rush —you will receive your Royal Certified Service card in plenty of time to allow you to start enjoying all of the benefits starting on January 15th. (You may even have two cards: one for yourself and one for your spouse.)

We recommend that you carry the card at all times, since many of the special benefits to which you will become entitled will require that you show your card. Your card will prove that you are personally entitled to several special advantages that we will not be extending to other Royal Bank customers.

UNLIMITED CHEQUING
As a Royal Certified Service customer, you can write as many PCA cheques as you wish, without paying the normal 14 cents-per-cheque service charge. If you pay a lot of your bills by cheque, you'll find that these cash savings alone are quite valuable to you.

REDUCED TERMPLAN PERSONAL LOAN
As a Royal Certified Service customer, you will be entitled to a SPECIAL REDUCTION off the current interest rate on our Termplan Personal loans.

If you have an existing Termplan Personal loan, you are entitled to this new advantage. We will give you a cash credit, equivalent to the special reduction in interest on your outstanding balance.

When you receive your special Royal Certified Service card, just come to the Royal Bank branch where you have your Termplan loan, show your card as soon as you conveniently can after January 15th, and we'll do the rest.

Your special reduction will take effect from the date you present your Royal Certified Service card—and will not be retroactive. (This is another good reason why you should apply for your Royal Certified Service membership as soon as possible.)

FOR NEW CUSTOMERS. If you are a new borrower, you will be glad to know that one of the most helpful things we do is to make it easy for you to borrow money from us. Thousands of responsible Canadians have borrowed at the Royal Bank—comfortable in the knowledge that we will never knowingly let them "get in over their heads". Many of our nicest customer relationships started with such a loan.

EXCLUSIVE PERSONALIZED PCA CHEQUES
You will be given free distinctive, fully-personalized cheques, available exclusively to Royal Certified Service members. These cheques will be personalized with your name, full address and telephone number (if you choose).

CHEQUE CASHING—COAST TO COAST
Your Royal Certified Service card (and your exclusive Royal Certified Service cheques) will make it genuinely easy for you to get quick cash—at any of the more than 1,300 Royal Bank branches throughout Canada's ten provinces.

SAFE DEPOSIT BOX
You will receive a certificate worth $7.50 towards the annual rental of a safe deposit box (subject to availability), or equivalent safekeeping services.* You will continue to receive this benefit annually, for as long as you remain a Royal Certified Service customer.

OVERDRAFT PROTECTION
If for any reason, you write cheques which cannot be covered by the balance in your personal chequing account, they will be honoured up to $300 (at no more accidental "NSF" cheques. This privilege is for Royal Certified Service cardholders only. Overdrafts will be subject to a monthly interest rate of 1½% no charge at all if the interest is under 50¢.

VACATION TRAVEL BENEFITS
These presently include some very special and exclusive benefits arranged with Sunbuys in connection with Sunflight holidays booked through your travel agent. For example, free holiday cancellation protection, worth $5 per person, and other destination bonuses and special holiday packages. Other specific benefits and special destination holidays will be announced from time to time.

ROYAL BANK CHARGEX
As a Royal Certified Service member, you will automatically have a Royal Bank Chargex card. It is an excellent personal money-management tool, lets you take advantage of sales and other special opportunities, and consolidates all of your monthly Charges shopping into one easy-to-pay statement. You can use it as a straight charge account, or as a revolving credit account, as you choose.

"PAY-YOURSELF" SAVINGS
On request, we'll supply you with a booklet of "Pay-Yourself" cheques for paying money into your Savings Account—either a Royal Bank Regular Savings Account, with chequing privileges, or a Royal Bank Bonus Savings Account, with its higher rate of interest.

If you would like to transfer a regular amount each payday to your savings account, just visit your branch and we can arrange that too—automatically.

No charge for either convenience

BILL PAYMENTS
You probably find it convenient to pay your telephone, power, or similar bills at the Royal Bank. (In those provinces where we are able to extend these courtesies) instead of sending payment by mail. Just show your Royal Certified Service card and you can pay your bills through us without any service charge. (And remember: you also save another eight cents postage each time!)

NO-CHARGE TRAVELLERS CHEQUES
Show your Royal Certified Service card and we'll waive the usual 1% commission normally charged for travellers cheques for your personal use—as many as you want, in any available currency, through any branch of the Royal Bank in Canada.

For any personal purpose, on showing your Royal Certified Service card, you can get our regular money orders, in any available currency, without paying the commission normally charged.

Scottish Teen-agers Burn Man

EDINBURGH (AP) — A Scottish teen-age gang set fire to a man Sunday and police said they believed the attack was inspired by a similar outrage in Boston last week.

John Hamilton, 46, a transient, survived the attack but was reported in critical condition.

Three youths grabbed him in an alley where he was lying on a mattress drinking with another vagrant. They doused him with the highly inflammable alcoholic concoction he was drinking and then threw a match on him.

The youths fled as Hamilton writhed screaming on the street. Two young men passing by tore off their jackets and smothered the flames.

Relax Controls

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the federal health ministry has decided to relax its nine-month-old controls on prescribing amphetamines by removing administration red tape for doctors under the controls.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde, who approved the regulatory changes during the weekend, will announce the changes officially later today, the paper says.

The health department apparently has concluded that the problem of over-prescribing amphetamines for such things as weight control and depression, which sparked the controls, has effectively disappeared.

Need Treatment

TORONTO (CP) — Out of 9,000 prisoners held in Canada's federal penitentiaries, at least 1,750 require psychiatric treatment, a report to the federal government says.

In Fifth Day

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The strike by employees of The Star, the daily newspaper here, entered the fifth day today with negotiations towards contract settlements scheduled to continue.

88 Charged

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — A total of 88 charges were laid against members of two motorcycle clubs at a field day at an area farm Sunday.

The field day drew members of the Satan's Choice and Red Devils clubs from various Ontario centres.

Tudeau Leaves for China

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau, accompanied by a group of external affairs and trade department officials, left Monday on a one-week trip to China.

Also with Mr. Trudeau was his wife Margaret, Justin, their 21-month-old son, is not accompanying his parents on the trip. He will spend the week with Mrs. Trudeau's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Sinclair of North Vancouver.

The party, which included about 50 reporters, photographers and television cameramen, left aboard a Canadian Forces Boeing 707, which refuelled at Vancouver before flying on to Tokyo, the last stop before Peking.

The prime minister told reporters that among issues he expects to discuss with Premier Chou En-lai is the outbreak of fighting in the Middle East.

He said a statement during the weekend by External Affairs Mitchell Sharp indicated "a serious concern on our part."

Mr. Trudeau, asked whether the China visit could be viewed as an attempt to find more markets for Canadian products, replied that it is one of the purposes but not the main one.

"I'll be meeting the leaders of a very important country and Canada, being a medium-sized country, we like to be friendly with the big guys," he told reporters before boarding.

"We hope . . . to discuss trade, to discuss cultural and scientific exchanges, may be talk a little politics."

Teen-agers Charged in Murders

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Two teen-agers pleaded not guilty Monday to murder charges in the Houston mass murders in which 27 young males were slain.

Elmer Wayne Hensley, 17, and David Owen Brooks, 18, said "not guilty" after each of the six indictments against Hensley and four against Brooks were read by District Court Judge William Hatten.

Hatten set trial dates of Jan. 14 for Hensley and March 4 for Brooks.

The case broke Aug. 8 when Henley told police he had slain Dean A. Corll, 33, in Corll's Pasadena home during a sex and paint-sniffing party. Both Brooks and Hensley told police they procured young boys for Corll who raped, tortured and murdered them. The two defendants led officers to 27 bodies buried in three locations.

91 Die

At least 91 persons were killed in accidents across Canada during the three-day Thanksgiving holiday weekend—74 of them in traffic mishaps.

Indians Employ Whites--for A Change

OTTAWA (CP) — It is "a nice change" for Indians to be able to hire white people, George Manuel, president of the National Indian Brotherhood, says in a letter to Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chrétien.

He was replying to remarks made last week by the minister who expressed concern that "some people with lawyer backgrounds around the Indians are trying to suck money out of the Indians, and I don't think it is always for the betterment" of the Indians."

Said Mr. Manuel:

"The Indian affairs department for the last 100 years has been white people running Indians. I think that at this point it is, if nothing else, a nice change to see Indians being able to hire whites."

Old Friends Will Be Ignored If Stanfield Picks Cabinet

HALIFAX (CP) — Robert Stanfield said Monday he will make some ruthless decisions in choosing a cabinet if the Progressive Conservative party wins the next federal election.

A number of old friends and senior party members will be bypassed in the interest of putting together the best possible cabinet to lead a government, the Conservative leader said.

"If you're the leader of a government, there are certain tough decisions that you've got to make, and you can't refrain from making them because somebody's a nice guy or a friend. . . .

"I've always believed in that kind of ruthlessness."

Mr. Stanfield, speaking in a television interview as he opened a five-day cross-Canada tour, rejected a suggestion that he would have trouble putting a cabinet together from the 107 Conservative MPs now sitting in the Commons.

"I think we have lots of talents, and it's not all on the front row," he said.

The former Nova Scotia premier did not indicate which MPs might be bypassed. Numerous senior Conservatives sit on front-row benches in the Commons. They include: John Diefenbaker (Prince Albert), Alfred Hales (Wellington), George Hees (Prince Edward-Hastings), Gerald Baldwin (Peace River), Angus MacLean (Malpeque), and Walter Dinsdale (Brandon-Souris).

The Conservative leader expressed confidence that his party will oust the Trudeau government when an election is called.

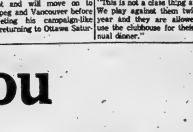
He declined to predict when one may come—"It's largely in the hands of the NDP at the moment"—but said his party is strong in the West and has gained strength in Quebec. Only two Conservatives were elected in the 74 Quebec ridings in 1972.

Mr. Stanfield flies to Toronto tonight and will move on to Winnipeg and Vancouver before completing his campaign-like tour, returning to Ottawa Saturday.

Added Hazard

WATFORD, England (CP) — Bunkers and tricky greens aren't the only hazards facing 26 members of the West Hertfordshire Golf Club. They are so-called "artisan" members who pay for their golf by doing odd jobs but are not allowed into the clubhouse patronized by fee-paying members. Club captain Patrick O'Connor says: "This is not a class thing at all. We play against them twice a year and they are allowed to use the clubhouse for their annual dinner."

Six Die At Munich Beer Party



MUNICH (Reuter) — Munich's Oktoberfest, the worlds biggest beer-drinking festival, has closed after two weeks of revelry, thousands of gallons of beer, hundreds of brawls, thousands of injuries and six deaths.

Attendance and consumption records were set as six million visitors, many of them tourists, streamed into Munich's fairgrounds for the yearly two weeks of drinking and eating. Organizers said participants drank about eight million pints of beer specially made for the festival by Munich's renowned breweries, ate more than 500,000 chickens, millions of fried sausages and between 40 and 50 oxen.

This year's festival claimed six lives compared with none last year, but police said only six were directly related to brawls. The remaining four deaths were 'attributed' to strokes, an accident on the roller coaster and one case of suffocation.

Solid Team Effort Produces Win in Metro Loop Opener

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

A little over a week ago, this reporter severely criticized the style of play of our local Junior B's, the Belleville Bobcats. Right now I'm eating those critical words and I might add, they don't taste bad. The reason for the delicate taste: Belleville's 8-6 victory in their season opener against Pickering Panthers.

Up to Sunday night Pickering had compiled an unbeaten record, with four wins and a tie in exhibition play and a regular season win against Oshawa, 3-1.

From the moment Alderman Jean Smith made the ceremonial dropping of the puck for the 7:30 opening game, Belleville controlled the play.

Offensively the Bobcats had the Panthers pinned in their own end with aggressive forechecking that consistently caused Pickering mistakes leading to many of the locals' goals.

Unlike most first meetings between two clubs, where teams spend the opening 20 minutes testing each other, the teams started out with an almost wide open type of hockey. Both goalies, Bob Moore for the Cats and Mike Nash for the visitors, spent the first eight minutes of the game under a barrage of skill testing shots that set the pace for a net minder's hockey game.

The eight minute mark, Chuck Durocher, of the Panthers, skated in on top of the Belleville goal only to be foiled in a brilliant glove save by Moore.

Less than a minute later the Cats took a 1-0 lead after Pickering had lost Andy Ricketts won the drop and stickhandled through the centre ice area drawing both Panthers' defencemen toward her. Ricketts then passed the puck to left winger Paul King who stepped in over the blue line unmolested and blasted a slap shot into the upper right hand corner of the net.

Pickering wasn't long answering the local goal as they skated off the Belleville end and caught the local defence backing in on Moore. Don Dwight was the attacker who beat Moore on a passing combination with Jem Wells and Rocci Pagnello.

Shortly after the Panthers goal, Belleville captain Rob Foster had a perfect pass to set the stick of home mate John Sergeant just as Sergeant had right the visitors' defence. Sergeant was promptly pulled down from behind by the defence resulting in a Pickering penalty.

Foster soon avenged the Panthers' illegality as he potted a goal on the Cats' power play. Harold Robert's assist was man for the Cats passed the puck into Kevin Jowdwa at the left side of the Panthers net. Jowdwa then drew both the goaltender and the lone Pickering defenceman to the left and flipped the puck to the right side of the goal where Foster was waiting with a wide open target to shoot at.

Andy Ricketta tallied the first of his three goal performance at the 16:42 mark of the first period when he shovelled a rebound overtop of an outstretched Mike Nash. Nash had made two consecutive point blank saves on Rob Freeman and King before Ricketts banged it home to round out the opening frame scoring at 3-1 for Belleville.

It took Belleville just 1:15 of the second to tally their fourth. Jim Richardson combined with Norm Jones and Mark Coates for the second Bobcat power play goal.

Throughout the contest the Belleville penalty killing unit stood out as an important factor in the locals' win. They successfully stopped the Pickering power play on 10 of 12 occasions and during a Bobcat penalty late in the second period Richardson showed the need of persistant forechecking as he tallied a unassisted goal to make the score 5-2. Previous to the shorthanded marker Dwight had scored his second of four for the Panthers.

Just before the fifth Cats tally Moore had robbed Pickering attackers on three chances to score.

Andy Ricketts tallied for the Cats at the 17:32 mark on a quick shot off the faceoff in the Panthers end. Just six seconds later the score was 7-2 as Ricketts rifled home a low, hard shot from centre ice to account for his hat trick.

Pickering wasn't to be counted out though as they quickly replied with a pair of markers of their own in the final two minutes of the frame. A short defensive lapse by the Cats was the cause of the tallies by Dave Graham and Pagnello.

The Panthers switched goalies at the beginning of the third with 16-year-old Ray Polan taking over from Nash.

Belleville wasn't long initiating the young goalie as Norm Jones potted the Bobcats third powerplay goal just 29 seconds off the opening of the period.

Dwight made the score 8-6 as he retaliated with two consecutive Panthers goals. Cam Wells and Dave Graham assisted on both of Dwight's goals.

King finalized the scoring mark when he took a risk wide pass from John Locke and walked in on a breakaway. King flipped the puck into the cage after pulling Flinn out of position with a beautiful fake.

"Defensively we were pretty lone," said Bobcats coach Moe Hunter, "but Bobby came up with a lot of good saves." Hunter's praise of Moore was out, to say the least, an over estimation of his goalie's performance. The Belleville goalie was definitely the star of the game as the shots on goal proved when Pickering had out blasted the Cats 33-28.

"We were forechecking very effectively but our defense was backing in too far," added Hunter. "We've got a lot of work to do but we've got a lot of time to do it."

Other than Moore it would be hard to pick out an outstanding effort by any one individual because the Bobcats played out the game as a unit and that's what terms are all about.

G. R. Fisher was the winner of the Bobcats two seasons tickets draw. Fisher held the winning ticket on the hind quarter of beef.

No Game For Cats Tonight

The Belleville Bobcats — King City Red Wings Metro Junior B game which was to be played tonight has been postponed.

The reason for the rescheduling of the game is the fact that the ice making equipment in the King City Arena has broken down, and ice is not available at any other arena.

The game will be rescheduled at a later date.

As a result, the Cats will be idle until Sunday night, when they take on the Toronto Nationals in a game at the Memorial Arena at 8 p.m.

Drive for Funds Is Over the Top

TRENTON — Participants in the Bit's Juveniles to Finland Skatathon held at the Community Gardens here Saturday combined for pledges totalling $10,000, to put the drive for funds well over the top.

Trenton Parks and Recreation director Deno Gettas reports that some 600 skaters took part in the event which was organized by the Trenton Minor Hockey Association (TMHA). Those taking part in the skatathon made a maximum of 100 laps around the arena.

Since the juvenile hockey team had already raised about one-third of the approximately $9,000 it is estimated the trip to Finland will cost, organizers aimed for about $6,000 in the skatathon.

According to Mr. Gettas, monies received over and above what is necessary for the overseas jaunt, will be turned over to the TMHA.

All pledges must be turned in by October 20. Until that time, winners of prizes awarded in conjunction with the fund raising program will not be named.

Jackets will be presented to the participating members of the team that turns in the most money to the fund and the top money - raising individual will also receive a jacket.

The jackets are the same as those that will be worn by the members of the juvenile team on their trip to Finland.

Big Save for Moore

Bob Moore, the Belleville Bobcats' goalie, shows off the form that carried the local Junior B entry to 9-6 victory over Pickering Panthers in Sunday night's contest at the Memorial Arena. Here, Moore foils a Pickering powerplay onslaught in the second period. Panthers' high-scoring centre Don Dwight shot from 10 feet out but Moore robbed Dwight on the shot making a quick glove save. Dave Flesch (5) waits to cover any possible rebound on the shot.

Team Has New Name But Familiar Results

The Gas House Hockey Leagues opened for another season last night, with four games being played at the Memorial Arena.

Last year's pennant winners and league champions, this year under the new sponsorship of the Golden Mile, continued in where they left off last year as they recorded a 4-1 win over Stanley Structures, formerly Wilson Concrete.

Dave Middleton, Randy Lambert, Terry Tope, and Bill Dunn all scored for the Millers, while Curt Bombower added three assists.

Great Goegan replied for Stanley Structures, with Paul Ackerman and Frank Wiles drawing assists.

In other opening games, Mead Johnson downed the Intelligencer 4-2, the Doctors topped Fraser and O'Neill Real Estate 7-4, and Constellation edged the Yardmen 3-1.

Ron Fuller had a pair of goals to lead the Mead win over the Intel, while Ralph Brant and Dave For added the singles.

Hyatle Bryant fired a hat trick to pace the Doctors over Fraser and O'Neill, as well as adding three assists. Garry Guyer had a goal and four assists, while Frank Gillis, George Jacklin, and Bill Van Zeelen each added a single.

Wayne Harrison had two goals for the losers, while Art Martin and Dave McMullen added one each.

Bill Yull had a pair of goals to lead Constellation in their victory over the Yardmen, with George Johnston adding the odd marker.

Richard Febert had the only goal for the Yardmen.

HAWKS CUT PAIR

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Black Hawks sent goalie Michel Dumas of Thetford Mines, Que., and right wing Gary Donaldson of Trail, B.C., to their Dallas farm club Monday.

Towers Atoms Tie Trenton

Towers Food City Major Atoms and their counterparts from Trenton, the Flyers, booked up in a well played exhibition contest at Ella Ellis Rink Monday night. Forced to play catch-up hockey, Trenton managed to pull out a 3-3 tie.

It was the first game of the season for both teams but the young skaters appeared to be in good form.

Dave Gilbey, Craig Saxby and Steve Thompson took care of Towers' scoring. Assists went to David Ashton, Steve Molaski and Rory MacLeod.

Steve Smith was a two-goal man for Flyers. Danny MacDonald converted a Mark Dunn pass for the other Trenton goal.

Towers makes its first start in the Ontario Minor Hockey Association South Centre Zone grouping at Memorial Arena this Sunday. Oshawa Atoms will supply the opposition for the 2:45 p.m. contest.

Kingston and Peterborough are also in the league.

Trophies Presented

The Bayshore Club saw the more feminine side of sports officially end its season Saturday night as the Ladies' Softball League held its closing banquet. In presentation of trophies.

Captain Sheila Smith, of the BYBF, had a busy evening as she accepted the MacIntyre-Maines Championship trophy and the Don Bell Pennant Trophy on behalf of her team.

The Judy Johnston Memorial Trophy, handed out for the first time ever, was player, Marg Reid.

A pair of awards went to players of the Bob Bland-Bed Bug team. Liz Reid won the Most Improved Player Trophy and team captain Judy Scanlon took the Most Sportsmanlike Player award.

Playoff Trophy

Sheila Smith, captain of the BYBF ladies' softball team, accepts the McInroy-Maines trophy from Peter McInroy. Sheila was representing her team. It was BYBF who captured the Ladies' Softball championship after a lengthy playoff. The team also took the honors as league winners in the pennant race.

Frankford Walkathon

Bill Genereaux, top left, Janet Bower, centre right, and Peggy Levigne, bottom left, receive the watches they won for participating in the Frankford Minor Sports Walkathon held last Saturday. Presenting the prizes are, from Minor Hockey, top, George Bedard, centre, from the Figure Skating Club, Janice Verbeek, and bottom, from the Girls' Hockey Team, Georgia Morrison. The walkathon raised about $2,500 for the three organizations.

Orioles Get Boost from Rain

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland Athletics feel they were doublecrossed by rain in their own park.

They said it acted to Baltimore Orioles' advantage in their American League baseball playoff when the third game was postponed Monday. The series is tied 1-1.

"We had them on the run, the champs were coming back," said outfielder Reggie Jackson. "Now they have Jim Palmer again."

Palmer now will be used in game No. 4.

The Orioles' ace right hander, 23-9 in the regular season, blanked the Athletics 6-0 Saturday in the opening game of the best-of-five series in Baltimore.

Palmer tossed a five-hitter and struck out 12. The Orioles took advantage of the ineffectiveness of Oakland's starting pitcher Vida Blue, who lasted two-thirds of an inning, in pounding Palmer with a 4-0 lead in the first inning.

In Baltimore Sunday, the Athletics got two homers from Sal Bando and one each from Joe Rudi and Bert Campaneris to defeat the Orioles 6-3.

The rain disappointed both managers—Earl Weaver of the Orioles and Dick Williams of the Athletics. Williams is angry that the game was called 22 minutes before it was scheduled to start.

League president Joe Cronin's decision to call the game brought him into a sharp exchange with Oakland owner Charles Finley.

"It's not fair to these fans to call it off a half-hour before game time," Finley said.

A crowd of about 30,000—the Oakland Coliseum seats 50,000—had been expected with most school children having Monday as a Columbus Day holiday.

The third-game pitchers today remain the same—left-handers Ken Holtzman for Oakland and Mike Cuellar for Baltimore. The game was to start at 3:30 p.m. EDT.

Williams struck with his original rotation—Blue to pitch the fourth game and Jim Hunter, the winner Sunday, ready for the fifth game, if necessary.

Petes Still Undefeated

Peterborough Petes regained possession of first place and remained the only undefeated team in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series with a 7-5 home-ice victory over Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds Monday.

In other Monday games, Ottawa 67s trounced Kingston Canadians 9-3 while London Knights defeated Oshawa Generals 6-4.

Bill Evo scored three goals for Petes who now have five wins and a tie in six starts. Ed Smith, Tony Cassolato, Rod Laurence and Tom Gastle got the other goals for Peterborough who led 2-0 after the first period and 5-2 entering the third.

Cary Farelli and Bill Reid each scored twice for the Greyhounds with Reid Bailey getting the other.

Toros, Cougars Tie 4-4

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Toros and Chicago Cougars were unfamiliar with the ice, but kept 4,794 fans interested in a World Hockey Association regular-season game Sunday night.

The teams tied 4-4 and the crowd was 107 short of capacity in the 47-year-old Varsity Arena, where the Toros—formerly Ottawa Nationals—play most of their home games this season.

The Ottawa club moved to Toronto under new ownership because of financial problems and poor attendance last year.

In another Sunday game, Quebec Nordiques defeated New England Whalers 4-2 before 8,128 home town fans. In a league contest Saturday, goaltender Joe Junkin blocked 43 shots to help Cleveland Crusaders tie New York Golden Blades 3-3.

Jean Topiel's second goal of the night in the third per od enabled the Cougars to pick up the tie. Rod Zaine and Rick Morris got the other Chicago goals while Tom Simpson scored twice for the Toros who held a 3-2 lead after the second period.

The Cougars outshot the Toros 45-29.

A goal by Jean Payette at 9:20 of the third period snapped a 2-2 tie and helped the Nordiques defeat the Whalers, playoff champions last year.

Serge Bernier added his second goal with 48 seconds remaining to clinch the victory.

Quebec outshot Ne England 36-28.

Islanders Top List

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It may be different in the regular season, but New York Islanders had the best record in National Hockey League exhibition play.

Fourteen teams open their 1973-74 campaign Wednesday and the Islanders will take an undefeated exhibition record—six wins and a tie—into Atlanta for a game against the Flames.

Next best in pre-season play was Vancouver Canucks who wound up with seven wins—four over Los Angeles Kings and two over Montreal Canadiens. The Canucks lost their last two games in a row, both to Minnesota North Stars, 3-1 Saturday and 7-0 Friday.

In other Wednesday games, Montreal will visit Minnesota, Buffalo Sabres will play in Toronto against the Maple Leafs, Detroit Red Wings visit New York Rangers, Vancouver Canucks go to Boston, Chicago Black Hawks are in Los Angeles and St. Louis Blues visit California Golden Seals.

The Bruins wound up their exhibition schedule Sunday with a 5-2-1 record after defeating the Canadiens 3-2. Chicago whipped Toronto 6-1, Atlanta blanked Philadelphia Flyers 2-0 and Pittsburgh Penguins topped winless Buffalo 5-2.

Other Saturday scores were: Buffalo 2, Pittsburgh 2; the Islanders 5, California 2; the Rangers 4, Detroit 2 and Philadelphia 3, St. Louis 0.

BUD HARRELSON
Punching Bag?

Tempers Flare in Fifth

Staub Has Hot Bat

NEW YOR K (AP) — After Rose, some belts from Rusty Staub and a couple from Bud Harrelson, too, Cincinnati Reds are on the brink of a knockout.

Staub hit two home runs and Harrelson hit Pete Rose in a brawl-filled game Monday in which New York Mets won 9-2 for a 3-1 lead in the best-of-five game playoff to determine baseball's National League representative in the World Series.

Staub's homers drove in four runs, but it was Harelson's battle with Rose that literally drove the Reds from the field in one of the most bizarre playoff affairs in history.

The final score was almost anti-climatic after what happened in the fifth inning.

A crowd of 53,967 was buzzing as the Mets held a 9-2 lead after four innings.

Then came the fifth, when Rose barrelled into Harrelson in an attempt to break up a double play at second base.

"He hit me with his elbow," Harrelson said. "I'm tired of being used a s punching bag."

The Mets' gutty little shortstop said something to the burly run-scoring single.

That was all for Grimsley. Anderson brought in Tom Hall—and Staub promptly blasted off the auxilliary scoreboard in right field.

The Mets evened the series Sunday with a 5-0 triumph in Cincinnati, thanks to a two-hit ter by Jon Matlack and a baseloaded single by Jerry Grote which drove in two runs. Staub hit a solo homer in the fourth inning to give the Mets a 1-0 lead.

Saturday, Tom Seaver of the Mets set a NL playoff record with 13 strikeouts, but still lost in Cincinnati when Johnny Bench hit a ninth-inning homer for a 2-1 Reds' win.

Riders Stop Cats to Stay Close

Als Thrash Stampeders 45-0

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Young Larry Smith enjoyed his finest football performance Monday since the days when he romped through the Leonox ville, Que., pasture that served as the home field for Bishop's University Gaiters.

Smith, No. 1 college football player in Quebec in 1971, and Montreal Alouettes' top choice in the draft that year, grabbed three touchdown passes from quarterback George Mira as the Alouettes thrashed Calgary Stampeders 45-0 in a Canadian Football League interlocking game.

The Stamps lost 37-10 to Toronto Argonauts Saturday.

The win gave the Alouettes a 6-4-1 record, leaving them one point behind front-running Toronto and one point up on Ottawa Rough Riders in the Eastern Football Conference.

The Rough Riders kept pace Monday as they defeated Hamilton Tiger Cats 16-13 in Hamilton.

While the Stampeders were tough in the first quarter, they fell apart in the second and third. Montreal held a 3-0 lead on Don Sweet's 15-yard field goal going into the second quarter, and then Sweet, who converted all five Montreal TDs, booted his second of three field goals with 4:08 gone.

On their next series of plays, Montreal marched from their own 30 and on the fifth play of the drive, Mira connected on a 20-yard pass to Smith.

The Stampeders, who managed only two first downs in the first half, failed to move the ball again and Mira took Montreal down from their own 34 before tossing a short pass to Smith who bigged it in from 11 yards out.

Things went from bad to worse for Calgary as quarterback Jim Lindsey was intercepted by Ward Smith who ran the ball from the Stamps' 28 in for Montreal's third TD.

In the second half, Mira led Montreal from their own 34 after the kickoff.

Mark Harris scored a single on the ensuing kickoff when Rudy Linterman could not handle the ball, and John Harvey danced through the Stampeders' defence on the final play of the third session for a 11-yard TD after he took a pass.

In Hamilton's game against Ottawa, defensive half Lewis Petrier scored The Tiger Cats' only touchdown in the third quarter when he raced 119 yards with a pass interception.

Ian Sunter kicked a pair of field goals and a convert to account for the balance of Hamilton's scoring as the Ottawa defence confused quarterback Chuck Ealey and running back Andy Hopkins.

Gerry Organ booked two field goals, three singles and converted Rhome Nixon's TD on a four-yard pass from quarterback Jerry Keeling.

Ottawa also managed to cut off the sprint out pass and the screen which forced the Tiger Cats to run inside, right into the arms of the Riders' linebackers.

Keeling was hurt late in the first half, getting a shot to the ribs, right under the arm and also one on his knee. However coach Jack Gotta said the ex-Calgary quarterback should be back in time for Ottawa's game against the Stampeders out west next Sunday.

Peterson Grand Prix Winner

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ronnie Peterson will take $53,900 back to Sweden and Gale Yarborough will keep $41,200 at home after a weekend of auto racing.

Peterson, 29, from Orexro, Sweden, beat Britisher James Hunt, a rookie, by less than half a second to win the $275,000 United States' Grand Prix at Watkins Glen, N.Y., Sunday.

At Charlotte, N.C., Yarborough nipped Richard Petty by about two seconds to win the National 500 for stock cars.

Peterson's jackpot included a first-place cheque for $50,000 and $2,900 for setting a record qualifying lap of 121.990 miles an hour to win the pole position.

Yarborough's total included $17,500 from the $168,000 purse and $24,000 for leading 243 of the race's 400 laps.

Peterson, Emerson Fittipaldi, his fourth Grand Prix victory of the season, came under the shadows of a grinding wreck that cost the life of French driver Francois Cevert in a qualifying session Saturday.

Cevert, 29, was a team-mate of three-time world champion Jackie Stewart. After the accident, Stewart's Elf Tyrrell Ford team pulled out of the race. Stewart already had clinched the 1973 title.

Peterson, in addition to his single-lap record, drove the 300 miles of the U.S. Grand Prix in a Lotus Ford at a speed of 118.035 miles an hour, a Formula 1 record for the hilly, 11-turn, 3.377-mile road course.

Yarborough's 500-mile speed at Charlotte in a Chevrolet was 145.230 m.p.h., a Charlotte Motor Speedway record.

Nicklaus Gives Away His Prize

KING MILLS, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus romped over his rivals in the $125,000 Ohio Kings Island open golf tournament Monday and then gave away his $25,000 prize.

"I don't accept the purse," said Nicklaus, whose final 72 gave him a four-round total of 271, 13-under-par 62 six shots ahead of runner-up Lee Trevino.

Nicklaus said he was setting up a $20,000 Ohio State University scholarship in the name of his late father, pharmacist Charles Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio.

The other $5,000 went to the Boy Scouts of America.

Gary Player of South African gave $20,000 to the Cancer Fund of Canada after the United States Open in 1965. His mother died of cancer.

Trevino, who had a final 68 for a 277 total, also has given shares of his purses to charity.

Nicklaus moved close to an unprecedented $2 million in career earnings.

Bombers Pull Out Tie

By JOHN SHORT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For more than 59 minutes Monday, Larry Highbaugh of Edmonton Eskimos had the kind of day most defensive backs only dream about.

Then he failed by inches in a bid to improve upon perfection and his club settled for a 14-14 tie with Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a Western Football Conference game before 21,841 fans at Edmonton.

He returned a wide field goal attempt by Walt McKee of the Bombers from the rear of the red zone on the last play of the game, after appreciating the attempt by fumbling the kick. He swept to his right and appeared safe until the last instant when McKee forced him out of bounds for the tying point.

The play almost nullified Highbaugh's outstanding performance. He returned a series of kickoffs to keep Edmonton in good field position, intercepted a Bomber pass in the end zone and contributed to a pass defence that grew tougher as the game progressed.

Highbaugh was one of the dominant Eskimos in a comeback that led them from a 13-3 halftime deficit to a 14-13 lead.

The Eskimos fell into second place in the WFC standings, one point behind Saskatchewan Roughriders, who rallied behind George Reed for a 34-9 triumph Sunday over the B.C. Lions.

After the Thanksgiving weekend football festival, each western club had played 12 games and Saskatchewan had 16 points, one more than Edmonton. Calgary Stampeders, battered 37-10 by Toronto Argonauts Saturday and 45-0 by Montreal Alouettes Monday, remained in third spot, five points behind Edmonton and three ahead of B.C. and Winnipeg, tied for fourth place.

Reed provided all the momentum Saskatchewan needed after being saluted by almost 31,000 fans, including Premier Allan Blakeney, as "the greatest fullback in the world."

Reed, who has scored more touchdowns by rushing and gained more yardage along the ground than any player in organized football, scored on three short charges after carrying the ball and taking short passes from Ron Lancaster.

Jack Abendschan completed Saskatchewan's scoring with a field goal and three converts.

B.C. opened a 3-0 lead in the fourth quarter before Reed took over. Ivan MacMillan kicked three field goals, bringing his total to eight in two games as a Lion.

In the Edmonton-Winnipeg standoff, Dave Cutler, the leading scorer in Canada, collected two long field goals, a convert and a single for the Eskimos, but missed two long field goals that were returned from the end zone. He also missed a short one in the fourth quarter when he slipped.

A 36-yard pass from Tom Wilkinson to Gerry Lefebvre completed Edmonton's scoring.

Secretariat Wins on Grass

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Secretariat, making his first start on the grass, turned back E. P. Taylor's Tentam and won the Hy-mile Man o'War Stakes in a Belmont turf course in record time of 2:24 4-5 Monday.

The Triple Crown winner who was upset in the Woodward Stakes just nine days ago, drew away in the stretch for a five-length victory over Tentam, a late-season campaigner on the turf, with Big Spruce another 7½ lengths back.

The first money of $68,160 from a gross purse of $113,600 lifted Secretariat's earnings to $1,224,053 and moved him past Cougar II and Damascus into sixth place on the all-time thoroughbred money-winning list.

With a crowd of 35,878 cheering him on, Secretariat, carrying 121 pounds, including Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., smashed the turf course record of 2:25 2-5. His clocking was just four-fifths of a second slower than the time he posted in winning the Belmont Stakes on the dirt. The world record for 1½ miles on the grass is 2:22 by Fiddle Isle in 1970.

Hamilton Manufacturer Ontario Socred Leader

PORT PERRY, Ont. (CP) — A quiet, conservative-looking door manufacturer for Hamilton is the man the Social Credit League of Ontario picked Saturday to lead the party out of the wilderness of Ontario politics.

Alcide Hamelin, 37, was not seeking the Socred provincial leadership when he drove to the league's convention here but the party faithful had other ideas. He was nominated from the floor, accepted, and went on to beat the two declared candidates, including incumbent William Vrsaks.

Mr. Hamelin, one of three brothers who ran as unsuccessful Socred candidates in Hamilton Ridings in the last federal election, assumed the dual role of league president and provincial leader.

He faces the task of assembling as almost non-existent a election machine.

Ontario Will Clear Away 500,000 Discarded Cars

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is taking steps to clear away the estimated 500,000 abandoned cars in the province, Environment Minister James Auld says.

Mr. Auld, in a news release, said that anyone with two or more derelict vehicles on his property is subject to the province's new derelict motor vehicle regulation.

"Enforcement will be applied gradually but our intention is to establish control over private and commercial accumulations of junked automobiles."

Derelict cars collected by the ministry last year were removed to landfill sites. This year, money has been set aside to move such cars to places where they can be reclaimed as raw metal.

The ministry also has allotted $80,000 to three experimental clean-up programs in Sault Ste. Marie, Thunder Bay and in Renfrew and Lanark counties

Constable Offers Help Is Struck With Tire Iron

DUTTON, Ont. (CP) — A provincial police officer who stopped to help a stranded motorist Sunday was rewarded by being struck in the face with a tire iron.

Constable William Douglas of offered assistance to a man on Highway 401 about 20 miles west of London where a car was stopped with a flat tire. The constable was taken to hospital with facial injuries and was later released.

Look What I Found

BASILDON, England (CP) — A seven-year-old Tommy Butler proudly brought his teacher an object he had found on an Essex beach, saying he had hit it with a hammer but it wouldn't open. It turned out to be a 70-inch live mortar bomb from the Second World War. Said a school welfare officer: "We often get toffee-apples but seldom bombs."

Oil Sands Plant Is Sought

CALGARY (CP) — Shell Canada Ltd. will seek permission at an Alberta energy conservation board hearing today to build a $700-million oil sands plant.

The mining-extraction plant is proposed for the Athabasca oil sands region of northeastern Alberta, 275 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Shell Canada and Shell Explorer Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Shell Oil Co., propose to build a 100,000-barrel-a-day plant and start oil production scheduled early in 1982.

The board hearings begin against a background of uncertainty for the recovery of an estimated 300 billion barrels of oil from the sands.

The Shell proposal, if approved, would be the third massive oil sands operation for northeastern Alberta.

Sun Oil's subsidiary, Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. (GCOS), now is operating a 50,000-barrel-a-day plant which has cost $300 million and has not made a profit since it began operating in 1967.

Syncrude Canada Ltd., a consortium made up of Alminic Richfield Canada Ltd., Cities Service Canada Ltd., Imperial Oil Ltd., and Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., has agreed to begin immediate construction on a 125,000-barrel-a-day plant.

This project is now estimated to cost $1.2 billion.

The final decision to build thisplant, "is subject to agreement by the federal government that oil sands synthetic oil will be permitted to find realistic price level in international markets," says Syncrude.

The consortium is seeking exemption from the newly imposed federal government oil export tax, but Energy Minister Donald Macdonald has said this may not be granted.

The Shell proposal, which must be approved by the board and the Alberta government, would be built on a 50,000-acre lease 10 miles northeast of Syncrude.

The lease is estimated to contain 3.2 billion barrels of recoverable oil or enough to keep a 100,000-barrel-a-day operation going for 86 years. The projectpiant life is 25 years.

To Your Good Health

Body Produces Much Cholesterol

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor found my cholesterol to be 300. (Normal is 200 to 250 mg. on this particular test) and put me on a low cholesterol diet. I thought cholesterol could be controlled by diet in the same way that elevated blood sugar can. Is this wrong?—J.U.

It is half right and half wrong, which is typical of much of the information and misinformation dealing with cholesterol.

Sure, a diet can help control cholesterol but notice I say help control it. We get cholesterol from two sources, from the food we take in and from our body's natural production of it. As a matter of fact the body's chemical production can often be four to six times the amount of cholesterol in a normal diet.

By some testing techniques the normal upper level may range between 250 and 300 milligrams.

Your cholesterol level is probably in the high end of the normal range for individuals, and your diet is probably intended to keep it from getting beyond control.

Your mild cholesterol gain, despite the diet, shouldn't worry you. There are several other factors besides diet that dictate cholesterol levels, emotional stress among them. For some reason tension seems to elevate cholesterol levels. Perhaps this could be a factor in your case.

Furthermore, a five-milligram variation could well be their opinion surgery had a lot to change with dieting.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: It has been brought to our attention that iodine lotion can give you skin cancer. If so is baby oil harmful?—Mrs. M.D. and A.G.

No such thing has been brought to my attention. Who told you that such lotions would give you such things? But of course excessive exposure to the sun over a period of years is known to contribute to skin cancer.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You wrote about exercises which would help strengthen the muscles that control the bladder for women with stress-incontinence. I have been doing these exercises ever since and must say I notice some improvement but not enough to control involuntary urination in case of an unexpected sneeze or cough.

Both a legal urologist and a specialist at Mayo Clinic advised me that surgery and that the operation was not always effective. I would like your opinion—Mrs. L.B.

I think it was fair and honest of the one physician to warn you that an operation does not always correct this trouble. That is a chance you take. It is better for you to know of this possibility in advance than—perhaps—be disappointed afterward.

If the operation does not end the trouble it still may make your exercise program more effective. I'm sorry I can't give you a more definite answer but since both urologists recommended the operation then I think you can feel sure that in due course your surgeon will be chance of ending the trouble or at least minimizing it.

Opening lead—queen of clubs.

It would seem that declarer must go down one against proper defense. South played the hand exceptionally well and wound up making three notrump.

He won the club lead with the king and played a spade to dummy's nine. Had East taken the trick with the queen, South would have secured nine easy tricks by later forcing out the ace of spades.

But East wisely refused to win the nine of spades and South had to give a virtuous performance to make the contract. After playing a low heart to the ace he led a spade to the ten, expecting the ten to either win or force out the ace. But East took the ten with the queen and returned the nine of clubs.

South won with the ace and made the remarkable play of the jack of hearts to the king, followed by the king of spades from dummy on which he discarded the queen of hearts as East won the spade with the ace.

This sequence of plays had an extremely sound foundation. South had realized there was no chance for the contract unless East had the king of diamonds and West had at most two diamonds and all his plays were geared to that somewhat farfetched assumption.

East, with five diamonds and a heart left in his hand at this point, returned a low diamond. South finessed the queen, cashed the ace to bring himself to seven tricks, and put West on lead with a club.

West cashed the J - 10 of clubs but was then forced to return a lead to dummy's ten of hearts and jack of spades, thus handing declarer the game - going tricks.

Only One Death

Hospital Gas Lines Mixed

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Coroner M. J. Prevost confirmed reports Sunday that pipes used to supply gases for anesthetic at Sudbury General Hospital were emitting the wrong gases.

An investigation is under way into all deaths that have occurred in the hospital's $3-million wing since it opened May 7, he said.

The investigations began following the death of an apparently healthy six-year-old Sudbury area girl Sept. 7.

Catherine Dominic of Dowling died in the hospital's x-ray room while under anesthetic to reset the cast on a broken elbow.

Following an autopsy, Dr. Prevost said in an interview that hospital officials and Sudbury detectives examined the oxygen and nitrous oxide pipes in the room where the girl died.

A subsequent analysis of the gas samples by the Centre of Forensic Sciences showed that nitrous oxide was coming out of the oxygen pipe and oxygen from the nitrous oxide outlet, he said.

The pipes were sealed and the fault later corrected, but the equipment will not be used until results of the investigations are known. These results will be made public at an inquest Dec. 10 into the death of the Dominic girl, he said.

The inquest was ordered by Dr. Prevost after consultations with Dr. B. B. Cotnam, Ontario chief coroner.

Dr. Prevost said the administering of anesthetic to the girl was the first time anesthetic had been applied in that particular room.

The investigation into other deaths is being conducted partly to allay public fears, he said, and partly to determine if the anesthetic mixup may have contributed to those deaths.

But he added: "We know for a fact that there were no other deaths except the Dominic one which was related to the anesthetic."

He said the investigation includes examination of the post-mortem brain-cell microscopic sections of all those who died in the hospital and who had been in the new wing.

The main evidence of an anesthetic death is a significant amount of brain cell damage, which would be readily apparent to pathologists who conduct post-mortem examinations of all hospital deaths, he said.

No evidence of anesthetic brain cell damage was found until the death of the Dominic child, said Dr. Prevost.

He said he could not estimate the number of deaths being studied, but termed as irresponsible the figure of 20 given by a Toronto newspaper which broke news of the investigations Saturday.

The investigations, being directed by Dr. Ross Bennett, deputy chief coroner for Ontario, also involve officials of the Ontario Hospital Service Commission and firms involved in the design and construction of the new wing.

Three Quebec Leaders Join in Attacking PQ

MONTREAL (CP) — Leaders of three of Quebec's four political parties spent Monday criticizing the Parti Quebecois while PQ leader Rene Leveque claimed that voters' lists in Montreal ridings were "inaccurate for the Oct. 29 provincial election.

Mr. Leveque told 650 persons attending first public campaign meeting in his home riding of Dorion, just west of here, that more than 100,000 qualified voters have been left off lists in 24 east-end ridings.

He also told reporters that another 25,000 are missing from lists in 10 west end ridings.

Those figures, he said, were arrived at by checking Montreal water tax records and by door-to-door surveys by party members.

A permanent voters' list for all Quebec was drawn up last summer but Montreal voters have a nine-day period starting Oct. 11 to make corrections to the list.

Earlier Monday, Premier Robert Bourassa told a rally in Dorion that the Parti Quebecois will "meet its Waterloo" today when it unveils its budget for the first year of an independent Quebec.

"I have the impression this will be a gloomy document," Mr. Bourassa said.

He said the Liberals would have answers to counter all the Parti Quebecois figures.

At St. Raymond, 30 miles west of Quebec City, Creditiste leader Yvon Dupuis, claimed credit for stopping the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ).

Although the FLQ has been dormant since the October crisis of 1970, he said they have stood aside since he re-entered politics last winter "because they're afraid of Dupuis."

Gabriel Loubier, Union Nationale leader, told 70 party organizers in Charevoix riding near Quebec City, that his party is the only realistic and nationalistic one in the campaign.

Living Costs' Climb Slowed

OTTAWA (CP) — Living costs slowed their rise in September but still continued to chip away at the value of the dollar in the steepest inflation since 1951, the government reported today.

Consumer prices rose six-tenths of one per cent last month, with food costs continuing to lead the price parade, Statistics Canada said.

The increase in living costs was less than half of August's 2.5-per-cent record jump of 1.3 per cent, but the price spread over a year ago continued to rise. It was 8.5 per cent above September, 1972, compared with 8.3 per cent from August 1972 to August 1973.

The latest increase brought the government's consumer price index up to 152.8 from its base of 100.

The figure means that every $10 worth of typical family purchases 12 years ago now costs $15.28.

Of that $5.28 rise over a dozen years, 22 per cent or $1.21 of it occurred in the past year alone.

Food prices, which have been largely responsible for the sharp increases in living costs, rose nine-tenths of one per cent in September, Statistics Canada said.

This included a five-tenths rise for groceries and 2.1 per cent for restaurant meals.

The rise in supermarket prices came despite a greater than usual decline of more than 36 per cent for fresh fruits and vegetables.

"The impact of higher wheat quotations was reflected in retail outlets by a sharp one-month increase of 8.9 per cent in the level of prices for cereal and bakery products," Statistics Canada said.

Bread prices alone shot up 17 per cent in September, it added. Flour was up 10 per cent and macaroni 8.3 per cent.

Prices of meats, poultry and fish rose 4.7 per cent, the report said.

"Pork prices advanced 8.1 per cent in the latest month to a level 37.1 per cent above September, 1972. Beef prices, on average, rose 2.8 per cent in the latest month and stood 29.4 per cent above their level of 12 months earlier," it said.

Poultry prices were up 5.3 per cent for the month and 47.6 per cent for the year. Eggs rose 6.8 per cent in September and were 50 per cent higher over the year.

Grocery prices in general were 16.1 per cent higher than a year earlier, the report said.

In other price categories, Statistics Canada said housing costs rose five-tenths of one per cent in September and were up 7.1 per cent over the year, clothing climbed eight-tenths of one per cent for the month and was up 3.4 per cent for the year, transportation was up six-tenths for the month and 3.9 per cent for the year.

Moog Probers Report

Hydro Commissioners Rapped but Not Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro commissioners received a rap across the knuckles from a legislative select committee Tuesday for their handling of a deal for a new $44.4-million headquarters.

But the committee also absolved Premier William Davis of any personal influence in the awarding of the contract to Gerhard Moog, his friend for 15 years.

The 11-member, all - party committee handed down its findings in the legislature in a 19-page report culled from 50 days of testimony over four months.

The inquiry was instituted by Mr. Davis following opposition allegations of possible political patronage and a report in The Globe and Mail that an unsuccessful bidder for the contract had been warned to keep quiet about the deal.

The contract was awarded to Mr. Moog's Canada Square Corp. Ltd. over three other bids in July, 1972. The contract was not put to public tender. Hydro instead invited each of the four firms to submit proposals. Testimony showed Canada Square had access denied to the other firms to earlier plans for a new headquarters.

The report said Hydro commissioners "erred collectively in not ensuring that a proper competition occurred" and that they failed to supervise the negotiations "in a more exacting way."

It found nothing wrong with the developer-proposal method itself, "if there are sound financial or other reasons," but said guidelines should be established. These would require the developer to make complete disclosure as a condition of dealing with a public body.

The committee felt that "all persons within Hydro involved in the decision-making process were at all times of the belief that their actions were in the best interests of Ontario Hydro."

And Mr. Davis "took no step nor gave any direction to anyone which in any way assisted Canada Square to successfully negotiate a contract with Ontario Hydro."

But the report says Mr. Moog, his lawyer George Finlayson and five other persons at times demonstrated "a singular lack of respect," for the work of the committee.

It says Mr. Moog and Mr. Finlayson "displayed their contempt of the committee" when the developer, on counsel's instruction, refused to testify for two days. Their actions raised the possibility of contempt proceedings but the report recommended legislative action not be taken against them.

The five other persons are named as Donald Smith, president of Ellis-Don Ltd. of London, Ont., one of the unsuccessful bidders John Cronyn, a director of Ellis-Don and former chairman of the province's influential committee on government productivity; Anne Shutleworth, Mr. Smith's secretary; David Lerant, Ellis-Don secretary-treasurer; and John Brownlie, counsel for Ellis-Don who later retired in favor of another lawyer.

The committee said the first four suppressed relevant evidence—two letters written by Mr. Smith to Mr. Cronyn mentioning Ellis-Don efforts to exploit political influence—and that Mr. Brownlie became aware of the suppression of evidence.

Davis Is Pleased

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Tuesday he was gratified that a legislative select committee made "abundantly clear" that neither he nor anyone associated with him helped developer Gerhard Moog, a personal friend, win the contract for Ontario Hydro's new headquarters.

"The premier told the legislature that he neither anticipated nor looked forward to any need for a similar committee in the near future.

Mr. Davis ordered the committee to investigate charges that his friendship with Mr. Moog influenced the awarding of the contract. It also looked into Hydro's method of awarding the contract.

However, Liberal leader Robert Nixon asked for early dissolution in the legislature of the committee's report.

Later, outside the house, he called the report "severely damaging to Hydro."

The committee criticized Hydro officials for not exercising greater caution in the method of awarding the contract.

Mr. Moog, accused by the committee of misrepresentation during his dealings with Hydro while attempting to secure the contract, said the report was a "political report, done for political reasons."

Defence Budget To Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — In what he called a "new era" for the armed forces, Defence Minister James Richardson announced a program today under which the defence budget will increase seven per cent a year for at least the next five years.

The minister announced at a news conference a combination of increased spending and production in some equipment and establishments to permit an increase in the capital expenditures that will eventually reach 20 per cent of the total defence budget.

At the same time the minister expressed hope that the total defence expenditures will become a smaller portion of the gross national product—total value of all goods and services in Canada.

He said the defence budget will grow by more than $1.2 million a year for the next five years. By the fifth year of the plan, the budget will be more than $3 billion, compared with the $2.143 billion of the current fiscal year.

Israeli Planes Busy

Sinai Ground War Stalled

From AP-REUTER

Israel said its planes bombed Damascus airport today, brought down 17 Syrian planes in air battles and bombed other strategic and military targets in Syria and Egypt.

Heavy air battles raged over Syria, Egypt and the Sinai Desert and by early afternoon, the Arabs claimed to have downed 23 Israeli planes, bringing to 211 the number of Israeli aircraft the Arabs say they have downed since the war began Saturday.

Meanwhile, a senior Israeli officer said the 1967 ceasefire line on the Golan Heights has been crossed by Israeli forces who are fighting within Syrian territory.

But field reports and communiques indicated the fighting had tapered off in the Sinai Peninsula where Israel admitted backing off from its main line of defence against the Egyptians.

The Israeli military command reported bombing "strategic and military targets in Syria, including Syria's naval headquarters in Latakia and Mezzut al-Bayda and fuel installations at Homs 85 miles north of Damascus. Homs is an industrial city, was first hit Tuesday by Israeli raiders.

Syrian communiques said the Israeli jets today also hit the Syrian ports of Latakia and Tartus on the Mediterranean and blasted civilian targets in all the attacks.

Tel Aviv spokesmen said the targets in Egypt included air bases near 27 miles north of Cairo and others at Khamsa and Mit Hammad in the Nile Delta. The Israeli jets also reported "accurate hits" on a new oil line on the Mediterranean coast 80 miles east of Alexandria, they added.

Egypt and Syria said Tuesday that they had beaten back repeated Israeli attacks and were poised for new advances. An Israeli spokesman said Tuesday's day night that Israel's counter-offensive had stalled in both the Sinai Desert and Golan Heights.

Cities in Israeli, Egypt and Syria were blacked out after an Israeli raid Tuesday on Damascus and another Syrian city.

Tel Aviv had a four-minute air alert at 4:30 a.m., but apparently it was a false alarm.

Cairo said two air raid alerts Tuesday but an official said the capital did not come under attack. A Reuters news agency correspondent in the city said explosions were heard and it was believed that an airfield might have been the target.

In Cairo, the Egyptians claimed success Tuesday in fierce desert fighting in the Sinai and said they were ready to push the Israelis further eastward.

The Egyptian Sinai thrust was hailed by military and political leaders in Cairo as an historic achievement "which trampled the myth of the invulnerability of the Israeli army."

Egypt said one entire Israeli armored brigade—about 3,000 men—was wiped out and its commander captured. In all, it said, 107 tanks were destroyed.

U.S. military analysts told reporters in Washington they believe the Israelis can drive the Egyptian and Syrian forces back behind the ceasefire lines they crossed last Saturday but only at "a very considerable cost." One official said the Arabs "are doing better this time than they have in the past."

Israel conceded Tuesday that its troops fell back to defence points two to three miles from the Bar-Lev Line of concrete bunkers the Israelis had built along the east bank of the Suez Canal.

The Israeli assistant chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. Aharon Yariv, told a news conference Tuesday that the Egyptians still had about 400 tanks on the east side of the canal and the Egyptian advantage in numbers of troops there was "pronounced."

But he said "during the past 24 hours the Egyptians had considerable difficulty in resupplying and reinforcing," and the Israelis had established a line that provided "what is called in military language a firm base for operations."

Israeli and Syrian accounts of the situation on the Golan Heights differed widely.

Canada Ready To Join UN Peacekeepers

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is willing to take part in a new peacekeeping force in the Middle East if the United Nations sets one up, an external affairs department official said Tuesday.

He said that if the UN Security Council, now deadlocked on dispute over how to deal with the current Middle East war, calls for a peacekeeping operation, "we would agree to participate."

Canada now has 30 military officers on the United Nations Truce Supervisory Organization, some of them stationed on the Israel-Syria ceasefire line.

The last UN peacekeeping force was evacuated from Egyptian territory as the June, 1967, Israeli war erupted.

Gas Quells Convicts

MONTREAL (CP) — Madeleine St. Germain, a former social worker at the Canadian Penitentiary Services regional medical centre here, said Tuesday that prisons are using gas to punish unruly prisoners. Mrs. St. Germain, who resigned last Thursday, said prisoners who make too much noise, as well as those who are violent, are knocked unconscious by gas bombs introduced into cells through a small opening in the door. "It knocks the prisoners unconscious and leaves them unable to eat for a few days," she said.

Tradeau Get Warm Welcome in Peking

PEKING (CP) — Pierre Trudeau today became the first Canadian prime minister to visit China when he was swept into Peking with a blazing welcome which tended to overshadow the talks he began a short time later with Premier Chou En-lai.

Officials said the welcoming crowds and ceremony were more elaborate than those seen by U.S. President Nixon on his visit here earlier this year.

"We greet you warmly," Premier Chou told Canadian reporters, "because you are the first North American country to establish diplomatic relations with us."

During the next three days, Trudeau and Premier Chou will hold talks on trade, exchange programs, diplomatic and consular expansions and medical and scientific matters. There is a possibility that several general agreements, now being negotiated by officials, will be signed by the two leaders, although Canadian officials are

Ottawa Grants Loan for Rink

Approval of a $106,000 loan from the federal government's Winter Capital Project Fund toward the construction of a proposed new skating rink in Belleville's east end has been announced from Ottawa.

The announcement of the loan approval was made in a release to the local news media but city hall officials this morning were still awaiting confirmation of the loan approval.

Application for the loan was included in requests for assistance for nine local projects. The provincial government, which administers the fund, recommended approval of four of the local projects for a total of $236,00.

The other projects recommended for approval were the installation of storm sewers for the Wellington Street area, storm sewers for Catherine Street, and a service building for the East Belleville playgrounds.

While the announcement was for approval of a loan for $106,000 for the arena project, Mayor Robin Jeffrey said it was council's understanding that it would determine the priority for commencement of the four local projects.

Construction of a new skating rink in the city's east end has been in the talk stage for several years and the city has a sum of $350,000 in the 1972 capital works budget for the project.

Plans call for a structure 250 by 180 feet with an ice surface 85 by 180 feet. An artificial ice plant would operate from September to April.

The Winter Capital Projects Fund incorporates an incentive feature which allows forgiveness of all direct onsite labor cost during the winter months and 50 per cent of labor costs during the summer months.

Also approved for Belleville are ministry of community and Social services grants of $5,000 to the Belleville arena Skating Club.

The $,000 arena grant is to assist in the installation of new lighting and certain other work. The $2,520 for the Girls Softball Club is to assist in the installation of new outdoor lighting.

Bus Route Sale Vetoed

In another move to keep school busing local and small, Hastings county board of education Tuesday night refused to approve sale of shares in County Bus Service Ltd. and Franklin Coach Ltd. to Travelways Ltd.

A school bus operator is free to sell his vehicles but he cannot assign routes to a new operator without board approval.

The board has a policy that bus operators who hold contracts with the county system cannot own more than 35 buses.

To help G. A. Cox, owner of the shares, to dispose of them in a manner satisfactory to the board, it divided his 25 routes into seven packages. The seven packages will be offered for sale, today and for the next week, to individual operators in the Quinte district.

Shulman Says Figures Show Pollution Deadly

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Cancer, influenza and pneumonia-related deaths in Hastings county are terrifyingly higher than the provincial average, the result of widespread pollution, says NDP member of the provincial legislature, Dr. Morton Shulman.

Dr. Shulman toured the Moira watershed last weekend with members of People Against a Contaminated Environment.

After seeing first-hand pollution from Belleville General Hospital, and at Corbyville and Deloro, the physician said he would investigate further the incidence of stomach cancer deaths in the area.

Provincial government statistics for 1968-72 in each 100,00 die of cancer in Hastings county annually. This is 26 more than the provincial average.

For stomach and influenza, 48 in each 100,000 are nearly double the provincial average, die each year here.

"It's deadlier to live in Belleville than in Toronto — environmentally," said Dr. Shulman.

"You can't affect the environment as you people in Hastings have without affecting the human mortality rate," he said.

MORE

Incidence of local pollution problems were the cause of the deaths, he said. "I can't think of any other factor that would do this."

Dr. Shulman was most interested in the smelting site at Deloro — now be visited and criticized three years ago.

The site had not been cleared of its slag heap and according to the water sampling results there are .14 parts per million of arsenic in water downstream from the slag pile. The danger level for human consumption is .05.

Dr. Shulman said figures are still coming in and he needs to investigate the suspicion that death rates due to cancer, influenza and pneumonia are on the increase in the Hastings area while they are static or declining in most other parts of the province. Once his investigations are complete, the physician intends to submit a report to the provincial legislature.

Ontario Budget Within Projections

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's budget revenues are within $7 million of that which is projected for this fiscal year, treasurer John White told the legislature Tuesday.

Mr. White was answering questions from Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Dovercourt) who wanted to know if the government revenues were much greater than expected because of Ottawa's increase in the provincial sales tax to seven per cent from five.

The treasurer said that wasn't the case.

The increase is ill revenues, he said, was $7 million out of a budget of $7 billion.

"We are within one-tenth of one per cent of being correct," he said.

Latest projections were based on figures up to the end of July. Next quarterly report will be at the end of this month, and Mr. White indicated no drastic increase in revenues.

The major contributor to inflation is higher food costs and food is not subject to retail sales tax."

KEL KINCAID
Election Date Uncertainties

PCs Will Hold Madoc Convention

MADOC — The current endgame of national politics are the subject of federal Hastings Progressive Conservatives are hoking another nomination here in little less than a year, says Kel Kincaid, the party's riding president.

The convention is slated for Centre Hastings High School Oct. 17, with Calude Wagner, Conservative Quebec spokesman keynote speaker.

As yet, indicates Mr. Kincaid, there has been no indication of serious opposition to the nomination of Earl Rick Ellis, MP, who will seek a second term.

The constituency's last Conservation nomination was held June Sept. 27 last year and chose Mr. Ellis, former Belleville mayor, as candidate. In the subsequent general election that — that send Mr. Ellis to Ottawa for the first time — the country also returned a minority government.

Unpredictable future of government and a major factor in deciding to call a nomination convention so early, said Mr. Kincaid.

The uncertainties of national politics in the past year has seen political organizers in close touch with shifting events — to ensure a campaign wasn't called before candidates were nominated.

In Hastings, the convention date was decided as far back as mid-summer — one of the times when there was much talk of an election being imminent during the food prices-inflation controversy, said Mr. Kincaid.

"We decided, this last July — and at that time there was a very strong rumor there was going to be a federal election," said Mr. Kincaid.

He was uncertain if any nominees would stand against Mr. Ellis.

"No one has come and intimated to me they may be interested in a nomination," said the riding president.

Mr. Ellis formally affirmed yesterday from Ottawa his intention of seeking another term — should he said he himself has never believed there would be an election before next year at the earliest.

"My guess is that it will be in the late spring of '74," he said.

"That's the guess I made the day after the last election and I'm standing by it."

One reason for his prediction, said Mr. Ellis, is that by early 1974 economic conditions may make for a better campaign climate for the government.

Reason for the Hastings convention has been a common political factor for various constituency organizations in the past year, said the MP.

Candidates, both Liberal and Conservative, already have been nominated in other ridings, he said.

Brown Trout Near Brighton

BRIGHTON — Brown trout are trickling through the waters of Lake Ontario hereabouts.

It's the result of a conservation move by New York State authorities.

Frank Taylor lake fisheries management officer at the ministry's Napanee office says six brown trout have been officially inspected — and several dozen more catches reported near here.

It happened way further east earlier in the summer.

In July, baffled local anglers discovered Lake St. Lawrence near Cornwall swarming with brown trout.

New York government environmentalists were just as astounded — to find the stock they had experimentally planted on the south side of Lake Ontario had travelled so far.

meeting here.

Doug Lea, a member of the Citizens Bureau made a brief presentation to the four members present at the meeting.

While there was only a small turnout it was thought if there was any dissent from absent members on the move to secure an LIP grant, it could later be cancelled.

Town council twice has recently been reported as whole-heartedly for supporting the work of the bureau in its dealings as a public supported ombudsman.

The Citizens Bureau opened in Belleville last year after it received an LIP grant. The project received new further financial extensions from LIP although a further extension council submission would relocate the Bureau in Trenton.

The labor council felt it had to make a decision quickly with the Oct. 15 deadline for LIP submissions passed near. Without LIP funds, or alternative sources of funding, the bureau faces extinction or at best a part time voluntary effort.

Lighting Policy Approved

TRENTON — A street-lighting policy for this town has been established and, say municipal officers, the Public Utilities Commission has found it "acceptable."

Council spent little time during last night's committee of the whole session discussing the policy.

The policy will be formally presented at Monday's council meeting.

The policy goes into some detail as to lighting extensions, particularly those in relation to newly-constructed subdivisions.

It says, for instance, the PUC will mark on plans where the subdivider is to place lighting standards. The commission will also be responsible in advising what type of lighting is to be installed.

Dead Trees Will Be Removed

TRENTON — Council last night authorized a $2,400 contract award for the cutting and removal of 30 dead trees throughout the town.

The acting commissioner of works explained these trees could collapse during the winter with the added burden of snow and ice and the town could find itself financially liable for property damage.

There were no tenders for the job though town officers said this $2,400 cost was in line with spring tenders for similar projects. The expected work will begin immediately.

Careless Smoking Major Fire Cause

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Smoking is not only tough on your body but is half the battle for Trenton firemen.

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis says 47 per cent of fires are started through careless smoking.

Looking back over this past year, at that rate, more than $70,000 worth of fires need not have happened, the chief says. The chief said fire damage over the year has topped $140.00.

"We've been busier this year with more calls but the fires aren't as serious," he said. The chief attributed this to a better educated public.

"People are calling us faster than they did before an every second counts," he said.

This week is Fire Prevention Week across the country. The fire department here is organizing fire ball games and going into the community checking safety equipment.

During the year, the department has been called out 956 times — 15 false alarms, 20 minor fires (under $10,000), 15 major fires (over $10,000) and 254 service calls.

"Service calls include nearly anything, but are generally requests for inspectors to check out heating equipment and extinguishers. This service is provided to anyone in the community at no cost.

"Fire prevention depends on co - operation," says the chief. "We're only too glad to give help and advice."

During the year, some 13,000 fire prevention pamphlets have been distributed throughout the town.

The chief said people should be checking all year round for potentially dangerous situations.

Some 16 percent of fires started from faulty heating equipment, 12 percent from rubbish and trash, 18 percent are electrical fires and the remaining eight per cent start from an assortment of causes.

All Depends On Airport

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's plans for the 25,000-acre future city development in nearby North Pickering will be substantially altered if the federal government decides not to build an international airport in the area, Premier William Davis said Tuesday.

Both Premier Davis and Claude Bennett, minister of industry and tourism, have repeatedly said in the past that the new city of 200,000 will be built regardless of whether the federal government proceeds with the airport.

But Premier Davis told the legislature Tuesday in response to questions from Opposition Leader Robert Nixon that the total project could be altered if the federal government doesn't build an international airport.

"It may be that we will have to make certain decisions without all the information that we would like to have available," Mr. Davis said.

"... From our own planning standpoint the question has been ... complicated by the lack of decision on the part of the federal government as to whether or not they will or will not proceed with the second international facility."

Senior Citizens' Project Approved

TRENTON — During a committee - of - the - whole session Tuesday night, town council here gave formal approval to the Trenton Senior Citizens to carry on with exterior finish of its new centre.

The building, located in Centennial Park, has been under construction for close to several months and will serve as a meeting and recreation centre.

Members of the executive met with council last night showing a sample of the brick intended to veneer the front of the building.

Council approved of the sample and instructed that work go ahead.

Because no firm figure could be attached to the master - plan, council recommended the work be done and once completed the senior citizens' return with exact figures.' Senior Citizens' Centre would be bolstered by town support to make up any difference.

Waste To Pulp

TORONTO (CP) — A University of Toronto professor has developed a system to eliminate chemical effluent from mills producing bleached kraft pulp.

Prof. W. Howard Rapson of the university's chemical engineering department said the system recovers and re-uses all the waste and chemicals in the bleaching process and results in a higher pulp yield.

The system was developed in collaboration with ERCO Industries Ltd., of Toronto, held agreement was later reached with Envirotech Corp., of Salt Lake City, Utah, and a joint company, ERCO Envirotech Ltd., has been formed in Toronto to hold patents and market the development.

The system evaporates effluents containing lignin, sodium, chlorine and other chemicals and the resulting salt residues are melted so that they can be mixed with fresh water to form a solution which then yields pulping and bleaching chemicals.

Prof. Rapson said water pollution can be eliminated more cheaply than by the use of effluent-retaining ponds.

"A rough estimate showed a saving of $6.2 million in capital cost for a 1,000-ton-a-day mill, and $8.75 a ton in operating cost per ton of pulp," he said. "This does not include the value of the potential increase in yield of pulp ... which could be as high as three per cent."

Wounded in Hunting Mishap Near Brighton

BRIGHTON — Ministry of Natural Resources officials at Napanee say charges are pending against a Toronto hunter after one of two companions was shot in the face while the trio were hunting near here Monday.

The officials did not release any identifications.

They said the men, all Torontonians, were hunting together for the day when a shotgun being carried by one of the hunters discharged.

A companion was hit in the face by 12 pellets and received from hospital after treatment.

Middle East Outbreak . . .

There is one word which explains the root cause of every international dispute, war or what have you. It is "prestige." In other words the business of one-upmanship, or simply of saving face.

The Arabs have a lot of face-saving to do amid the continuing shame of their defeat in the six-day war of 1967, at the hands of the Israelis. No matter that they took the Israelis by surprise this time around, by attacking on a Jewish religious holiday, the fact they seem to have inflicted considerable losses of men and material on the Israelis will have gone far toward redeeming something from this ashes of 1967. Propaganda, if nothing else, will see to that.

But what of the long-term results? Israel's counter-attack against the Egyptians and Syrians is reported under way and the Arab countries' last state may well be worse than what it was before the renewed hostilities. Consequently, still greater humiliations could be in store at the hands of a tough enemy.

The next few days will tell, but meantime let us reflect on the folly of it all. So much else is at stake, like Middle East oil and the energy from it that is already in short supply on this continent. More than just the combatants could be the losers in this latest round of hostilities on a distant battlefield.

A Violent Society . . .

As our Saturday editorial on violence in the United States was being written, further terrible events were taking place in Boston, one of the troubled U.S. cities mentioned in this context.

A young woman forced to douse herself with gasoline, then set alight by six young blacks who had taunted her; an elderly man stabbed while fishing at the waterfront; subsequently another stabbing. All three succumbing to their injuries. Three more in the list of some 18,000 persons who die violently in the United States each year, and not including highway fatalities.

There is no mounting evidence, as has been suggested, that the steady diet of violent happenings on television has a strong bearing on the situation, specifically on the minds of the youth of America, as well as on our own young people — although apparently not with the same disturbing results.

Some observations of Globe and Mail entertainment critic Blair Kirby are relevant. He had seen the premiere of the new Love Story series and enjoyed it, noting that "if the series keeps the quality at this level it will be welcome all season."

He went on: "There are 32 crime series on television; you can probably enjoy the delights of a number very hard all season if you want to. But how many shows are devoted to the more tender passions. . . ?"

It is an interesting point and it reflects the imbalanced mixed-up values of our crazy mixed-up world.

From Crime to Art

In Ottawa there is concern at the growth of high-rise apartments, many taking the view it will produce more crime which is already on the upswing.

In a big city this could well be the case. Ottawa has not been without its nasty accidents, including three fatal knifings in recent times, one of the victims a pensioner struck down near the National Arts Centre.

Quite what crime is just as an interesting and that sewers are a bigger issue. Be that as it may, these are not the only problems occupying citizens of the capital city. For one thing we keep the $50,000 futuristic steel-plate sculpture which has caused a storm among politicians and defenders of artistic freedom. Artist Robert Murray of Port au Basil, Que., calls it Tundra and it has been placed outside the defence headquarters building. Mr. Murray has also picked up a cosy $35,000 for his Haida, a rolled steel contraption outside the new external affairs building.

Kingston has had some such controversy too, over a piece of sculpture which we understand is drawn by Canada geese.

Someone has observed that "life is short, art long, decisions difficult, experiment perilous" (Does anyone remember that Paul Lukas movie many years ago, "Experiment Perilous?"). These pieces of sculpture, for better or worse, will be here long after we are all gone. Maybe that is their real merit.

Party's Credibility at Stake

How Long Will New Democrats Support Government?

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Sharp regional differences remain, but New Democratic MPs detect a growing view in caucus that they cannot continue to support the minority Liberal government much into next year. And there are some who advocate pulling the plug on Parliament before Christmas.

"Just tell me one thing we have to gain by waiting until spring," asked one. "The only thing we would have to run on would be the Liberal record."

There seem to be growing fears that the party may lose credibility if it continues to vote with the government on key issues, especially after Party Leader David Lewis told cheering supporters last July that he doubted whether he could tolerate the Liberals much longer.

"We've tolerated quite a bit in the meantime," said one member, obviously uncomfortable with the present situation.

There have always been a handful of NDP members who disagreed with supporting the Liberals in this Parliament, and one "open-minded" member said the number seems to have grown rapidly in the last few weeks. Some have even advocated a wider election, "although this would be tough on us, with our dependency on door-to-door canvassing."

This MP thought that a clear majority of members "oppose carrying the government through the opening weeks of a new parliamentary session, which likely will begin early in the new year. With the throne speech and budget, the House could face up to a dozen confidence motions in the first few weeks afid, as one said, "there's no way we want to go through that humiliation again."

But there are other NDP members who prefer to carry on until next year, including the five from Saskatchewan. Their resistance is based on the likelihood that the next campaign will be fought on inflation, and this becomes an entirely different issue in that province, where farmers are getting the best prices in years.

A Saskatchewan MP said he can foresee immediate difficulties for rural candidates when the party starts campaigning for specific measures to keep down prices.

"An election fought on inflation could be murder for us."

Party officials are disappointed with the apparent public image of the NDP in the last few months—that it is the party "most bent for voting with the government on key issues.

"Everyone knows that we have often voted with the government on confidence issues, yet no one seems to be aware that on two major votes we voted against the government while the Conservatives kept it in power."

One official said Mr. Lewis in future likely will put more emphasis on telling the public about legislation the NDP was successful in improving in the Commons, including eight amendments to the Housing Act.

"We haven't been successful in telling people about our party's contribution to this" Parliament. There have been too many explanations for the fact we have frequently voted with the government, and not enough talk about us forcing the government to bring in good legislation, including pension increases and bigger family allowances.

Unless these messages are put across successfully, one official said, the party will continue to lose credibility every time it supports the government.

"And sooner or later—and I predict sooner—we are going to have to ask ourselves how much longer can this go on?"

Recognition From China Too

Third World Lands Back Guinea Insurgents

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The relentless struggle of the liberation movements against Portugal's African possessions has taken a new turn with the recognition of a break-away revolutionary government in Portuguese Guinea by eleven Third World countries mainly African, and China.

The Guinea movement in Guinea slowed down earlier in the year when its leader a brilliant Portuguese university-educated intellectual was murdered in a still unconfirmed internal dispute.

His successor Aristides Pereira is a similar kind of man who benefited from Portuguese education and employment. Presumably he will be the president of the new Guinea-Bissau People's Republic.

In the meantime such neighboring countries as the already recognized and Marxist inspired of Guinea, the Congo (under its new name Republic of Zaire), and Upper Volta have officially recognized the breakaway state.

This kind of thing has not happened in Africa since a smaller number of nations, including the Ivory Coast, recognized the break-away but short-lived Republic of Biafra.

For liberation movements in the much larger and richer possessions of Angola and Mozambique to have made this move would have been ludicrous.

These large and sprawling regions still mainly under Portuguese civilian and military rule and even the strongly anti-Portuguese Black African republics would have needed substantial proof for such a move to liberation movements.

The Portuguese are unlikely to make much of the move publicly because Portuguese Guinea is the least of their overseas territories and of little economic value. Holding on there could be a matter of tactics, that a move out before this designation of a new state of affairs, after the event, would affect operations in other parts of Africa.

Moreover there is no sign of Portuguese pessimism that it is doing enough in West and East Africa. Rather the Angolan economy has had its best year with a cross national product from extractives industry expects, chiefly oil now making the total output of the Portuguese homeland.

The pattern of economic development in Mozambique is similar to the same and Lisbon claims the region, in spite of the liberation warfare going on in the northeastern corner of that vast territory, is receiving a record number of Portuguese immigrants.

Nevertheless both the declaration of the Guinea government and now China are of the lingering European colonies and the Black recognition by African and Asian Third World states indicate the revolutionary movement against Portugal in Africa is impatient to change direction. It is making a move for independence which requires world support, a move which smacks strongly of the pressure to maintain it.

Although there is absolutely no hint of such thinking in Lisbon, Portuguese government policies and economists might see the time when new industry and new economic developments in the home country, will do some day permit the release of the rich territories.

London has already become the world's major repair and overhaul port for the world's greatest number of very busy super-tankers. Facilities for refining, after these are already being expanded to serve ships up to 300,000 tons.

And this kind of offshore industry was not foreseen in the Portugal as an economy as recently as 10 years ago.

Kaladar Area Sports Cactus

The Brockville Recorder and Times

The Eastern Ontario countryside does not call forth visions of cowboys, dry ticks, rattlesnakes, tumbleweeds and sheriff's posses. But would you believe cactus? There's a prominent spot not far from Kaladar where a sharp prickly piercing the seat of a picnickers trousers could come from a small prostrate form of cactus.

Back in 1934, a Queen's University biologist sent a cactus fragment from "scanty soil in crevices of granite rock", from Lennox and Addington County to the Gray Herbarium of Harvard University. He grew a specimen in the Queen's University greenhouse for several years. The cactus remained in relative obscurity until 1967 when Dr. Ate Dr. R. E. Beschel of Queen's led a field trip of the Canadian Botanical Association to the site in 1967.

Ontario has one cactus occurrence on Point Pelee, a nearly spineless variety. The Kaladar cactus is distinctly spined. The same species is in Wisconsin and Illinois, at least 800 miles further west. Whence came the Kaladar cactus?

The plants could have migrated thousands of years ago during a warm and dry period which followed the retreat of the continental glaciers, and became isolated here among a group of southern plants which grow with it. It could also have been brought in the blanket of an Indian or a voyageur during the last century or two. This species of cactus breaks up very easily, and its spine joints will adhere to clothing and even leather boots. Each single joint can grow readily into a new plant if it falls in a suitable place.

The Kaladar cactus grows on rounded coarse granite knob, rich in feldspar and poor in quartz. Most of the surroundnig rock has a higher quartz content, especially in the gneissic, Similar rock outcroppings, which have had no forest cover for centuries, are common in that area.

So if you should sit on something sharp on an outing in the Kaladar area, or elsewhere in the great south east, take a careful look. If it's a cactus, your nearest office of the Ministry of Natural Resources would like to hear about it.

South African Press Faces Government Intervention As Blacks Grow Restive

By KEVIN DOYLE

LONDON (CP) — Harsh government threats against the basic freedoms of South Africa's English-language newspapers may herald a new era of unprecedented repression in that racially divided state.

Laurence Gander, former editor of the outspoken Rand Daily Mail, says: "The latest government ultimatum to the papers . . . is a reflection of the looming break-up of the conventional format in which South African politics have been conducted for decades."

In London, the Economist magazine says the "latest threat . . . has an extra note of toughness about it which newspaper men must take seriously."

Johannes Vorster, the South African premier, delivered his first warning to the press Sept. 12, only a few hours after his police had shot and killed 11 striking Africans outside a mine near Charletonville.

Although he didn't blame the newspaper directly for the killings, he accused them of inciting the blacks to racial violence. A week later, he gave the press until January to "put its house in order" or face the consequences.

His objective seems to be to stop the newspapers from airing black grievances or focusing attention on the racist mimicry of the black population.

Vorster's remarks was not entirely unexpected. Many observers believe he is acting because of increasing concern among his white racist supporters who fear an erosion of their traditional power as African demands grow for a greater voice in government.

Until the mid-1950s, most opposition to South Africa's apartheid laws was expressed by the English press, the Rand Daily Mail, among the larger papers, and the East London Daily Dispatch. Over the past decade, consistently presented views which were one of the avenues voters at the time.

That tradition grew has provided valuable support for the once, the English papers have become almost synonymous with the United Party but with conventional South African politics generally.

They have, in fact, helped determine the limits of what is public attitudes towards the race problem and a growing belief that some kind of accommodation with the blacks can assure white survival, instead of a continued place in the social structure there.

Many observers of South African politics believe the attitudes expressed in the press, coupled with strong external pressures and the growing self-awareness and self-confidence of the black masses, is leading to a general drive for self-preservation.

In other words, more and more whites are favoring consultative rather than free, recognition of the human dignity of blacks people and a relaxing of restrictions affecting them.

This, in itself, is a considerable threat to the more reactionary elements, members of Vorster and his followers. But what they probably believe is happening is what they always have feared: a growing sense of identification among white political opponents, South Africa's blacks and Western democratic sympathizers, abroad. Should this develop, the old-line racists would likely be engulfed. The government's reaction is expected to be intense efforts at wide-scale repression.

Many analysts believe a press crackdown by Vorster would be extremely hard to enforce if the newspapers mounted a concerted campaign of resistance.

But many are voicing fears that the papers will decide instead to isolate the Rand Daily Mail as a scapegoat against which Vorster could act to avoid backing down on his threat, while leaving the others virtually untouched.

United Appeal

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

The Board of Directors of UCS, plagued by internal problems for some time, took positive action to resolve these problems in August. This same board has embarked on the generous task of organizing once again the annual United Appeal. Under the very able, chairwomanship of Mrs. Eleanor Gleason, the drive for funds is under way

The most effective method by which this community can demonstrate our respect for and our renewed faith in both this dedicated group of volunteers and this organization is to give as we have never given before.

Individually and collectively it is the responsibility of every citizen, business, industry and organization to support most worthy of the United Appeal as well as all future years. If we all become desperate a genuine care and concern for others, why should anyone care for us? To this end, I hereby declare that my personal donation is pledged in the amount of $50. I challenge other members of this "community to equal or surpass this donation.

He Can't Recall Where $3,300 Went

TORONTO (CP) — A $150-a-week contractor's helper told Tuesday of withdrawing $3,300 from his bank account at a time of bombings in the lathing trade here last year but said he could not remember where any of the money went.

Natale Luppino of Burlington, Ont., also told the Ontario royal commission on crime in the construction industry that just before this he had deposited $1,800 to his account in a Hamilton bank, but in this case he could not say for sure where the money came from.

The evidence came out piecemeal as commission counsel A. E. Shepherd confronted Mr. Luppino with bank records while relating the deposits and withdrawals in time to two of three 1972 bombings in the lathing industry and one shook up of a contractor's premises.

He also brought out that Mr. Luppino, Italian-born employee of Durable Drywall Co., had cashed a company cheque for $2,000 on the day he deposited the $1,800. But Mr. Luppino testified all of this sum had been handed over in cash as a loan to Dominic (Joe) Zappia of Downsview, then a Durable employee.

Mr. Zappia stuck to this version and also clung to a recital of Mr. Luppino casting many of his paycheques and handing him the money, to the point where at one stage the commission counsel called his story "outrageously false."

Judge Harry Waisberg, the commissioner, also interrupted the questioning at one point to express the hope that Mr. Luppino's lawyer had instructed him in "the need for answering questions truthfully."

At the end of a day of stiff examination, both witnesses were sticking to their story. Mr. Luppino was due to be back on the stand today. The firm for whom they were working is headed by Cesedio Romanelli, a leading contractor in Toronto's Italian-dominated industry.

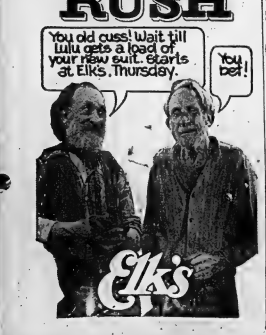
Earlier in the inquiry, the commission received evidence that police were tipped last November that two men were paid $1,000 each to stage a bombing on Sept. 22, 1972, at the plant of Naftali Kanner, a Jewish father who had been trying to amalgamate with two smaller Italian firms.

Stanfield Thinks Oil Costs May Be Absorbed

HALIFAX (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield appears to agree with Energy Minister Donald Macdonald that the oil industry should absorb the cost of higher oil and gas royalties planned by Alberta.

Mr. Stanfield told a news conference Tuesday the higher rates, scheduled for early 1974, won't necessarily result in increased costs for Canadian consumers dependent on Alberta.

However, they could affect "the profits of the industry in Alberta" and leave it with less capital to invest in exploration and development, he said.



He declined to offer an opinion on whether the industry is in a position to accept the added cost without increasing prices. This would require study to determine, he said.

The royalty increases were announced last week by Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed as a retaliatory measure to the 40-cents-a-barrel crude oil export tax imposed by Mr. Macdonald in September.

Mr. Stanfield said there are "limiting factors" to prevent the industry from automatically boosting prices to offset the added cost. He did not elaborate, but mentioned the selling price of crude at Chicago as an example.

Scientists Want Amphipods As Chickens of Sea Farms

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of British Columbia oceanography department is harvesting a tiny sea animal no bigger than a little fingersmall and probably just as bad tasting.

But the animal, a great scavenger of organic wastes on the sea bottom, is a tasty morsel for a hungry scallop or salmon.

The amphipod, an organism related to the common beach fly, is being scooped up from nearby mud flats and transported to tanks at UBC as part of an experiment to determine whether aquaculture—agriculture under the sea—can be suited to B.C. waters.

Project director T. R. Parsons says the amphipod is slated to play the same role in undersea farms that the chicken plays in barnyards.

"What we want to do is domesticate a marine animal the way agriculture has done with the chicken," said Mr. Parsons.

"A chicken will eat almost anything. It virtually recycles a lot of waste energy. It eats the grass, then produces the waste that makes more grass."

Chickens are also adaptable, domesticated from the tropics to northern climates.

"The amphipod is like that," said Mr. Parsons. "It is able to withstand changes in water temperature, salinity, type of habitat, tides, changes from salt water to fresh, and still continues to reproduce on schedule."

Mr. Parsons said he plans to establish it in a unnatural environment.

He is currently looking for an inlet with a narrow neck that can be bottled up with a rock dam to control the inflow and outflow.

The inlet will be connected to the open sea by a pipe which will draw water through tidal action from depths greater than 60 feet—water which still retains nitrates, phosphates and other nutrients that sustain living creates.

"The main energy cost for such a project is the tidal cycle, and that doesn't cost anything," said Mr. Parsons.

The nutrients would be used by microscopic plant organisms, which in turn would be eaten by the amphipods, which can also feed off the waste of larger organisms.

To be economically viable in B.C., Mr. Parsons said he believes the underwater farm would have to concentrate on a fairly high-cost product, such as scallops, oysters, lobsters, shrimps or small salmon, which could be sold to airlines for in-flight meals.

"You can get 2,000 pounds per acre, which is higher than most agricultural products. But you need a fair investment, say $150,000 for the whole system, so you can't go raising herring for mink feed, or anything like that.

"But if you grow something like scallops, there would be absolutely no problem in selling anything you could produce."

He said the idea for a tidal-draw farm was conceived in Scotland in 1946, but so far it has only been tried on a small scale in Alaska and the Virgin Islands.

He wants to start a pilot project of five to 20 acres, with scallops and oysters. This would require a 300-foot long dam consisting of 15,000 cubic yards of rock.

As part of the project, scallops and oysters now are being bred in reinforced plastic tanks at the federal government's Pacific Environmental Institute, in West Vancouver, B.C. They are flourishing at 10 times the normal productivity and will be introduced to the amphipods this fall.

Mr. Parsons almost closed a deal for use of a small inlet near Nanaimo, B.C., on Vancouver Island, but the owner decided the inlet would be more profitably used for other purposes.

"We are constantly running up against the problem that the sites we want have more value as recreational or residential property," he said.

"But the B.C. coast abounds with the kind of inlet that we need.

"The Asian countries are streets ahead of us in aquaculture. Japan, Indonesia, Malaysia are really into it. So is China, although I gather mostly in fresh water."

MR. AND MRS. PAUL HARRISON

Harrison—Carswell

King Street United Church in Trenton was the setting for the wedding of Valerie Wanda Carswell and Paul Edward Harrison on September 29.

Rev. William McDowell officiated at the service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carswell of Trenton, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Harrison of Toronto.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of twinkle silk organza, with a full skirt, wide banded sleeves, a mandarin collar and an empire waistline. Alencon lace overlaid the neckline and bodice, and appliques of this lace trimmed the skirt, and edged the chapel-length veil. The bride wore earrings belonging to her great-grandmother, and carried a nosegay of blue carnations.

Marlene Ferguson, maid of honor, wore a peacock blue georgette gown with a white velvet bolero, and a matching georgette rose in her hair. She carried a bouquet of blue mums.

The bridesmaids, Pamella Flindell of Belleville, and Melody Baragar of Hampton, cousins of the bride, and Jane Kelly of Paudash and Heather Dertiger of Trenton, all wore dresses in peacock blue georgette with matching hair. They carried nosegays of white mums.

The best man was Douglas Chivas of Trenton.

The ushers were David, Donald and Michael Harrison, brothers of the groom, and Malcolm Carswell, the bride's brother.

They will reside in Trenton.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Murray of Foxboro, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Brownlie.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of antique satin with a high mandarin neckline. Guipure lace accented the bodice, sleeves and the front of the Aline skirt. Her three tier waist-length veil fell from a crown of lace and seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of shasta daisies and pink roses.

Marilyn Eggleton served as maid of honor in a gown of flowered satin in autumn shades, with an empire waist, a low ruffled neckline and long sleeves. She carried a single gold mum.

The bridesmaids, Sharon Hutchon and Margaret terHaar, were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

The matron of honor, Mrs. James Osinga, wore a light green floral dress with a lace empire waist and short puff sleeves.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Harold Vandermeer, sister of the groom, and Jennie Vandermeer, the bride's sister, were identical gowns. The three attendants carried bouquets of white daisies and yellow mums.
